Molotov Returns To Geneva After Quick Trip Home

Far East Conference Tangled on Red Proposal

By MAX HABRELSON

GENEVA (AP)—Russia's foreign minister Molotov returned today to the Far Eastern conference after a sudden, two-day trip to Moscow for consultations.

Three transport planes returned Molotov and his party from the Soviet capital. A Russian passenger airline whisked the Russian diplomatic chief to his villa immediately after his arrival.

Molotov went home unexpectedly Sunday, telling several of the Western delegation chiefs he would return today.

Western observers assume he went back to the Kremlin to report to Premier Malenkov and his associates on the talks thus far, and to discuss the strategy the Soviet Union will pursue in the negotiations on Indo-China.

These observers believe the Communists now are debating whether to try to speed up the negotiations for an Indo-China armistice in order to produce a replica of the Korean armistice, or to delay talks at Panmunjon, or whether to seek a halt as soon as possible to the fighting in the Far East.

Aside from Molotov's return, the chief event anticipated at the conference today was a meeting of the political representatives of the Communist Vietminh rebels, called in strange for the opening of military discussions on Indo - China armistice terms later this week.

ASK ARMISTICE COMMISSION

The main nine-party conference on Indo-China was in recess for a day after getting snarled Monday over Communist proposals for a "neutral" commission to police any truce that may be arrived at. The conference debate is scheduled to resume Wednesday. Its chairman utilized the recess today for private conferences with their allies.

The French-Vietminh meeting today was called to work out preliminary details of negotiations on the question of zones in which the rival forces would assemble if and when a cease-fire were effected.

New difficulties over the cease-fire question arose Monday when the full Indo - China conference came to grips for the first time with the problem of policing an armistice.

Premier Bao Dai of Vietnam received Viet Nam's highest military decoration, the Order of the Million Elephants, from Gen. Nguyen Van Hinh, Viet Nam chief of staff.

Japs Wary About Premier's Trip, Police Guard Him From Assassins

TOKYO (Reuters)—Strengthened police guards have been thrown around Premier Shigeru Yoshida's home in fear of a possible assassination attempt on the part of his world tour.

Heavy patrols circled Yoshida's private estate as arrangements for the trip went ahead today amid a chorus of press and parliament criticism.

Yoshida's tour, expected to start this week, is said by police to have brought on an assassination attempt last month. Police say a young carpenter has confessed he has been arrested on the incident but the Socialists regard the explanation as unsatisfactory.

Similar suspicion about the trip drew an angry charge that Yoshida is "fooling the nation" from a Socialist member of parliament today.

Yoshida left off the outburst when he said blandly that his trip is "still undecided" and only "tentatively planned."

"What do you mean?" shouted a left-wing Socialist seemingly. "Everybody knows you are leaving this Friday. You are fooling the nation."

Yoshida is expected to leave for the U. S. Friday and spend six weeks on the trip, visiting Britain, Canada, France, West Germany, Italy, India, Pakistan and Thailand.

All details of the tour have been withheld, however. One goal will be to obtain a large loan from the U. S., newspapers say.

'TRUTH CRUSADE' IS ADVOCATED BY EISENHOWER

Deplores Division On Fighting Communism

By WATSON SIMS

NEW YORK (AP) — President Eisenhower Monday night deplored division within the United States on how to fight communism, and called for "more knowledge and intellect and less prejudice and passion."

A "crusade of truth" is needed both at home and abroad, he told a dinner celebrating the 200th anniversary of the founding of Columbia University.

"Through knowledge and understanding," he said, "we will drive from the temple of freedom all who seek to establish over us through secrecy whether they be agents of a foreign state or demagogues thirsty for personal power and political profit."

The president mentioned no names in condemning "would-be censors and regulators" and those who "divert our attention from the real issue." But his denunciation of nism an over-all goal on which he said Americans can united above all others.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, was asked whether the president had referred in his speech to Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.), with whom the administration has had frequent differences.

UNWILLING TO INTERPRET

"I am not going to try to interpret the president's remarks," Hagerty answered.

The Wisconsin Republican senator could not be reached for comment.

The speech was a major statement of the president's views on how communism should be fought. His voice grew thick with emotion when he referred to "demagogues" and "division." Those parts of his speech were met with applause by his listeners.

The nationally televised speech was heard by some 1,800 alumni, faculty members and friends of Columbia University who jammed the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel and another 400 who overflowed into an adjoining dining room. A score of college presidents were on the platform.

It was a homecoming of sorts for Eisenhower, who was Columbia's president from 1948 until shortly before his inauguration last year.

National Guard Plane Crashes, Nine Lose Lives

DULUTH, Minn. (AP)—A Minnesota national guard plane, hunting low visibility in a heavy fog, plowed into a wooded area on Minnesota's Iron Range near here Monday night, carrying nine troopers to their deaths in the crash, police others, four officials.

They heard the roar of the plane's engines so close and loud we thought it was coming down on our roof," said Mrs. Ernest Westberg, who lives about a block away.

"Then there were a couple of terrible crashes and everything was quiet."

The ship was returning from a practice flight to Indianapolis.

Bodies of five men were taken to the scattered wreckage and four more died en route to or shortly after reaching hospitals.

Congress Studies Document Believed to Show Communist Plans for World Revolution

WASHINGTON (AP) — A document which purports to outline Communist plans for world revolution by 1973 is being studied by Congress.

Senate majority leader William Knowland (Rep.-Calif.) put the document in the congressional record recently, describing it as an apparent outline of Chinese leader Mao Tze-tung's memorandum on the new program to be followed Communism. He has not disclosed how he came into possession of it.

The document is believed to have been carried to Moscow by Chinese foreign minister Chou En-lai in March, 1953.

It suggests that a course leading to war should be avoided "until we are certain of victory."

It then outlines a step-by-step program toward world revolution:

"The United States can be isolated by all possible means.

"Britain must be placated by beating convinced there is possibility of settling the major issues between the East and the West, so opportunities for trade will have a great influence on the British mind.

"In the case of France, her warweariness and fear of Germany must be thoroughly exploited. . . .

"Then should be it east and Southeast Asia (after these areas have liberated) 25,000,000 well-trained men who can be immediately mobilized. They will achieve two purposes. On the one hand they will force the capitalist countries to keep on increasing defence expenses until economic collapse overtakes them. On the other hand, a mere show of force, when time is ripe, will bring about capitulation of the ruling cliques of the countries to be liberated."

The memorandum says it war can be averted "the success of our plan for the other parts of Asia is almost assured." This task would be completed in 1963 and would be followed by a wave of revolution throughout the entire continent of Africa.

"With Asia and Africa disconnected from the capitalist countries there will be a total economic collapse in Western Europe. There capitulation will be a matter of course.

"With the fall of Western Europe and America the colonial countries would face "crushing economic collapse and industrial breakdown."

Golf for Red Rulers Is Part Of 'Communism's 'New Look'

Richard O'Regan, chief of The Associated Press bureau in Vienna, has made a study of what's behind the Iron Curtain to Hungary's capital and found some major changes resulting from communism's "new look." Highlights of his findings are recorded up in the following dispatch.

By RICHARD O'REGAN

BUDAPEST (AP)—It is rumored in Budapest that Hungary's Red rulers are planning to take up golf—hitherto regarded by communists as a decadent capitalistic sport.

The rumor may be just that, but it illustrates one thing:

The "new look" in communism is bringing considerable benefits to the working class. But it is being done more to communism's upper and middle classes, the group which has benefitted most in Hungary's segment of society is demanding and receiving privileges—and is getting them.

Hungary was the first iron Curtain country to announce the "new look," a modification of the drive for higher industrial and farm production to permit an increase in the output of consumer goods and restore some niceties of living.

But Hungary is still shipping huge quantities of her productions to Russia, and Soviet satellites. Thus her living standards, although higher, are very much lower than before the war, and lower than those of Western Europe.

CHAMPAGNE, NIGHT CLUBS

You can buy champagne glasses here today. On fashionable Vaci Utca there's fishing equipment for sale in stores. And the people of pest there are night clubs and restaurants where the food and drink prices are out of this world for the average well - paid white collar worker.

Patrons are doctors, engineers, writers, artists, actors, musicians, high party members and government officials. The latter have no money in Hungary. Many are young.

Several members of Hungary's soccer team, for instance, own cars and houses. So do half the members of the opera.

Women of the communist upper crust wear furs. The party says to those who can pay the price, that it is now a permitted to be pretty, to wear lipstick, to don high heels, to wear a girdle.

Since Budapest women remain drably dressed and untidy. But I counted a dozen well groomed.

Vietminh Press Their Drive To Cut Hanoi Communications

HANOI (Reuters) — Indo-China rebel forces pressed their campaign to cut the vital Hanoi-Haiphong railway line between Hanoi and its supply port of Haiphong in the last 24 hours, the French high command said today.

The Communist Vietminh Monday captured a small defence post protecting the railway line 6 miles east of Hanoi, and inflicted some losses on the garrison.

A Vietminh mine also blew up a train about 14 miles east of Hanoi, damaging several boxcars.

In continuing sweeps against guerrillas in the Red River delta, French forces killed 71 rebels, 24 of them in the Phu Ly area 40 miles south of Hanoi.

French infantry, artillery and armored units with air support continued for the fifth consecutive day to comb this area, a triangular district bounded by the Red River, between the villages of Phu Ly, Nam Dinh and Ninh Binh.

French fighter and bomber planes pounded Vietminh troop concentrations, supply roads and depots west of Ninh Binh and in the Thai district.

About 60,000 rebels are known to have infiltrated into the delta "grain basket" in the last few months and the French went to forestall a Vietminh attack initiating a "battle for rice" in its southern districts.

At Dien Bien Phu, rebel leaders Monday blocked the scheduled evacuation of 27 French doctors and medical personnel and 1,000 fallen fortress. French army headquarters said the rebels refused to let the men be flown out because the colonel in charge was not properly accredited.

NON-POLITICAL APPOINTMENTS TO SENATE POSSIBLE

Would Reduce Lopsided Membership in Chamber

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Non-political appointments to the Senate may be the government's plan to reduce the lopsided representation between government and Opposition in the 102-seat Upper Chamber.

Prime Minister St. Laurent and other cabinet ministers are understood to favor the appointment of men distinguished for their activities in professional, educational and business life.

Some future appointees may be selected without stress on their political leanings and they may represent some label other than that of a political party to designate representation.

BY ACTION

Non-political appointments may have been what Prime Minister St. Laurent meant Monday when he lectured during a Commons debate on Senate reform that the government's view on this question is "by action, not by action."

A cabinet source says that this action could be the March government would go in attempting to fill the 11 vacancies in the Upper Chamber before the next general election. Vacancies will total 78 Liberals.

Of the 24 senators chosen in Quebec, three each in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, two each in Ontario and Manitoba and one each in Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island.

The missing child is Jane Marie (Jenie) Hoffman.

A police canvass of the waterfront turned up the information that a 200-pound woman known only as "Toni" had been seen with a child whose description fitted that of the missing youngster.

Walter Howard Hicks of Tampa, Fla., told police the girl had been placed in his care by her mother, Mrs. Blanche Hoffman, and showed them a letter she purportedly wrote to signify her willingness to have him adopt her daughter.

Mrs. Hoffman, police said, was described by Hicks as an upstate New Yorker whom he met here about a week ago. Why she had given him custody of the girl was not made clear.

Wesleyan Methodist Church Raises $22,000 for New Wing

Backed by a profusion of spring flowers, Rev. Carrie Hazzard and Rev. Lois Richardson, of Camden, N.J., challenged overflow congregations in Everett St. Wesleyan Methodist Church on Sunday to new spiritual attainments and a greater interest in things pertaining to the kingdom of God.

It was the occasion of the 7th anniversary of the church and was a memorable day in that it marked two very important events—the burning of the parsonage mortgage and the raising in cash and pledges of $22,000 for a new wing on the existing church building.

At the morning service, the pastor, Rev. James S. A. Spearman, called for Mr. B. E. Elliott, the building fund treasurer, and Mr. H. Coles, the general treasurer, to meet him at the chancel.

In well chosen words, Mr. Elliott thanked the delighted congregation for their liberal contributions to the building fund, which had made possible the burning of the parsonage mortgage in less than five years from the time of building. Rev. Lois Richardson also expressed words of gratitude to the congregation, stating that few churches the size of the Belleville Wesleyan Methodist congregation had done better. As the mortgage was being consumed the congregation stood and blended their voices in praise to God, singing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow".

The need for a new wing and alterations to the existing building, to include a larger church auditorium, pastor's office, vestry, nursery, additional Sunday schools rooms and a permanent exterior finish, was emphasized throughout the day. A few minutes were allotted for the receiving of pledges and cash which resulted in $22,000 being cheerfully given.

The pastor, Rev. James S. A. Spearman, thanked the people for their generous contributions to the building fund—and expressed his faith that the day of raising the remaining portion would not be too difficult when God was in it.

Rev. Carrie Hazzard and Rev. Lois Richardson, who returned last fall from a world missionary tour, reported that throughout the fall and winter months they had raised over $30,-000 in cash and pledges for foreign mission enterprise.

Mr. Bob Clifford, of Winchester, Ont., for many years to the services with his God-given musical ability and solo voice. Mr. Clifford was assisted by the young people of the church.

John Silver, With 14 Years' Of Service at Trenton, Retires

TRENTON (Special) — Representatives of Sergeant Mess from the eastern establishment and far west as Edmonton came to Trenton Air Station by plane for a farewell party on the occasion of WO1 John Silver's retirement from the RCAF after 14 years of service.

The get together unique in air force history pleased the man, who found pleasure in helping a young recruit or a befuddled old timer. Among the many gifts he received was a permanent mess card to any Sgt's Mess in the RCAF in Canada. The cherished life membership he says is the sweetest thing that happened to me during my air force career.

The Ottawa Mess presented retiring WO1 Silver with a beautiful color photograph of the Memorial Gates. Mr. Silver was awarded the Mbr. of the British Empire medal for his work in the Commonwealth Air Training Scheme during World War II. The gates are symbolic of other Commonwealth countries' appreciation for Canada's contribution.

PAYS GREAT TRIBUTE.

The message accompanying the photograph was a great tribute to Mr. Silver. It reads: Presented to Warrant Officer 1st Class John Silver from the Warrant Officers and Sergeants' Mess of RCAF Station Rockcliffe, Ottawa, on his retirement from the RCAF, 1954. Throughout the years of loyalty his character has remained wholly unblemished, so that today as he steps down from his duties he remains forever after an inspiration to others, who must continue. Loyalty, devotion and courage are virtues that should make a man ageless. Unfortunately remorseless time does not permit such miracles. The years go by and add their weight to all, the loyal and the diligent, the brave and the cowardly. And so therefore we accept the resignation of one of our most trusted. We do so only because the powers at our command do not include that by which we can turn back the passage of time.

CAME IN 1941

Mr. Silver came to Trenton May 8, 1941. He soon became Station Warrant Officer, a charge he had until two years ago. Since he has been a Warrant Officer First Class with Training Command Headquarters.

Mr. Silver was an army man before he enlisted in the RCAF. In fact at the age of 18 he served WO1 in the British Expeditionary Forces in World War I.

Mr. Silver, however, would have been a navy man if he'd taken his father's advice.

When he re-enlisted after a civvy job in the navy was he took on the rank of AC2. Maybe that is why he had so much tolerance for the new recruit.

His work has caused him to rub shoulders with people from all walks of life, and he developed a knack of listening to somebody else's troubles. He always was the underdog a break. That is the reason he became known as Mr. Air Force.

Mr. Silver is leaving the air force but he intends staying close by to Trenton so that he can keep an affectionate eye on his favorite station. "You can't be the Warrant Officer with the longest service at Station Trenton without having a deep feeling for the place," he said.

Mr. Silver also has a deep feeling for his church. On Sunday he was honored to read the lesson in the church chapel. He also was presented with a Bible for regular attendance.

Since it was first hinted that he would be going into retirement, Mr. Silver has had many offers of good jobs on civvy street. He has accepted none of them because he wants to relax and enjoy freedom from responsibility for a time. Mr. Silver is happy that her husband has made wife and home No. 1 and the RCAF No. 2.

Always a military man Mr. Silver's advice to the new recruits is: "Get in and pitch and do your stuff and you'll never regret it."

Pickerel Taken In Trent River Weighs 9½ lbs.

TRENTON (Special) — The prettiest pickerel taken from the fast water of the Trent River this year is the prize of Donald Barr, a clerk at Bailey Hardware. He has caught the yellow beauty this morning. It weighed nine and a half pounds. It measured 29½ inches from tip to tip. It was by far the largest of a catch the lucky fisherman was envy. Fisherman Barr has entered his whopper in the current fishing contest.

Hotel Industry Subject of Talk To Rotarians

A host often has the experience of having his hospitality returned, by the guest putting the check down on some item in the house. Bellhopsers probably are the most apt prone to this treatment, continually missing articles from hotel rooms, such as Roy Corbett, managing director of the Ontario Hotel Association puts it, "... somehow or other just seem to walk out of the room."

Speaking at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club at the Hotel Quinte Monday, Mr. Corbett said it is amazing the number of times when checking out, that a suitcase includes a blanket or some other item of hotel equipment.

Toronto's Royal York hotel carries an annual "theft budget" of $25,000 for replacement of articles taken from its premises by guests.

Mr. Corbett said he gave the club an insight on the economic importance of the hotel industry, one which ranks fifth among the industries of Canada, he said.

Last year in Ontario alone, hotels returned receipts totalling $110,000,000. Hotels in Belleville employ about 200 people," he said.

Like every other business, hotels have their problems and since they cater for the public they depend on public opinion to smooth the service.

Receptionists should be definitely confirmed, while any cancellation or complaint from the public should also be made known.

"Hotels can never regain the lost revenue paid for room rent for people who don't show up," he said.

SPECIALIZED BUSINESS.

The Hotel business is a specialized business, he said, and one of the greatest problems of the past ten years has been that of people entering the business who have had no experience of the profession.

Assessing the importance of the tourist trade, Mr. Corbett said that it was an industry worth cultivating. Last year tourists spent $300 million in Ontario, "a good part which," he said, " . . . comes in a spending way of mind, and includes sales without increasing overhead."

The tourist's money benefits almost everyone in the community, Mr. Corbett said and quoted Canadian Tourist Association statistics on how the tourist dollar is spent. The statistics show 25 cents goes to retail and department stores; 22 cents to restaurants and for food; 17 cents to hotels and holiday camps; 12 cents to garages and service stations; nine cents on entertainment; seven cents on tobacco; six cents refreshment, and three cents on novelties.

As proof of the importance of the "travel dollar" Mr. Corbett mentioned hotel projects now in progress in other parts of the world to cater for tourists, and said good hotel operations perhaps will offer a great opportunity for one nation to help another.

"If we can holiday together, we can work together," he said.

The meeting was chaired by Court Miller. Guests included for president Harold Mott. The speaker was introduced by Jack Yarwood and a thank you by Dr. Harry Burns. Farthest out-of-town guest was Jack Davis, a Rotarian from Hamilton, Bermuda.

Fisherman's Body Recovered From Lake Superior

SAULT STE MARIE, Ont. (CP) —The body of a 36-year-old fisherman, Peter Swarts of Muskegon, Mich., was recovered from Lake Superior about 84 miles north of here, late Monday.

Swarts drowned Sunday when the outboard motorboat from which he was fishing with a companion, capsized. The companion, Orville Stark, 36, also of Muskegan, swam 1,000 feet to shore.

No decision has been announced regarding an inquest.

Swarts was a married man with a 16-year-old son and twin nine-year-old daughters.

Children Drunk, Were Given Wine To Quiet Them

TORONTO (CP)—Police said today they found three young children drunk in a west-end apartment and that they were told a man fed them wine to keep them quiet.

Charged with contributing to juvenile delinquency was the children's mother, Mrs. Ruth Nicholson, 26. Terrence Groom, also 26, was charged with contributing and with supplying liquor to minors.

Police said they found Warren Douglas Nicholson, 4, unconscious and apparently in an alcoholic stupor, on a day bed. His sister, Gail, 5, and brother, Joseph, 2, staggered around the room. Police were called by a neighbor who reported seeing Gail staggering in the street. The children were reported recovering.

Police said the woman had been living with a painter named Nicholson until the afternoon drinking with Groom.

In family court today, Groom was remanded until June 8. Bail was set at $2,000.

Trend Toward Brisk Business At Trade Fair

TORONTO (CP)—A Halifax academician and Scottish heather is a Japanese merchant; a Johannesburg ironmaker sold a large order to a British department store; Canadian girls posed in modern bikinis before the centuries-old wood-carving art of Bali—and the whole world looked on.

These were some of the highlights that stood out in the pageantry of the 1954 Canadian International Trade Fair which opened Monday.

Although no figures are available officials said at the close of the first day the trend is towards "very brisk business." But general attendance appeared to be much smaller than that of opening day last year.

Canadian provinces, in particular have made an all-out effort to attract interest this year. Manitoba leads with 2,400 square feet of display space, a composite exhibit boasting the products of Manitoba firms in everything from leather goods to a radiation detector.

The heather came from the Halifax mill, where former mayor J. E. Ahern was exhibiting the city's produce, boosting the port and calling the Maritimes' vacation playground. He claimed the heather was from roots brought by the Black Watch from Scotland in 1854.

Roy Cohn Denies Asking Schine Get N.Y. Posting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roy M. Cohn denied today ever asking that Pte. G. David Schine be assigned to the New York area—dispelling testimony from both Army Secretary Robert Stevens and Army Counsellor John Adams.

Cohn insisted Adams was "quite mistaken" in declaring that Cohn exerted extreme pressure to get a New York assignment for Schine.

Cohn, chief counsel for Senator McCarthy's investigating sub-committee, was on the stand for more cross-examination in the 24th day of the army-McCarthy hearings.

Disarmament Talks Resumed

LONDON (Reuters) — Five-power private talks on atomic and conventional disarmament moved into their third week here today with the Western powers and Russia still apparently disagreeing on basic principles.

Representatives of the major atomic powers—the United States, Britain, France, Canada and Russia—continued their meetings after a three-day adjournment.

Sitting as a sub-committee of the United Nations disarmament commission, the group has been asked to submit "an acceptable basis" for discussion at the next full commission by July 15.

Observers believe there is little hope that the delegates will be able to present an agreed report.

French Repulse Arab Terrorists

TUNIS, Tunisia (Reuters) — French troops Monday night beat off an attack by armed terrorists on an army post at Fort Saint Louis 15 miles west of Gabes, it was reported here today.

The French suffered no casualties in the latest outbreak of an intensified campaign against French rule.

The French resident-general, Pierre Voizard, announced emergency measures to meet the rising terror campaign started by the National Liberation Army, an Arab movement that is said to have links with Egypt.

The campaign reached a high point last week when 50 Arab terrorists lined up five French farmers and shot them down.

The few but fanatical terrorists are said to receive secret hideouts and are equipped with Second World War weapons. They aim to oust the French from this North African colony.

SOFT YEARS DOING US IN?

"It is the soft years that are doing us in," says Joseph Lister Rutledge of Forest Hill Road, Toronto, who publishes "Joe Rutledge's Clip-Sheet."

To support this assertion he quotes John Lardner, sports columnist for Newsweek, who comments on the change in the nationalities of big league ball players. Fifty years ago big league box scores were full of Irish and German names, says Lardner. Later they abounded in names that were Italian and Central European. "Baseball—like other professional sports, like boxing and pro football—has been an index of big immigration movements," says Lardner.

He then makes an observation that the sports department might be able to use as a crystal ball. "It seems to be a rule," says Lardner, "that those groups which have it toughest, which must dig hardest to live selectively and for a living, still always get better—produce more than their share of athletes."

Does that explain Russia's victory over Canada in hockey—and Hungary's defeat at the feet of the Hungarian soccer experts? What is so tough about life in Australia that it keeps the Davis Cup apparently permanently anchored there? And when will India win the Olympic Games?

But let us leave questions like these to the sports experts and return to Mr. Rutledge, who proceeds to apply Mr. Lardner's axiom on athletes to the wider field of life in general.

"It is struggle that produces leaders—struggle and hardship and needs," says Mr. Rutledge. "When the need passes, so does the first-rateness."

Now this is not a new contention—but it is argument that has never been irrefutably proved one way or the other, in the view of many conviction remains that there may be considerable truth in it.

Which brings us to a nasty little string of deductions. Struggle, hardship and need produce leaders.

Leaders in what? Why in the devising of means to eliminate struggle, hardship and need, of course.

In other words, in the continuing need for leadership, the first-rate mind eliminates the condition which makes it possible for minds to be first-rate.

It all seems rather futile and pointless.

Which goes to show that hard we struggle to make them soft and then the soft years, in Mr. Rutledge's words, "do us in."

— THE VALUE OF TRUTH

The fight between Senator McCarthy and the United States Army illustrates one very sad fact about modern society. Somebody in a high place had told and is continuing to tell a sizeable untruth.

There is nothing new about people telling lies. It has been going on since the beginning of time. But, by and large, we can expect that people and groups of people in high places be honest. They don't make up stories the way kids do when they are arguing about who threw the first rock.

The technique of the "big lie" as used so effectively, for a while, by Hitler and other dictators is a terrible thing. There is no value at all placed on truth. A statement is valuable in so far as it will benefit the person who makes it. Truth is nothing in itself.

Unfortunately there is a tendency these days to follow that line of thinking. Many have come to feel that the sin is not in telling an untruth, but in getting caught at it. This is a dangerous atmosphere. The American government committee that is holding the present hearings can do a great service if it can establish who is right and who is not, and exact an adequate penalty from the culprits.

DISCOVERY OF THE YEAR

Foolish is the sucker who bites the hand that foots his grocery bill. Nevertheless we fell compelled to report that the most important news never gets into the newspapers. This not because editors toss out important news—perish the thought—but because there is so little of it.

Take the past twelve months for instance. Conventions have convened, conferees have conferred, warriors have warred, professors have orated, politicians have quotated, and doctors have doctored—but where has it got us? Exactly nowhere!

The only important discovery of the past year, as far as we are personally concerned, was personally discovered. Only one thing has improved our foothold in this vale of tears. It is the lack of tears in our socks. If your wife thinks you are a hard nut with razor-edged heels, you may be interested to learn that a couple of pairs of nylon socks will weather four seasons and emerge whole without a single hole.

That's news, brother!

FIRST BENEFITS FROM SEAWAY

A first benefit to come from the St. Lawrence deep waterway and power project will be via the hundreds of companies which expect to share in supplying the vast quantities of materials and equipment which will be required on construction work. An estimated 7,630,000 barrels of cement is but one indication of the amount of material that will be required, along with large amounts of steel, lumber and building equipment. JUNE BRIDEGROOM

Back he comes as young as ever!
Age, it seems, can touch him not.

This I'd swear, as I behold one:
Never have I seen an old one.

Always new the suit he's wearing;
No expense for splendor sparing.

New the shiny shoes he stands in;

New the gloves he has his hands in.

Fresh and new the boutonniere cut;
Also new the shave and haircut.

Young until death shall sever,
Happy bridegroom, young as ever.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

BUZZING AROUND

Some years ago a man invented a mechanical bee. It was fitted with an ingenious little device which enabled it to buzz around as if it were alive. When released, one could not tell it from a live bee. But if you were to put a drop of honey on the table, the live bee would take the honey and the artificial bee would not. The artificial bee just buzzed around.

Think of that drop of honey as the opportunities given everyone to live a full and satisfying life. There are some people who go after the deep and abiding situations, and there are others who do not. The latter just buzz around. To them, life is not a pilgrimage, an' adventure, or a burden; life to them is a party. They go to buzz around. They seek to evade work, to avoid responsibility, and to indulge every appetite. They never get down to the real joys of life which arise, not from indulgence or acquisition or domination, but from living life to its fullest every day.

Artificial bees and artificial people have no interest in anything else but just in buzzing around. They are not interested in the things in life which are real. Superficiality characterizes their every act and attitude. They live just in the deep and abiding situations, and there are others who do not.

Egg-Throwing Legal

(By William Chapman White in the New York Herald Tribune.)

Much of our conception of human rights, as the authorities point out, rests on the common law and on the great documents and decisions of that law. Any one interested in knowing just what rights a human, particularly a husband, does have in this shrinking world will find the British justice has recently accorded husbands a brand new right.

Briefly stated, without any legal verbiage, of which the American people have had enough for a lifetime, the British Court of Appeals has stated flatly that a husband can heave an egg at his wife any time he wishes. The wife can't therefore charge him with cruelty; in fact, she can only charge him with extravagance.

As in all things legal, there are several provisos. Before eggs start flying over 10,000 breakfast tables, the husbands had better know them: Firstly, they may only use the difficult ones; secondly, they must miss the target. • • •

This legal dictum that is certain to startle many a harried married life was uttered just a few weeks ago by their learned and brethren of the bench. The judges on the Appeals bench. They had to rule on a difficult case. A lady was appealing against the rejection of her divorce petition, alleging cruelty by her husband. As proof of that cruelty, she testified that he threw an egg across the table at her.

The judges looked rightly puzzled until Lord Justice Singleton asked, with legal acuteness, "And did it hit you?"

"Missed her, my lord!" said the lady's lawyer.

Then said the judge. Another judge echoed him, "Um, hum!"

Instead of turning to the law books for precedents on "Eggs, Throwing of," the learned Lord Justice Singleton shook his head. "Somebody," he said, "must have a pretty bad shot." He added, "Um."

His associate on the bench was equally alert to the broad implication of the case. "Throwing eggs about—is it cruelty?" he asked, thus raising a theoretical question to the unanswering ceiling. He answered it himself. "I should say it was cruelty to good thought."

The lady's lawyer, having been around judges for many years, knew when to laugh. He laughed. He also agreed. "Yes, my lord."

• • •

With sterling simplicity, the judges would not be drawn into being irritated over eggs. They said nothing about the egg—whether it was fresh or had been boiled or three-minute, chicken or duck. They did not ask if the lady preferred eggs sunny side up or if whether the husband was an overhand or underhand thrower. No one asked what the lady might have said that brought forth the egg. They said only that they did want to know, on this point, was the wife cruel. "When was this egg thrown?"

The answer was: "Twenty years ago!"

Instead of remarking on the lady's remarkable memory for ancient hurt, Lord Justice Singleton said somberly, "I suppose the husband had had many chances to ed eggs—there was a plentiful supply then. He pursed his lips here finger and wig wagged—"he did not throw one again in 20 years." Every one in the room nodded at that acute legal observation. • • •

The evidence was all in. The judges deliberated. They could find no precedent in this incredible act.

Lord Justice Singleton spoke in measured judicial tones. "Cruelty?" he said. "It depends." If the egg hits the wife on the head it might be cruelty. But if the husband just throws it, saying, "Take it or not, and does not hit her, that is a long way from cruelty," he decided."

Then the Lord Justice added a line that might well be applied in many other cases of assault, whether in marriage, business, government, or even in Congressional investigations. "An egg shot with an egg is not cruelty, but if you go on doing it I suppose it might be."

Vancouver Cats Cause Rumpus

(Vancouver Province)

The midnight yowling of thousands of stray tomcats on the back fences will keep alive the issue of whether the city should license cats, or not.

By a margin of a single vote, the City Council decided to do nothing about a proposal from David Pickard, S. P. C. A. secretary-manager, that cats should be licensed.

Aldermen may imagine that they have settled the issue. But if the complaints that are received by this newspaper are any indication, the Council has merely postponed a decision.

Mr. Ricardo seems to have a lot of humane support for his argument that the time has come for Vancouver to do something drastic to cut down the 20,000 stray cats who are now believed to be roaming the city.

At the moment, according to Mr. Ricardo, there are thousands of unwanted cats in Vancouver and the Vancouver district, including beyond all control. From a health point of view, he points out, something should be done, stray cats being carriers of tuberculosis, rabies, mange and other ills.

This, of course, is another case in which the responsible citizen may be penalized for the thoughtlessness of the irresponsible. Neighbors, family that loves its cat and feels that it is entitled to roam should have to wear a license, or why they should be obliged to buy one for Rover.

But this does not solve the problem of the stray. Some are dumped as youngsters' pets and abandoned when they turn into full-grown cats. Some are the progeny of these unfortunate animals previously dumped. They live a life of misery and a health menace and should be destroyed.

The problem is to identify a homeless cat from one that has an owner. Perhaps a collar would answer this question. And disfigurage anyone from taking in a stray kitten with the idea he can hurt it loose on the city whenever he feels like it.

Meantime, the midnight symphonies will continue.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THAT SURVIVING SPIRIT

These bodies of ours were constructed to last a long time. It is amazing what punishment they can take. It is considerate, generous and kind to your body it will return health and happiness out of kindness when many material investment in this world. The surviving spirit in every person can be tapped in an emergency so as to save his life. A doctor friend of mine told me recently of an example of this surviving spirit. He had as a patient a woman who had gone through a most severe and unusual operation, one which all the experts about her declared would prove fatal. A surgeon of fact few successes had ever been recorded. But this woman, by some miracle, got well—well—and she did. She walked out of the hospital cured.

This surviving spirit within us is a gift from our Creator. It is what has made the live nations of the earth what they are. It has fueled enterprises of every sort and description. The inventors and discoverers look to it. It has been America's choicest heritage. Our religious have it. Nature is its inspiration.

Columbus had it when it looked as though his ships would never get back. But he had faith—and that surviving spirit. And so he gave the order: "Sail on, and on, and on!" It is that spirit which is pushing the will and heart of President Syngman Rhee, of Korea, liberty and freedom, as well as great patriots of the world, including Washington, Bolivar, Lincoln, and many another.

The main story of every great enterprise is the story of the struggles, hardships, and often its early failures, which the temptation was to give up. They thought Henry Ford was crazy when he offered stock in his first automobile company. There were a few, however, who thought Ford was right, and bought, even though modestly. They all retired millionaires many times over!

Mortality of Presidents

(Boston Herald)

We cannot lessen the mortality of those who accept the world's most important and most killing jobs. But we might provide some assurance that the successful who go to the people's need be chosen. Harry Truman wasn't taking any chances with all due respect, Richard Nixon wouldn't be if anything should happen to Ike before 1956.

WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS.

We wish you would stop calling yourself a quack, some correspondents tell me. They flagrantly put me on the back and assure me they do not think of me as a quack. And I have to admit they are sincere about it for they proceed in the next paragraph to present their symptoms some expert will enlighten me about it.

Calling myself a quack is just one of my tricks. A quack, says Webster, is one who pretends skill or knowledge in any matter of which he knows little or nothing. Of course I don't come right out and tell you that I know more than the doctors around there do, but I manage to give some such impression nevertheless. Maybe my wise you would pay no attention to this column.

I pity physichiatrist told me something that gave me a great lift. Under the guise of advice this father was a general practitioner) he had followed this egregious column ever since he began the study of medicine. But like his father, he had learned a good deal from it. I try to take things like that calmly, but actually I feel like shouting about it, for there are many of us in the professionals and sneers of the businessmen—I said business men—in the profession hurt more than I like to admit.

The other night I had a pleasant dream. For a considerable time my dreams were all unpleasant. I was always lost and unable to find the way home or to get anywhere in time for any definite thing. I was always in a hurry and couldn't get there.

Then I read a book by a famous psychologist who said that perhaps I should find the Lord. I believe the reader was right, for, well, anyway, I haven't been lost lately, and I do not feel that I lost that way is a dreadful experience which haunts you for days afterward, even though you realize it was just a bad dream.

But the pleasant dream was that a philanthropist had set up a foundation to support a column on the medical faculty, the first occupant being none other, for a course of instruction leading to the degree, D.P.H., (personal health, that is). A number of grad uates from the course would be fully endowed so they could practise pure medicine for, say, ten years. That is to say they could tell patients the truth without fear of losing their practice, because they would be on regular salary from the foundation and any fees they might receive would go to the foundation, all in accordance so far as the public and their medical colleagues would be aware.

That, I think, is what this country needs, an endowment to keep medicine from becoming a business.

Eyebank Miracles

(Saint John, N.B., Telegraph-Journal)

Living at a time when fresh discoveries in medical knowledge and achievement flash in rapid succession upon mankind, we as a people have grown into the airport or interplanetary travel before any marked excitement is exacted.

Yet there are achievements that seem to possess positively miraculous. Such is the grafting of a healthy cornea into a blind eye. When we hear of this it never fails to excite wonder.

The eight years since the delicate operation was so fully accomplished to justify the establishment in New York of the Eyebank for Sight Restoration.

Twenty years ago the corneal grafting was more or less an experiment and it is said that it was then successful in only twenty per cent of the cases that came to the attention of surgeons. It is noted in The New York Times: "Today success in selected cases is almost ninety per cent. This remarkable showing must be credited in large part to the Eyebank's system of preserving and transporting eyes." Even the eyes, they are bequeathed to the bank just as if they were jewels.

Nor is the collecting, preserving and transporting of eyes to restore sight to the sightless the beginning and the end of the work of the Eyebank.

It has a clinic in which more than 1,000 surgeons have been trained in the technique.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The first thing you saw in the grocery store was the apples. At all times past—was a case of dates. A case of dates, by the way, was nearly a foot deep, filled solid with close-packed, glossy, beautiful dates, brown dates.

Sure, there was a large bunch of bananas hanging on one side of the window. And there were pyramids of oranges, and some pineapples sliced open temptingly. And there would also be a case of bulk dried apricots, like little, shriveled, peachy orange. But it was the case of dates, glossy as a new leather belt, with its crowded fingers packed neatly, that set the tone of the window. It was the case of dates, glossy as a new leather belt, with its crowded fingers packed neatly, that set the tone of the window. It was the case of Araby.

But dates were bought in lumps. With a sort of ice pick, the grocer would pry you out a pound or two of dates, which you took home and broken apart, to be scattered over the top of the cereal that sat in the middle of the table with three oranges, two bananas several pieces of toast, a boiled egg, a stem, and a Northern Spy apple to give the luncy touch to the meal.

Dates, less shiny now than when in the case in the window, were rich and full of flavor. They had the pits in them. Your parents, with the false teeth, rarely took them.

There are dates still, in the stores, of course. But they are in packages. Some of them have the pits in them, and some of them apricots are in packets. The raisins have been off the stems for years, and the bananas and pineapples still hold out: but it would be interesting to know the figure on the amounts of these that have been canned in comparison with the number of dates.

Bananas don't hang in bunches any more. When the passengers came in, they wanted the half dozen bananas dangling here and there off it, forlorn, unwanted, a little dazed.

Now bananas are separated into neat bunches laid ready, if not already in cellophane, on trays.

In dreams, I find myself with an ice pick, searching feverishly for a case of glossy brown dates. Would Freud say maybe I am homesick?

CAMPBELLFORD

Newly Organized G.O. Corps Holds First Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD — The first meeting of the newly organized Ground Observers Corps sponsored by the RCAF was held in the Legion, Campbellford, with Mrs. Crawford and F/O Pat Costello, of the Peterborough Filter Centre, explained the operation of the corps.

Ground work in organizing this corps in various areas has been completed and individuals have been appointed by the RCAF to head the local organizations.

For defence purposes, Canada has been divided into regions, Campbellford, Hastings and Warkworth comprise sub-region 7, with headquarters in Peterborough.

A regional supervisor has been appointed for each region, who in turn, appoints chief observers, who recruit volunteer observers for his locality. An assistant regional supervisor has also been appointed.

Jack Free, security guard for the RCAF, who holds the rank of special constable, was originally appointed regional supervisor for sub-region 7, but he had to give up his post because of the fact that he holds a key position with the Hydro, and his services would be required in that capacity in the event of war.

OBSERVATION POSTS

He was responsible for organizing observation posts in Campbellford, Hastings and Warkworth. His job has now been taken over by William W. Reid, who was formerly assistant supervisor.

Chief observer for Campbellford is Chris Newman, who is at present recruiting official observers. Assisting Mr. Reid as assistant supervisor of the area is John P. Coxwell. Chief observer of the Warkworth area is Robert Edgar. James Ryder holds the post position in Hastings.

Mrs. Crawford explained the reasons for the existence of the corps, and how calls were handled at the filter centre in the Clapper building in Peterborough.

The new filter centre is said to be the most modern in North America and boasts the latest in communications equipment. It is in direct telephone contact with all observer posts in the area and with radar stations and fighter squadrons in North Bay.

Further meetings are to be held and classes in aircraft recognition will take place when the Peterborough filter centre becomes operational.

The Ground Observer Corps began operating in many strategic areas of Canada last summer its purpose is to supplement Canada's radar screen.

Its function at observation posts spaced approximately eight miles apart which report aircraft to a central filter centre. Here, volunteers plot the courses of aircraft and pass all information to the associated radar station or search and rescue units.

Rising Costs In Education Causing Concern

OTTAWA (CP)—Eastern Ontario municipalities suggested Monday the province might consider imposing a general sales tax to provide funds to meet rising costs in educating the young.

If the province is reluctant to take such action, it might consider allowing the municipalities to impose the tax, a committee of the Eastern Ontario Development Conference said Monday.

The conference, sponsored by the province and eastern Ontario boards of trade, suggested these other means of raising educational funds:

1. Provincial tax on income, the proceeds to be devoted to education.

2. An appeal for federal aid, but without allowing federal control over local schools.

TO IMPROVE EDUCATION

"All of us might well endorse the use of money from federal sources to improve education throughout the country as a whole," the committee said. "In a democracy, it is the birthright of each child to be provided with an adequate opportunity to develop his individual capabilities regardless of place of birth or the financial means of his parents or his community."

The committee's suggestions, to which Ontario Education Minister Dunlop will reply today, said also that provincial grants to cover elementary and secondary school costs have been lagging. The grants should be restored to 50 per cent of costs as originally promised.

BASIS FOR GRANTS

For a period of 10 years, grants to municipalities for the education of pupils in assessed areas should be calculated on the same basis as for the year preceding annexation.

Trailer camp residents are not paying their full share in the cost of educating their young, the committee said. The province should find ways of increasing their contribution beyond the rent they pay for trailer occupation.

Tuition charges at the Ontario College of Education should be abolished to boost the teacher supply. There also should be more generous scheme of bursaries and student loan funds to help provide money for student teachers.

Admiralty Rejects Plea

LONDON (Reuters)—The admiralty Monday rejected a plea for an inquiry on behalf of an admiral who has been fighting for 14 years to clear his name of charges of incompetence.

Five admirals of the fleet submitted the plea on behalf of Admiral Sir Dudley North, 72, who was fired from his command of the North Atlantic waters in 1940 for letting six French warships slip through the Strait of Gibraltar after the fall of France.

North maintains his action was in accordance with previous instructions.

FRANKFORD

United Church 3M Club Enjoys Pictorial Views

FRANKFORD — The monthly meeting of the 3M Club was held in Rose Lowery Hall. The members and visitors were extended a welcome by president Harold Vosburgh who opened the meeting.

A short period of business discussion followed and it was decided to discontinue activities of the club during July and August, and that the meeting in June will be on Monday, June 14, at which Mr. Jack Austin of Wooler will show many interesting picture slides. Sunday, June 13 the members of the 3M Club will take charge of the church services.

President Harold Vosborough reported that nearly all the badminton equipment was in possession of the 3M Club and no further activity on this sport will take place until September.

The meeting was then turned over to Mr. and Mrs. Herb Wood and a worship service was held.

A reading "How to Obtain Married Happiness" was given by Mrs. Ruth Beach who also read the Scripture.

Frost Says Govt. Will Not Condone Any Irregularity

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost said Monday night the Ontario government will not hesitate to initiate "inquiries and investigations where we feel there can be betterment."

In an address prepared for broadcast over a free-time provincial network of the CBC the premier said his government "will not condone any irregularity."

"May I say that the intensive investigations into certain phases of this department (highways) which commenced last summer were undertaken purely on the initiative of the government."

As a result of investigation into department of highways operation 11 men and three firms have been charged with conspiracy to defraud the government and six former officials with other irregularities.

STARTED IN 1951

Premier Frost said streamlining of the department of highways started with modernization of the Highway Improvement Act in 1952 and the appointment of a financial comptroller.

He said any weaknesses disclosed will "loom very small against solid background of accomplishments in three very challenging years, which have seen unbelievable and phenomenal development and change."

Reorganizations have been effected and are now going in the various departments' methods and organization, he said.

FLYING CHICKENS

CORBEIL, Ont. (CP)—Eighteen chickens vanished in the air from Felix Truchon's farm yard when a miniature tornado struck this district near North Bay. Feathers strewn about the place were the only traces left.

Christians Are Minority Fighting for Life

TORONTO (CP) — The pre-Assembly Presbyterian Congress was told Monday the Christian church "is a minority fighting for its life in a non-Christian world . . . in fact an anti-Christian world."

Rev. James D. Smart, minister of Rosedale Presbyterian Church in Toronto, told the 1,000 delegates that "almost half" of the people of Canada are not church-goers.

The church in the last half century has lowered its sights from the goal set by early Christian leaders who believed every Christian should be an active, informed disciple, Dr. Smart said.

The church must take the offensive and train young people so that at 18 or 19 years of age they will become the "striking force of the church."

The congress is a prelude to the Presbyterian General Assembly which opens Wednesday.

BANCROFT

700 Hear High School Band's First Concert

BANCROFT— An enthusiastic audience of 700 jammed the high school auditorium on Tuesday evening when the newly formed school band gave its first public concert.

First formed in January or this year, the band has now progressed to a stage that has greatly surprised the school staff. In the words of music master, Charles Montreuil, "those youngsters have surpassed even my wildest expectations."

SIXTY ENROLLED

Sixty students enrolled for the instrumental course originally but, owing to a shortage of instruments, this number was reduced to the band's present strength of 35, most of whom were absolute novices, unable to read music, and, in many cases, unacquainted with the names of the instruments they were to learn to play.

Seventeen numbers, including clarinet, trumpet and trombone solos, were rendered at the concert, with Walter Wiggins acting as master of ceremonies. The senior glee club also gave three songs.

In an address following the program, school board chairman, Guy Bentley, thought it remarkable that such proficiency could be attained in such a short time with such raw material and considered Mr. Montreuil worthy of the highest praise.

FINE PERFORMANCE

Critic Art Hewitt said in an interview, that he had heard much longer established bands, give less polished performances.

Retiring concerning his own work, Mr. Montreuil said, he had received the fullest co-operation from his pupils and every encouragement from principal Gordon Wragg and the school board.

The board has been assisted in financing the project by a grant from the department of education and by donations from local service clubs.

GALT (CP)—While digging a cesspool on his father's land Saturday, John Tillson uncovered a skeleton 15 inches below the surface. Authorities said the bones were those of an Indian girl. The area is known to have been an Indian settlement.

Hees Believes U.K. Market Lost to Farmers

WARKWORTH, Ont. (CP)—Canada can not count too heavily on regaining lost markets for farm produce in the United Kingdom, George Hees, president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, said Monday night.

Mr. Hees, member of Parliament for Toronto Broadview, said food surpluses held by the United States government will supply part of the British market.

"British housewives can buy butter made in the United States at a lower cost than Americans can buy it at the dairy where it is made," he said in a speech prepared for delivery at a meeting of the Northumberland County PC Association.

Mr. Hees said Canada should try to develop trade in other countries, even if it has to accept foreign currencies in payment, and step up research to find greater industrial uses for farm products.

Canada also should consider giving food surpluses to hungry countries of Asia, to move surpluses such as grain off the Canadian market.

Armed Forces Take on 78 New Officers

KINGSTON (CP)—Canada's regular and reserve armed forces took on 78 new officers Monday with the final parade of the 1954 graduating class at Royal Military College. Fifty-three of the cadets will go active.

On the sunlit parade ground near the ancient battlements of Fort Frederick, the cadets paused in review order for Defence Minister Claxton. A navy band from HMCS Stadacona, Halifax, played the march-pasts of the three services.

The Sword of Honor, top award at RMC, went to Cadet Wing Commander James Alick Marshall, a 22-yr-o'old redhead from Castor, Alta. The award is for leadership, conduct and military deportment. Marshall, who also walked off with five other prizes, will attend the University of Alberta for a year before joining the RCAF.

The Governor General's Gold Medal for highest average marks went to Cadet Section Commander Evan Kerry Gill of Toronto. He also took three other prizes.

Monday night, cadets attended their last function at RMC—the graduation ball. There were some 1,000 guests.

JEFFS—ORSER

A pretty wedding was solemnized in Campbellford on Saturday, when Bernice Elizabeth Orser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Orser, became the bride of James Dutton Jeffs, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Jeffs. The marriage took place at St. John's United Church, with the Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith officiating.

The church was decorated with an arrangement of spring flowers, and the music was played by Miss Anne Nicholls. During the signing of the register, Miss Muriel Heagle sang "Because."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white tiered net over taffeta, with a fitted basque, bell-sleeved lace, buttoned to the waist below a pointed collar, covering the strapless bodice. Her waistlength veil was of French lace, caught with a cluster of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

The executive was in charge of the program of the afternoon.

The Rev. Ivan Collins led in the devotional, reading from Ephesians 2: "Ye are no more strangers or foreigners," and then speaking of "This Holy Temple of the Lord." Not a temple composed of wood or stone but an organism, a living Temple."

MINISTRATIONS OF WOMEN

The ministrations of women were accepted in the early Christian Church and their importance is recognized in no other faith today. Women should play a greater part in the work of the church, and should realize that the greatest need is a deepening of spiritual life, and Christian fellowship, which can overcome superficial and social differences among new and old members of the community.

Miss Alton Mott gave two readings which were much enjoyed. They were "Prayer Around Mesa Time," and "Ella Park."

Mrs. W. Burgoyne sang two beautiful solos: "My Ain Folk", and "Lead Kindly Light." Her solos was accompanied by Mrs. Guthridge.

Mrs. J. Parrott gave a fine rendition of a piano number, "Sweet Evelyn," "I'm in Love With Some-

Mrs. J. M. Wood, who is a member of the executive of the Dominion Council of Woman's Auxiliaries, and had attended their annual meeting in Toronto recently, gave a short report of the meeting.

Mrs. Wood has had the honor of being chosen as one of three from the Dominion Council to go to the meeting of the World Council of Churches to be held in Evanston, Illinois, this coming month.

Mrs. Hall presented the Mrs. M. R. Davidson, gave highlights of the Dominion Council which was held in Toronto earlier in May. The topic of the Convention was "Spiritual Leadership."

Worship gave to each of us individually and capability to do a task. True service is a joyful task. "If you do a job good if you don't care who gets the credit. It does lead to God." Mrs. Hall's work herself. True leadership can only be given when one's life is right with God. We are full of Christian facts is not good without a heart full of Christian love. It is in the heart of every Christian is the desire to be of service."

• • •

There is a representative of the Woman's Association on the Women's Missionary Society, Mrs. Hall is the representative of the W.M.S. on the W.A. council.

Mrs. Hall presented Mrs. Ogilvie as the W.A. remember the projects which is the responsibility of the United Church of Canada; first, then we can reach out to the world. We are not to be without loving but we cannot love without giving.

Mrs. Ogilvie have a place in our work: Worship, Stewardship; Fellowship and Friendship; Christian Citizenship and Leadership. Christ is at the head; we must keep moving to keep Him in sight."

Mrs. G. Meiklejohn read the minutes of last year's convention.

Mrs. J. D. Baxter, of Bloomfield, sang, "How lovely are Thy dwellings, Lord," accompanied by Mrs. Harold Cleaves.

QUESTION—ANSWER PERIOD

A "Question and Answer" period was conducted by Mrs. G. E. Dobbs with Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Meiklejohn and Mrs. J. M. Wood answering questions asked by members of audience, such as "Is there a study book on program material" "Where do we send for supplies" "Do local auxiliaries have a representative at the presbyterial executive meetings" Is it permissible for the W.A. to give donations to local projects" Is there a study book available similar to the W.M.S.?" (The answer is no but it is suggested we study the report of the board of Evangelism and Social Service) "Where can we get speakers for meetings" Who is entitled to become a life member" Is the W.A. the cost? These and several other questions were answered giving much information.

Mrs. R. Crawford, reporting on "Literature' said that the sale of literature was increasing in the Presbytery and all over across Canada. Last year she had sold 1,645 pieces. Other secretaries reporting were, Mrs. A. Hillman, on "Visiting and Christian Fellowship"; Mrs. E. Elliott on 'Parsonages'; Mrs. G. Dobbs on 'Organization'; Mrs. W. H. Sherry on Co-operation with Christian Education.'

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. J. M. Wood introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. M. C. Fisher, of Brooklin. She said in part, "Many of thoughtless in regards that we can nibble on when life is easy, but when times are hard we not what we do, but what we are that really counts. What we are depends on the test of discipleship. A mayor of New York, once said to a pastor, "If you don't have a statement of faith of some great statesman, it would bolster up your faith." The pastor wrote to Mr. Gladstone, who sent this reply, All I think, All I write, All I am, centres on the Divinity of guests were from Picton, Toronto, Detroit, and St. John, New Brunswick.

Christ, the central hope of our race.

"Christ said to the self-satisfied Pharisees,"What think ye of Christ?" Jesus answers His critics question in the Book of John in the words 'I Am,' "I Am the Bread of Life."

"He was deeply concerned with physical needs, but more concerned with spiritual needs. Giving bread to the world at this time is a test of our spiritual life.

"I am the Light of the world.' The Communists add a 'b' to the word, making it 'blight' instead of 'light.' How true our witness should be to combat this blasphemous teaching! What a difference does the world, Christ does for our spiritual life.

GOD'S LOVE

"His mercy warms the earth, Jesus warms our hearts with the love of God. The sun has wonderful healing powers. Part of the cure for T.B. is exposure to sunlight. Jesus is the Healer of the cure of sin, hurts and disappointments.

"The sun is a guiding light. Lost persons have found their way by watching the sunset. But Jesus is the Guiding Light in our lives wherever we may wander, God throughout the ages speaks home. "I am the Door" "I am the Good Shepherd." In Palestine the shepherd sleeps in the door way, thus is the door to the sheepfold. He gives His life time to meditate on the goodness of God, and the sheep respect He gave His life for the sheep.

"I" am the Resurrection" the Master said. "Yes, Lord, I believe that Thou are the Christ, the Saviour of the world." Only Christ Himself could give this assurance. This is the loving comfort that is real in the hour of grief. Eternal life is something which begins here and now and goes right into eternity. Jesus' message took from the disciples, fear and timidity and gave them courage and courage. It gave them the love of God instead of selfishness and in their lives take on this new dimension and make us more useful citizens.

"I am the Way." Put your hand into the hand of God, That shall be safe. "Which is better, light or dark a young person starting out in life? Rev. Peter Kelly, D.D., a man who was blind from birth until he had his hand badly cut in an accident. Suddenly sight was he had time to think. He decided on Christian service and today is a missionary on the Indian reserves of Canada.

Young adults ask "Which way?" Christ says "I am the way." To people who strive through clubs, lodges, etc., to find something which will be beneficial to their business lives, Christ says, "I am the way." He is the vine, without Me ye can do nothing." The fruits of the spirit are listed in Galatians 5: 22 and 23; are we a branch of the vine and therefore bearing good fruit?

The ladies of King St. Church served a delicious dinner in the Sunday School room.

The afternoon session opened with devotions which were led by Mrs. Chapman, and Mrs. Horton and Mrs. Neil Lake—the latter singing "Praise."

A skit on stewardship, "Here Am I, Lord Send Me," by Mrs. Roy Brikman, Mrs. G. Brikman, Miss Dorothy Brikman and Mrs. Johnston, of Tabernacle Church, Belleville, stressed the giving of our time, talents to the Lord's work.

The meeting was dedicated by Aiken's W.A. Mrs. Langdon, of Trenton, favored with a solo, "While We Pray."

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. A. C. Campbell introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. D. L. Luffman, of Toronto. Besides her many other duties Mrs. Luffman is a lay reader and a qualified lam and social service, and it was on this work that her talk was based.

"How are we going to arouse an interest in the church on the part of those outside the church—how to bring newcomers in or contact with the church? You can't talk religion to a hungry man. Many people are living as much as 60 per cent of their incomes after they pay their taxes. Often as many as eight or nine people are together in one room, which does not add to their family life, and no room for children to study or read.

In Canada over one million people are over 65 years of age and 300,000 of these are living alone. Many of these are badly in need of help.

About 150,000 handicapped persons need help in Canada, and trained can take their rightful place in life. The board of evangelism and social service serves once a year and so many problems come before them that it is a full week's work. Some problems have a solution suggested, but others are only touched on by the church board.

"Without evangelism the church has no message. In the work of evangelism are many bright spots."

Last year 35,000 persons were received into the United Church on profession of faith, and two years previous were received in any one year.

MUCH GIVEN STARVING PEOPLE

"There are one and one-half billions of bushels of grain stored up in Canada and millions of people are starving in other parts of the world.

The profit from the sale of liquor in Ontario in 1953 was $121,000,000. Of that thirty and a half million was made by Canadians.

"We are concerned about family life and the housing situation in Canada. The family is likely to lose all."

Mrs. Luffman spoke of the Victor Mission, the home for unmarried mothers, under the United Church of Canada. She also spoke of the dope racket. One ounce of heroin brought into Hong Kong store is worth $12; bought from a dope pedlar it sells for from $1,000 to $2,000.

"There is great need for dedicated workers in all branches of the church work."

She spoke at some length on the evils caused by the sale of beer and liquors in grocery stores.

At this time, Mrs. Dobbs presented the retiring president, Mrs. M. Davidson, with a life membership certificate and pin from the Belleville Presbytery. (Mrs. Davidson had been a presbyterial president for day with a corsage from Massassaga W.A., of which she is a life member.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

The officers for next year were installed by Mrs. J. A. Lott, these are: past president, Mrs. M. Davidson; president, Mrs. A. Pyear, R. 3, Frankford; vice-presidents, R. 3, Kincr McDonald, Consecon; Mrs. J. Marsh, 216 Foster Avenue, Belleville; Mrs. Ross Tweed; Mrs. S. Young, Picton; recording secretary, Mrs. T. Pioneer Girls Hold Reception in Y.M.C.A.

Approximately sixty people attended the reception held recently in the Y.M.C.A. for the mothers and friends of the recently organized Pioneer Girls of the Christian and Missionary Tabernacle, Pioneer Girls Guide, Miss June Whittaker presiding.

The Reverend Eric Strain, pastor of the Tabernacle, extended a cordial welcome to all, and spoke briefly regarding the inauguration of the Pioneer Girls, an organization of world-wide interest, doing a fine work. It teaches useful hand work, and keeps children off the streets, and above all, they learn about the Lord Jesus Christ.

HAND WORK

Interesting hand work was on display, and included little figurines, depicting apples, dogs, owls, Scottie dogs, etc., also coloured angels in blue, graceful swans, salt and peppers, pink and blue bassinets and black bears, all of which were nicely formed, and prettily coloured. Also on display were dolls in yellow, mauve, and rose, and a wall plaque of wild roses, having been done by John 3:16.

A brief period of study was held after which the Pioneer groups assembled with their leader, after which a short program was presented by Lillian Vardy, on the alto, key verse and motto, was given.

Girls and the older ones present, was given by Miss Goodings, who expressed her appreciation of the hearty.

FALS-GALS

The passing-off of the pals and Pioneer Girls was done by the matching of numbers drawn at random. The significance of the purpose of the Pioneer Girls was by Mrs. Paul Delaney. The Fals-Gals are the Pals' sisters. The Pioneer Girls are allotted to her and also to control to the expense of the "Fals-lice". The 'Pals' were the women of the church in particular.

Following the program activities, dainty refreshments were served, with Mrs. Drake and Mrs. Ivy in committee in charge, with Mrs. Eric Strain and Mrs. A. Henderson presiding.

Miss Eleanor Baragar closed the meeting.

Arnold Meyers Exhibits Local Scenes at McCarthy Theatre

Editor's note—Last year, Mr. Arnold Meyers spent considerable time in Mexico, sketching typical scenes of the country. Upon his return home to Trenton, he has displayed his work at the McCarthy theatre. This year he is showing views of Canadian landscapes from Quinte, Stirling, Trenton and Millltown, among which are two spirited, realistic Peruvian ruin. Those who viewed the Mexican scenes will be delighted with the change of theme and their coloring and authenticity.

Among the 23 paintings on exhibition in the lounge of the McCarthy Theatre are the following: "Portrait of Gerald," a young lad in slumped attitude, with blue eyes, red plaid shirt, and rather tousled hair, is seen behind a fishing pole, who might name the painting "Success", from the spirit and joyful expression upon his face.

"Spring on the Saginaw River," is seen in color, typical of spring, and lush with water and budding trees. A quiet, and restful scene, reminds of the summer to come.

"INTERLUDE"

"Interlude," an interesting study, depicting a nude lad upon the grass surrounded by shelter-belt trees, a group of buildings in the background, giving a feeling of relaxation during the noon hour, with sunshine and shadow.

"Interlude" is a great study in all their autumn lovelineas, with sunshine and shadow.

There is quiet strength in the stately boles, and just a touch of "Fall" in the leaf tops", but withal, a peaceful scene.

"The Stockdale Mill," shows a cluster of steeply pitched-roof mill buildings, and a quietly flowing sheet of water, against a light, greenish sky, and reddened buildings.

"Cold Creek, Wooler," might be termed a symphony in autumn leaves, portrays rush - bound creek, garlanded by kindly maple trees abloze with gold and scarlet, whose colorings are reflected from the quiet water. In the distance Wooler church is seen against an opalescent sky pointing its slim finger skyward, lending a vivid accent to the whole.

"The Neighbor's Pasture"—a purely pastoral scene with winding, sluggish creek, tall elms, on the right background where a sagging, rail fence, with colorful bushes and moss-grown stones, and tall, as do the browsing cattle, enjoying the lushness of the early The cloud effect is most attractive.

"Salmon River," another autumn scene, depicting a red canoe with two passengers, silently gliding along the smooth surface of the water. A restful scene, quiet as the peace of evening.

"Evening Shadows," a vista of trees, through whose arching branches a haystack can be seen, and long shadows cast by the tree trunks.

THE BRIDGE AT MILLTOWN

"The Bridge at Milltown," is richly coloured, and shows a white, ironwork bridge spanning the river, backed by trees of autumnal red, with touches of carmine, and scarlet madder, against a bright, blue sky, whilst the water, which is tree-covered hills. A glimpse of the creek meanders in the foreground.

"Stuart's Creek"

"The Portrait of Barbara and Stewart" Mr. Meyers has painted Stewart in blue smile, and the proud possessive look of sister Barbara.

"Machu Picchu," a Peruvian scene, showing the remains of a high mountain citadel, perfect. The story states that 100 virgins were in this retreat, and periodically the area was approaching Cuzco. 2,000 feel below, the raging torrent of the Urubamba River is seen meandering its way along the rocky bottom. This picture was discovered in 1911. No life was found.

An exhibition meriting close study, with beautifully glowing colors and appealing restfulness of quality noticed in the artists work in the Mexican scenes, which make for paintings suitable for home use.

Big Growth in Membership, Finances Reported by IODE

By PAULINE KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — A record of growth in membership and finances was revealed in reports submitted by the provincial convention of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire being held here.

Mrs. J. G. Sprague, Toronto, national executive secretary, said in a report prepared for delivery at the 54th annual meeting, that there are now 800 chapters throughout the Dominion, an increase of 21 during the year. The membership stands at 32,165, an increase of 859 on the year and the largest in six years since 1948.

The national treasurer, Mrs. Peter L. Robinson, Toronto, said receipts for 1953-54 totalled $674,-478.01, an increase of $62,133.04 over the previous year. Disbursements amounted to $621,220.35.

Cash and investments on hand are $1,230,044.74, most of which is held in trust for First and Second World War memorial scholarships and bursaries.

SPLENDID WORK

Mrs. Robinson paid special tribute to nine chapters in the Yukon, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland which are directly under national certificate.

"The work achieved by these chapters is both stimulating and deserving of the highest praise and their response to national appeals is generous," the treasurer said.

Mrs. Robinson reminded members that the IODE is not a money raising group for other national bodies. She said the chapter has the right to indulge in a practice, but chapters should be encouraged to work in conjunction with local projects by giving time and service.

In a report on the national executive committee, secretary Mrs. G. Graham Sinclair of Toronto said that the study of conditions overseas by the special IODE research committee is proceeding favorably. She said the study will be incorporated into the program of the empire and world affairs committee.

CORONATION IMPACT

She described the impact of the Coronation as "the study of order. Among IODE representatives at Coronation ceremonies were Mrs. Hugh L. Allward, national vice president, present in the Abbey; Miss Daisy E. Taylor present at ceremonies in Ottawa, and five junior members who acted as ambassadors on a Commonwealth youth movement Coronation tour. Twelve Coronation Medals went to the IODE.

Among queries to the federal government, the IODE asked for verification of the report that the Royal Canadian Mounted Police musical ride had permanently disbanded. The government said the ride was suspended for 1954 due to recruit training program difficulties. It will be resumed as soon as possible.

Mrs. Sinclair also reviewed work done by affiliated societies in the Baby Incubator Fund, the United States, and the Victoria League in Britain.

In a national publicity progress report, national convener Mrs. G. D. Finlay, Toronto said letters had been given "generous," coverage this year by press and radio. She particularly stressed the publicity value of special Coronation observances held by the United States.

"The chapters realize the value of paid advertising as well as free publicity," Mrs. Robb said. "Conveners are to be commended for their efforts in promoting publicity."

IODE Contributed $500,000 Last Year to Varied Causes

By PAULINE KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire in a year of record activity contributed more than $500,000 to such varied causes as disaster relief, cigarets for the troops and institutional aids.

In 1953-54 the program cost $558,-065.14, exceeding the 1952-53 total by $130,386.76.

In a report prepared for delivery at the annual meeting of the national IODE Monday night, services convener Mrs. R. C. Allmer of Toronto called part of the work accomplished by the committee on national services at home and abroad.

WIDE VARIETY

The order has given everything from dental sets, room furnishings, oxygen units and band instruments to hospitals and institutions. Members contributed $115,-890 in cash and kind for Britain and Holland relief, and came to the rescue of Greek earthquake victims with $11,389.14 worth of clothing and equipment.

An appeal was made in April for used hearing aids to be turned over for repair and re-use. More than 150 have sent to date.

Mrs. B. B. Osler of Toronto, the order's civil defence liaison officer, explained the relatively new field in her report. Members have been working locally in civil defence for two or three years, but the IODE as an organization did not participate until last year.

Civil defence welfare work is of particular interest to the order. Members have attended courses and many municipal chapters have appointed CD liaison officers.

Reporting for the immigration and Canadianization committee, convener Mrs. G. L. Hamilton of Windsor said that 18,000 immigrants entered Canada during 1953-54.

IMMIGRANTS AIDED

She said many of them had been reached by various IODE services. The order greets immigrants at ports of arrival, runs basic English classes and sponsors an organization which translates Canadian descriptive material into foreign language. Members make a point of visiting sick and lonely new Canadians.

SOCIAL FUNCTIONS

Mrs. C. L. Brown of Hamilton, convener of the welfare and world affairs committee, reported an increased interest in international affairs.

"Many chapters have made use of special speakers from outside the order," Mrs. Brown said. "Alberta reports a notable increase in the number of guest speakers."

She said study of the United Nations was accelerated in Alberta by chapters sponsoring a high school students seminar on the organization at Banff. Students reported their findings to the chapters after the seminar.

DENTAL GROUP

First organization of dentists in Canada was the Dental Association of Ontario, founded in 1867.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

LITTLE TRICKS WORK BEAUTY MAGIC

There are so many ways for a girl to make herself pretty and attractive that there should be no plain Janes or Dumb Doras sitting on the side lines. If a wall flower will cultivate the habit of observing the charming ways of other women she should be able to collect a bag of tricks that will lift her out of the doldrums.

Charm is composed of many elements, but if a girl possesses even a few of them, she can get by. Charm can express itself in warm, twinkling eyes, in the pose of the head, the turn of a hand. Some girls never ask themselves if their conversation is interesting to other people. What one says and how one says it determines whether or not one has nice manners. The girl who is gay of spirit and is always ready with a kindly remark will never lack for dates. It's not just how you look, but what you are.

Looks count a lot, too. There is no virtue in plainness or frowsiness. Possibilities for improving appearance are many and accessible.

An unbecoming hairdo is a blot on the beauty picture. There are women who have never learned to manage their locks. Some wish long, thin faces, have long thin bobs when the hair should be arranged into a full oval frame drawn slightly down over the forehead.

Then there is the matter of make-up which can either simulate natural loveliness or give a lifeless graphic appearance. If a woman is confused about this matter, she should seek expert guidance. The attendant at a make-up bar will be more than happy, to select the right shade of powder, rouge and lipstick for her and show her how they should be applied to best advantage.

Good taste in dress is what makes the lady of fashion—not the amount of money she spends. Every woman should make it her business to find out what style will flatter her figure, what colors will give emphasis to complexion, eyes and hair, and when one is well put together, that one's attire is right, gives a girl self-confidence and poise.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

ASK THE HOSTESS' OR HOST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My new husband, all his life, has had the social advantages which I, all my life, haven't had. Now I'm trying to watch and learn and watch to try to see and understand "what's what." (This is the phrase you often use, and I've adopted it for my inspiration!) I read your column every day, and have found there the answers to so many of my wonderings. I'd like to join the army of your readers, Mrs. Beeckman, if I may, and send you questions that arise in this new life of mine. Here's my first questions. Quite often now my husband and I are invited "to dine, particularly on Saturday evening on midday or evening Sunday, with his conservative relatives. If I would like to have the waitress give me something—water, for example, or another roll or more butter—is it correct for me to ask her directly for it?

(2) Is it correct for a guest to ask a waitress for anything at table, if your hostess does not notice your need (an "accustomed" hostess usually does), you may (1) simply do without whatever you're going for, or (2) simply say to your hostess, "Aunt Anna, may I please have some more butter?" and then, the seated hearer to your host than to your hostess, you may ask?

And please do send me any "wonderings" as they arise in the interesting, married pathway of yours. As you so wisely realize, it's extremely important for you to know what's what . . and I shall be most happy to be "one of the right to follow. Come along with your questions!

IMPORTANT DUTY OF THE GUEST OF HONOR

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have recently moved to this new city of ours and now a very dear school friend of mine from "back home" who has lived here for several years, is to give tea in my honor so that I can meet her friends here. What are my responsibilities? Do I arrive early, and leave late? And what other duties? — Patricia W.

Yes, you should arrive well before the hour mentioned in the invitations . so to be in place with your hostess, ready to greet the guests with her, and to be introduced to those friends you don't know. And you are expected to stay until after the guests have left. Also you should have the grace of the knowing guest of honor, . . most graciously and warmly to acknowledge every introduction, so that each guest will delightedly remember your "how do you do" (with the addition of the name, which you should make a point of catching; Make pleasant and discriminating comments about this new home-town of yours, how friendly and how welcoming people have been, how delightful it is to have your school friends as your sponsor, and other appreciative comments. And remember that "last impression," as well as that "first impression", . . may your graciously to each departing guest "I am so happy to have met you today, Mrs. Penning-ton, and I do hope we will meet again soon." All during these important tea-hours it's the way you say what you say that counts, that will be remembered.

CARDS ENCLOSED WITH WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are having a small, informal wedding in my home. Invitations by telephone and notes. After our wedding trip we are to live in Chicago. Since we both have many relatives and friends here and far-away, my parents will send out quite a large number of engraved announcements of our marriage. Enclosed with these I would like to have cards with our names, "Mr. and Mrs.—," and our new address. We have bought a four-room apartment, and of course it would be so convenient to be able to send out these cards. But I've never liked the "At Home" phrase on this type of card, and I'd also rather not have the date-phrase, for example "After the first of September." But an engraver I've consulted says these "notes" are always used. I can't understand why they would be particularly necessary, unless one wishes them. Is it ever correct to omit them, Mrs. Beeckman?— Emelle M.

Yes, indeed, . and as a matter of fact, today these two 'notes' usually are omitted. It's more sensible, more practical, to have only the name and address , then of course these "Mr. and Mrs." cards can be used over and over for so many more occasions. These cards simply read (the same in the center of the card):

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Clark
Two Home Street

Summer Job

By Mary Moore

If, when you are travelling C.P. this summer between Winnipeg and Toronto, either way, a tall young man with brown eyes and wavy hair brings you your breakfast or lunch or dinner and answers to the name of Pete, that's mah boy.

I don't know why it tickles me so much to think of him trying to keep his train legs while he balances a loaded tray, but it does mightily. Would I ever love to slip into his dining-car, unobserved, and copy look up into his dear face when he came to take the order . . .

Two of his medical fraternity brothers are doing the same summer chore so he has buddies.

When I remarked that the trip across northern Ontario would seem endless he said "I love trains, Mum." I hope he feels the same way come September.

Yesterday I printed a letter here from Elizabeth K., and promised to answer her today.

ANSWER (To Elizabeth K.)

You may or may not know that I used to be in the canning business. As a result of that experience I will try to explain concisely the cause of discoloration of canned fruit.

As you know when you slice fresh raw peaches and leave them exposed to the air, they turn brown. That is because of their contact with the oxygen in the air.

The flesh of peaches (and of all fruits and vegetables) contains oxygen. (For instance when you bring such things as dried beans or peas or strawberries to boiling point, you have observed that a scum rises to the top and often boils over. This is caused by the oxygen escaping from the flesh of the fruit or vegetable.)

You are right when you guess that your peaches were too tightly packed, for when the peaches were processed in Jars the syrup could not penetrate the flesh because of tight packing, so oxygen was trapped in the fruit mass, and naturally began its discoloring process. Furthermore the current convolutions of the syrup were checked and the solid mass of fruit was not sterilized. Had the fruit floated free in the syrup, the released oxygen would have bubbled to the top headspace and been sterilized and rendered harmless. This is why the level of the liquid drops in jars after sterilization.—Jars that were filled to overflowing before processing.

Moral: Don't crowd fruit in jars.

The method of sugarless canning of peaches is very exact so must be followed throughout.

SUGARLESS CANNED PEACHES

Dip fully ripened perfect peaches in boiling water; plunge into cold water and slip off skins. Cut in halves or slices and remove pits. Drop at once into a brine made in proportions of 2 tablespoons salt to each 1 quart of water. Drain. Pack in hot sterile jars. Cover fruit (leaving 1-2-inch headspace but being sure fruit is submerged) with liquid prepared by adding 20 ounces (2½ cups) of juice (if you do not have a sweet tooth) to 1 cup water and 1 teaspoon ascorbic acid, brought to boiling point. Double or quadruple these proportions according to the amount of fruit you are packing. To remove air bubbles before processing run sterilized knife between fruit and jar. Seal or partially seal depending on type of lid used. If partially sealed, complete seal as soon as jars are removed from water bath. Process pint jars 20 mins. in hot water bath, timing after boiling starts. Cool jars as quickly as possible.

See answer continued tomorrow re inexpensive cuts of meat.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IS MARRIAGE ALWAYS A GAMBLE?

A young woman of 26 who cares deeply for a young man, divorced after a brief unhappy marriage, has this to say:

"He says he never wants to marry again.

"You see, his former wife never even tried to make a home for him, but was always running around making dates with other men. He says he knows I would never do that, because I'm not that kind but, just the same, he believes marriage is too much of a gamble, and you never can tell how it's going to turn out, or what is going to come up, and he's afraid of getting hurt again in some way.

"How can I convince him that it isn't always like that?"

Well, there is almost nothing in life that's a sure thing. Practically everything is a gamble, one way or another. In the case of marriage, however, there are several things that can be done to make it much less of a gamble; to load the dice, we might say, so that you're more likely to come out on the winning side.

There is, for example, the important matter of getting to know the person you intend to join the wedding side, you must be prepared to put everything you have into its success, whether you win or lose.

To take the attitude of the aforementioned young lady, that because he has had one unhappy marriage, he won't chance another, is, of course, neurotic, and the neurotic person is one who has never grown up.

Chances are that he perhaps has not yet had time to recover from the wounds to his emotions and his ego, and that eventually he will do so and be willing, even eager, to try again. If he does not, but keeps himself indefinitely wrapped up in his own misery, he might again become exposed to the possibility of hurt, but it would mean that he is carrying his adolescent neuroticism on into adult life.

To insist that you will never love again because one person you loved turned out to be false is as much sense as to say you will never walk on the street again because one may fall down and skinned your knee.

If the young man in question bit into an apple and found it spoiled, he never going to eat another apple? If the play he chooses for an evening's entertainment turns out to be a flop, will he never go to the theater again? If he is going to forego future chances of finding a happy marriage because his first was a failure, he might, with equal logic, do these other things.

Any normal, mature person realizes fully that there are happy experiences and unhappy ones in life; that there are wise and loyal people, and unreliable and disloyal ones. Therefore the normal adult who meets disillusionment and disappointment realizes that he has made a mistake of judgment, or has simply had a piece of bad luck, of a kind that may come to anyone and, after a reasonable interval, is ready to try again, this time making an effort to be more certain that he has chosen wisely.

I don't think, however, that the girl who wrote me about this disillusioned young man will be able to talk him out of his warped point of view and into a more reasonable one. Many people in his frame of mind get a melancholy satisfaction out of clinging to the stand they have taken. No doubt this particular chap, in common with many others in like circumstances, gloomily enjoys sitting in the wings with him and so make him the center of her attention. If she has her own way here and left him to his own dreary company, he would probably be a long before he would be asking her for a date.

NON-POLITICAL MOLOTOV

The source, who asked that his name be withheld, said the possibility of selections from among the names of opposition parties has raised some doubt as to any might make an outcry from among disappointed Liberals.

Various suggestions for Senate reform have been made in recent years but usually the supporters of the changes might not meet provincial approval. The appointment of the provincial governments without all or a portion of the province's membership has been advanced on grounds that one of the party's chief jobs is to protect provincial rights.

However, one prominent Liberal thinker, A. W. Roebuck of Toronto, criticized this idea in a magazine article recently. He suggested this might lead to the type of political stalemate that caused the United States to change its method of selecting senators from one of appointment by the states to election.

SPEED INQUIRY

The debate concerning the Upper Chamber was prompted by Opposition Leader Drew who proposed a resolution that the government start inquiring about appropriate steps—so that the Senate can discharge its constitutional duties more effectively.

Before defeating the motion by 96 to 48, members debated an amendment by CCF Leader Coldwell for abolition of the Senate. The motion was ruled out of order shortly before the vote was recorded.

Members were called in for other recorded votes during the day.

In one, the Commons voted 80 to 47 to defeat a Progressive Conservative bid to have a secret report on the reserve army made public.

Later, members voted 86 to 46 against a CCF motion urging the government to consider boosting old age and blind pensions above $40 a month.

PRO AND CON

The Senate discussion repeated arguments for and against reform and abolition. Shortly after Parliament was constituted in 1867 criticism of the Senate began and it has been continuing in varying degrees.

Mr. Drew quoted the late Sir Clifford Sifton, a Liberal, that the Senate was a good check on the cabinet. The Opposition Leader suggested adoption of his motion on ground that the government was free to initiate steps of its own choice.

Mr. Coldwell said the Senate has gone over legislation. That was not democratic procedure. There was no direct responsibility to the people by members in the Senate. He suggested a single elected parliament split into two houses to consider legislation separately.

Social Credit Leader Low suggested that the Senate has sunk low in public esteem because the government's attitude needs reexamining. The decline would continue as long as senators were asked to do "the footwork of a political page boy, rounding up political support. . . ."

This description met with support from George Nowlan (PC—Digby-Annapolis-Kings). J. M. MacDonnell (PC — Toronto Greenwood) urged retention of the Senate as an outlet for experienced men whose talents might not otherwise be available in public service.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) suggested the Senate was established in the belief that "democracy was to be trusted but not all the way." Joseph Noseworthy (CCF — York South) said that those who urge reelection of the Senate as a safeguard against hasty passage of laws are really voicing lack of faith in the elected chamber and the people who elected the members.

John Diefenbaker (PC — Prince Albert) recalled that New Zealand abolished its Upper Chamber—over Socialist opposition—but now is actively considering reconstituting it.

"OPERATION ALUMINUM"

BRITISH COLUMBIA 1954

The vast Kitimat hydroelectric and aluminum smelter project will be turning out aluminum by mid-summer this year.

Completion of Kenney Dam in October, 1955, was the first major milestone. In December, 1953, the tunnelsite, 25-foot diameter water tunnel was "holed through" Mount DuBose in the world-record time of 21 months. Three 140,000 H.P. generators are now in position in the Kemano underground powerhouse, and power will soon pass along the 50-mile transmission line to Kitimat.

At Kitimat, 16 former wilderness, potlines for the first phase of production have been installed. Aluminum at the rate of 91,500 tons a year is scheduled to flow from Kitimat this year, thus increasing Alcan's ingot capacity to over one and a quarter billion pounds annually.

QUEBEC 1953

In Quebec, Alcan completed two new powerhouses and augmented its aluminum smelting facilities during 1953.

The new generating stations at Chute du Diable and Chute à la Savane on the Peribonka River — one of the principal tributaries of Lake St. John — have established generating capacity of 540,000 H.P. The total installed generating capacity of Alcan's power plants in Quebec has thereby been increased to 2,580,000 H.P.

The rated annual capacity of the added aluminum smelting facilities at Isle Maligne in 1953 ingot capacity in Alcan's four Quebec smelters — at Shawinigan Falls, Arvida, Isle Maligne and Beauharnois — year, totalled over one billion pounds — year, or about a quarter of world capacity.

Alcan embarked in 1951 on an expansion programme to meet the increased demand for aluminum. This programme, divided into two principal parts, is completed in Quebec and nearing conclusion in British Columbia.

In the fifty-four years since the first Canadian aluminum plant opened at Shawinigan Falls, Canada's aluminum industry has grown to be the second largest in the world; and Canada now exports more aluminum than any other country.

Still the need grows, both at home and abroad, for this light, strong, modern metal of many uses. And Aluminum Company of Canada is putting man-power, and money, and engineering brains, and imagination into the job of keeping up with that demand.

Aluminum is "packaged power". The electricity needed to produce one ton of aluminum would light the average home for nearly a generation. By making use of Canada's abundant, low-cost power, this Canadian enterprise has created employment and income for tens of thousands: for the men who build and operate the dams and powerhouses, the docks and smelters and power lines it needs; and for the more than one thousand independent Canadian companies who turn aluminum into countless forms important to industry and our own daily living.

THAILAND ADVANCES PEACE PROPOSAL

Thailand's U.N. delegate, Thanat Khoman, who has just returned from the Geneva conference, confers with Dag Hammarskjold, U.N. secretary general, in New York. Khoman proposed that the U.N. security council designate five members of the U.N. peace observation commission to go as an investigating team to Thailand and Indo-China. His contention is that early U.N. action will contribute greatly toward preventing spread of the war in other parts of Asia. (Central Press Canadian).

Opinion of Public, Not Facts, Will Determine Any Change in Capital Punishment, View

OTTAWA (CP)—A U.S. university professor argued today for abolition of capital punishment but said that the final analysis of public opinion, not facts, will bring about removal of the death penalty for murderers.

Prof. Thorsten Sellin, chairman of the sociology department, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, said that during the last two centuries sentiments and beliefs have caused abolition of the death penalty for theft, banishment as the rake for witchcraft and breaking on the wheel.

Quoting from his own previous memorandum to a United Kingdom royal commission which investigated capital punishment a few years ago, Prof. Sellin said:

"When a people no longer likes the death penalty for murderers it will be removed no matter what may happen in the homicide rates. This is what has happened in the past in connection with crimes against property."

His views were contained in a 5,000-word brief prepared for presentation to a Commons-Senate committee studying whether Canada's laws on capital punishment—hanging—should be amended.

SAYS LITTLE CONNECTION

Prof. Sellin quoted figures and other investigations purporting to show that there is little connection between capital punishment and the murder rate.

He presented a United Nations table showing the homicide death rate per 100,000 population in 1948, and commented:

"What it illustrates is that countries with high rates of homicides equally like or dislike this penalty, and so do countries with low homicide rates."

Among 13 countries listed with capital punishment, including Canada, the murder rate varied between a high of 44.3 in El Salvador and a low of .5 for England and Wales. Canada was fifth with 1.2.

In 15 abolition states, including some Scandinavian, eastern European and Central American countries, the rates varied between a high of 15.9 in Colombia and .4

STIRLING — Laurel Rebekah Lodge, No. 22, held a social hour at the close of lodge on Tuesday evening. Following program convener, Sister Reta Fraser, presided and readings were given by Sisters Mabel Hayton, Keitha Morton, Florence MacMullen and Alice Munroe. Noble Grand Neva Farnsworth conducted an interesting game with Sisters Marlene Philp and Hilda Rose each choosing a group of players. The Past Grands' Club served ice cream and cake.

NURSES' GRADUATION

Mr. and Mrs. Earle Green and Jimmy attended the graduation of the former's daughter, Joan, in Belleville on Wednesday evening. The graduation ceremonies were held in the Collegiate with a reception afterward in the Masonic Temple. Joan delivered the valedictory address on behalf of the graduating class of Belleville

In The Netherlands.

The extent of a criminality of a homicidal nature, Prof. Sellin said, depends on historical reasons such as the political, economic and social structure of a country.

NO IMMUTABLE PRINCIPLE

"Therefore, it seems obvious that the existence of the death penalty does not depend on any immutable principle. Like all social policies it depends on changes in attitudes and beliefs which are influenced by the conditions and circumstances of social life."

Dealing with the deterrent force of capital punishment, Prof. Sellin pointed out the murder rates in the abolition states of the United States—Maine, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota and North Dakota—with neighboring states in their respective sections of the U.S.

He said the homicide rate was lowest in the New England area and in northern states of the middle west and somewhat higher in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio. In groups of states with similar social and economic conditions and populations it was impossible to distinguish between the abolition states and the others. The homicide trends were similar in both cases.

Elsewhere in the world, investigations had shown that, generally speaking, the homicide rate continued whatever trend it had before the abolition of the death penalty or before restoration.

Canadians Will Eventually Demand Abolition of Senate

—Drew

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition leader Drew said today Canadians eventually will demand abolition of the Senate unless the Upper House is reformed to make it a more effective part of Canada's parliamentary system.

He made the statement in the Commons in presenting a motion urging the government to consider methods of reform the 103-member Senate between now and the next session of Parliament.

His motion said the government should "give consideration to initiating the necessary consultation and inquiry respecting reform of the Senate so that all appropriate steps may be taken . . . so that the Senate may more effectively discharge the constitutional function it was intended to serve as an integral part of our parliamentary system."

CCF SEEKS ABOLITION

CCF Leader Coldwell, in an amendment to Mr. Drew's motion, proposed that the government consider making an inquiry "respecting steps to be taken to secure the abolition of the Senate."

Mr. Drew said abolition of the Senate, a step recommended by the CCF party, should not be considered until Parliament had an opportunity to examine reform measures.

However, unless there was reform, the people of Canada would demand abolition of the Upper Chamber. Canadians could not understand why so much money was spent on the maintenance of a chamber that no longer was performing the function for which it was intended.

The Senate no longer was a place where sober second thought was given to legislation approved in the Commons. However, a few members had demonstrated what the Senate could do in analyzing government legislation, Mr. Drew noted.

The Opposition leader said his motion left it to the government to decide what steps could be taken at the next session to bring about reform. The motion could not be considered as one of want-of-confidence.

KING FAVORED REFORM

The Liberal party had advocated for years that the Senate should be reformed to make it effective. At one time reform appeared to be the main plank of former prime minister Mackenzie King.

It was the responsibility of the government to take steps to bring about necessary reform. This should include revision of the method of appointment, tenure of office of Senators and proportion of representation.

Mr. Coldwell said the Upper Chamber is "entirely out of line with all our democratic instincts." It was not representative of the people through elections and was not representative of the various schools of thought in Canada.

Mr. Coldwell said he does not mean that a CCF member should be appointed to the Senate.

"We have come to the stage where we almost have a single-party chamber in the other place", he said. There were only seven Progressive Conservative senators.

Senate abolition was not unknown in democratic parliaments. Some provincial legislatures used to have upper chambers, and all but one—in Quebec—had been abolished.

CNR Engineers In North Return To 6-Day Week

Sudbury (cp)—After working a five-day week for only a month, engineers of the Canadian National Railways in northern Ontario returned to a six-day week Monday.

The change was made at the request of the railwaymen themselves, said an official of the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers.

CPR engineers continued to work a six-day week after the shorter week came into effect in April.

"The men voted to go back to the longer week because of the pay cuts which resulted from the five days; in some cases they were as high as $70 per month," the official said.

Although no men are reported laid off by the move, the spokesman for the union said some firemen who were promoted to engineers when the five-day week came into effect will revert to their previous jobs.

The five-day week came into effect late in April under a new contract. It was to affect both railways but the CPR agreed to allow their engineers to continue to work a six-day week during May.

"DA FREEM" COMING!

Ole Saichel-Fool, "Da Freem" Carners, in all his 239 pound beefy glory, will be here for the wrestling festivities on Friday night and opposing him will be that Maharajah of Hate, Tiny Mills, he with the drape-cut hair-do, about as villainous an ombre as ever stepped into the ring.

The former world's heavyweight champion "who was robbed" in no uncertain type by the "wise-guys" of boxdom durin his regime as heavyweight titleholder years ago, has made an envious record as a wrestler. He li big, bulky and uncouth at times, but he still packs a wallop in those ham-like fists.

Paul Ballargeon, said to be a modern wrestling version of the mythical Paul Bunyan, and claimed to be the strongest man in Canada today, is on the semi-final matched with ess man in Canada today, is on the semi-final matched with est man in Canada today, is on the semi-final matched with Gus Hardy Krukanen. Pat Flanagan and Danno O'Shocker will provide an all-Irish opener.

THESE NORTOWNS

Ruth Hayden

A dashing bevy of softball lassies, headed by Ruth Hayden, chucker de luxe, and Dusty Rhodes backstopping, formerly Marie Genereaux of this city, invades the city on Saturday to give Belleville softball fans a close-up view of how small is played by champions of the distaff side.

And don't think these Eves of the diamond are any pushovers or sitting ducks for the Adams of the baseball sport. Far from it. Already these gals, who can hit, field and run with the best of 'em, have shown the mere males of the species some of the finer points of the game, and "how she should be played."

The Nortowns are coming here as guests of the Belleville District Softball League, and will play an all-star cast selected from the teams in the loop. The proceeds will go to the promotion and furtherance of minor softball in the city.

Incidentally, the BDSL executive is going into close confab tonight at station CJBQ for the purpose of selecting the all-star team from the names sent in by the team managers in a requested poll. The selection will likely be made public tomorrow. The session is called for 7.30 sharp as the Batas-Peterborough baseball game gets under way at 8.30.

PETES TONIGHT!

It could have been the metropolitan atmosphere or the smog of Horizon, but whatever the Batas ran into on their Sunday junket to "Tarrawuh," was apple pie and ice cream for their batting optics. They whipped the Hoskings 14-1 and dropped a 9-8 verdict to the Dependables, but in the doing helped themselves to no less than 24 solid stanzas, one a home run, during their stay in the shadow of Lampton's Loges.

Yowsa, the Batas pounded out thirteen smashes into the faraway pasture of Millen Stadium in the first game and added eleven more in the second tilt. Gerry Coyer collected five, with Gordon Carr and Fitz getting three each. Davey Jones had his sights lined properly with four clouts, while Al Keller, heir, Keith MacDonald and Tony Petitit picked up a pair apiece.

Tonight the Batas clash with the Peterborough Petes, and the Liftlock Iaddies likely will prove tough nuts to crack. They lost a pair over the week-end and their record stands at three losses and one victory. The Batas rate a .500 percentage with two and two—and please don't ask us for the league standing. We have not been very successful in getting scores of other games, let alone the standings to date. We understand Oshawa is in second place and the Batas definitely are not in the cellar.

From here it looks as though a strong depth in the pitching department is a necessary requisite in the Viadnct Ontario League. Four games in three days takes a heavy toll of the flinging corps, and strength here may be the deciding factor as the teams go down the schedule. If a team is forced to use two or three pitchers in a game, they face a serious handicap especially if a double-header looms up the next day or so.

However, tonight is Peterborough night, and the Batas are out to give their ancient foes from Perdueville a warm reception. After-all, the pesky cusses defeated our side in their opener on May 24.

MADOC'S NIGHT!

They're having a big night out Madoc way come Friday when the powers-that-be of the mid-Hastings village mark the official opening of their brand new community centre.

According to one Jack Haich, "you will see the finest ball park in Eastern Ontario," complete with lights and all the immodern trimmings. Civic and municipal bigwigs will be on hand to take part in the ceremonies, and there will be bands and other added features.

The top attraction will be Paul Mercier's "Blushird" juniors, who will match softball prowess with the Haichian Madoc squad in the local official opening of the Belleville District Softball League. There are no lucky airows. The "Blushirds" have won two and lost one while the Madoc team has won its only start.

Looks like a hot time in the little big town Friday, and no doubt the loyal villagers will be out in force not only to "root for the home team" but pay tribute to a fine community enterprise.

Home Stand Favors 'Beaners' Who Take 'Twins' from Phils; Yankees Lose, Brooks Triumph

By REN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

The next 30 days should decide the fate of Boston in the 1954 American League race. Will the Red Sox bloom in June or are they doomed to second division?

After a horrible spring of injuries and bad weather which forced Lou Boudreau to go with a make-do line-up that didn't, the new month finds the Red Sox settling in for an 18-game home stand-in friendly Fenway Park.

They own a three-game winning streak for the first time this season. They've had routine-going performances from their pitchers in two of their last three contests. And Ted Williams apparently is ready to start bustin' out all over.

ONLY CLUB

Boston was the only club in either league to sweep a Memorial Day doubleheader Monday, and the Sox did it in high style. They buried Philadelphia A's 20-3 in the highest-scoring display of the league season, then mopped up 9-0 in the nightcap.

Cleveland Indians stayed a game ahead of Chicago in first place by whipping the White Sox 6-3 on Jim Hegan's eighth-inning home run after Early Wynn opener 5-4 as Bob Keegan posted his seventh victory in a row.

Washington Senators, who cause New York Yankees more trouble than anybody else, temporarily beat the world champions 1-0 on Johnny Schmitz's four-hitter that pushed the second game into extra innings before bowing 3-2 in 10 as Spec Shea won his home the winning run with a bases-loaded walk.

Detroit rallied in the ninth for a 7-5 victory at Baltimore, then lost 4-2 to the Orioles.

RANED OUT

In the National League, rain cut short the holiday twin-bill opening out Cincinnati's doubleheader with the first-place Milwaukee Braves splitting with Chicago. St. Louis twin bill to a single seven-inning contest won by the Cubs 14-4 on six home runs, two by Hank Sauer.

Brooklyn defeated Philadelphia Phils 5-4 on Gil Hodges' 12th-inning home run in the second game. Pittsburgh split with New York Giants, winning 4-3 after losing on three hits to them 6-0.

The only significant shift in the standings came in the American League. Boston moved from seventh to sixth and Baltimore from eighth to seventh as Philadelphia dropped to last.

BIG BAT

Ted Red Sox' big day included 27 hits, five of them home runs. Mitt Bolling's two, Williams, Jim Piersall and Harry Aggasis got one each. Williams also got a double and a single in six official times at bat. After 15 games, Williams is batting .406.

Bill Henry scattered seven hits in second-game shutout, his third complete game of the year. Boston pitchers have a total of nine complete games.

A bunt, an error, an infield out and Mickey Vernon's single produced the one run Washington needed to beat New York in the opener. Casey Stengel argued that the bunt hit batter Eddie Yost's leg and got the award out of the game for his vigorous protests.

The White Sox ended Cleveland's 11 game home winning streak with the help of two-run homers by Minnie Minoso and Ferris Fain.

Yukovitch Wins Second Straight At Indianapolis

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Without taking any credit from a great driver in Jim Rathmann's second straight 500-mile auto race victory Monday, the cold statistics show that his pit crew deserves a big chunk of cash when the purse is distributed tonight.

Jack McGrath, who holds the Indianapolis Motor Speedway qualifying record, set out to run off from the field like Yukovich did last year. He was a screaming streak around the track at an almost impossible 140 miles an hour early in the contest.

Yukovich won and McGrath finished in third place behind Rathdriving Jimmy Bryan of Phoenix.

Yukovich was 11:09.39 ahead of Bryan and 1:21 ahead of McGrath.

CREW HELPED

Yukovich had made two pit stops for fuel and tires and his crew got him back on the track in total lost of 1:42. Bryan had to make three stops and lost 2:39. McGrath made three and lost 3:39.

Fresh fields of the short, dark and untalkative Yukovich probably will contend that if Yukovich had not had a big lead over Bryan late in the race, he would have been forced to make a spurt to get fuel in the tank. Californian from South Pasadena, had a phenomenal average speed of 138.060 for the first 50 miles and Bryan was hardly a car length behind him in that time.

MAGNETO TROUBLE

McGrath's trouble later he was forced to abandon the torrid pace, because of magneto trouble. He was forced to quit with the choice of spending time in the pit while the part was changed or to go up the all-out speed.

One driver, Jimmy Daywalt, hit the northwest wall and bounced off into Jim Rathmann's car, in which Pat Flaherty of Glendale, Calif., was driving relief. Neither driver was hurt but the valiant "slow down" light was on 12 minutes.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Bill Chris of Kitchener Has Good One in Beau Bunty Going in Plate

TORONTO (CP)—One of the most consistent two-year-old colts in Canada in 1953 was a little bay named Beau Bunty. Ranked ninth among the juveniles last season, he is entered in the 50th running of the Queen's Plate at Woodbine Park on June 12th.

Beau Bunty is a son of Bunty Lawless, owned by Willie Morrissey of Toronto and plate winner in 1938.

Beau Bunty is the result of the mating of Bunty Lawless and a quick-footed mare named Cadency. Billchris of Kitchener, who owned Cadency, brought Beau Bunty to Woodbine as a yearling in 1952.

The colt won at first asking. Chris sent him to the post with a field of two-year-olds May 26, 1953, and Beau Bunty won easily. Three weeks later, he scored his greatest triumph when he won the first division of the Clarendon Stakes in the sparkling time of 1.10 for five furlongs.

Those were his only two wins of the season but he was second twice and third in another. He earned $5,865.

BAFFLIN G OLT

He was beaten only by the three of four outstanding juveniles and was quoted at 10 to 1 odds for the plate in the winter book.

Owner-trainer Chris has found Beau Bunty a baffling colt in the stages of addition to inheriting his sire's stocky frame, he inherited some of old Bunty's winnability.

Morning trials convinced Chris that Beau Bunty could run over a distance but the colt refused to perform to expectations in the afternoon. On several occasions in the autumn-he stopped to a walk after setting a sizzling pace in the early stages of a race.

Beau -Bunty's performance in Wednesday's plate trial a lone mile and 70 yards will be watched with keen interest.

In the first trials, on May 22, he was beaten by a nose by Staff Reporter in a six-furlong test. He ran strongly at the finish and might have won if another horse hadn't carried him slightly wide in the homestretch.

Bunty Lawless became Canada's champion at three.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

There is a popular notion that athletes can succeed without brains. Because that good, clean rivalry in sports can clear the atmosphere of all international hostilities and bring nations closer to one another.

This writer does not necessarily agree. Sports have often brought the representatives of different nations so close to one another that the good offices of the local police were required to pry them apart.

But there is something encouraging about Russia's latest efforts to establish closer ties this side of the Iron Curtain through the medium of athletics. Russia has invited several western track-field stars, soccer and hockey teams to play against Communist athletes on Soviet fields.

Next and more important still, the Russians have indicated that their athletic representatives may yet be permitted to compete in America.

Let us hope this isn't all just propaganda. We don't have to be politicians to see that the sooner we get a chance to show young Russians what the Western world is really like, the sooner we will an important role in international relations. That gain may be just a day, but tiny seeds often grow into trees.

To be sure, we do not believe for one moment that the cold war will ever be settled on an athletic field. But it is a fact that Western Europe and Russian got along comparatively against each other in the Olympic Games than they ever did in political arenas.

No doubt, the professional diplomats, have accomplished great things at times. But some results cannot be achieved through professional diplomacy alone. Sometimes the man-to-man-street is the diplomat, whether he knows it or not. It is the street lads and lassies of the world who know and like the small young Communist who today learned to know and like the Russian representatives of Canada, Britain or the United States, may be a political boss in his country tomorrow. He won't readily hate the men he knows personally as good guys.

We would like a chance to welcome Communist athletes to this continent. We want them to see for themselves what life in the countries of the free really is like. If it's not the cold war it isn't likely to do any harm, either.

Colorless Stan 'Stash' Musial Said One of Baseball's Greats

By JOE RICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Unquestionably the greatest but least colorful all-around player in baseball is Stanley Frank Musial of Donora, Pa., and the St. Louis Cardinals.

This extraordinary hitter, superb outfielder, and three-time winner of remarkable team player has, in a dozen seasons, established himself as one of the all-time greats of the diamond.

Musial hasn't any of the color that marks a Ted Williams, a Babe Ruth, a Leo Durocher or a Rogers Hornsby. His color is only his crisp, machine-like hitting, his efficient fielding, his keen judgement on the basepaths, his determined efforts.

Now in his 34th year, with six batting championships and three most valuable player awards behind him, "Stash," as he is known to his friends and teammates, gives promise of enjoying what may be his greatest of all seasons.

HAS 'RUNNING START'

Certainly Musial is off to the finest start of his career with the possible exception of 1948 when he led the league in every statistical department but home runs and reached his highest batting mark of .376. Through the first six weeks of 1954, Stan compiled a .370 batting average and was out front in home runs, runs batted in and total bases.

Stan's tremendous feat of smashing five home runs in a doubleheader against the Giants May 2 gave him a record not even National League history.

Musial, $85,000-a-year performer already is a couple of hundred past the 2,000-hit mark, has scored more than 1,300 runs and has batted in nearly 1,200 runs. His most singles, doubles, triples, runs and total bases of any active player. He is crowding the 300-homer mark. In the field, he is equally adept at first base as in left, centre or right field. If he wins the batting title again he will be even with Rogers Hornsby and one behind Honus Wagner, usually accepted as the greatest player to have played the game.

Musial achieved by such sluggers as Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Jimmy Foxx.

Alvin Dark, star shortstop and captain of the Giants, is a pretty fair hitter in his own right, calls Musial the greatest hitter he ever saw.

"Musial is a man apart," he said. "Well, we're not going to let the dickens to reach .300, his main concern is whether he'll top .350 or not."

PREACHER'S STRATEGY

One of Musial's stoutest antagonists and staunchest admirers is Preacher Roe, the wily southpaw pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Once, before a game between Brooklyn and St. Louis, Roe poked his head into the Cardinal clubhouse and shouted in:

"Hey, fellows, I finally found out how to get Musial out."

"How, Preach?" the Redbirds chorused.

"Walk him on four pitches and then pick him off first," Roe shouted triumphantly.

Musial, $85,000-a-year performer already is a couple of hundred past the 2,000-hit mark, has scored more than 1,300 runs and has batted in nearly 1,200 runs. His most singles, doubles, triples, runs and total bases of any active player. He is crowding the 300-homer mark. In the field, he is equally adept at first base as in left, centre or right field. If he wins the batting title again he will be even with Rogers Hornsby and one behind Honus Wagner, usually accepted as the greatest player to have played the game.

Canada's Eyes On 'Blue Sail' In Epsom Derby

LONDON (CP)—A prediction of widespread showers today enhanced the Derby prospects of Canadian - owned Blue Sail and scrambled predictions of the welcome of Wednesday's flat-racing classic at Epsom Downs.

The Irish - bred three-year-old owned by Mat Bell and Frank McMahon of Calgary, quoted at 20 to 1 in Monday night's call-over, likes a soft track. So does Rockson Manor, a colt named after a house and nearly as big as one, which just lost the favorite's post-race to Darius on the strength of the latter's victory in the Two Thousand Guineas.

The switch occurred in the latest call-over, which quoted Darius at 9 to 2 as against Rowston Manor's 6 to 1. That was before the predictions of rain.

REMIST BLUE SAIL

There was stiff some betting resistance to Blue Sail based on Monday night's showing. Ridden tardily with the sharp turns and uphill stretches of the tricky Epsom track. But the colt is known as a standout stayer and the Derby is distance—1½ miles.

Longden, most prolific winner on U.S. tracks, rides fare Sir Gordon Richards, the only man in the world who has hoisted more winners home. Sir Gordon has to give up his mount on the Queen's colt, Landau, which promptly rose to 9 to 1 in the call-over.

The shorter-priced foreign entry Monday night was Ferriol, a French-bred speedster owned by the Comte de Chambrun, which goes best on a fast track. Ferriol closed at 15 to 2.

Two pre-race favorites, Infatuation and the American - owned Number II, were week - end scratches.

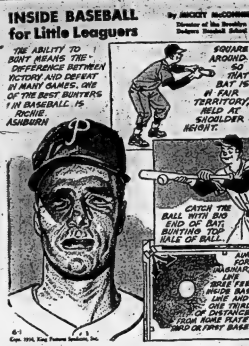
Golfers Busy Over Week-End

There was plenty of activity on the links of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club over the week-end.

In the Sunday morning sweepstakes Charlie MacKenzie and Doug. McIntosh tied for the low net with a 72. Joe Pidutti and Mario Lavelli each had a 74 while Gord Hamm and Charlie Lovatt came up with 75's.

Three clubs sent nine players to the Massa Tournament held in the afternoon with Quinte, Trenton and Napanee represented. The Bay of Quinte linkmen won the tourney with 10½ points, Trenton was second with 8½ and Napanee next with 7½.

Three magnificent cups were presented for low gross scores with T. A. Carruthers tops with 80. Murray McIntosh had 82 and Doctor George Faulkner third with 87.



Quinte Tennis

Sunday the Quinte District Tennis season was officially opened when a district tournament was held. Teams were entered from Belleville, Trenton, Campbellford, Batawa, Point Anne and Marmora. Fourteen men's doubles teams and twelve mixed teams competed. All the prizes for the tournament were donated by the local merchants. The men's singles event was won by Ken Woodley and Arnold Anderson from Don Hamond and Gerry Ireland (3-6, 6-2, 6-2). In the mixed doubles Dan Cowley and Pat Brearley defeated Mr. and Mrs. F. Hunter (6-2, 7-5).

The Consolation Men's doubles was won by Dan Cowley and Bob Wallis, while the consolation mixed doubles was won by Ann Armstrong and Don Hasenak. The Bay of Quinte Tennis League opens next Wednesday, when Trenton visits the Quinte Courts.

INSIDE BASEBALL for Little Leaguers

By HICKEY McCORMICK
Member of the Baseball Writers' Dugout Baseball School

Anyone who can catch a ball should be able to bunt one. You just catch the ball with your bat between the infielders and the big end. To show how easy it is, "Pepper" Martin, during his career with the St. Louis Cardinals, often aimed his bat at the pitcher like a rifle, pulling a gun trigger and he ball with the end of his bat in pre-game practice.

Square around as you bunt, bat is in fair territory at shoulder height, and bunt the top half of the ball so you will be sure to bunt the ball along the ground. Try to make the ball stop just inside the first line and outside of the way to third base or first base, depending on where you want the ball to go. The bat should be held lightly in the hands with the top hand sliding up the handle to the trademark as you square around and bunt the ball. Angle your bat so that the ball will bounce off in the direction you want it to be bunted.

Death of Member Lionel Conacher Gives 'Old Timers' Food for Thought

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's old-time big-league hockey players, their waistlines spreading and their hairlines receding, will get a check within two weeks whether they should continue to play for charity.

The old-timers were shocked by the sudden death last weekend of 54-year-old Lionel Conacher, Canada's greatest all-round athlete and an active member of the National Hockey League Old-Timers' Association.

Conacher died of a heart attack while playing in a charity pickup softball game at Ottawa between members of Parliament and newspaper men.

"Lionel's death gave us a jolt," said Lorne Duguid, association president, in an interview Monday. "It was shocking," said the 44-year-old Duguid, winger with the old Montreal Maroons from 1931 to 1935.

HELP KIDS

Since the association was formed three years ago—Conacher was its first president—it has raised more than $60,000 for crippled children. It has received 55 requests for benefit games for next season, from as far west as Fort William and Winnipeg. However, its members play a minimum of four games and a maximum of six a season, usually starting in June.

The Big Train, defenceman with two Stanley Cup championships—Montreal Maroons in 1934 and Chicago Black Hawks in 1935—played many games with the old-timers, always driving hard.

His death was the second within the association ranks since its formation. Two years ago, 47-year-old Larry Aurie, former Detroit Red Wing right-winger, died of a heart attack while driving his car in Detroit.

DISCUSS WHAT TO DO

Since Conacher's death, members have been discussing among themselves the possibility—and such as lowering the age limit—the average age is 40—or periodical medical examinations.

"We've raised a lot of money for crippled children in three years and we don't want to give up the work," Duguid said Monday.

"All our boys have had pretty strenuous careers. We want to watch ourselves in the future," said Duguid.

Star-Studded Leafs Back on Top After Handing Bisons Twin Defeats

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jack Kent Cooke, owner of the International League's Toronto Maple Leafs, has come up with a star-studded ball club that is leading the league—and his three big stars didn't cost him a cent.

Cooke, who has shelled out as much as $30,000 for a single player in the past, received Elston Howard from New York Yankees, Loren Babe from Philadelphia Athletics and Sam Jethroe from Pittsburgh Pirates on option at the beginning of the season.

Toronto bounced back into the lead by a half game by defeating Buffalo Bisons twice Monday, 5-3 and 4-1, while Rochester Red Wings fell to second place by splitting a twin bill with Montreal Royals. The Royals won the first game 6-5 while Rochester took the second 8-3.

In other games, Syracuse Chiefs moved into fifth place by trouncing Ottawa Athletics twice, 7-5 and 10-1, Havana Cuban Sugar Kings and Richmond Virginians split a doubleheader. The Kings won the afternoon game 9-5 and the Virginians came back at night to defeat Havana 4-1.

Howard, Babe and Lou Morton drove out home runs for the Leafs for all the runs in the first game while Jethroe's homer in the third inning of the second climaxed a three-run rally.

Glen Cox's effective relief pitching and two-run homers by Rocky Nelson and Sandy Amoros gave the Royals their first-game victory. Catcher Pete Riggan homered in the bottom of the ninth to save a split for Rochester in the second after Montreal rallied for five runs and an 8-4 tie in the top pof the ninth.

Marvin Blaylock tripled for Syracuse to break a 5-5 tie in the first game and hit a three-run homer in the second. Catcher Joe Lonnett had a perfect game at bat against Ottawa in the nightcap, hitting two homers and a pair of singles.

Dan Cockell, British Heavy Champ 7-4 Favorite Over Harry Matthews

LONDON (AP) — American heavyweight Harry Matthews of Seattle, British champion Don Cockell in a 10-rounder tonight with a possible world championship fight the rich prize dangling before the winner.

That's the way British sportswriters, promoter Jack Solomons and Jack Hurley, Matthews' manager, see the big fight which goes on about 10 p.m. (5 p.m. EDT) at London's outdoor 54,000-seat White City Stadium.

"The outcome of this fight will elevate the victor into such prominence that he cannot possibly be denied the right to style himself a logical contender for the world championship" comments the widely-read Boxing News.

COCKELL THIRD

Ring Magazine rates Cockell third among the world contenders. The tubby British champion jumped into that spot after he defeated Roland La Starza at London March 30.

The British slugger is a 7-4-5 favorite for the fight—and that much," said Cockell. "I'm happy when they call me the underdog. It makes me more determined to go in and win."

The kid from Seattle isn't worried about being the underdog. "I've been boxing to long to let that worry me," Matthews said. "I'm perfectly fit and full of confidence."

ENDS TRAINING

The American wound up his training Monday with two miles of roadwork and is down to his best fighting weight of 190 pounds.

Cockell, who is more interested in fanning than professional boxing, ended his training at the south coast resort of Eastbourne—the same training camp he used for the LaStarza fight.

The 218-pound Cockell used his 30-pound weight advantage to wear down Matthews in their clash last August in Seattle and is counting on similar tactics in tonight's return bout.

Promoter Solomons said he expects a crowd of 50,000 "if we get good weather."

Holiday Draws Half Million Baseball Fans

NEW YORK (AP)—Major league baseball attracted 502,917 sports-tors during the Memorial Day week-end, Associated Press figures show. The National League played to 263,958 while the American League drew 238,818.

Another AP survey showed the two days of racing during the week-end attracted 52,447 spectators who poured more than $33,-000,000 through the mutuels.

Ten tracks operated Saturday and 11 Monday.

Hollywood Park operated before the biggest audience—64,083—Monday, who bet $3,356,105.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A wonderful mother is Tilly. So what if her bridge game is silly. Expert when you signal her, maybe she'll jump up to diaper the baby.

With his mind on the game, a good bridge player can get a lot of information out of any lead or discard. Nearly all such signals are easy for a beginner to learn.

Take the deal you see here:

The player who leads a king says: "Partner, I also have either the ace or no queen. Tell me whether I should continue this suit or if it would be better for you to switch it."

How does partner know whether he has a queen to lead? By looking at dummy and his own hand. If he sees the ace, leader has the queen. If the queen is in sight, partner has the ace. What if ace or queen is not in sight? Partner waits until the declarer plays. If declarer takes the king with ace, leader must be with the queen. At least, know what he took for.

South was in four spades and west led heart king. Seeing queen in dummy, east knows west has the ace. West will want to know if he should next lead the ace. East tells him yes. Why?

Because east can ruff the dummy queen when west leads that suit after getting heart ace. How does east tell west all this? By the card he discards on the king lead. He will lay his lowest card says to switch. Play of the highest card he can afford to throw says continue. So, east plays the nine on the king. West cashes the ace and east then ruffs the next heart.

If east had jack or less with his other two hearts he could not have ruffed the third heart round. He could have said so easily. How? By playing his deuce on the first heart trick.

Make your signals plain and save yourself much pain.

AT THE BELLE

"CASANOVA'S BIG NIGHT" HAS TOP NAME CAST

A Bob Hope picture always means delightful nonsense flavored with a veritable barrage of entertainment. This being the case, when bumbling Bob sets his comedy talents on an impersonation of history's most celebrated lady killer, Casanova, motion picture audiences are due for the ultimate in rib-tickling entertainment. Just such a delightful situation is promised tomorrow at the Belle Theatre when Paramount's brand new gay Technicolor masquerade of mirth and romance, "Casanova's Big Night", makes its bow.

Naturally Bob Hope is on hand and is ably supported by Joan Fontaine, Basil Rathbone, Audrey Dalton and Hugh Marlowe. Lavishly produced, the film is set against the colorful background of 18th century Italy during the time when the fabulous Casanova was the romantic idol of the day. The irrepressible Mr. Hope portrays the role of a meek tailor's apprentice who throughout a set of wacky circumstances, is forced to impersonate the swashbuckling lover.

With Bob prancing around adorned in royal raiment and emulating the romantic actions of the world's greatest lover you can be sure a great deal of mahem is afoot. All goes well with Hope until he meets up with some of the many secrets of Casanova.

Then Bob loses interest in the beautiful women and concentrates on saving his own neck. In the course of his bizarre adventure he tangles with a group of demanding creditors who won't take no for an answer, fights a fantastic duel with Italy's most swordsmen, matches wits with the treacherous Doge of Venice and is befriended by a dim-witted jail bird. Sword play, weird chases and other assorted hilarious shenanigans are the inevitable result. These sequences are reportedly filled with blood-lusting hordes. The efforts of The Flame are capped in a spectacular battle as the tyrant's army rides into a trap, set by Knowles and The Flame.

As The Flame, Miss Darcel delivers a rousing performance, by turns dashing as befitting a legendary fighter, and tender as becoming a woman in love. Knowles also cuts a dashing figure as the British officer. Written for the screen by Robert E. Kent, "Flame of Calcutta" was directed by Seymour Friedman for producer Sam Katzman.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, JUNE 2, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Rather tricky and, possibly, uncooperative influences now. It behooves all to think before speaking or acting so that errors may be avoided and the best course pursued. Be reasonable.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — While not wholly restricting to your sector it would nevertheless be sensible to review duties and whole schedule so that you may proceed wisely and with fewer hindrances. Control temper.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Watch promises; don't undertake what you cannot fulfill or manage. Some days are best for checking for errors, for improving methods, conferring and studying rather than for obtaining quick results. This is one of them.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Your Moon's and other planets' positions today offer these suggestions for better results all around: Patience, unselfishness and no hurry; conscientious, good work.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Smaller to Taurus now. Practical, useful and essential matters can be handled with good results. Remember that it is largely up to you personally whether your efforts are productive.

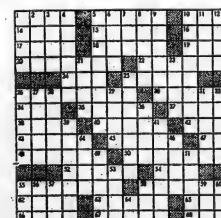
August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Don't worry or fret if you cannot produce as brightly as usual. Calm thinking and planning now will give you what you seek later. (If honorable and good for you). Have faith in God.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—There are tendencies now to overdo, to go to extremes in pleasures as well as other matters. Don't! Quiet days have their compensations, too.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—System will do much to eliminate waste time and energy, something you should remember occasionally—not only for your own good but for the finer work you can do under right procedure.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Organization, investigations, conferring, studying carefully and thoroughly before acting are vital to success now. Give the other fellow an equal chance, too.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—A few musts for today: Co-ordination of talents, the ability to distinguish between sly craftiness and real cleverness and co-operation with co-workers.



January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Start at the beginning and review to ascertain whether you may have made errors. If you then feel you are on the right path, proceed with vim and assurance. Exercise sensibly.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Outdoor exercise and a thoughtful allotment of chores according to time are important to maintain health as you go along. Don't do any one thing to the point of exhaustion.

YOU BORN TODAY can be either a leader or an able assistant. Gemini can be two different people at various times; be determine to strengthen your good habits and practices, and curb the little faults and weaknesses. Birthdate of: Thos. Hardy, English novelist; Sir Edw. Elgar, composer.

PIONEER COUPLE

PINCHER CREEK, Alta. (CP)— Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McDowall celebrated their 66th wedding anniversary here. Married in London, England, in 1882, they came to this district as homesteaders in 1906.

WELLINGTON

Consolidated School Presents Music Festival

WELLINGTON — On Friday evening, last, the auditorium in the W.S. was filled with interested parents and friends of the public school pupils who put on one of the best music festivals that has been held. Mrs. Brownie and the teachers deserve a great deal of credit; they should also feel proud of the children for the fine showing they made on Friday evening.

Mr. M. Soider, principal of the Public School, as chairman, spoke briefly, welcoming such a fine audience.

The program opened with "O Canada" followed by Mrs. Caley's primary class who presented, "The House That Jack Built" which the little folks did in splendid style; also a chorus, "Fil Diddle Fiddle" and "Hickory Dickory Dock" and four little people sang "My Conical Pupil."

Miss Valleau's class had a rhythm band which played well, and a chorus, "All The Nice Girls Loves a Sailor". They were all dressed as sailor costumes. They gave another chorus, "Robin in the Rain."

Mrs. Nash's class—"The Wedding of Jack and Jill" with the three little boys dressed as sailors and the three blind mice.

A Mayflower Drill was done by a number of girls in Miss Sandare's room, and chorus, "Dreams", and "The Bowl of the Rose" the whole class.

INSTITUTE AWARDS.

Mrs. Walker then presented the Institute awards, adding a few words of advice to the children. Miss Barbara Dick, and Robert Alexander.

Mr. Soider presented the field day awards which were won on the second field day by the following. Primary winners: Margaret Bailey and Bobby Caswell; juvenile winners, girls; Joan Harrington, Barbara Short, and Bernadette Holmes; juvenile Stevenson; juvenile boys, Larry Greenfield, Larry Snider, Eric Dean and Daniel Allison; junior winners, girls: Beverley Wright, Carolyn Hubbard, Donald, and Christina Macdonald; junior boys: Donald MacNaughton, David Taylor and Richard Stevenson, Harley Holmes.

Interclass RELAY: Nell Halloran, Donna Elliott, and Evelyn Evans; boys, Billy Lloyd, Neil Benard and David Flintoft.

Mr. Snider stated that next year there would be another award presented to two lucky students as the Canadian Legion and the Ladies' Auxiliary were donating $25 for this year's class.

MINISTERIAL VISIT.

More program followed with an excellent Minstrel Show with four side men and Mr. Snider as Mr. Interlocutor; with a chorus in the background. This was most amusing and well performed by Mr. Snider's class.

Mrs. Brown's class put on an operetta "Holiday in Holland", another excellent performance of witty sayings and songs.

Miss Pyne's Class came last on the program with "Building Canada". Every province was represented and the main points of each were related by each representative. Several choruses were sung by the class.

Eastern Ontario Promised 'Square Deal' Over Seaway

OTTAWA (CP)—George Challies, first vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro commission, has explained the difference between "authorized" and "designated" to the Eastern Ontario Development Conference.

Dealing with some points raised as the conference Monday began three days of discussions on eastern Ontario problems, Challies replied charges of suppression of facts and lack of co-operation made against the Hydro commission in connection with the proposed St. Lawrence river hydro development were "unfortunate."

The United States federal power commission had approved the New York state power authority as the American entity to work with Ontario Hydro on the power project, but this approval was challenged in the courts and now awaited a decision of the U.S. Supreme Court. . . .

AWAIT AUTHORIZATION

"Unless and until the . . . authority is 'authorized', and not just 'designated', as that entity, permitting them to enter into agreements and other steps, we cannot come to any definite conclusions," Mr. Challies said.

Premier Frost assured the conference that eastern Ontario would get a "100-per-cent square deal" in the protection of its interests in the St. Lawrence power project. He would make sure local areas were not "sandwiched" and eliminated by larger power blocs.

"We want to make you feel that you are partners in the project and that your problems are not overlooked in the magnitude of the seaway problems to be faced," he said.

SEES BIG EFFECTS

The seaway development involved "mighty complexities," yet he was certain it would have tremendous impetus on eastern Ontario development and place it on the "front steps of America."

Mr. Challies said the power project costs, including rehabilitation of those moved out of the flooded area on both sides of the St. Lawrence, were to be evenly divided. Problems on the Canadian side were much more complex and costly than on the American; therefore the agreement between Ontario Hydro and the U.S. entity must be reached before project details could be announced.

LIKE PARTNERSHIP

"We are somewhat in the position of two men entering a partnership in business . . ." Mr. Challies said. "If one partner prematurely announces the policies . . . the aggressive partner is liable to end up by having to make good all his disclosures by dipping right down to the bottom of his own pocket, in order to finance a greater portion of the costs."

The hydro commission and the provincial government were sympathetic to the desire of the people in the affected area to know what will happen to them. Once the project was authorized, a solution would be worked out in close co-operation with the community authorities.

Meanwhile, H. D. Rothwell, a senior Hydro official, had been appointed liaison engineer between the municipalities and the commission.

J. Smart, recently retired chief of national parks and historic sites, had just been hired as a commission consultant and was making a survey of significant historic homes, sights and monuments in the area to be flooded, with a view to retaining what can be kept that is of historic importance.

Mr. Challies rejected a suggestion that a large block of power from the proposed St. Lawrence development be reserved for eastern Ontario. Reservation of power for any particular area would be detrimental to that area and the whole province.

"It would be necessary for that particular area to assume carrying charges on capital investment to provide that block," he said. "In addition, considerable quantities of water which otherwise could be used to advantage would have to be wasted."

WOULD RAISE COSTS

If the commission agreed to the suggested proposal that some 400,000 or 500,000 horsepower be reserved for eastern Ontario, Hydro costs would rise so high in that area that many local industrial developments would be "strangled."

He also turned down a proposal that power rates be lowered in eastern Ontario, which he said had increased its use of Hydro more than any other part of the province. It might had shown that rates were lower in the east than in the west.

"Eastern Ontario is certainly not suffering from the standpoint of high-cost power," he said.

CULTURE KEY

WINNIPEG (CP) — Jean Brunchesi, retiring president of the Royal Society of Canada, said Monday night culture is the key to achieving unity in Canada. He addressed the annual meeting of the society shortly before relinquishing the presidency to E. W. R. Steacie of the National Research Council, Ottawa.

"ANGEL OF DIEN BIEN PHU" IN HANOI

Wearing paratroopers' coveralls, French Air Force Nurse Geneviève de Galard-Terraube, now the title of "Angel of Dien Bien Phu" by her devotion of the wounded in that jungle fortress while it was under siege and until it was captured by the Communists, is shown as she arrived in Hanoi. She was freed by the Reds and taken to Laos by helicopter, thence to Hanoi by transport plane. Other nurses are greeting her. (Central French Canadian).

MINTO

Friends Honor Bride-Elect With Fine Gifts

MINTO — Mrs. J. B. Hagerman and Mrs. Lorne Hagerman were hostesses for a well attended shower in honor of Miss Eva Hagerman, bride-elect of this month.

Mrs. Lindsay Teeper acted as chair-lady for the evening extending congratulations and best wishes to the guest of honor, also presided over the program.

Community singing was enjoyed after which readings were given by Miss Edna Tanner, Mrs. Ernest Carr, Mrs. Mayo and Miss Marilyn Pitchett. A piano solo was rendered by Marian and Shirley Broadworth; accordion selections by Miss Carol Sine and Mrs. George Wood; vocal solo by Miss Marilyn Fitchett, and piano solo by Miss Joy Colden, Mrs. Arnold Cresser and Joe and Glenn Hagerman.

Miss Patsy Sine read the address and Eva was presented with a pretty wrapped parcel containing a set of dishes as well as several personal gifts. The bride graciously replied, thanking everyone and extending an invitation to visit her in her new home. The bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother, also spoke briefly.

Refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

Veteran Captain Thought Drowned In St. Mary's R.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (CP)—A veteran captain of a Great Lakes freighter fell from his ship and was presumed drowned Monday in the St. Mary's river, a mile east of here.

Capt. Lloyd W. Smith, 62, of Cleveland, skipper of the coal freighter James E. Ferris, was last seen by crew members struggling in the water behind the ship.

No one saw the captain fall. He went overboard while the vessel, owned by Pittsburgh Steamship Company, was heading downriver with a cargo for Indian Harbor on Lake Michigan.

A lifeboat was lowered but there was no sign of the captain.

PICTON

Early Shrine Of Methodism Is Scene of Service

PICTON — Early shrine of Methodism in this area, the Conger chapel, was the scene of the annual anniversary afternoon. Rev. L. S. Throop, of Cannifton, chairman of Belleville Presbytery of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada, was guest preacher. Rev. F. J. Whiteley conducted the service and Picton United Church quartet sang.

The chapel was built 145 years ago and it kept in excellent care. The interior is the same as when it was built. Huge, hand-hewn beams support a flat balcony. The high pulpit, with stairs, has a sounding board overhead. Framed records on the walls add to the interest of the chapel, in whose grounds are buried many pioneer residents.

Rev. Mr. Throop spoke from the text, "Seek Ye First the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you." The theme of this text remains unchanged through the ages. The troubles of this age and every age spring not from a lack of material things but have their root in the separation from God. Frantic search for political, economic and social panacea to remedy difficulties are all in vain without God. Salvation which depends upon spiritual values, said the speaker.

OPEN BEVERAGE ROOMS

Beverage rooms in Medicine Hat reopened earlier in May with non-union help.

Match-the-Parts Game Hard On Customs Officials

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Pacific Railway has come up with a new diversion for Canadian customs officials: a $7,000,000 match-the-parts game.

The parts are more than 65,000 pieces of hardware, ranging from nuts and bolts to locks and collapsible baggage racks, to be installed in 173 stainless steel, streamlined passenger cars ordered by the company in the United States.

Although the coaches are being built in Philadelphia, interior fittings are being supplied by 24 Canadian firms and must be shipped through Montreal to the U.S. for installation in the cars, CPR officials said.

Each piece has to be recorded with a note made of the number of the car into which it is to fit. Customs officials will charge duty on entry into the U.S. of the parts, but their job will just be starting.

When the trains cross the border into Canada each of the 65,000 parts will have to be identified so that the duty paid can be rebated on proof that the hardware is re-entering the country—of origin.

The first cars, which include 36 scenic dome units, are expected to be delivered in June and July, company officials said.

REDUCE FARES

MONTREAL (CP)—J. A. Brass, chairman of the Canadian Passenger Association, announced Monday that first class round-trip rail fares to eastern Quebec and the maritime provinces will be reduced be from June 16 to Sept. 6.

Pay for Facilities

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto city council Monday adopted a board of control recommendation that suburban municipalities pay for the use of city fire-fighting facilities at the rate of $250 for the first hour and $20 fore each additional hour.

Three aldermen said they did not approve of the idea that no aid would be given suburban municipalities if they did not make a contract with the city.

"It isn't a good neighbor policy for us to charge them," said Ald. William Dennison.

ONE WAY TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD

This bunch of mixed up kids is composed of five parachutists, four amateurs and a professional who find that falling from the sky is fun. Near Paris, France, they made their leap from 6,000 feet arm in arm and pulled the rip cords at 3,000 feet with every man for himself. They all made happy landings and agreed that it was "the most beautiful moment in our lives." An ideal way to keep from growing old, too. (Central Press Canadian).

A CENTURY OF SERVICE

The Picton Times, well-known weekly newspaper of Prince Edward county, celebrated its 100th birthday on Sunday, May 30.

It was on May 30, 1854, that Dr. George Gillespie and Robert Boyle laid the foundation of what has become a landmark in county newspaperdom over a century of publication.

Publisher Bill McLean, member of the third generation to operate the Times, celebrated the occasion with a special edition, which in itself is a fine tribute to the efficiency of its staff and to the proud history of the newspaper.

The weekly newspaper, the voice of the people who "live outside the cities" has a real-down-to-earth quality that makes it a vital part of the community. It comes next to the church to the good folk of the smaller centres than does its big brother, the daily. It records community events, news, human interest articles and those items that lie on the surface yet are crowded out of the city dailies.

Its editor usually is a man about town. He is called by his first name by everybody and liked by everybody by his first name by everybody and liked by everybody by his first name. Citizens take advice is sought—and freely given. He belongs to nearly every organization and association in his community, and is as much part and parcel of its structure as is the doctor and the lawyer and minister.

The stories of the importance of the weekly newspaper and its effect on the community are legion. Woven into the pattern of these stories is the golden thread of human interest, friendliness, closeness with the people, refreshing lines of thought and expression that makes the newspaper a sturdy part of the Canadian way of life.

With a fine record of one hundred years of efficient, faithful service to its public, the Picton Times marks with pride a century of achievement, and proudly looks forward to the progress of the future.

Our sincere congratulations.

A SIGNIFICANT EXPERIMENT

Knowledge is a powerful weapon, wherever it is wielded.

The trouble is that often accurate knowledge is difficult to acquire. The field is thick with error. Even in man's effort to understand his fellowman. "Know thyself," is excellent advice, but how many of us really possess this knowledge? If we find it difficult to accurately size the forces that motivate our own conduct, is it any wonder that we frequently misjudge and misunderstand our fellows?

These observations spring to mind on reading a report from New Zealand, where authorities have embarked on a highway safety campaign of a nature which many of us would freely have predicted could not hope to prove effective.

Faced, like many other countries, with a mounting accident toll on its highways, New Zealand established special patrols. The government selected wear plain clothes, drive cars without any distinguishing marks, of various colors, makes and models, and are frequently moved from one district to another.

So far the tactics sound familiar. They resemble the measures advocated by some of the more experienced members of Ontario Provincial Police, who have on occasion bitterly complained about the "Holsteins," the conspicuous black-and-white patrol cars, which they drive. These protests have led to the use of plain black cars by some highway patrols in this province.

But New Zealand, having taken effective steps to make these special police patrol cars indistinguishable from the cars driven by private motorists, has made a new and unusual feature to the campaign. The policemen in these cars were deprived of the power to prosecute motorists, no matter what the offence.

One's immediate reaction is that such a ruling would nullify the work of the special patrols, that motorists would ignore them and that the unhappy policemen, if they did not openly become discouraged and shirk their duties, would find that these duties were being performed to no good purpose.

But the plan has proven true. Motorists have proved much more willing to co-operate with these special patrols than with uniformed policemen. Not knowing whether or not the car behind them is a police car, the motorists continually checks up on his driving habits and guards against breaches of the traffic law, not because he fears prosecution because he is disturbed by his driving ability questioned. Pride is accomplishing what fear could not.

Which proves, once again, that few of us really understand what makes our fellow-men "tick" the way he does.

GIMMICK IN LAW?

A young native of Trinidad who came to Canada with his wife, and later applied for permission to remain so he could join the Canadian army, assertedly has been handed a deportation order on the grounds he's an "Asian." He insists, apparently correctly, he has never been in Asia in his life.

We have heard of at least one other case similar to this, in which a deportation order swiftly followed an application for permanent entry. Is that "Asian" business, whether applicable or not; a gimmick in the immigration laws to speed unwanted guests?

If it is, this could be an excellent time to dispose of it. Canada can best run its affairs without gimmicks. (Windsor Star).

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JUNE 2, 1934.

Capt. William H. Bottum of this city has already set an early season record for lake trout by landing a beauty from Wesleman Lake one day this week. The fish, which put up a great fight, was caught in the middle of the lake on an Archer spinner. It was 27 inches in length and 18 inches in girth. "And is it good so far," quietly commented "Cap" today.

Eggs sold on the market last week at 17 cents per dozen, today they sell at 15 to 16 cents per dozen, depending on size. Butter remains at the same price of 23 cents to 25 cents per pound. Potatoes sold at 35 cents per bag and seed potatoes at $1.25 per bushel. Chickens varied in price from 25 cents to 50 cents each.

Mrs. J. H. Tubbs was on the market today selling shells which she gathered on the Gull Bar Island.

During May last year 511 transients were given lodging at the police station and during May of this year 426 are known to have registered, being a decrease of 72. Twelve transients spent last night at the police station.

Mr. Norman Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Adams, Bridge Street east, entered the service of the Bank of Montreal here yesterday.

Mr. Alfred Campbell, Catherine St., will celebrate the 73rd anniversary of his birth tomorrow and friends will be pleased to extend to him congratulations and express good wishes.

30 YEARS AGO

JUNE 2, 1924.

The annual inspection of the High School Cadets took place this morning on the school grounds, the inspecting officer being Brigadier General F. W. Gill of Military District No. 3. The corps, which was 150 strong, was under the charge of the manoeuvres and at the close of the inspection Brig. Gen. Gill was highly congratulated by the inspecting officer. Much credit for the splendid showing is due to Mr. J. H. S. Leuty and his assistants who instructed the boys. The officers of the cadets are as follows: Cadet commanding, Dan McManus; Adjutant, Jack Deacon; Company leaders, Harry Hutchison, Hatha Walters; B, Company, Fred Croft; Platoon Leaders, No. 1, Leo Barlow, Sergt. TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LEARN TO FORGET

There is such a thing as remembering too much. Forgetting may become a most valuable art! Grecian, the Spanish philosopher, reminded in one of his wise brief sayings as follows: "The things we remember best are those better forgotten."

Memory is a silent friend to us all. Were it not for our happy memories we would be poor indeed. They are the ones to cling to, and to delight in, watering them like a beautiful garden. We always gain by forgetting the unhappy things that come across our path from time to time.

There are so many good and inspiring things to remember. How foolish it is to get them all mixed up with memories that we should forget. To have the mind filled with nothing but happy memories is to give our friends something of the wealth that we own. Something, too, that God can applaud.

Unhappy disputes and arguments, bitterness toward another, personal mistakes that have injured us and brought sadness to others. Learn to forget them. Of-

Highway Work Slow

(Kingston While-Standard)

Recently at Kriesu, a village and dock on Lake Erie south of Chatham, a ferry was launched which will be put into service on the Bay of Quinte ferry. It is about to be christened in the middle of June in its home waters, will ply between Glenora (Prince Edward County) and Adolphustown (Lennox and Addington). It is a Department of Highways vessel, the ferry runs all year, as, of well, according to the Department, "double existing facilities for moving and encouraging traffic on Highway 33 from Kingston along Lake Ontario to Picton, Wellington, Consecon and Trenton".

The ferry will provide a free service and should be attractive to tourists, according to Mr. Norris Whitney, M.L.A. for Prince Edward-Lennox, who attended the Kriesu launching. Highway 33 is "one of the most beautiful scenic routes in all Canada". This may be so; we do not profess to Mr. Whitney's knowledge of Canadian scenic routes—although we think he is right. But it is undoubtedly a necessary supplement to the existing road and the Government of Highways can be thanked, especially by the residents of Prince Edward County district, for providing the new ferry service. The present route in eastern Ontario is Number 401 east of Gananoque, through Kingston, thence other parts of the Province are rightly high in their praise of the road and views over the river.

The case for the Ontario Department of Highways must be spotty, for that is how its record (as it appears to us) has been in certain roads look. For instance, one can remember the road between Toronto and Oshawa some time ago. Way and at the same time regret that the double lane regretted between Toronto and Montreal is far from being completed. One can be encouraged by the work on it is going so slowly. The industrial and population belt of Ontario dies down along Highway 2 east of Toronto to Montreal, and along the Lake Ontario shore to the west. It seems to us that the Department of Highways has been remiss in both planning and accomplishment, since Highway 2 is still a two-lane affair nine years of peace, plenty and power-full development in the area served by it.

One's praise of even the finest roads which the Ontario Department of Highways has built must be tempered by comparison. We need not use Mr. Whitney's standards as applied to Highway 33. Many of our readers will have driven in New York states the magnificent series of parkways leading into the heart of that city. One of the finest roads—certainly, in our experience—is the Taconic State Highway which, south of the Hudson River through the Taconic State Parkway. This New York State Park comprises about 20,000 publicly-owned acres in Dutchess, Columbia, Putnam and Westchester counties. The countryside is wonderfully rolling and wooded, almost mountainous in places, and through it from north to south runs the magnificent Taconic State Highway. It has four lanes (usually in two separate roadbeds) of scientifically designed, beautifully maintained road. For perhaps two hundred miles of really delightful motoring—smooth, speedy, and picturesque—the like of which is not to be found in Canada. It is a pleasure to travel through pastoral parkland, yet open to public use (without fee or toll charges) where no commercial vehicles may use the route. Highway 2 east of Toronto and the Queen Elizabeth Way cannot know the beauty, grace, and open spaciousness of even the great American highways, a most which cannot be found on the Taconic State Highway.

Ontario's road planners are boldly going to make highway east of Toronto to ease traffic. But Highway 2 approaching it is already cluttered by mushrooming commercial buildings in which the speed limit must be reduced to 30 miles an hour. The Queen Elizabeth Highway as well as our cousins across the border have the advantage of apartment which cannot build a modern highway along the Ontario shore. Even in all the eleven years of Mr. George H. Doucett's ministry of office as Minister of Highways is not to be ranked among the most advanced road builders in the province's road systems. Because we do not have a good highway in Ontario let us not be blind to the superiority of highways elsewhere. Our standard of comparison, here in the heart of Canada, should not be Highway 33 or Picton, but the parkways in New York state.

Strange Tale Of the Sea

(Gall Reporter).

A tale of adventure more thrilling than most fiction fashioned after the days of Jules Verne is recalled in one of the exhibits at the Arts and Crafts Society's Tostal Exhibition in Eaton's, a model of the good ship Ouzel.

The Ouzel was built in 1904 as one of the strangest in Irish—or any other—shipping annals.

In 1895 this galley left the port of Dublin on a trading venture into the Near-Eastern waters. Her captain was Eoghan Massey of Waterford. She was a three-masted vessel, with three masts.

Hit-luck overtook her in the Gulf of Bothnia. All of the crew fell sick and the captain felt obliged to put into Helsingfors. The place he aleged on 10 Moors who presented themselves on the quay. The Ouzel then prepared for the voyage but in the Mediterranean was attacked by Algerian pirates. The 18 Moorish crewmen turned out to be in league with the pirates. It was a new twist to the Trojan Horse idea.

The Ouzel was captured and Massey and his men were carried off to Algiers. It was a sorry affair. There, watchfully waiting their chance, they stole out one night in a small boat, rowed and sailed their ship as she lay laden with booty, and set sail for Ireland.

According to the account appearing currently in the weekly bulletin of the Irish department of external affairs, the Ouzel got back to Dublin five years to the day after she left.

That wasn't the end of the affair, however. The question arose as to whom the loot belonged. It could not go to the ship's owners because they had been fully compensated by the underwriters, nor to the underwriters because the ship had been found and restored to all that their contract covered, nor to the crew as the booty had not been seized in action against the crew.

On this last contention, surely, a clever lawyer could have made a fine case for the crew. Indeed, however, the matter went to the courts and was still there seven other five years later. At that point the merchant-burghers of Dublin and the aldermen of the city decided to take the case into their own hands. An arbitration court was formed and it was forthwith set up a fund for the alleviation of poverty among the merchants of Dublin. To implement this, the Ouzel Galley Society was formed in 1705 for the purpose of administering the funds. It carried on until 1908.

Such bits of history make interesting reading and give an insight into the sports of yesteryear. I no doubt call human motivations and behavior.

O.K. Is Now 'World Word'

(Aramco World)

There was a time when one went to Paris to learn French, being the same in any language as the best way to learn about what was the French originated "passport." While "its still holds true (even with jet-travel) it is not the only sharing its distinction with a fine American export.

The sands of Arabia, the deserts of Egypt, the South Sea islands, Australia and mainland afoot from OK's encroachment. Hardly anywhere, indeed, did much to further its use in the place where they served during their ill.

All of Europe knows it. People in Scandinavia, Italy, Spain as well as those in the larger cities, have incorporated it into their vocabularies, and children and their elders alike use it with a free and unselfconscious ease.

Perhaps to many an American it has become a cultural institution, chewing gum, has caused such perfect soul and spirit. But it is a flexible, useful little word that has found its way into the hearts and attitudes of many different peoples.

Best of all OK has a charm all its own that is essentially American. Its simplicity, directness, and usefulness, a typical, relaxed American freedom from anything straight-laced and conventional.

And where did the term OK originate?

One legend has it that'll probably sprang from the Choctaw Indian language where OKe Hoke means "Yes, it is." Another has the word from local folk-lore, as a youth, was employed marking boxes for a shipper, and he signed off with the spelling of "all correct" which was "orl korrect" in his unschooled hand. So he abbreviated it to OK.

Still another version is attributed to the OK club, a Democratic organization of the last century. The club was supporting President Martin Van Buren in 1840 for re-election. Van Buren was born in Old Kinderhook, NY, hence the initials of his supporting club.

To an American far from home, the term has a reassuring sound. Wherever in the world he is, when he hears OK he knows that he is not in a strange land. Universal understanding. He also feels, in a way, that the unknown native linguists have defined to be the fundamental requirements of an international language.

SEVEN YEARS RUNNING.

New Jersey reader reports that, for seven years her husband's long — I mean for seven long years her husband's gas ached him. THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

From the provincial forestry authorities I managed to obtain infant trees either for nothing or so near to nothing that most of us, on first experience, count as many. Far the best way, that is, for our energy. The last lot I got, a year ago, were 500 Scotch pine and 100 jackpine; and by the time I had counted subsidies I calculated the holes for 11 of the former and 25 of the latter species, all the trees planted, and the land subsided, and I had blisters on my palms and a crick in the back.

But worst of all, I had 160 infant trees on my conscience. It is true they were in pails of water, so were not suffering. I visited around the neighboring summer cottages, to enquire if they wanted any small pines for planting for. But since it was early May and nearly everybody was up at the cottages yet, I had no escape that way, except on a day's rest. I selected a sandy waste a mile or so away, known as Sand Run, through which a seldom-used channel passes. There the digging of holes would be easy. The baby pines moreover would thrive in such perfect soil and environment. And it would be flattering, in years to come, to be able to visit the plantation and know it was in a sense, mine. It took me less than two hours to plant the 160 babies in this out-of-the-way spot, and I started leaving them. They were spaced at random over the ground, but each would be by nature rather than by man. My conscience was relieved.

I went around last summer and I went around last autumn. I visited the little pines. Only four of them had died by summer's end, and I never stirred and had got a good bite on life.

Early this spring, when I arrived for the ever-joyous removal of operating the cottage for another year, I found that only eight of my forty planted around the cottage had failed to winter. I hurried over to my private plantation and the little firm to select of the best for transplanting to the cottage.

They were all gone. In the sand were footprints only a few days old. Someone had come and looted the whole lot. My rage was white hot. I forgot all those days of work that had been on my conscience a year ago. They had become my property.

Tree planting is about as good way as any of studying your instinct for structure.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

TIRED NERVE CELLS

More and more it has become apparent that modern life wears down the nerve cells. We are said to be 'a frustrated generation. This is utterly incorrect; no generation that ever lived has had so many opportunities as we have. Even the shadow of atomic disaster does not prevent this from being the pleasant and comfortable period humanity has known in its history. But because of the fearful rate of speed at which we go, it is hard on the nerve cells.

There are two schools of psychological thought today about this. toward this problem. One is the psycho-analytic which holds that mental disturbances has its origin in sex and is the resut of conflict in the unconscious mind. The other school of thought is one that was used by William James fifty years ago and now is in touch with such clarity by Dr. Edward S. Cowles, that fatigue reduces nerve cell energy to such an extent that one suffers physical and mental disturbances as a result.

The writer of this column is not a psychologist but he has studied both psychologies. He feel that William James and Dr. Cowles are on the right side of this issue. Psycho-analysis has some truth in it, but not the truth that multitudes think it has.

Go slowly with psychoanalysis. There is a much better way of approaching nervous troubles than that method. We are not a frustrated generation but a tired, worn-out generation.

All Signs Point To Banner Year For Tourists

NEW YORK (AP)—All signs point to a banner summer season of travel by Americans, despite the dip in the economy in recent months.

The American Automobile Association says a record 60,000,000 persons will take to vacation trails by all means of transportation during the summer months—an increase of 10 per cent over last summer.

The AAA estimates these pleasure travellers will spend in excess of $6,000,000,000.

Trip-routing services again report a heavy run of requests for information on Canadian highways. Last year almost 7,000,000 United States travellers spent all or part of their vacations in Canada, with the average visit lasting six days. There are indications that figure will be topped this year as millions head north of the border in pursuit of new scenery and relaxation.

Golfers Play 'I Beat Hogan' Tourney Sat.

Saturday is "I Beat Hogan" Day for golfers across Canada and the United States.

"Little Ben" will tee off sometime during the morning and continental linksmen on courses from the Rio Grande to Churchill, from Frisco to Fletcher will endeavor to best the "Little Master's" score.

All over the United States and Canada golfers from nine to ninety will pay a dollar for the privilege of competing with Hogan, and if they are successful, will be given a medal bearing the inscription "I Beat Hogan."

The entire proceeds go to the Red Cross and the promotion of junior golf. Last year Canadian golfers contributed $6,000 to each of these organizations.

The Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club is extending its privileges, gratis to any city or district golfer who wishes to compete in the "I Beat Hogan" Tournament.

The course is free. The only costs to entries will be the one dollar admission fee. Handicap will be used.

Those wishing to enter can secure forms and pay their admission to golf pro Charlie Pidutti at the club's pro shop. Golfers can tee off any time on Saturday.

The Bay of Quinte Club management is desirous of making a fine showing in this year's tournament and all golfers, duke or otherwise are urged to "get in the tourney."

You will not only have the privilege of beating or trying to beat one of the world's best golfers, but—after all—eighteen holes of golf for a dollar is next to stealing a round on the links.

German Scientists Making Special Weapons for Reds

BONN (Reuters) — Forty German scientists in a prison camp near Moscow are making the special weapons used by Russian secret police all over the world, says a report issued by the West German Social Democratic Party.

The report, based on statements from German prisoners who have recently been repatriated, says the scientists are watched day and night by 200 members of the MVD. They are given especially good treatment as an inducement to use their skill.

Equipment manufactured for use by the secret police is said by the returning prisoners to include:

Tape recorders small enough to be carried by MVD agents.

Trip wires to protect Soviet embassies with special warning signals operated by infra-red rays.

Special miniature radar direction-finding equipment.

Apparatus to stun victims by electro-narcosis.

Tear and vomit gases.

The prison is at Kuchino, 19 miles southeast of Moscow, in an area which cannot be visited by western diplomats or journalists based on the Soviet capital.

The Germans at Kuchino are said to be men who once volunteered for work in Russia under contract but were later sentenced to long terms for "sabotage" to allow the MVD to exploit their skill.

Kuchino is different from other Soviet prisons, the report says, because the prisoners are comfortably housed and well fed. Their treatment varies according to the importance and secrecy of their job.

Huntingdon P.S. 2nd in Forestry Competition

IVANHOE—S. S. No. 12 Huntingdon public school, at Ivanhoe, won second prize of $20 in school forestry competition sponsored by Hastings and Prince Edward county councils and the Moira Conservation Authority.

The competition was under the supervision of Zone Forester W. E. Edwards of Napanee. The teacher at Ivanhoe is Miss Margaret Wright.

Only 16 schools participated out of 200 with only ten completing the competition.

As a result of the disinterest, it is not expected that the contest will be carried on next year.

The competition was originally planned to encourage schools to take an active interest in conservation and forestry problems, and the schools taking part this year were aware of the value of such a project.

Elinor Bernstein Gets Honor Award

Miss Elinor Bernstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Bernstein, George Street, was singularly honored at the University of Toronto, last Thursday.

Miss Bernstein, former managing editor of "The Varsity," university publication, was presented with a special award for her work while editor and other general efforts during her four years with the newspaper.

The honor award stated, "The Students Administrative Council of the University of Toronto has named Elinor Jane Bernstein for its honor award in recognition of her contribution to the undergraduate life of the university."

The presentation was made to Miss Bernstein by Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the university.

JONES—HIGH

White lilacs and white snapdragons, interspersed with ferns, formed a lovely setting on Saturday, May 22nd, in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, at 2:30 p.m., when the Rev. F. P. Murphy united in marriage, Gloria Joan High, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. High, to John Peter Jones, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Jones.

Miss Dorothy Grant, organist, provided the traditional wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Robert Lacy, who sang, "Ave Maria," "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother," and "Panis Angelicus."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her gown of white Chantilly lace over satin in ballerina-length, featuring a molded bodice with lace jacket having sheath-like sleeves pointed over the hands. A panel of white, accordion pleated nylon accented the front of the skirt. She wore a headdress of seed pearls and three-quarter length veil of nylon net, and carried a white Prayer Book created with pink rosebuds and white satin streamers.

Miss Shirley Elizabeth High, of Belleville, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, gowned in a ballerina-length dress of yellow nylon net over taffeta, with matching taffeta jacket. She wore a yellow headdress trimmed with pearls, yellow shoes, and yellow nylon wrist-length gloves. Her flowers were mauve lilacs and blue cornflowers.

Miss Beverley McCabe, of Belleville, was bridesmaid, wearing an ankle-length dress of coral nylon net over taffeta with lace jacket, orchid shoes, and headdress and matching nylon gloves in wrist-length. She carried a nosegay of mauve lilacs and blue cornflowers.

Little Sandra Louise High, of Belleville, sister of the bride, was flower girl, demure in her knee-length frock of pale green nylon net, with bandeau of mauve lilacs and blue cornflowers. She carried a tiny nosegay of the same.

Mr. Albert David Jones, of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Robert Hatfield and Mr. Earl Cousins, were ushers.

At the reception, which was held at Hotel Quinte, Belleville, the bride's grandmother, Mrs. E. High, received, wearing navy blue sheer, with white and navy accessories. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who also was gowned in navy blue sheer with white and navy accessories, with squirrel neck-piece. Both were corsages of white lilacs and pink rosebuds.

For travelling to New York, the bride donned a pale green suit with cocoa-brown accessories and corsage of toast-colored orchid.

Guests were present from Toronto, Sudbury, Toronto, Kingston and Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones will reside in Belleville, at 33 Burton Street.

Women's Study Guild Hears Fine Discourse on 'Germany'

The May meeting of the Women's Study Guild was held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. J. A. Buchanan, Dufferin Avenue, the topic of study being, "Germany."

During the business meeting, under the chairmanship of Mrs. A. D. Archibald, letters were read from the Italian boy, sponsored by the Guild under the "Save the Children Fund," and a thank-you letter for box of socks sent to the Unitarian Service committee for Korea.

An introductory worship service was led by Miss J. Tickell.

Mrs. Varcoe, who was in charge of the program arranged the vast topic of "Germany" in five parts, dealing herself with the first phase "Political."

"Unification of Germany is the desire of the people and also the professed aim of both the Russians and the Allies, but problems of methods have caused the accidental boundary in the middle of the city of Berlin to be continued all the years since the war.

"A Central Committee is still opposed by France. Where will a united Germany stand in the balance of power? Reparations and production restrictions and the right to re-arm are other major difficulties. Germany must be kept as a buffer state. Could a united armed buffer state be workable?

The young generation in West Germany are much concerned with cultural progress and scientific research.

POLITICAL SITUATION

The present political situation is geared to the personality of Adenauer, a man 78years of age. Will the situation survive in a successor? The solution would seem to be that Germany must join either E.D.C., or NATO.

The 1953 man of year, Conrad Adenauer, was dealt with more fully by Mrs. H. J. Fraser, in summing up, Mrs. Fraser said "Adenauer is held in universal respect. His genius is simplicity and common sense."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

CAN'T GET MONEY FROM HER INDEPENDENT HUSBAND

Miss Fairfax:

I am a divorced mother of two children.

The only reason I am divorced is because my husband told me he loved someone else. I still loved him.

Since our divorce, which was six months ago, I have come to doubt that what he told me was true, because he has been seen around town with a number of women and does not seem to be especially attached to any particular one. I believe now that he was just tired of the responsibility of a family, and wanted to be free of it all.

My problem is that he agreed to pay me a certain sum every week for the support of myself and our children, and he rarely does it. I don't know what to do, because I have no money of my own and my salaries are too small for me to live and go out to work.

Need help from someone, but don't know how to get it.

—Mrs. H.T.

Dear Mrs. H.T.:

Getting money from a divorced husband who has no sense of responsibility is a bitterly discouraging thing. You can apply to the courts, of course, but the kind of man you describe would probably have to be taken to court repeatedly.

I should think your best plan would be to make some arrangement to have your children cared for either by temporarily placing them in a home, or by having them cared for by a day nursery so that you could work during the day. I doubt if you are going to be able to make out any other way, unless you want to make a career of hounding your husband for money.

You might, before making the decision to hunt a job, go to a social welfare agency and see what can be done. You might also find out if there is a branch of the Legal Aid Society in your city and see what advice they might have for you. You can get this advice free, if you cannot afford to pay.

THEIR RUDENESS COST THEM THEIR BOY FRIENDS

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are two 16-year-old girls who like two boys and who both have had trouble with them.

My story, is that I told my boy friend, George, at a party that I didn't want him to walk me home that night or any other. But during the next few days I missed him so much that I realized I really did like him an awful lot.

My girl friend has liked Bob for a long time, but she got mad at him when she found out that he had paid some attention to another girl. Bob called her to apologize, but said he wanted to come over to her house and explain, but she wouldn't listen and slammed the phone down.

Now we both would like very much to know how we could get our boy friends back. We are very scared they don't want us, so please help us.

—J.C. and J.F.

Dear J.C. and J.F.:

Don't you think both of you have acted pretty childishly for your age? I would have expected girls of 16 to have more sense, also more manners. So far as I can see, nobody is to blame but yourselves for your troubles, and I would say there was good reason for thinking these boys might not care for any more of your company.

However, there's no harm in making a definite effort to find out, and so I suggest would be for each of you to sit down and write your boy friend a note, apologizing for your bad manners and say frankly that you hope they will overlook your rudeness and be friends with you again. This is a situation, I think, when it would be far better to come right out with it instead of trying to figure out some roundabout way of making up with the boys.

One thing especially that it would be well for you both to remember is that if you ever try to keep a boy on a tight leash and get mad if he pays the slightest attention to any other girl, you're going to lose him in the end anyway. And that goes, whether you're 16 or many years older.

PORTRAIT OF A HEROINE

Geneviève de Galard, "The Angel of Dien Bien Phu," is shown as she stepped from a plane at Hanoi after being flown out of the fallen fortress. Still clad in her army blouse and trousers, the gallant nurse smiled, but her face showed signs of strain from the ordeal through which she had passed. She was the only woman in the fortress at the time of its capture by the Viet Minh rebels and remained at her post treating the wounded. She was given a tremendous ovation when she returned to Paris. GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

SHOULD WE "RECALL" A PREVIOUS INTRODUCTION?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

There is a special introduction situation that always baffles me—and apparently it baffles others, too, for I've heard them say so. It's this: what to say when I am introduced to someone whom I distinctly remember having been introduced to before (even distinctly remember the occasion), but it is obvious that the person being introduced, does not remember me at all. What is the right thing to do—recall the previous introduction and mention the occasion?

—M.M.

No rule about this. It's the best idea, I think, to let the other person's expression and or reaction to the introduction be your guide as to what to do. If it is obvious that the person being introduced seems not to remember having met you before, it's usually the best social technique, I think, just to say "How do you do" (with the name added, if you wish), . and let it go at that.

However, if you really think there is any point in mentioning the previous introduction and the occasion, and if this seems a gracious and important thing to do, it's quite right to do it. But we should try to be very sure that we're not putting the other person in an awkward position, seeming to infer that he or she lacks social grace in not remembering the previous introduction.

SHE FOLLOWS HER PARENTS' TRAINING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother and father trained us always to say "Thank you" for all courtesies, big ones and small ones. They never let up on it, and so it has become a part of every one of us, subconsciously as well as consciously. The other day my cousin and I went to a wedding, and when the usher showed us to our places, I said "Thank you." My cousin didn't thank him, and later said to me, "I think that's carrying things too far—there was no reason to thank the usher." Did I make a mistake?

—Sheila M.

No, Ma'am! . . to say "Thank you" to the usher was a courteous thing for you to do. It is never a "mistake" to express appreciation of a courtesy. I wonder why so many people find it difficult to open their tight little lips to express appreciation . . and of course they are the ones who, like your cousin, find some strange satisfaction in criticizing people who believe in saying that pleasant, heart-lifting "Thank you." Your new fortuna indeed to have the heritage of your parents' training about this expression. . hold high the torch of their training!

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

DRESS ACCORDING TO TYPE

Some women are ever in a state of confusion when buying clothes. They shop for hours, maybe for days, and still don't know what to select. There are others who have a definite system. If they are the fluffy type they will gravitate to fussy clothes, with lots of trimming, plenty of ruffles and doodads. Others are never so happy as when they are smartly tailored.

These are days when simplicity rules the fashion world. Which is all to the good, since the commonest cause of dowdiness is overdressing or not dressing suitably for the occasion. If, when arraying yourself to go out, you are in doubt an ornament or decoration, take it off! Many an over-dressed woman would appear smart if she would eliminate those items that have no place in the sartorial picture. Too much costume jewelry may be. Or dresses so overdecorated that they overshadow the rest of the ensemble.

Observe the middle-aged woman more or less faded of appearance, who cannot accustom herself to the fact that she is no longer within the figure limit of her youth. She wears clothes that would be right for her granddaughter, bleaches or dyes her hair, applies make-up with a lavish hand and forces her poor feet into high heeled shoes that cause her to walk awkwardly. The more youthful she tries to look, the older she looks. She accents all the cruel ravages of time.

The woman who is blessed with fashion sense will present herself in a full length mirror, noting each detail of her get-up, deciding if each one contributes favorably to the ensemble. Frock, coat, hat, shoes, gloves, hand bag all should have a relationship to each other. Making oneself pictorial in the correct manner is a part-time occupation and a pleasant diversion. It cannot be done if one slops casually and hurriedly. One must be a student of line and color. Even more important is it to know one's good points and those which are not so good, to treat them as they should be treated—camouflaged or accented.

Inexpensive Cuts of Meat

By Mary Moore

Quote from Elizabeth K.'s letter (printed here on Monday): "I'd dearly love to cut my food expenses, especially, meat. You always say the cheaper cuts are just as good, but my experience has always been that they have so much fat that actually they are no cheaper than the more expensive cuts and involve the grave work of trimming off surplus fat. . admittedly I do find hamburger and stewing beef good value, but don't you think there's something in what I say?"

Yes I do think Elizabeth has a good argument, and because she was so earnest I did some careful meat buying and enquiring.

Some of you may remember that I was fooled when I bought two bargain sale sirloin steaks—red brand beef too—and one of them was tough. I immediately warned my sister who had the second steak (next slice from mine). She froze hers, but when she was ready to use it two days ago, thawed it, pierced it all over with prongs of cooking fork, and sprinkled it with meat tenderizer (as directed on jar), and let it stand all afternoon, then broiled it. It was tender and delicious.

My next step was with a short rib roast weighing 3 1-4 lbs. and costing 39c per lb. With Elizabeth K. in mind I pierced it with the ice pick and rubbed meat tenderizer into it, let it stand all afternoon, then roasted it for 1 hour and 40 minutes at 325 deg. Fahr. Result—the best beef flavor and tenderest meat one could ever hope for. Hot, it served five adequately. Later I made a meat and potato hash using cream as a moistener and a little extra pepper.

My neighbor Marg. went both of us one better. She bought rolled brisket at 35c per lb., weighing a little over 4 lbs. There have a family of three children but Paula is still under one year and not a great eater yet. So think in terms of an average family of two adults and two children.

Because Marg. was pressed for time she took the meat from the refrigerator, sprinkled it with the meat tenderizer, immediately put it in a cold oven, set the temperature control at 325 deg. Fahr. and roasted it for two hours. She says she had left her shopping until too late and that the wholes cuts had been taken, and that this piece of brisket was a little fatter and contained more gristle than she fancied. (Marg.'s mother had recommended brisket to her because of her favorable experience with it the previous week.)

On the second day Marg. ground some of the left over brisket, and made it up into a meat and macaroni and cheese dish. . For the third dinner she ground the remainder, added tomato soup to some macaroni and topped that with the ground meat. Marg. is a careful cook, but says that Paul gave her extra credit for those three inexpensive and delicious dinners.

I seem to be giving a commercial on meat tenderizer. That is not my strict intention. What I do intend to say is that with choosey buying and careful treatment you can buy inexpensive cuts of meat and have better flavor and tenderness, if you take advantage of all of the information and products at your finger tips.

. . . and another thing: even on our expensive steaks and roasts now, for flavor's sake I am making a practice of using the meat tenderizer willy-nilly.

Male Nurses Seen As Cure For Shortage

MONTREAL (CP) — A serious shortage of nurses in psychiatry and mental health can be cured by increased training of male nurses, Pearl Stiver, general secretary of the Canadian Nurses' Association, said Monday.

"The few male nurses we have had have been very satisfactory," Miss Stiver said in an interview.

"They have been particularly good, not only in psychiatric and mental health nursing, but also in industrial and public health work.

"I am sure with a little bit of encouragement, we could get more men to take training," she said.

Hospital schools of nursing in all provinces except New Brunswick and Newfoundland accepted male nurses.

Miss Stiver said there is one nurse in Canada for every 335 persons, making this country one of the best off in that respect.

LACK OF TRAINING

But she deplored a lack of training for nurses in psychiatric and mental health. Newfoundland was the only province where nurses take such training as part of their studies. Dr. Prince Edward Island some 52 per cent of nurses studied mental illness while in other provinces the figure dropped as low as seven or eight per cent.

"We are making great strides in mental health but there still seems to be a stigma attached to mental illness which might, in part, account for the present situation."

This would be one problem discussed at the annual convention of the Canadian Association of Nurses at Banff, Alta., June 7-11.

IODE Hears of Efforts to Promote Commonwealth Goodwill

By PAULINE KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Delegates to the national annual meeting of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire heard today of the order's efforts to promote Commonwealth goodwill.

Mrs. Grout, of Peterborough, Ont., convener of the Commonwealth and Empire committee, told of the progress of an Indian nurse studying in Canada under an IODE scholarship. The nurse, Miss Gnaneselvam David, a graduate of the Christian Medical College and Hospital of Vellore, India, has expressed deep appreciation of the welcome extended in Canada.

She is taking a post-graduate course in hospital administration at the University of Toronto School of Hygiene. Director of the school expects Miss David to "obtain a very satisfactory result in her final examinations."

TAKES PSYCHIATRIC COURSE

During the summer Miss David will take a course at the Psychiatric Hospital, Toronto. She expects to return to India as a special assistant in the new psychiatric department of Vellore Hospital.

Mrs. Grout also told of additional nursing text books which have been translated into Hindi for nurses studying in India. This is a special project of the IODE and $2,700 was donated by the Canadian order towards the printing program.

Mrs. Scott referred to the opening of St. Helena's school at Poona, India last year. Over a period of years the IODE has contributed nearly $30,000 to the school.

REPORTS ON MAGAZINE

A review of articles appearing in Echoes, national IODE magazine, was given by Mrs. Laurence Grout, Toronto, secretary of the Echoes committee.

Mrs. Grout noted the magazine's coverage of the Coronation and floods in Britain and Holland.

She said national consideration had been given to a suggestion of the provincial chapter of Ontario that a questionnaire be published to obtain the reaction of Echoes readers to the various featured columns and editorial policy generally. An analysis of replies from all parts of the country will be made in the magazine's summer issue.

Echoes, said Mrs. Scott, was rated by advertising agencies as one of the top 10 Canadian national magazines. It is circulated quarterly and has a circulation of more than 30,000 copies.

IODE Plans To Aid Korean Children

By PAULINE KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—A project to aid Korea was born Monday at the national annual meeting of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

A newly-created "Korea projects fund," will provide equipment and food to alleviate suffering. The IODE will concentrate on needy children, working through the "save the children" fund.

First objective is a $6,000 x-ray machine for a children's health centre in Pusan, Mrs. R. C. Lauder of Toronto, convener of services at home and abroad, proposed the idea in her report. She said recently the children's clinic has only had the use of a Swedish Red Cross machine a few hours each week.

Highlighting the country's distress, Mrs. Latimer said that the Korean ministry of health lists 1-300,000 active cases of tuberculosis, many of them children.

WELFARE NEGLECTED

She said the "save the children" fund is promoting child welfare because it is largely neglected in Korea. Widows are prohibited by law from re-marrying, and there is no government allowance for fatherless children, or relief of any kind.

Surplus from the IODE fund will be used for baby food, powdered milk, hospital supplies and nursery school apparatus.

Earlier, during a report on the IODE Empire and world affairs committee, convener Mrs. C. L. Brown of Hamilton, Ont., warned of apathy towards communism, saying it seemed to be paralyzing the nation.

Civil Marriages Before Judge, Magistrate Gain in Popularity

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — No wedding bells will ring for thousands of Canadian brides this year. They will have no elaborate trousseau or fancy church wedding.

These are the ones who choose the civil marriage, performed in a judge's chambers or magistrate's office.

The simple ceremony is free of ecclesiastical ties, requiring only the presentation of the marriage licence to the judge or magistrate, or in some provinces, the marriage commissioner.

IN FIVE PROVINCES

Civil marriage has been adopted by five provinces—Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

Last year, British Columbia had the highest rate of civil marriages —12½ per cent of the total number of marriages. Alberta had 8 per cent, Ontario and Manitoba 2½ per cent and Saskatchewan less than 1 per cent.

Ontario adopted civil marriage in 1950, after the four western provinces. In 1953, 1,520 of the 45,446 marriages in the province were civil ceremonies.

R. J. Cudney, Ontario's deputy provincial secretary, said in an interview that the province made the ceremony legal at the request of the churches.

The legislature made the ceremony legal in 1950. Since then more than 4,000 civil marriages have been performed.

SOME TAKE BOTH

Some Europeans, following the custom of the homeland, are married in civil ceremony, then go through the church ritual.

Under Ontario's Marriage Act, civil ceremonies may be performed only by county court judges and police magistrates between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

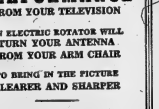
"We didn't want the Hollywood-type of marriage—getting the justice of the peace out of bed at midnight," said Mr. Cudney. "We wanted to maintain a certain amount of dignity."

The act states that no particular form of ceremony is required, except that in some part of the ceremony, in the presence of the judge or magistrate and the witnesses, each of the parties must declare:

"I do solemnly declare that I do not know of any lawful impediment why I, (John Doe) may not be joined in matrimony to (Mary Green)."

FORM OF CEREMONY

And each of the parties say to the other:



"I call upon these persons here present to witness that I (John Doe), do take thee (Mary Green) to be my lawful wedded wife (or husband)."

Then the judge or magistrate says:

"I (Henry Brown), judge (or magistrate) of (the county of York) by virtue of the powers vested in me by the Marriage Act, do hereby pronounce you (John Doe) and (Mary Green) to be husband and wife."

The ceremony costs $10, as set out in the act.

Mr. Cudney said the Ontario judges and magistrates were informed, following passage of the act, that any additional remarks during the ceremony would be permissible, such as: "Marriage is the voluntary union of one man to one woman with the exclusion of all others for life."

Five dollars was donated to the National Institute for the Blind. A good part of the time was taken up in discussion of the Tweedsmuir History Book which is being rushed to completion in time for the Moira Centennial celebration in August. Mrs. Gilbert Thompson and Mrs. Nelson Welsh are spending every available minute on the important work.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Carter, assisted by Mrs. Gordon Upton. The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Craig Platt.

LACE EMBROIDERY

Now the Belgian-born designer is back in the competitive field in a salon in Bruton street. The high-light of the show is hand-made lace embroidery worked on tulle.

The Queen's choice of lace gowns for wear on the world tour restored interest in a glamor fabric that had become a wallflower back number. A hand-produced coffee lace by Norbangle in a newsbird dress line is booked for New York display. With high neck, short sleeves coming almost to the elbow, clinging lines and flounced hem, the dress might have stepped from an early talkie film.

White Swiss embroidery was used in a court ball gown with crinoline skirt. Its gathered tulle bustline slotted with white satin to give the impression of a lover's knot. White organza embroidered with black floral sprays was used for a cocktail dress with bouffant skirt, cap sleeves and deep revers, tucked back to expose the throat. The skirt swung and rippled from a wide black taffeta sash.

SMART SUMMER SUITINGS

There were chic, simple suits and dresses for early fall wear but most outfits were styled for a royal summer season. Uncrushable linen and cotton outfits, smart enough to catch the eye at the big race meetings, were part of a boutique collection supplying off-the-peg clothes costing 26 to 37 pounds. Couture prices started above that and mounted to three figures.

Interesting innovations included uncrushable romaine silk used in a straight dress with a 1920 flapper look.

The most daring 1920 line was a V-necked, sleeveless daylight blue taffeta, smocked from shoulders to low on the hip. Skirt flounces swept outward from hip to short evening length and a wide satin sash encircled the hips at a slant below the waist. Only the length of the skirt differed much from yesterday's styles.

Dresses of Naughty Nineties, Gay Twenties Make Appeal

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Dresses with the romantic appeal of the naughty Nineties and the gay Twenties were swished through a London salon to tempt the 1954 glamor girl with a bank account.

A French court might have inspired a pink, grey and gold evening gown striped like French wallpaper and styled with camisole top outlined in ruffling, corselet waist, straight skirt and frilled hem.

The dress was part of the first independent show given in more than five years by Angele Delanghe, who resigned from London's top dress-making society to work as resident couturier in a store owned by Canada's Garfield Weston (Fortnum and Mason).

IODE Spent $192,571 On Educational Projects

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire spent a record total of $192,571 on educational projects in the last fiscal year.

As an organization primarily interested in "the welfare of our country," it is obvious that much of the activities of the IODE must be in the field of education, said Mrs. O. M. Martin of Toronto, educational secretary, in a report prepared for delivery today at the national meeting of the IODE here.

"Today, Canada is confronted with the task of how to provide a sufficiently broad general education to fit our children to be useful, patriotic citizens, and also equip them for a profession or a trade," she said.

At present, she said, there is a division of opinion about the road education should follow. But the IODE's reply is a highly organized program of student assistance.

EMPHASIS ON INDIVIDUAL

Much general educational assistance is given, but the emphasis is on the individual. Scholarships were given for advanced study in English, history, science, music, art, agriculture, nurse aid teacher training.

In all, 1,060 students were aided, 201 of whom came from homes of ex-service personnel.

The IODE library plan, which has just completed its first year, is working well, Mrs. Martin said. In 1953, 1,086 libraries were placed in schools.

A primary chapter in Quebec provided $300 for a school reference library; one in Alberta donated the $6,000 contents of its own chapter library to the municipality. In British Columbia, a chapter contributed $1,800 to the art centre of the University of British Columbia; another offered a bursary in theology for the first time.

During the year various chapters have sponsored art clubs, musicians and orchestras, concerts and lectures, tours for school children, special classes for blind, retarded and immigrant children, and many other services.

The national film convener, Mrs. D. W. McCibbon of Toronto, reported that the IODE pulled out all the stops in purchase and circulation of films covering the Coronation.

Titles such as "The Queen Is Crowned," "House of Windsor," "Coronation of Her Majesty," and "Canada at the Coronation," were among films in popular demand.

U.S. HOLDS ARMS CARRYING SHIP

Officers and crew members of the Swedish freighter Alfhem (above), which recently delivered a cargo of Communist arms to Guatemala, were questioned by American officials after the ship docked in Key West, Fla. The vessel delivered 2,000 tons of small arms and ammunition to Guatemala. The cargo was loaded at Stettin, Poland. A State Department spokesman said the big freighter was ordered to Key West by its owners. He added that the ship's personnel was co-operating with U.S. officials "on a voluntary basis." (Central Press Canadian).

LIBERALS LOSE

The motion by Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre) was a reflection of continuing CCF discontent over the fact that Parliament deals with divorces from Quebec and Newfoundland, the only provinces without divorce courts. Most CCF members want the divorces handled by the Exchequer Court.

PETITION GOES BACK

The vote sends the divorce petition of Joseph Delphis Guillaume Delorme of Montreal back to the Commons miscellaneous private bills committee for further study. Forty-nine other divorce bills, previously passed by the Senate, were passed.

Earlier this session the divorce application of a Montreal plumbing contractor, Lucien L'Esperance also was returned to the committee following CCF objections that it appeared to indicate attempted rape in order to obtain evidence of adultery. Mr. L'Esperance's lawyer later withdrew the bill.

Meanwhile Tuesday, the chairman of the Senate divorce committee which hears evidence in all divorce petitions defended the committee's procedure.

Senator A. W. Roebuck, the chairman, said differences of opinion between principals in a divorce case should not be used as a political football.

JUDICIAL FUNCTION

In a 2,000-word speech in the Senate, he said he has no quarrel with proposals to relieve Parliament of divorce work.

The task of passing judgmen ton divorce applications, however, was a judicial function "and should not be used or abused for political purposes."

Mentioning the L'Esperance case he quoted the Montreal Gazette as saying it "survived the hit-and-miss examination of the Senate divorce committee" and had been rushed through with many other divorce petitions.

Senator Roebuck said the criticism was "utterly untrue and cruelly unjust, and evidence of ignorance of what actually takes place which is reprehensible."

WITHDREW PETITION

The committee had agreed unanimously to recommend a divorce after hearing evidence for seven hours. Mr. L'Esperance had later withdrawn his petition because he feared publicity would prejudice his obtaining some plumbing contracts.

Apparently referring to recent Commons suggestions of perjured testimony before Senate divorce committees, he said there was no suggestion of perjury in the L'Esperance case.

In the Commons, evidence in the Delorme case was questioned by A.M. Nicholson (CCF—Macdonald).

"There are some investigators in these cases that have appeared frequently," he said, "and I cannot understand why a word given by investigators of this sort can be accepted and divorce esgranted."

RECORD NUMBER

The parliamentary divorce procedure to which CCF members object is expected to grant a record number of Quebec and Newfoundland divorces this session. The Senate divorce committee has recommended that Parliament dissolve 382 marriages—a figure which compares with the former record of 330 divorces granted by Parliament in 1949. Last session 282 divorces were granted.

The Senate committee acts like a court, hearing evidence in every case. In the minority of petitions which are contested, it hears evidence from both sides.

This session the committee rejected three of 462 petitions. Another 14 were withdrawn and 63 were not heard.

Moose Seen Near Tweed

NORTH BAY—To gain experience in preparation for expanding planting plans in future years, rangers from all sections of this district including Temagami and Huntsville, assisted in planting 8,000 trees on the open and semi-open sand plains at the provincial hatchery on Highway 63.

TWEED—First time moose have been seen so far south, a cow and a bull have been reported about six miles east of here. For several years a number of moose have congregated in North Grimsthorpe Township.

SUDBURY—Study of deer killed by wolves, carried on by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests with the co-operation of local trappers, has revealed that many other animals and birds feed on the carcasses. In one case, seven adult bald eagles were found feeding on one wolf kill.

RIDEAU — A fox turned fisherman is reported by Conservation Officer Percy Headlam. "Jumping back and forth from a stream is a rock," he says, "he would grab a sucker, crunch it in his mouth, lay it on the rock, then grab another, repeating the operation four times. He ran away with a fish in his mouth as I approached." He also reports finding a mink, which had killed a muskrat and trapped itself in a muskrat trap.

ALL AMERICAN CARS

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — Abe Moffat, who recently headed a delegation of Scottish miners on a three-week visit to Communist China, says every car he saw there was American. Moffat, president of the Scottish area of the National Union of Mine Workers, added: "I think it is a scandal to see the number of American cars in the streets of China and not a single British one."

Ouananiche on Fly And One in Boat Entirely Different

NORTH BAY.—This year, for the first time, the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests has declared a season on ouananiche. Only one fish per day, the first one caught, may be taken. There's good-humored irony in that phrase "may be taken" as it pertains to this particular fish.

For nearly 20 years, ever since the salmon were moved into Trout Lake from the Lac St. John area of Quebec, some North Bay fishermen have been trying to take that one fish in a day. It isn't that the fish will not strike. They strike heartily, heavily and in tackle-busting, heart-stopping fashion. But a ouananiche on a fly and one in the boat are two different things entirely.

Local fishermen discovered after years of trying that the only artificial bait that interested ouananiche were large streamer flies. Plugs, spinners, spoons, bugs and live bait held no attraction. A new fishing technique was found, however. How, no one seems to know.

About the only way anyone takes ouananiche is by trailing a fly at high speed right over the rolling fish, with the boat driven at about four times the speed used in trolling for lake trout. Most successful method seems to be trolling the fly directly in the slipstream of the propeller or slightly to one side.

When the fish hits, the combination of a fast-moving fly and a fish which seems to be headed in the other direction brings a shock which has the average angler wondering why he ever started the brawl which results. It has been estimated that for every five fish that strike, four are lost by even the best fishermen in this area. There are some who have fished Trout Lake for 10 years without having boated a ouananiche. Others have taken two, three or four in a day. They are the exceptions and would be the first to admit that luck played a large part in their success.

QUEEN INVITES SELASSIE

He is at present touring the United States and will visit Canada this week.

Different Sections of Ontario Cannot Live Alone Dunbar Tells Development Conference

OTTAWA (CP) — The Eastern Ontario Development Conference, called to consider ways of improving the area's economic position, has been told by Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar that different sections of the province cannot live alone.

"Eastern Ontario, central Ontario, western Ontario or northern Ontario cannot live alone," he said Tuesday night. "We must work together for equal opportunity for all."

Speaking for Premier Frost, who had previously been scheduled to address last night's dinner meeting, Mr. Dunbar said "strong forces for future expansion operating in the Canadian economy will have their greatest impact on Ontario . . .

"As one part of Ontario advances, so others should benefit from the movement. . . . If it is ahead of us, and in this eastern Ontario will have a large share. The people of this area are not a forgotten people."

SEES OTTAWA RIVERWAY

The conference, which he said has been a great opportunity to exchange views, also could mean that eastern Ontario would not let itself be neglected. As a result there would be many such regional conferences.

The St. Lawrence river seaway power project would benefit the whole province. Ontario's proposed natural gas pipeline from Alberta to Toronto and intermediate points would bring with them increased industrial activity which would take care of the increased population in Ontario, especially the eastern section.

Earlier Tuesday Mr. Dunbar and other Ontario cabinet ministers turned down conference proposals for a provincial sales tax to aid education and suggested a shifting of some municipal responsibilities to provincial and federal shoulders.

A committee of the three-day conference which ends today also suggested costs of such services as public welfare, relief, assistance to civil defence and highways be borne entirely out of revenue now in the hands of the provincial or federal government.

WANTS CONTROL

Mr. Dunbar said the provincial government "will assist the municipalities, but we want the municipalities to control the services."

Education Minister Dunlop declined to support conference committee proposals that the province finance local aid without federal control, for education. He suspected that if approached the federal government would reject such requests.

Farmers represented at the conference lamented the loss of the rural telephone line party system and urged that a farmer could ring directly one or all of his neighbors in case of emergency, without only the operator could do the ringing on the present system.

NO GENERAL CALL

Worse, operators recently had been told not to answer a general call on any line. The farmers hoped the province could do something about this, for "you no doubt all experienced the effectiveness of the telephone in rural areas in marshalling a brigade in case of fire, a lost child or other emergency."

Another committee accused certain utility corporations of being part of buying first from landowners willing to sell at any price, then using this as precedent in setting the price for land they needed, sometimes fortifying their case by passing out "misinformation or by using the threat of expropriation."

It urged the provincial government to take extreme care to avoid such "reprehensible" tactics in paying farmers for land expropriated or flooded by the St. Lawrence development.

Budget Approved

TORONTO (CP)—The metropolitan executive committee Tuesday approved a budget of $42,953,783 for metropolitan Toronto.

The metro tax rate remains to be set.

The executive committee also announced a proposed salary increase of $500 a year for 15 top metro officials and a $3,500 raise for the metro commissioner.

The salary increases, retroactive to Jan. 1, have yet to be ratified by the council.

Warden Started Career As Clerical Clerk in Prison

KINGSTON (CP) — Walter F. Johnstone, 49, newly - appointed warden of Kingston penitentiary, says that after 20 years of prison work there's not much difference between those inside the walls and the men outside.

The current, youthful-looking official who last week took over the $7,200-a-year job from retiring warden Richard Allen, started his career as a clerical worker in the British Columbia penitentiary.

For the last two years he has been superintendent of the penitentiary Staff College here.

"When I first decided to stay penitentiary work, it was more because I liked the persons I worked with rather than any great interest in the inmates," he said Tuesday in an interview. Then, somewhere along the line, I realized prisoners are people, not much different from you or I or anybody.

NO BORN CRIMINALS

"You dear persons say, 'why, he's a born criminal.' I ask you, could you walk across the road and become those words? Are swinging and tell me which ones are criminals?"

He said two of the first prisoners in his care at the British Columbia penitentiary were burglars.

"I'd grown up with them. We went to school together, played around. I didn't see them for some time and then they were in the penitentiary.

"It makes you wonder what turn it took that they did."

Two Civilian Workmen Killed On U.S. Sub

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. (AP)—A flash explosion early today killed two civilian workmen aboard the United States Navy submarine Sirago as she lay in drydock at the Portsmouth naval shipyard.

A sailor on fire - watch duty nearby was burned by the blast, but his condition was described as "not critical." Six other civilians working on the submarine were not injured.

Capt. Robert E. Cronin, commander of the shipyard, said the blast was in the submarine's main ballast tank, where the workmen were spraying a plastic substance.

The submarine did not appear heavily damaged, but a thorough survey was ordered immediately.

The blast on the Sirago was the second such disaster to strike on a U.S. Navy vessel since last Wednesday an explosion rocked the carrier Bennington off Quonset Point, R.I., and killed 100 men.

Prominent U.S. Criminologist Against Hanging

OTTAWA (CP)—Prof. Thorsten Sellin, prominent U.S. criminologist, said today corporal punishment "belongs to the days when a great ag's or to the tyrant's arsenal of weapons."

Whipping has no place in a modern democratic penal system, he told a House of Commons committee considering the penitentiary act.

He was chairman of the sociology department, University of Pennsylvania, and author of a book on the last scheduled witness to appear before the committee this session. The committee, which has met 24 times and heard representations from a number of individuals and organizations, will prepare an interim report before the parliamentary term is re-establish it at the next session.

The committee of 10 senators and 17 commons members is under the Criminal Code's sections on flogging, whipping and lotteries should be amended.

QUOTES FROM BOOK

Prof. Sellin, on Tuesday spoke in favor of abolition of capital punishment, quoted from the privy council's verdict in a took on corporal punishment to express his views.

The use of the lash, he said, "is the worst form of violence and doing should be paid for by physicians, not the culprit's hide."

Modern psychology had disproven the old belief that violence on a person can make him a better man. Actually, corporal punishment's effect was to make worse.

"And if a man is not made better by punishment, his future actions will hardly be governed by it. The deterrent effect of the lash is therefore absent."

Prof. Sellin said the evidence that whipping frightened non-criminals into obedience of the law. Too, corporal punishment left a mark on the executioner

"Moreover then, was the only purpose for corporal punishment. Executioners apparently were aware of this fact since they usually hid whipping inside prison walls.

Opposition Approves Bill To Care for Totally Disabled; Eight Provinces Now in Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Spokesmen for all opposition parties in the Commons Tuesday expressed general approval of a bill to set up federal-provincial allowances for the totally and permanently disabled.

But they were critical at some specific sections of Health Minister Martin's legislation as it came before members for second reading.

The measure, drafted after a federal-provincial conference, provides for maximum $40-a-month allowances between the ages of 18 and 65, when old age assistance begins. Payments are on a 50-50 basis between federal and provincial governments.

Mr. Martin said eight provinces —all except Quebec and Prince Edward Island—are ready to take advantage of the legislation and he is confident all provinces will want to enter it shortly.

MEANS TEST

He also said it is estimated between 25,000 and 35,000 persons will qualify for the allowances—on a means test basis—and that the over-all cost will be between $12,000,000 and $16,000,000 a year, provinces will provinces enter.

Dr. W. G. Hollins (CCF—Lanark), a Progressive Conservative critic on health and welfare matters, said his party hails the bill as a forward step.

However, he said he was sorry that the crux of the whole measure —the definition of "totally and permanently disabled"—had been left out of the measure.

Mr. Martin explained this was to be defined by regulations after a conference of health ministers. Generally, Mr. Martin said, allowances would be paid when applicants' disabilities could not be corrected in the foreseeable future and when they could not carry out the ordinary activities of daily living and self-care.

GUIDE

Dr. Blair suggested Ontario legislation in this respect might be a guide.

He suggested, too, that the ceilings on the earnings of persons getting allowances should be given thought. The totally disabled required special care, he said, by some persons.

Under the measure, the maximum annual earnings for recipients will also—including the allowances — $720 for single persons, $1,200 for ordinary married persons and $1,320 for a married person with a blind spouse.

Dr. Blair also expressed the hope that the provinces generally will arrange for free medical services and certain other services as now is done in Ontario for persons getting disabled payments under provincial legislation.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said his party supports the bill, but proposed several extensions, including the increase of the allowances to $60 a month.

Market for Comics Seen as Sign Of 'Foggy Moral Climate' of Today

'NORTH BAY (CP)—The youngest member of the central council of the United Church of Canada says the market for comics is one of the signs of the "foggy moral climate" of the present day.

Rev. Peter Gordon White, 34, of Toronto told the annual session of the United Church of Canada, Toronto Conference that 10,000,000 comic books are printed or distributed in Canada each year.

Another symptom was the recent vote taken by the Retail merchants' Association that 3,000 Ontario independent grocers favored selling bottled beer and wine in their stores.

Mr. White said: "The attitude seems to be that anything is permissible as long as it pays. We as Canadians are the get-rich-quick nation in the community of nations."

Always in the promoting business, he said every winner should be more pitied than envied. Prizes for work rewards look small beside jackpot winners.

He added that the advertising agency goes on telling the manufacturers that this "kind of moral germ warfare is justifiable."

"In gentler times it was the thing to go to church on Sunday. Now there is no stigma of not going to church."

Rev. E. Gilmour Smith of Timmins was elected president of the conference after three ballots.

Danube Again Becomes Main Waterway

VIENNA (Reuters)—The Danube once again is becoming an international waterway.

The latest move in the return to its pre-war status is the resumption of an Austrian-Hungarian freight service using ships of the two countries.

It now is possible for Austrian ships to sail from Regensburg, West Germany, to the Yugoslav-Bulgarian border, which is more than two-thirds of the navigable length of the Danube.

Before the Second World War the Danube was one of Europe's most important waterways. During the war it was used intensively by the Germans to take pressure from their much-bombed railways.

After the war Russian restrictions made traffic almost impossible, especially for Austrian ships, which were also in danger of being seized as "former German assets."

CUT BACK CREST

With the passing of time, the tremendous force of rushing water has gradually cut back the natural crestline of the falls—1,300 feet in 275 years—and created an uneven flow along the rim of the cataract. Under the 1950 Niagara Diversion Treaty of 1950, Canada and U.S. launched a program of remedial work which will eventually distribute Niagara's river waters so as to produce an even, constant crest and to regulate effectively the use of water power production.

The major phase of the project will be construction of a 1,550-foot-long rubble-fill dam on the Canadian side of the river, 250 feet downstream from the present crest of Mr. The dam, containing 13 control gates, will be built by Peter Kiewit Canadian Vickers Ltd., of Montreal.

CONTROL WATER

The dam will control the water level in the Chippawa-Grass Island pool area, the site of new intake works for both U.S. and Canadian power developments. It will also be able to increase the water discharge over the falls from 50,000 to 100,000 cubic feet a second if required by stipulated by the treaty.

Workers now are erecting coffer dams preparatory to construction of the 13-gate control dam.

To achieve an uneven crestline and the desired flow distribution, two areas of excavation are planned on the flanks of Horse-shoe falls. This will be the most spectacular phase of the project as it will be necessary to remove the water from sections of river bed where it flows fairly swiftly.

COFFER DAMS

Huge coffer dams will be erected first on the Goat Island flank and then on the Canadian side. Hundreds of feet of the Horseshoe falls will be bared during the work. A total of 24,000 cubic yards of rock will be excavated from Goat Island and 40,000 cubic yards from the Canadian side.

A start on the Canadian work on the U.S. side will be made this summer.

To eliminate incidental flows over the extremities of the crests, and to permit an unbroken presentation of water to flow over the precipice, landscaped fills will be added to the ends of the Horseshoe falls.

Deterioration of the falls was accentuated during the last 25 vertically.

56 Toronto Firms To Move June 26 To New Terminal

TORONTO (CP) — Fifty-six wholesale and allied firms will move the week-end of June 26 to the downtown Toronto to the new 54,000,000 Ontario Food Terminal in suburban Etobicoke township.

Agriculture department officials say they expect the terminal will be open for business July 1.

The terminal, which is described as the largest single commercial real estate transfer in Toronto's history.

40-Hour Week Opposed By W. Germany

BONN (Reuters) — A campaign to introduce a maximum of only a 40-hour work week is being strenuously opposed by the government and employers here.

Union leaders want a 40-hour week as a first step to cut the 48 hours most workers now put in.

The newspaper Industriekurier, which reflects the view of Ruhr industry, described the 40-hour week as "an American institution which West Germany should not import."

"The 40-hour week would mean lower production, a decrease of the national income and a lowering of the standard of living," said the paper. "Only a people which stupefied in the same way as those in America or those of some other European countries.

A similar view was expressed by the Federation of German Employers' Associations. "We can-not," it declared, "make up for a reduction in working time by an increase in production as long as there is no beneficial employment of our plants lags far behind other European and overseas economies."

$17,500,000 Face-Lifting Job Will Provide Niagara Falls With an Unbroken Crestline

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— A $17,500,000 engineering program to make Niagara Falls even more beautiful was officially launched today by civic leaders from Canada and the United States.

The job will take four years and some half-a-million engineering feats on the lip of the precipice. By 1958 man will have improved on nature's work of making the falls one of the world's most spectacular sights.

The joint undertaking was to start with an official ground-breaking ceremony at Goat island on the American side of the Niagara river. A ground-breaking ceremony on the mainland on the Canadian side of the river was also scheduled.

Actual construction got under way last December by the Ontario hydro-electric power commission and the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

CCF to Oppose Any Increase In Tariff Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF Leader Coldwell said Tuesday night that his party will oppose any government move to increase the preferential tariff rate on woollen textiles imported from the United Kingdom.

The government should adopt policies which would redirect Canadian trade from the United States to the United Kingdom instead of taking measures to reduce trade with U.K.

Mr. Coldwell, in a speech prepared for delivery on the party's political free-time series, The Nation's Business, said the government has asked the tariff board to study the impact of preferential tariffs on woollen textiles imported from the U.K.

"This announcement can have only one meaning—that the government is considering increasing the preferential tariff on this commodity imported from Great Britain," he said. "Let me immediately say that if this were done the CCF would be strongly opposed to it."

years. One of the most serious erosion breaks occurred Jan. 17, 1954, when it was swept away by an ice jam.

On Sept. 21, 1946 a slide of an estimated 185,000 tons of rock crashed from the lip of the American Fall.

Key to the project has been a hydraulic scale model of the falls built by Ontario Hydro at Islington, a Toronto suburb. With the model engineers were able to simulate any given river flow—past present or future—and observe, in miniature, were inserted in the model at any desired point.

The hydro model is 35 feet long, 37 feet wide and approximately four feet high. It was built to a scale of 250 feet to one foot horizontally and 50 feet to one foot vertically.

Layman Says Church Members Should Assist Their Ministers

TORONTO (CP)—A lay member of the Presbyterian Church yesterday asked parishioners to dip into their pockets to help finance their ministers so they can receive comfortable in their old age.

Mr. Hamilton Morgan, a member of the home mission board, told laymen at the closing session of the Presbyterian pre-Assembly Congress the minister's vocation is a "forgotten profession."

He said he knows of a 50-year-old Toronto minister who would like to retire now after 35 years' service but can't afford to.

"If he can't, our young living in manses for almost 40 years before they can own their own, will do to provide a roof over the heads of him and his wife. He will not be a tent. He will build just about place him in the breadline."

TO RAISE FUNDS

The church this year plans to spend $20,000 more than last year's expenditure to augment the ministry's stipend of $2,600 a year to its ministers. Mr. Hamilton said. But this meant more than $300,000 would be taken from the general budget. It would be difficult to increase ministers' salaries.

"I am convinced that if laymen could organize, they would undertake the $90,000 with ease," he said.

The laymen considered a check-off system as one means of increasing the pension plan. The resolution may be submitted to the 80th General Assembly in June. It begins its 10-day sessions tonight. More than 200 church commissioners from across Canada will elect a moderator to succeed Dr. W. A. Cameron of Toronto.

MINISTER PROBLEM

The problem of the "dominee-in-law" minister was discussed by delegates when Rev. Louis H. Berger of Hamilton said, "and there are such ministers."

George Beattie of Toronto said any minister permitting ministers to dominate and act without consideration of the session and elders should resign in a body for failing to exercise its duty to the congregation and to the parent church.

Rev. Nicholas Novak of Welland commented: "We should realize that we are human and have our faults and failings. The older and wiser members of the session should pray that expenditure is made on the church's comings and should tell the ministers that they were praying for him."

Rev. Neil Miller, Toronto secretary of the church stewardship and budget committee, said Presbyterian ministers are the worst enemies of church fund-raising committees.

"Our ministers seem to believe they are in the church to preach the gospel . . . and protect the pocket-books of their parishioners."

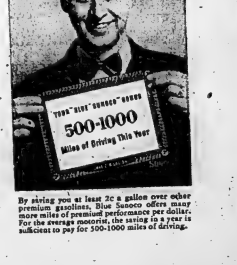
REGULAR GAS PRICE

ONE GRADE—ONE PRICE —ONE QUALITY

For many years, Blue Sunoco has been one of Canada's leading high-test premium quality gasolines, selling at the same price as other premium brands.



Now, with the completion of Sun Oil Company's new refinery at Sarnia, Ontario, Blue Sunoco is—for the first time—100% Canadian made.

The fact, plus savings on storage, transportation and distributing facilities—resulting from the policy of "one grade only"—now enables it profitably to sell Blue Sunoco at "regular" gas price.

You now buy the same top-quality product at a saving of at least 2c a gallon over other premium gasolines.

WORLD'S MOST MODERN REFINERY

Now "on stream," producing high-test Blue Sunoco, this new refinery at Sarnia is the most modern of its type in the world. It brings to a new peak of efficiency the famous catalytic refining process, pioneered by Sun Oil Company. Blue Sunoco made in this refinery is carried by pipeline to Toronto and intermediate points.

By saving you at least 2c a gallon over other premium gasolines, Blue Sunoco offers many more miles of premium performance per dollar. For the average motorist, the saving in a year is sufficient to pay for 500-1000 miles of driving.

Douglas, Burkemo Will Lead Yankee Golfers

TORONTO / (CP)—A couple of hot United States golfers will lead a U.S. team into Toronto Monday to meet the top seven Canadian professionals in an international golf tournament for the Hopkins Trophy.

Heading the invading contingent will be Dave Douglas, current Canadian open champion, and Walter Burkemo, who won the Professional Golfers' Association tournament in the U.S. last year. They will be bolstered by such notables as par-busting Ed (Porky) Oliver, a fellow who seems to take to the courses in this country, and Lew Worsham, former U.S. open champion.

The visitors will be slight favorites to take this third annual tournament, to be held at Mississauga Golf and Country Club in nearby Port Credit June 9, 10, 11 and 12.

With them will be Chandler Harper, the man who had his heart out to accept the $25,000 first-place prize in the Tam O'Shanter tournament at Chicago last year, only to see Worsham sink an incredible 140-yard wedge shot on the 18th green. Harper took second money in the tournament, the richest in the world.

CANADIAN PLAYERS

Against them will be Stan Leonard of Vancouver, a member of the first two Canadian teams and the big winner, to date, against the visitors; Bobby Locke of South Africa, one of the world's greatest golfers who will play as an honorary member of the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association; Gord Brydson, Toronto; Lionel Fletcher of Edmonton and Jules Huot of Montreal.

The Canadians threw a scare into the visitors last year when they were tied after two days' play, but Americans won in the third and final round.

Winner's Share Is $74,934.84

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The record-breaking 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Monday produced a record payoff Tuesday night, but winner Bill Vukovich got considerably less than he did last year.

Vukovich picked up $74,934.84—to be shared, of course, with owner Howard Keck and crew members—at the annual victory dinner. When he won a year ago his prize money totalled $89,496.96.

Jimmy Bryan got $33,880.84 for second place, Jack McGrath won $26,909.84 for third, Troy Ruttman $17,709.84 for fourth and Mike Nazaruk $10,854.84 for fifth.

'Boss' Gets Lowest Pay

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Jack Kramer's tournament-style international tennis tour that opened last Saturday was the best ever in calibre of play, Kramer says, but financially, "well, I wound up the lowest-paid member of my entire organization."

Figures that Kramer submitted today on his tour showed Richard Gonzales won $39,425, Pancho Segura $35,125, Frank Sedgman $31,925, Don Budge $12,050 and Kramer $3,170.

820 Athletes To Attend Games

VANCOUVER. (CP)—A total of 820 athletes are scheduled to come here for the British Empire Games July 30 to Aug. 7.

At the 1930 games in Hamilton Ont., there were 400 athletes representing 11 nations. The 1950 games in Auckland, N.Z., brought out 600 athletes from 13 countries.

Sport in Brief

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Fred Hume, head of Vancouver's police commission, said Tuesday he will ask police chief Walter Mulligan why he refused to give constable Wally Strang time off to coach Canada's track and field entry in the British Empire Games.

Strang said the job he was earmarked for had gone to Lee Miller of Halifax.

Chief Mulligan later confirmed he had rejected the request for Strang's services because "someone in the athletic set-up" wanted services for five weeks prior to the games.

"I couldn't ask the citizens of Vancouver to release a policeman for five weeks with pay—that's about $450 — especially while I'm looking for a policeman to help out during the games.

"Strang is a good policeman and athlete. There are lots of others in the same position whom I understand will also be given time off. It's an unfortunate situation."

NEW YORK (AP) — The Plymouth Argyle soccer club of the English Football Association's second division completed its American tour Tuesday night with a 1-0 victory over the New York All-Stars in a close, well-played game in the Ebbetts Field.

In its 10-game tour, Plymouth won eight games and lost two. Both losses were to Borussia of Dortmund, West Germany, another touring team.

LONDON (AP)—Gordon Hazell of England Tuesday night scored an upset 10-round decision over Thierio Mitri, Italy's ex-welter crowned European middleweight champion, in a close non-title bout in White City Stadium.

Each weighed in under the 161-pound stipulated limit but over the 160 pound division limit.

Mitri was the European title by knocking out England's Randy Turpin with two punches in Rome, May 2.

MANCHESTER (AP)—Maureen Connolly flew in Tuesday from France for her first taste of British tennis competition and her first work on grass courts this year, and hardly gave the spectators time to see her in winning two matches in the northern lawn tennis championships.

The 19-year-old San Diego, Cal., star who will defend her Wimbledon title starting June 21, needed only 19 minutes to dispose of Mrs. L. G. Walter of Belgium 6-0, 6-0. She didn't take much more time in beating Britain's Pat Hird 6-1, 6-3.

Ken Rosewall, Australia's second-ranked player, also won two matches to reach the fourth round of men's singles.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Veteran lefthander Joe Page Tuesday was given his unconditional release by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Page, a 36-year-old former ace Yankee relief pitcher, was put on the waiver list last Friday. None of the 15 other major league clubs claimed him.

He pitched in seven games this season, winning none, and losing none, giving up 16 hits in 9 2-3 innings.

More Fun Watching Black Bass Guarding Nest Than Taking Them

PICKERING—This is the story of one black bass which, in 1953, was guarding a nest in Duffin's Creek just beneath the bridge on what is known as Riverside. He will not be back this year. Since the same thing may happen in anyone of a thousand places in Ontario in 1954, maybe someone will take heed.

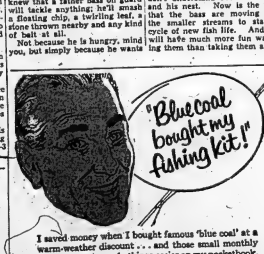
Duffin's Creek is not regarded as a particularly good black bass stream. Each spring, when the ice goes out, the creek floods badly. Then, around May 1, when the speckled trout season opens, boys pick up one or two small squaretails. Higher up the creek, the speckled trout fishing ranges from fair to pretty good.

But to come back to that bass. In common with millions of other fish of the same variety, he moved into the stream last year and cleaned off a bed down to fine gravel. His female companion, who wasn't seen, deposited her eggs thereon; the male bass fertilized them and then took up 24-hour guard duty.

The young lads who roam Duffin's Creek spotted him. Few of them realized he was (a) a black bass, (b) guarding a nest. After all, there's a heavy run of suckers in the creek around Easter time and, in a very young boy, a big fish is a big fish. This particular bass, according to the ichthyological experts, must have weighed about three pounds.

STOPPED TO WATCH FISH

Every day, the older folk who crossed the bridge to and from the village stopped to watch the father fish. Most, not all, of them knew that a father bass on guard will tackle anything; he'll smash a floating chip, a twirling leaf, a stone thrown nearby and any kind of bait at all.



Not because he is hungry, mind you, but simply because he wants to protect the eggs which later turn into tiny bass and, later, still, larger bass. If a perch, rock bass, sunfish or any other variety come near that nest the parent bass rushed at them, ate them if he could but, in any case, chased them away.

Perhaps it was inevitable. Perhaps the boy just didn't understand. But one day in early June an excited youngster rushed down Riverside displaying the largest fish he had ever caught. The parent bass had snapped madly, incautiously, furiously at the bait which the youngster had dropped close to the nest.

Sadly, a deputy game warden who lived in the area told the crying boy that he had broken the law. That was serious enough, so far as it went. But the warden pointed out that an ordinary two-pound black bass would distribute about 15,000 eggs and that in this particular case the loss would be very heavy since the pugnacious parent was no longer there to protect his young. It was even worse.

The Department of Lands and Forests operates fish hatcheries throughout the province. It has bass ponds in which fish are raised to the point where they are big enough to take care of themselves. And all the experts tell you that hatcheries are no substitute for nature and that the parent bass, if left alone, does a better job of raising fish than all the hatcheries can do.

Of course the boy promised that he would never do it again and he probably won't But there are a lot of boys — and girls—and adults, too who still don't understand about the bass and its nest. Now is the time that the bass are moving into the smaller streams to start a cycle of new fish life. And you will have much more fun watching them than taking them away!

Argos Sign Utah Quarter, Kentucky Star

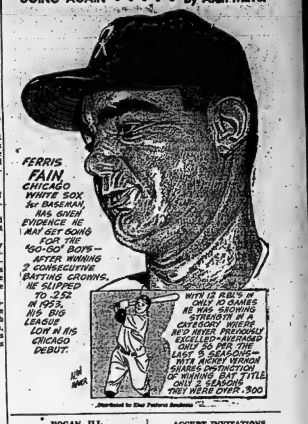
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Uniformity of Utah's passing quarterbacks, Don Rydalch, said Tuesday he has signed a contract to play professional football with Toronto Argonauts.

Rydalch led U.S. players last season in percentage of passes completed. He was drafted by the Pittsburgh Steelers, but passed that bid for the Canadian contract.

In Toronto, coach Frank Clair of Argos was surprised at the announcement.

"He wrote me a fine letter and asked me to keep his signing quiet for a few days," Clair said.

But the Argo coach was happy to know it was official with Rydalch, who led Utah to three successive Skyline conference titles and was named all - conference quarterback for two successive years.



Argos also announced the signing of centre Tom Adkins from the University of Kentucky, the 11th import to be signed this season, and of holdovers Ulysses Curtis and Billy Bass, both backs. Argos now have 27 players signed.

Very Special Policemen
The safety of Canada—of our young people—of our way of life . . . this is the first duty of Canada's servicemen. In a sense, all Canada's Soldiers are international policemen for their main task is to help us keep the peace.
The job of "keeping the peace", of deterring aggression, is a huge one. Geared for this operation, the Canadian Army has already made major contributions in Korea and in Europe.
But, we must not relax our defences! There is still a vital need to keep our Army strong and able to act. This means that there is a continuing need for good men. In the Army, intelligent and ambitious young men will find every opportunity to build careers for themselves through excellent schooling and training; almost unlimited opportunities for advancement; the challenges of travel and adventure; the financial stability of good pay and pensions.
Sergeant Frank Barton is a member of the Canadian Forces Special Force responsible for "keep and order" in the Army's local education, a firmness of sports and amateur activities and special physical standards (at least 5 feet, 7 inches in height) are necessary to join this select group of soldiers. But Sergeant Barton, like other service families, is first and foremost a proud soldier devoted to the safety of Canada and everyone here is one small facet of the most wonderful of different specialists who form our great Army team.

"FREEN" MAKES COMEBACK!

Primo Carnera, huge Italiisio, who wore the world heavyweight championship belt about his equatorial region some time ago, is one of sportdom's famous greats who has made a tremendous comeback up the financial trail.

"De Freeze," who can wear landing barges for shoes, and can close his fist after tacking a baseball between each finger, made a cool million when he was in the boxing spotlight. But the leeches and the bloodsuckers, who clung to him like the well-known ivy to the old garden wall, termited the roll until Primo went back to Italia broken in heart and practically broken in pocket.

The story goes that young Primo wore size twelve baby shoes. He guzzled his first baby food from a twelve-quart pail. He was the "largest bambino" that ever spluttered over spaghetti.

Carnera ran away from home as a youngster and eventually joined a small circus in Italy. He did strong-man exhibitions, wrestled all comers, and tossed baby elephants into box cars when the circus was ready to move.

One night the leading foreman, standing in the box car, felt that Freem wasn't lifting with sufficient speed. He kicked Freem in the face, smashing his nose. Freem chased the man but failed to catch him. In his rage he returned to the circus, picked up a wagon tongue and battered everything in sight to pieces.

The gendarmes failed to locate Freem because he never stopped until he reached France, where he landed a job in a brickyard, doing a bit of this and some of that. One day a horse that did the hauling took sick and didn't show up for work. So Freem proceeded to pinch-hit for the nag.

The load help strung the tile on ropes and hung the ropes around Carnera's neck and over his shoulders. Then they cried "Giddy-up" and Freem did what the horse was supposed to do—hauled the tile to the exit gate for weighing, etc.

Paul Journee, French heavyweight, happened along one day and saw Freem at work. He was impressed with his size and strength and decided he might be converted into a pugilist. That was the start of Carnera's boxing career.

He knocked over a few stumblebums and in 1928 tangled twice with Tuffy Stribling. He won one and lost the other on a foul. Came another flock of palookas and the leeches decided the huge Italiano was ready for the prize ring stalwarts and some rich pinching.

His top earning was $122,000 when he lost the title to Max Baer. He got $16,000 when he won it from Jack Sharkey in 1933. In 1935 he was paid $65,000 for being knocked out by Joe Louis.

But the bloodsuckers got in their deadly work. Out of an estimated million dollar earnings, the sadly disillusioned Primo went sorrowfully back to his beloved Italy with less than $30,000 in his huge jeans.

A few years ago he decided to take up wrestling. Again he came to the United States. But this was not the dumb ignorant brick-yard "horse" that came over before. Freem had learned his lesson. He became a sensation in the wrestling game and today is reported to be nearing that fabulous million-dollar mark again. And Freem is singing to it.

Carnera will be here Friday night as the main attraction in the wrestling card at Memorial Arena. He tackles the villainous Tiny Mills, in the main bout, and that should be one for the books. Paul Baillargeon, massive French Canadian, said to be the strongest man in Canada, meets Hans Kruskamp in the semi-final with Danny O'Shocker tangling with Pat Flanagan in the curtain raiser.

'Bums' Blank Milwaukee 2-0; Senators, Orioles Beaten As Phils Blast Boston Sox 16-6

By Ben Fhlegar
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Buhl's efforts to duplicate his fine first year with the Milwaukee Braves appear to be stymied. The tall, fastballing right-hander hasn't been able to buy a victory this spring.

He lost his fourth straight Tuesday night, 2-0 to Brooklyn as the Dodgers continued their 1953 habit of being the only visiting club to whitewash Milwaukee. The Braves defeat cut the Braves' first place margin to one percentage point over Brooklyn.

Buhl came out of the minors and the army last year to post a 13-8 record with the re-located Braves. During the winter he blazed through Caribbean competition the tune of 14 and 3.

But with the start of the regular season his magic disappeared. He didn't win any games and has been lifted every time.

RAINED OUT

The Milwaukee-Brooklyn game was the only one in the National League Tuesday as rain brought postponements of St. Louis at Chicago and New York at Pittsburgh.

In the American League Philadelphia whipped Boston 16-6, New York defeated Washington 6-3 and Detroit edged Cleveland 2-1 in three more fell to last place.

Billy Consolo opened the two Brook-lyn runs. He walked in the third inning and moved around on a sacrifice by Don Zimmer and a single by Pee Wee Reese. In the fifth he singled, was again moved to second by Meyer and scored on a single by Junior Gilliam.

PHILS DRIVE IN

Just when the Red Sox thought they were on the way with a three-game winning streak the lowly Philadelphia Athletics came unleashed and battered the Bostonians all over Fenway Park. Gus Zernial, Eddie Joost, Bob Hoggers and drove in six runs. Pitcher Bob Trice helped in the fun with a home run and double in winning his fifth game.

Bob Grim, the only rookie pitcher to stick with the Yankees this season, held Washington helpless through the last five innings as he scored his fifth success. Hank Bauer had a perfect afternoon, collecting three walks, a home run and a single and driving in four runs.

Carter Favored Over Riley

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Ex-lightweight champion Jimmy Carter of New York was favored to overcome the handicap of chillin' Charley Riley in their scheduled 10-round bout at the St. Louis Arena tonight.

Carter is expected to weigh 135 pounds and Riley 131.

The former champion is primed for the fight. He came here after five weeks of training for what he thought was a return shot at the lightweight crown with Kid Gavilan. Marco. DeMarco's illness forced a postponement and Carter agreed to meet Riley instead. The fight will be televised (CBS at 10 p.m. EDT).

London Whips Panthers 16-4; Share Top Spot

By the Canadian Press

Kitchener Panthers went on a spree Tuesday night, scoring more against London Majors in nine innings than they totalled in the first seven games of the season.

But their 14 runs weren't enough and as a result the Panthers are still in the cellar of the senior Intercounty Baseball League and are still winless in eight starts.

The Majors, led by playing manager Frank Colman's bases-loaded home run, edged the Panthers 16-14 in Kitchener.

The only other league game was a hard-fought affair six innings in Galt where the home-town Terriers were leading Brantford Red Sox 5-4.

SHARE FIRST

As a result of Tuesday night's action London and Galt share first place in the league, each with six victories and two defeats.

The Panthers, last year's Intercounty champions who scored only 11 runs in their first seven games combined, gave the Majors a tough battle, and even led 10-8 in the seventh inning after coming from behind an earlier deficit. But a six-run rally in the eighth inning during which seven batters hit four-run homer, just about wrapped it up for London.

Each side used three pitchers. Roy McKay, the third on the mound for the Majors, was the winner, evening his record at 1-1. Jim Hisner, Kitchener starter took the loss, his first against no victories.

Don Cooper, London third baseman who hit a triple and knocked in two runs, broke his shoulder in the seventh inning when he crashed into the fence while chasing a foul ball.

Slug-Happy National League Staging One of Greatest Races in History

By Gayle Talbot

NEW YORK (AP) — Warren Giles, president of the National League, did not pay much attention when he stated some three months ago in Florida that his league was preparing to put on maybe the greatest race ever seen.

But it begins to look as though President Giles was being conservative, or at least clairvoyant. Close as a third of the schedule has been played and the National League shows no signs at all of becoming unstuck.

A year ago at this stage, the senior circuit had settled into the standing it was destined to maintain right to the end of the season, with only the margins between the eight clubs widening gradually until toward the close there was no semblance of a contest.

This year's NL ball clubs are an unusually even lot of ball clubs, with nothing much in mind except to play each other nitty, and with the eastern group just setting forth on another tour of the western badlands, almost anything might happen in a hurry.

MORE CONTENDERS

The overall picture, though, is clear. Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs, already hopelessly out of race at this time a year ago, have rallied under new managers, Birdie Tebbetts and Stan Hack, to throw the league show about as heated a scramble as even Giles could have hoped for. The seven-place Cubs are only a single game below the .500 mark. By comparison the fifth-place Washington Senators of the American League are three full games under .500 figures.

A year ago New York Giants already were showing clear signs of becoming the aimless crew which was to wind up in fifth place, 35 games behind the Dodgers. Now, with Willie Mays stepping it up again in centrefield after two seasons in the army, they look as though they might be in the fight all the way.

Milwaukee has proved that it could give up two such pitchers as Johnny Antonelli and Max Surkont and still have the most solid staff in the league. The Dodgers are proving that it is a discouraging job to try to whip a club which numbers three such shining stars as Duke Snider, Gil Hodges and Roy Campanella. St. Louis is an improved ball club and still has Stan Musial. Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons still are pitching for the Phillies.

The American League is enjoying some stirring times, itself, but strictly on a three-team basis. In the other league they would call that only a small skirmish.

Cockell Decisions Matthews, Eager for Shot at Marciano

LONDON (AP) — Don Cockell, British heavyweight champion who makes a specialty of "defeating" American, flies to New York in two weeks to scout the Rocky Marciano-Roland Charles fight but he hopes it won't be last he'll see of Rocky in a fight ring.

After his nuptuous against Roland LaStarza in March and Harry Matthews Tuesday night, Cockell is eager to take a shot at Rocky and the world heavyweight crown. Tuesday night's victory was more impressive than the Briton's split decision over Matthews last August in Seattle.

Whether the fat British champion gets a chance in September either here or in the United States will have to be worked out later—that is assuming Marciano takes Charles.

SID PROJECT GOOD

But one thing is sure, Cockell did himself and his Marciano project a lot of good in taking the 10-round decision from Matthews before a crowd of 33,000 at White City Stadium.

The one-time Battersea black-smith was awarded the decision by referee Jack Hart after the three low blows and a warning for hitting with his elbows. The referee is the only official in Britain who is prohibited from revealing his score card.

Practically everyone agreed Cockell won with a distinct but not an overwhelming edge, the Associated Press score card had the Britian winning five rounds, Matthews four and one even.

Midway of the scrap, Cockell, who weighed 210½ to Matthews' 195½, switched his attack from the body to the head and his punches scored effectively.

But Don couldn't fill the sixth-um's 54,000 seats. Jack Solomons said he lost about $14,000 on the promotion. The gate was unofficially estimated at $150,000 but of that the British government got one-third in taxes. Cockell and Matthews received an estimated little more than $25,000 each.

New Zealand Girl Track Star Heavy Favorite

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — It wouldn't be anyone in this country if 22-year-old Yvette Williams stole everything but the scoreboard at the July 30-Aug. 7 British Empire Games at Vancouver. The pretty Auckland secretary is called to win three titles—broad jump, discus and shot put.

Yvette, world and Olympic broad jump champion, has made a shambles of New Zealand records in the three events she has been entered at Vancouver and it is probable she will be the most familiar figure on the winner's rostrum. She also is entered in the 80-metre hurdles.

RANKED FIRST

Yvette is ranked No. 1 of the 58-member New Zealand games team, ahead of 30-year-old Murray Halberg, the flaxen-haired miler who flashed into international prominence last February with a 4:04.4 mile on a grass track here. Halberg, England's Roger Bannister and Australia's John Landy are the big three whom officials hope will make the mile the highlight of the games.

Included on the team are two defending Games champions—featherweight wrestler John Arnitt and Harold Cowpern, winner of the heavyweight weight-lifting title. But the hopes of New Zealand sportsmen are pinned on the showing of Miss Williams who set a world broad jump record of 20 feet 7¼ inches last February.

Yvette, winner of the Olympic broad jump at Helsinki in 1952, has been in continuous training winter and summer for years.

'King Maple', 'Queen's Own' Meet in Plate

TORONTO (CP) — The much-postponed meeting of King Maple and Queen's Own, hot winter-book favorites, was finally set Tuesday, postponed until the running of the classic June 12.

The final test for Canada's three-year-olds before the 85th running of the Plate will be made today with 21 horses lined up for the mile-and-70-yard race. It will be raced in two divisions with King Maple in the first and Queen's Own in the second.

The draw for the trials was held Tuesday and King Maple, 8-to-5 winter book favorite and voted "Canada's Horse of the Year" in 1953, drew No. 1 post position in the first trial, Queen's Own, owned by Thomson Montalbetti E F Taylor, drew No. 7 post position in the second trial

Each will run a Plate trial race May 22 and their times for six furlongs were identical—1:11 4-5. Today's tune-up for the $20,000-added Plate is the last time the contenders will go over the post before June 12.

King Maple, owned by Mrs. Gordon McMacken, will meet such good horses as Staff Reporter, Bean Hunty, Trochanter and Sunnycourt in his division of the trial. Queen's Own meets stiffer competition from Collisteo and Hi Lark, the western challenger owned by Dr L. H. Appleby of Vancouver

Emil Zatopek Sets Two New Records, Beats Own Marks in Distance Races

BRUSSELS (AP)—Emil Zatopek the intredible Czech army officer, has improved on two more of his world records and he can thank a French foreign affairs official for the chance to make them.

Zatopek, the unexpected but warmly welcomed star of the Brussels Racing Club's meet Tuesday night, broke his own world marks for six miles and 10,000 metres for his third record smashing performance in three days. He bettered the 5,000-meter time in Paris Sunday.

He stepped the six miles in 27:52.2 and the 10,000 meters in 28:142 compared to his old marks of 28:08.4 and 29:01.6.

But, after the race, the grimacing Czech, who won three gold medals at the 1952 Olympics, shook his head sadly and said:

"It is possible to do better."

RETURNED VISA

Zatopek was not scheduled to take part in the meet. He found himself unexpectedly stalled in Brussels last Saturday when he learned the foreign affairs ministry had refused him an entry visa to France. French authorities said Zatopek had insulted Parisians in an interview in a Czech newspaper. While officials were trying to iron out the difficulties, Zatopek accepted an invitation to run in Tuesday night's meet. And when the French changed their mind about the visa he still promised to come back and run.

TV War Over In Grid Circles; Everybody Happy

TORONTO (CP)—Lew Hayman of Montreal, chairman of the Big Four Football Union's television committee, said Tuesday night all parties have agreed to arrangements for televising league games over CBC and NBC networks.

He made the announcement after a closed meeting with television officials and representatives of the Big Four and Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Tiger-Cats, one of four teams in the league, asked for the meeting. They were disturbed over original arrangements because they felt their own games might be played in competition with the telecast of another big game.

"Everybody's happy now," Hayman said. "The officials have been overcome."

TV ALL GAMES

Under the new setup, the CBC will televise all games. However, there will be a blackout in the city where the game's being played. The NBC was given the choice of selecting one of the league games played each Saturday for relay on its network. This deal will run for 13 Saturdays.

Hayman said most games will be carried live. A few may be filmed and relayed on the CBC network later on in the week.

Hayman and Joe Wright Jr. represented the Big Four at Tuesday's session. Lloyd Saunder and Frank Gibson represented Tiger-Cats.

Amoros, Easter 3-Run Homers Clinch Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Now that Brooklyn Dodgers are the class of the National League the player limit, look for Brooklyn officials to keep their eyes on outfielder Sandy Amoros of Montreal Royals in the International League.

Amoros has played in only 19 ball games since being optioned to Montreal in the middle of May, but he has slammed out four home runs including one Tuesday night that enabled the Royals to beat Richmond Virginians 12-11.

The speedy 22-year-old outfielder has had two shots at the parent club, but each time was released because of weak hitting.

His three-run homer Tuesday night came in the eighth inning. Amoros collected three hits in six times at bat. Jim Hughes was the relief pitcher who got the win.

In the only other game, Luke Easter's three-run homer in the seventh broke a 2-2 deadlock and gave Ottawa Athletics a 5-3 victory over Havana Cuban Sugar Kings.

'Private Eye' Goes in Dugout

MILWAUKEE (CP) — Baseball Manager Charley Grimm slipp ing on the gumshoe Tuesday night as a plainclothes detective spent two innings in the Brooklyn Dodger dugout.

The law was peering intently into the stands trying to find the heckler who earlier accused Dodger manager Walter Alston of shining something into the eyes of pitcher Warren Spahn.

Unlike the private operative recently caught talking shortstop Granny Hamner of Philadelphia Phillies on his arm-curdling rounds, this Sherlock was assigned to his duties by the Milwaukee police department with the mutual blessing of Alston and the Brooklyn players.

There was no report whether an arrest was made. But with or without the assistance of the cop, Meyer pitched himself a six-hit shutout as the Dodgers won 3-0.

INSIDE BASEBALL for Little Leaguers

By HOCKEY McCONNELL
Director of the Brooklyn Dodgers Baseball School

It was no accident that Ed Stanky became the top lead-off batter in baseball. He learned that if you place your back foot on the line in the batter's box furthest from the pitcher, you will have a longer time to determine whether it is a good or bad pitch, and for the ball to allow up in flight. At the same time you force the catcher to make longer throws to the bases, and make it more difficult for him to back or catch low pitches. If the ball is a breaking pitch, it will be farther away from the strike zone when the catcher gets it and thus harder to handle.

Be relaxed, but also be alert when you are in the batter's box.

Ontario's Junior A Hockey Clubs Draft 28 Players for Next Season

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's Junior A hockey clubs claimed 28 players in the general draft for the 1954-55 season at the Ontario Hockey Association said Monday night.

Disposition of several of the players will not be determined until the OHA council meets in St. Catharines next Monday. Only seven of the players drafted were awarded outright to claiming clubs.

The controversial draft system was set up by the OHA several years ago. Each club may submit an application for a player of lower category. There is no limit to the number of applications as long as each one is accompanied by a $150 fee. When two or more clubs claim the same player, the OHA president conducts a draw.

St. Michael TeePees, a junior A club, and New Liskeard, a junior team in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, each were awarded four players. Toronto Marlboros were granted one.

TeePees, who defeated Edmonton Oil Kings for the Memorial Cup this year, apparently have big rebuilding plans. They filed 18 draft applications. Kitchener Greenshirts were next with 14. Galt Black Hawks sought eight players, Marlboros and Barrie Flyers each bid on four players and Hamilton Cubs filed one application.

Guelph Biltmores and St. Michael's College Majors ignored the draft.

The most-sought-after player was Ted McCaskill, a juvenile with Kapuskasing Lions last season. New Liskeard, Hamilton, Galt, Marlboros, Kitchener and St. Catharines each bid for his services.

Jean Ubriaco, a juvenile with Sault Ste. Marie Domans last year, was another popular player. He was wanted by Kitchener, St. Catharines, Galt, Marlboros and New Liskeard.

OHA president Tory Green will preside at a draw at the council meeting in St. Catharines to decide the status of players drafted by more than one club.

Applications have been made for three players on the Sault Domans and Downriver juvenile teams. Since two is the maximum permitted from any one club, one application in each case will be discarded Monday.

TeePees skipped Sault Ste. Marie heavily for their reinforcements. From the Soo Sportsman juveniles they were awarded Dave Lessard and Ed Tomlison. They also claimed Aldo Monticone from the Canucks.

New Liskeard reached down to Scarborough's junior B team for Bob Beckett and Roy Partridge. The latter was granted Moe Bartoli, with Gaschell Juveniles of the NOHA last season.

Marlboros' application for Abner Martin of Elmira Juveniles was approved.

Rebellious Golfer Vents Spleen On Greens, Flagpoles, Metal Cups

STEVENSTON, Scotland (Reuters)—Tom Bell's feud with his local golf course today—at the cost of 18 dug-up greens, 18 bent flagpoles and a £10 fine against the irked golfer.

The trouble began early this month when Tom, after a tiff with a club member, received a one-month suspension for "ungentlemanly conduct."

Next morning, 12 greens were found dug up, 11 metal cups bent and one metal cup missing.

Afraid of adverse publicity, club officials expelled Tom from the club rather than call in police. Five days later, Tom appeared on the links with his clubs and refused to leave.

POLICE CALLED

Additional fines, police were called in to remove the rebellious golfer. But still no charges were preferred.

That night, Tom sneaked on to the green with a shovel dug up all 18 greens, bent all the flagpoles and removed the 18 metal cups. The shocked golfer in court Monday to malicious mischief. The repentant golfer was allowed police where he had hidden the missing metal cups.

Cardinal Slugger Says Most Of Four-Baggers are 'Accidents'

By JOE REICHLER

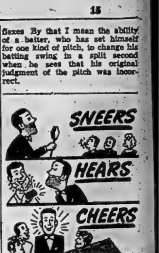
NEW YORK (AP)—Stan Musial just can't understand why people persist on asking him whether he has any ambitions to win the home run championship this year.

The St. Louis Cardinal slugger admits he is hitting right now for a more furious clip than ever before but he insists many of his four-baggers are "accidents" and by nature he is strictly a singles hitter.

"I'm no home run hitter," he protested. "I leave the long-ball hitting to Ralph Kiner and Eddie Mathews. I'm just a li'l old singles hitter. Besides, I'll take four singles to one home run any day in the week. I don't mean to say that I'll refuse the home run championship if I should win it. But I certainly have no intention of trying for it."

There is no humbug and no false modesty.

"Wherever I try to hit the long ball, I never do," he said. "You just have to go back several years in the game to find a time I hit 30 runs in 1948 without trying to hit every pitch right over the fence. I've only one behind Kiner and Johnny Mize who tied for the league lead. I've averaged around 10 for the years the rest year. Not only did I hit more homers, I also stopped hitting singles. That's when I quit trying to become a slugger.



"I haven't tried for a home run since—except on two occasions. That was last May 2 when I hit my fifth one. Incidentally, a double header against the Giants. After I hit my fourth, the announcer informed the crowd I'd just tied a record. Until then I hadn't been paying much attention to my homers. I'd just met the ball solidly four times and each went for the distance.

"I made up my mind to get that fifth one. Hoyt Wilhelm was pitching. He threw me a knuckler and I hit it pretty good—was the best of all. It went all the way over the roof in right centre. I had a chance to get a sixth one but I overswung and raised a puny little pop."

What does it take to make a great hitter, Musial was asked. Here are the fundamentals a young hitter should follow.

"I believe there's one thing about the game's great hitters on which writers haven't placed sufficient stress," he replied. "That's the batter's reflexes and speed of his mental reactions.

"Of course, good eyesight and timing are important and you need power, especially when you're trying for extra-base hits. But I think the real secret of a great hitter's success is the speed of his reflexes By that I mean the ability of a batter, who has set himself for one kind of pitch, to change his batting swing in a split second when he sees that his original judgment of the pitch was incorrect.

TCP gives you up to 15% unexpected power from your engine

Blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, TCP* releases power locked in by lead and carbon deposits. It's the greatest gasoline development in 31 years.

You'll feel your engine's had a tune-up before you've finished your second tankful.

YES, your engine may be 15% more powerful than you think!

And the reason is this:

Lead and carbon deposits are constantly building up in your engine. They lock in power that you should be getting.

These deposits get red hot and set off the fuel charge ahead of time . . . before the piston reaches its proper firing position. Power works against you—not for you. This condition is called pre-ignition, and automotive engineers consider it the biggest cause of power loss.

You also lose power when these deposits make your spark plugs misfire. Building up on spark plug insulators, they short-circuit the spark.

Both of these power robbers—pre-ignition and short-circuited spark plugs—are at their worst when you need power most—when climbing a hill or accelerating.

Now, however, you can change all this. TCP, a Shell-discovered additive, blended into Shell Premium Gasoline releases the "captive power" in your engine.

First, it "fireproofs" the deposits in your combustion chambers—to stop pre-ignition. Second, it makes the deposits non-conductive. TCP additive stops the short-circuiting of your spark plugs.

Shell Premium with TCP acts quickly, too. In fact, before you've finished your second tankful, you'll feel your engine's had a tune-up. But, remember, because these deposits accumulate constantly, continued use of Shell Premium with TCP additive is essential to retain its full benefits. It is the greatest gasoline development since the discovery of tetraethyl lead.

Shell Premium with TCP is available only at your Shell Dealer's.

*Shell's Trademark for its unique gasoline additive developed by Shell Research. Patent applied for.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I went into Metro to mingle with a bunch of Midgets and came out with gold."

That was Johnny Weissmuller's reflection on his 32 years in the movie business. Now well fixed because of his earnings in African movies, the one-time swimming champ says he may retire at another two years.

There's only one element that might upset his plans—television. Right now a deal for a series is being whipped up. His agents and business managers are hot for it, but Johnny isn't enthusiastic—he doesn't like to work hard.

NINE DAY WONDERS

He probably does less work for more money than any other performer in Hollywood. For the last eight years he has been doing the "Jungle Jim" series, in which he massacre the profits. He does three a year for an estimated return of $100,000. Not bad, considering the films take a mere nine days apiece.

I saw Johnny on the set of his latest Jungle Jim epic, "The Moon Men." He was up to his thighs in moon men—all the midgets and dwarfs in his area have been recruited for the film. He'll be 47 next Wednesday, but has the build and face of a much younger man.

I asked him how he does it.

"Swimming," he replied with the obvious answer. "I keep my pool at home at 80 degrees the year around. Every day I swim about a half a mile. I do it with my feet in a rubber tube, so I'm pulling dead water. That way I get the exercise without having to make so many turns. The pool is only 20 feet by 40 feet, and I'd get dizzy if I swam without something to hold me back."

TANK TO JUNGLE

Weissmuller, who was named the greatest swimmer of the half-century by an Associated Press poll went from the tank to the jungle would have thought of.

"I could feel all this in my bones when this pair sat down against us. Came deal number 15 which is the spread shown here:

As dealer in south I passed. So did west and north. East threw a puzzled look at me and then bid one spade with hesitation. Her west partner jumped to four spades and they made it with eyes closed.

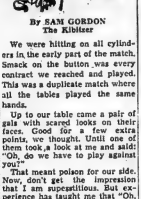
Most of the other tables passed it out or stopped short of game. So, we got an absolute bottom. And it did not help me any when east said: "I opened because I thought you made a trap pass."

Still puzzled, she asked me: "Would you have opened with my hand?" Would I have opened, she wants to know. If I had opened her hand there would not have been anything in it, either.

Meantime, her partner was gushing: "I was dying to have you open." She was dying, says she. I was dying. And I still am.

ROBIN HOOD BIKE CONTEST WINNER

Lloyd Lewis, of R.R. 8, Lemoine Street in Belleville, is shown above with his Armstrong 3 speed racer which he won on the Robin Hood Bicycle Contest over CJBQ Saturday, May 22nd.



Lloyd answered the question correctly and included a box top from Robin Hood Chocolate Cake Mix, another wonderful Robin Hood product.

The Robin Hood Bicycle Contest is easy to enter. Each week a simple question is asked on the program. Contestants are requested to send their answer along with a guarantee certificate or box top from any Robin Hood product to: The Robin Hood Bicycle Contest, c/o Radio Station CJBQ, Belleville. Join in on the fun. There's still time to win a bike the easy, quick Robin Hood way.

The Robin Hood Show is heard weekly on Saturday mornings at 10.30 over the 1230 spot on your dial — CJBQ.

AT THE CAPITOL—Tony Curtis, as Harry Houdini, is preparing for the water torture act in which he is handcuffed and lowered, head down, into a bottle-like tank containing two tons of water. This is just one of the many thrilling stunts highlighting "Houdini", Paramount's Technicolor real-life story of the great daredevil escapist, which is due to open Thursday at the Capitol Theatre. Janet Leigh is cast as Houdini's wife in this George Pal production. On the same program and having its first Belleville showing the mighty love story of today's pirates of the "Alaska Seas", starring Robert Ryan, Jan Sterling, Brian Keith and Gene Barry.

The Kibitzer

We were hitting on all cylinders in the early part of the match. Smack on the button was every contract we reached and played. This was a duplicate match where all the tables played the same hands.

Up to our table came a pair of gals with scared looks on their faces. Good for a few extra points, we thought. Until one of them took a look at me and said: "Oh, do we have to play against you?"

That meant poison for our side. Now, don't get the impression that I am superstitious. But experience has taught me that "Oh, do we have to play against you" is my jinx.

Thereafter, all the luck for our side is nothing but bad. We get the worst of it no matter how wrong are the opponents of the moment; no matter how weak they are in competition.

If they pass it turns out to our disadvantage. If they bid and reach a sour contract the cards fall in their favor. And usually it is a contract that nobody else

In 1931. He played Tarzan, the chest-pounding ape man, for 17 years. Finally he decided he should have a share of the profits. The producer, Sol Lesser, didn't see it that way, and they parted.

Johnny went right into the Jungle Jim films, which place little demand on his time and permit him to keep his shirt on. They have proved a good investment for all concerned. He gets fan mail from all over the world, including Russia.

AT THE BELLE—Bob Hope, portraying Casanova, the world's greatest lover, tries his hand at wooing Joan Fontaine in this tit-tickling scene from Paramount's brand new Technicolor masquerade of romance and big fun-making, "Casanova's Big Night", also starring Joan Fontaine and Basil Rathbone, clocking-in today at the Belle Theatre. Paramount's 20th anniversary cartoon is an added attraction.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 3, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Down-to-earth business matters, settling trade and contract agreements, managing investments may need special attention; but are favored if ably handled. Lend a hand in local affairs, family activities.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Your budget and business activities could be hampered by overconfidence, ego. Control disposition, even if irritated.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Rely on facts—not guesswork — in financial matters. Make use of your gift of insight and your experience, and take good advice. P.M. could be stimulating if you are ready to take advantage of the situation.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — If you expect top rewards and commendation for your efforts, be your sincere self. Always try to improve. If conferring with others, do not inject personalities into the conversation.

July 24 to August 21 (Leo) — There is no day to rush heading into action without careful thought and planning. Heart interests can play an interesting part in your affairs without interfering with other activities.

August 22 to September 23 (Virgo)—You may have to approach tasks with a somewhat different attitude during the complex period. Discuss, make changes when necessary for better prospects. Personal wishes can wait.

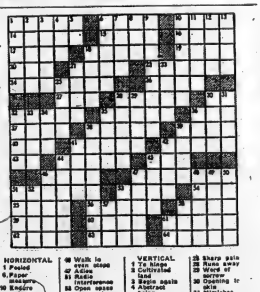
September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—A day to capitalize on your talents. Let experience and intuition guide you. Reasonable desires can be achieved by devotion and consistency.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Well regulated action—especially where the budget is concerned—is needed. There is a tendency toward overbuying, loaning. If asked to make changes or travel, be careful—and logical.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Activities pertaining to shipping, traveling, and agreements need extra scrutiny now. Don't drag out matters, become too fussy; this could lead to disinterest on the part of others.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—A mighty heartening day for you who exert your best efforts, but do not waste time on amusements. Give special care to financial and business affairs.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—The economic-minded and those technically inclined are especially favored this day. Concentrate on the sound, feasible.



February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Precede action with study and research so that you may avoid needless mistakes, repetition. Routine affairs, manoeuvring for better position favored. Mind diet.

YOU BORN TODAY: Genial frequently displays a dual nature or personality. People born under this Sign are often unsatisfied with one occupation or one hobby. Are active, readily grasp meanings, situations; usually adaptable to any turn of affairs; yet sometimes fail to carry on to success when it is so near. You are imaginative, generous, apt to indulge in extremes; always busy. If educated and consistent, you can do great things. So try!

Birthdate of: Jefferson Davis, Pres. of Confederate States of America.

RAWDON

Mt. Pleasant Girls' Rally Successful

RAWDON—On Saturday afternoon, 43 girls and their leaders attended a rally at Mount Pleasant United Church and hall, under the direction of Mrs. Joe Thompson, Springbrook, leader of girls' work in the sponsorship of "The Religious Educational Council of Marmora, Stirling and Rawdon."

The Rally was for girls 12 to 18 years and their teachers.

Mrs. Marguerite McMullen and her assistant, Mrs. Milford Wightman, teachers of Mount Pleasant intermediate girls' class, were hostesses on this occasion.

The hall was tastefully decorated with maple and white lilacs, red peonies and other blooms.

CONDUCTS WORSHIP.

Bethel Busy Bees Club conducted the worship service in the church at 11 a.m. Marguerite McMullen voiced a gracious welcome to the guests.

Miss Iris Daly, B.A., A.T.C.M., leader of girls' work in Toronto, conducted a special class for all the Sunday School teachers. And she gave an address on "How to Help Build God's Kingdom."

Miss Margaret Hillis, Belleville, gave a series of motion pictures of camp life at Quin-Mo-Lac.

Miss June Fenn, Bethel, gave an interesting talk on her experiences at camp last year.

Springbrook C.G.I.T. group conducted some get - acquainted games and Mrs. Edgar Graham led the sing-song.

The girls were divided in groups with Mrs. R. H. Benstead in charge of music, and later, Miss Daly taught two new songs.

Mrs. Joe Thompson presided over the rally business, and a number of felt articles were made and displayed. She also conducted the recreation.

DRAMATIC GROUP.

Mrs. Burton Morton conducted the dramatic group and later three girls game a pantomime, "The Story of Moses", with Miss Eleanor Smith playing quiet music.

Mrs. H. Beare, Springbrook, gave helpful ideas in arranging a service of worship.

A long table set up in the hall provided a place for the girls to eat their box-lunch and the hostess group supplied Freshie drinks.

A candlelighting service was held at 7 p.m. under the direction of the leaders from Springbrook with Mrs. E. Graham as pianist.

Mrs. Burton Heagle, Salem, voiced thanks for hospitality to which Mrs. M. McMullen graciously replied.

This first girls' rally was most successful and the girls had an enjoyable afternoon and evening.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF U.S. CUSTOMS

CPR purchasing agent Al Ivey has the job in Montreal of listing 45,000 pieces of hardware, made in Canada, for shipment to the U.S. The hardware is being sent to Philadelphia, where passenger cars are being made for the CPR, the list has to be made out for benefit of U.S. customs men, who will check the list twice, once when the parts go into the U.S., and again when they return as part in the railway cars. The U.S. charges duty on the articles going in, then returns the money when the cars roll into Canada. (Central Press Canadian).

Public Works Minister Winters May Be Drafted for Premier

By IRVING WHITNOT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — Politic.l observers say the new leader of Nova Scotia's Liberal party will be Premier Harold Connolly or the federal public works minister, Robert Winters.

Although about a dozen " men have been named as possible successors to the late premier Angus L. Macdonald, those close to the party say the choice at present is between Mr. Connolly, 53-year-old former newspaper man and senior cabinet member, and Mr. Winters, Nova Scotia's representative in the federal cabinet.

Mr. Connolly became premier when Mr. Macdonald died last month after leading the party since 1933. But he has declined to say whether he will seek the leadership nomination, or stand for it if named.

There have been indications that Mr. Winters does not wish to enter the provincial field but a "draft Winters" movement is expected in any case.

UNDER CONSIDERATION

"I have to decide whether I can give my best service to Nova Scotia by remaining here (in Ottawa) or as leader of the provincial party, keeping in mind, of course, that for either role there are other well-qualified persons," Mr. Winters said.

On the financial side, the Nova Scotia premier's pay and allowances amount to $12,600 a year compared with $27,000 for a federal cabinet minister.

If both stand, the voting is expected to be close. If either drops out, the other is conceded an edge over other possible candidates.

The Premier's position, first for such a purpose since 1930 when Mr. Macdonald, then a young lawyer, was unexpectedly drafted to leadership, will be held this year, probably in September.

About 580 delegates are expected and they will come from districts covering all industries from farming and fishing to coal-mining and steel-making. They will represent voters of such varied racial origin as the Scots of Cape Breton island and Pictou county, the French of the western shore and the Hanoverian Germans of Lunenburg county.

NOT A FACTOR

Officially religion isn't a factor in the selection of party leaders and premiers and there is an unscrupulous adherence to this policy by the mixed religious of all parties. But, of course, what goes on in caucus is secret.

The province is predominantly Protestant but this never affected the regular re-election of Mr. Macdonald, a Roman Catholic and the only member of that faith to hold the premier's office since Sir John S. D. Thompson in 1822. Sir John later became prime minister of Canada.

Halifax, the provincial capital, alternates between Protestant and Roman Catholic mayors by tradition.

Of the two men most widely mentioned for the leadership, Premier Connolly is a Roman Catholic who has regularly turned in a big majority in the province in Halifax North which probably has a Protestant majority of Catholics.

Mr. Winters is a Protestant and represents Queens - Lunenburg which is overwhelmingly Protestant. A native of Lunenburg, he is 44 and is likely to find support from both sides of the party calling for young blood to revitalize it.

MADE INROADS

The Progressive Conservative Opposition has made inroads into the Liberal majority since 1949. In that year the Progressive Conservatives gained eight seats and in 1953 upped their strength to 12.

Mr. Winters was first elected to the Commons in 1945 while still in army uniform and entered the cabinet as minister of reconstruction three years later.

Connolly was news editor at the old Halifax Chronicle and was when he was elected to the legislature in 1936. He entered the cabinet in 1941 as minister of trade and industry.

He still holds the portfolios of health and welfare in addition to that of highways which he assumed with the premiership when Mr. Macdonald died. He has termed himself a caretaker premier pending the Liberal convention.

So far no one has said definitely he will stand for the leadership. But W. N. Wickwire, a Halifax lawyer who is among those mentioned, has said he will not stand.

THREE POSSIBLES

Possible candidates include three members of Mr. Connolly's cabinet. Attorney - General Malcolm Patterson, also rumored for a Senate appointment; Education Minister Henry Hicks; and Ronald Fielding, minister of municipal affairs.

John Dickey, one of two Halifax members in the Commons, is also named along with Halifax barrister Frank M. Covert.

Political sources say Chief Justice J. L. Ilsley, a former federal cabinet minister, and Mr. Justice L. D. Currie, former provincial attorney-general, were approached but rejected suggestions they stand.

Present standing in the House of Liberals 20, Progressive Conservatives 12, CCF two, vacant 2.

Evelyn Bonisteel Instantly Killed As Car Hits Bridge

Walter Swan Is Injured In Sidney Twp. Accident

A Belleville teen-age girl was instantly killed and her companion sent to hospital early today when the car in which they were riding crashed into a bridge a short distance outside the city.

Dead is Miss Evelyn Bonisteel, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Colin Bonisteel, 119 Dundas Street West. In the hospital suffering with facial lacerations and shock is twenty-four-year-old Walter Swan, 84 Yeomans Street, Belleville.

The car, driven by Swan, is said to have crashed the bridge over the Bay of Quinte Cattle Breeders Association building, 1-1-2 miles west of the city, on the second concession of Sidney.

Miss Bonisteel was instantly killed, according to police. The accident occurred shortly after 1:30 a.m.

NOTIFIED POLICE

Garnet Kells, Sidney township, came across the wrecked car as he was returning home from Belleville about 1:45. He returned to the city and notified provincial police.

When Kells came on the scene Swan was walking about his wrecked car in a dazed condition. The girl's body was still in the car. Swan was taken to hospital by Bush's Ambulance.

The east bound car had crashed into the concrete railing of the small narrow bridge, the right front and side of the car being almost torn off by the force of the impact.

ATOMIC POWER PLAN ENDORSED UNANIMOUSLY

How Tells Commons Project Now Feasible

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is entering the third stage of its 12-year-old atomic energy program—long-term research on methods to harness the atom for the benefit of mankind.

The first objective will be to build an atomic power reactor which will produce electric power economically. Trade Minister Howe proposing in the Commons a major reorganization of the government section of the atomic energy program, said Wednesday that Canadian scientists now believe this can be done.

The Commons gave Mr. Howe, minister in charge of atomic energy, unanimous consent to launch the new stage of atomic research by passing a bill to amend the Atomic Energy Control Act. The measure got Senate approval to become law.

EIGHT PIECES

The bill was one of eight pieces of government legislation passed in a burst of speed at the third reading stage. With the session, Parliament now has completed its legislative program for the session's length. The longest Second-World-War session was from Jan. 27, 1942 to Jan. 23, 1943, a sitting of days.

The first stage of the multi-million dollar atomic energy program started in 1944 when Canada decided to join with the United Kingdom and the United States to make an atomic bomb. The second stage was the period of transition from the wartime program with its short-term objectives to the long-range peacetime program.

"We are now passing from this transitional, or second stage of the program, to the third stage," Mr. Howe said.

Besides the development of an economical power plant, the third stage of research will include extensive production of uranium ore, eventual refining of pure uranium metal in Canada and increased production of radioactive isotopes for medicine and industry.

BOARD CONTINUES

The atomic energy control board would continue its function of making regulations in connection with security aspects of atomic research, Mr. Howe said. He said the hopes many regulations will be removed soon and that the need for control may be a temporary one in two or three years.

He was optimistic about the prospect of atomic power plants. Research at Chalk River had reached the point where it should be possible to produce atomic power economically in Britain, the possibility of producing atomic power at a cost comparable to that of power generated from steam plants using coal at $8 a ton.

Purchasing Power Of Average Wage At Record High

OTTAWA (CP)—The purchasing power of the average industrial wage has jumped to an all-time high.

The bureau of statistics estimates that the average weekly wage in manufacturing plants rose to a peak of $37.69 March 1.

This compares with $37.14 Feb. 1 and $36.58 March 1 last year.

When translated into 1949 dollars, however, the figure drops sharply, for, though living costs have softened somewhat, they still are 5% higher than in 1949.

But the price softening has helped lower the purchasing power of wages. The average weekly wage in 1949 dollars was worth $49.39 last Feb. 1. On March 1 it rose to $49.82, an all-time high.

The consumer price index, yardstick for measuring living costs, made a number of successive monthly declines earlier in the year, dropping by a fifth of a point to 114.5 March 1, the lowest level in eight months.

However, the yardstick, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, rose by one-tenth of a point during the 114.6 the first rise in six months.

The statisticians have not yet figured out what effect this rise had on purchasing power, though it is believed to have been negligible.

Another question on the statistician's mind is whether the tiny jump is indicative of a trend. Friday may tell. Price changes during April will be reflected in the regular monthly survey of living costs to be published then.

Children of Veterans May Receive Credits

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons Wednesday gave final approval to a government bill allowing the unused portion of a veteran's war service credit to be paid to his children if he dies.

Until now amounts re-establishment credit could be paid only to the widow or dependent mother of a veteran. The credits may be paid to children under 21 years, or to children more than 21 who receive a pension under the Pension Act.

CANBERRA (CP)—The first two editions of Australia's new government's publication "Royal Visit to Australia" were sold in advance of orders were placed for a third printing, Interior Minister W. S. Kent Hughes said recently before there been such a demand for a book as for the official record of the visit of Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, which ended April 1.

Thousands of British Pensioners Live in Sin, Cannot Afford to Wed

BRIGHTON, England (Reuters) — Thousands of British old folks are living in sin" because they can't afford to marry, an old age pensioners' conference here was told Wednesday night.

The union which made that claim, 79-year-old Harry Clark, confessed he is one of those living in sin with a woman out of wedlock.

He said that when he recently married Mrs. Eliza Downing, a plump, white-haired little widow of 76, he had to ask her to live with him.

If they had married, their pensions would have been cut. At present they both receive a basic pension of 32 shillings, but as a married couple they would only be entitled to a joint weekly pension of 54 shillings, with no allowance for a wife.

Sweepstake Prize Will Educate His Adopted Son

NORMANDIN, Que. (CP)—Gerard Potvin, 33, who Wednesday won $140,000 in the Irish Sweepstake reed home first in the Epsom Derby, plans to continue working in the restaurant he opened here three years ago. The prize money will go towards educating his 18-month-old adopted son.

"I haven't decided yet what to do with all the money," said Potvin, one of two Canadians holding first-prize tickets in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes. "One thing is certain, my son is assured of a solid education and an interesting future. And me, I'm quite satisfied with the restaurant business."

Potvin, a restaurant owner chose the noom-de-plume "tonormandin" after the name of this Lake St. John district town, about 175 miles northeast of Quebec. He and his wife, a childless couple, adopted a son recently. The child was 18 months old Wednesday.

Right to Use Water Disputed

GUELPH (CP)—Because of the increased use of water by municipalities, industries, and for irrigation, conflict has cropped up over the rights of respective users, an irrigation expert said Wednesday night.

Prof. H. D. Ayers of the Ontario Agricultural College was speaking to the meeting of the Ontario chapter of the Soil Conservation Society of America.

As chairman of the committee on irrigation and water rights, Prof. Ayers recommended that a survey be conducted by the Ontario government to assess the water rights and irrigation possibilities in northeastern United States. Its purpose would be to determine what legislation might be enacted in Ontario to meeting existing and future water needs.

Rains Start in Indo-China, Vietminh Troops Bog Down

HANOI (AP)—Heavy monsoon rains lashed northwest Indo-China today, bogging down the fighting movements of Communist-led Vietminh troops in convoys from fallen Dien Bien Phu towards the Red river delta.

The heavy rainstorms also forced French planes to discontinue their plastering of the enemy forces on the march.

The most advanced Vietminh elements from the fortress still are about 50 miles from the western most perimeter of the French delta defences.

French army sources say a major Vietminh assault on the delta still may come before the end of June. But they still think the rains might force the rebels to defer attacking until the monsoon ends in September.

The French high command reported another "calm day" in the Red River delta Wednesday, with the Vietminh concentrated in company strength 12 miles south of Hanoi.

Fighters dropped delayed-action bombs around the post of Chonai, near Hoa Binh, 35 miles south of Hanoi. Attacked by the Vietminh during the afternoon, the post had a quiet period last night.

French aircraft patrolled more than 100 miles of the delta perimeter.

The French reported 10 Vietminh killed and 10 captured in minor mop-ups within 12 miles of Hanoi.

Fear Dispute Over Policing To Block Indo-China Truce

By MAX HARRELSON

GENEVA (AP) — Western and Communist delegates wrestled today with a new deadlock over the thorny question of and participation in the policing of an Indo-China armistice. Agreement on this key point appears impossible.

The deadlock developed at Wednesday's closed-door meeting at the Far Eastern conference when Russia insisted that the Commissions must be represented on any truce supervision commission. The Western powers demanded exclusion of Red representatives.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov reflected the gravity of the problem when he told the meeting it will be difficult to reach agreement on truce supervisory machinery unless Communists are represented on the proposed agency.

Another difficulty arose when Pham Van Dong, vice-premier of the Communist-led Vietminh, declared that the proposed neutral supervisory commission should be given only one task, controlling the entry of arms and troops from the outside.

He got quick support from Molotov, but France's foreign minister Bidault declared that the commission should control all phases of a cease-fire, including regrouping of forces, policing of ports, watching China's frontiers and checking all war materials.

The new difficulties are regarded as a major setback to the impasse since attached to the policing problem. Western diplomats have indicated that they are confident that there can be no cease-fire unless there is a truly neutral body to supervise implementation of the agreements reached in Geneva. The Communists argue that Communist countries can not be trusted to control activities of the parties in Communist.

The Reds indicated Wednesday that they want the major burden of supervising the cease-fire to be borne by the International Control Commissions rather than the Geneva Conference itself body.

Bidault, on the other hand, said France would agree to have the neutral commission set up a small mixed sub - committee for local duties. But this, he added, should be limited in this function and should remain under control of the international group.

LIBERALS READY TO CONSIDER TOLL ROADS PLEA

Oliver Pledges Party To Study Parley's Plan

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Ontario Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver said Wednesday night that if the Liberals were elected considerations would be given to toll roads to provide funds for better highways in the province.

In an address to the Leeds County Liberal Association, Mr. Oliver said his party would consider the suggestion advanced at the Eastern Ontario Development conference in Ottawa last week that tolls charges on roads might be the answer to providing funds for highway improvements.

Speaking of the development conference, Mr. Oliver urged eastern Ontario people to continue their fight for recognition and against injustices.

"You are absolutely correct in assuming that new roads are needed in eastern Ontario," he said. "Modern highways in other sections of the province other than western Ontario are essential to the economy of the province as a whole," he stated.

Mr. Oliver termed his followers to prepare for an election be felt was coming next year.

Henry Walter, retired railroader of Brockville, was elected president of the Leeds association.

Pig-Laden Belgian Plane Attacked By Russian MiG And Radio Officer Is Slain

Say Craft Over Yugoslavia When Cannon Shells Hit It

VIENNA (CP) — A twin-engined Belgian transport plane airlifting pedigreed pigs from Britain to Yugoslavia was fired upon by a jet fighter near the Yugoslav-Austrian frontier today. Its radio officer was killed and two other crew members were wounded.

The pilot of another Belgian transport on a similar flight said the attack was made by several "Soviet" MiGs. One report said the attackers may have been from Hungary.

The fourth member of the attacked plane's crew, co-pilot D. Wilson, a Briton, was able to bring the transport in for a successful belly landing on the airfield at Graz in the British zone of Austria.

PHOTOGRAPHERS BARRED

Armed British military police immediately threw a cordon around the plane which was said to have been damaged considerably. Three photographers who tried to take pictures had their cameras confiscated.

The two Sabena airlines planes were part of an airlift carrying pigs from Britain to Yugoslavia. The second plane landed safely at Graz.

The dead radio operator, Joseph Clawaert, was a Belgian. Injured were the pilot, Ariene Devreese, and mechanic Victor Sluyts, both Belgians.

Devreese had two shell fragments in his leg. Clawaert died, declaring that for "all practical purposes" he expected to be buried in Austria with "But Central president William White promptly declared management will continue its legal fight to block the counting of the shares.

Meanwhile, the count of votes went on in an Albany hotel room. Election inspectors have made no announcement other than Wednesday's statement on the challenged shares. The annual meeting, which started with a stormy session last Wednesday, will resume Tuesday noon at the office of the railroad's secretary in Albany. Whether the tally will have been completed by then was not known.

Abadan Refinery May Not Resume Full Production

By VINCENT BURST

TEHRAN (Reuters)—The giant British-built oil refinery at Abadan, which was nationalized and deglo nationalized in 1951, may not resume full-scale production.

International oil company representatives have warned the government that many big jobs still have become out of date.

Although Abadan's output fell to a trickle after the Iranians took over from British engineers in 1951, the refinery alone had hoped for a return to peak output under an oil settlement with the west.

Bride Is Given Surprise of Life, $140,000 Win Makes Jolleys Jolly

KITCHENER (CP) — A young bride got her big prize for her surprise of her life Wednesday—he said her husband won the equivalent of $140,000 in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes.

Mrs. Ellen Jolley, 30-year-old solicitor for the B. F. Goodrich Company here, formerly of Hamilton, went into hiding with his wife of less than a year, Lorelei Jolley, 24.

They were the only known Ontario holders of an Irish sweepstake ticket on Derby-winning Never Say Die which came running home in the Epsom Downs classic Wednesday.

Mrs. Jolley, who conducts a television program over station CKCO-TV here under the pseudonym of "Peri", didn't know her husband had a ticket until the race was over. The ticket, No. PM 39340, carried the pseudonym "Peri."

The Jolleys were vacationing Wednesday night for comment on their good fortune. But Jolley's friends said they had him he was afraid he would be "plagued to death" by requests if he admitted winning. His employers said he had taken off "for parts unknown."

Jolley is a graduate of McMaster University and Osgoode Hall. The couple was married here last fall after she came from Ottawa and he moved here from Hamilton.

Jolley's mother said she did not think her son had any particular plans for use of the money.

"He'll just go on with his career," she said. "He doesn't get excited very easily."

Robert R. Young Wins Key Point In Railway Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert R. Young Wednesday won a key 800,000 votes in his battle for control of the New York Central Railroad system.

Election inspectors tallying proxies in Albany, N.Y., rejected a management contention that the validity of the huge block of shares cast by supporters of Young.

At Albany, a spokesman for Young's attorneys said the decision was "But Central president William White promptly declared management will continue its legal fight to block the counting of the shares.

TORONTO (CP)—Two German immigrants with previous high-wire circus experience, said Wednesday they plan to ride a motorcycle over a cable across the brink of Niagara Falls next July—providing they get approval from Ontario and New York state authorities.

Edgar Deslosch plans to drive the motorcycle across a ¾-inch steel cable from the Canadian to the U.S. side, 1,200 feet, and back July 24 with his partner Joe Colb, suspended below the bike on a trapeze.

They are members of a Canadian daredevil act.

Uplands Airport Called 'Crummy' By John Fisher

OTTAWA (CP)—CBC commentator John Fisher Wednesday described Uplands airport facilities as "crummy" and said he believes Canada's air transportation set-up is the most backward in the world.

Speaking before the Eastern Ontario Development Conference, he said he had no desire to press the government for more and better air transport facilities, but said the shoreline between Toronto and Montreal provides a "no man's land" for landing fields.

He urged also that municipalities press for greater decentralization of industry, "Canada had too much of a head office complex."

Too often in Canada, he said, to fight mayor Charlotte Whitton, for the number and the locality sort.

But he noted that Mayor Whitton had been critical of the conference saying it did not include sufficient representation from elected heads of municipalities.

Widening of College St. West Proposed by Committee

A program calling for the widening of College Street West, between North Front Street and Bridge Street, to make room for motor driving in that area is planned as a joint project by the city public works committee and the township of Thurlow.

Aldermen James Smith, chairman of the city public works committee, said today that owners whose property will be required for the street widening program have been approached and options are expected to be completed within the next week or ten days.

Lack of funds in the public works budget in all probability, however, will prevent the actual widening program getting started this year.

WIDENED TO 66 FT.

Plans call for the present 60-foot street to be fully widened to 66 feet, while the present 17-foot bridge will also be widened to take care of constantly increasing traffic in the area.

"Widening the street will make it much safer for pedestrians and motorists alike," Keith Cowan, assistant city engineer stated as he stressed the advantages of the program to owners of property in the area.

He noted that at the present time a pedestrian has no place to go except into the ditch if he happens to be where cars are passing.

Each year with the built-up area of the city extending further to the northwest, traffic on College street is increasing. Industrial employees working in the west end of the city use College street to avoid downtown traffic while an route to and from their jobs. The veterans' housing area north of College has added to the traffic volume and school children use the street going to and from school.

Closed Session Studies List Of Alleged Reds

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Karl Mundt, (R., S.D.) called senators investigating the McCarthy-army row into closed session today to consider what to do about the names of 130 persons Wisconsin Republican Senator McCarthy describes as Communists employed in sensitive defence posts.

The meeting was scheduled as a prelude to the day of sworn televised hearings into the accusations which McCarthy and high army officials have flung at one another.

The investigations sub-committee voted unanimously late Wednesday to recommend that the Wisconsin senator and his chief counsel, Roy M. Cohn, turn over to the defence department the 130 names. Earlier, Cohn and McCarthy said many subversives are employed in sensitive defence plants in the United States doing sensitive government work.

McCarthy insisted that such action would do no good—that the way to get rid of the "20" is to expose them at public hearings by the investigating sub-committee he normally heads, for they stepped off it while it probes his row with army officials.

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow Sees Bright Future for Quinte Area As New Library Is Opened

TRENTON (Special) — On the building of this fine new building and dedication of the new library building in Trenton yesterday, Welfare Minister, the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow foresaw Trenton and Belleville's future as being one of the greatest industrial sections of Canada, because of the St. Lawrence Waleways development. He predicted that the transformation would take place within the next 25 years. He promised that the Conservative government of Ontario was going to give to Eastern Ontario all the help possible.

MR. GOODFELLOW PLEASED

Mr. Goodfellow called on the citizens to help themselves and not depend on the government to help them. He considered groups like Rotary, Lions and service clubs were making a valuable contribution to the community and that it was the duty of all citizens to live in.

Speaking for great industrial expansion especially in the Quinte area, Mr. Goodfellow expects that many more industries will be arriving during the growing period. He pointed out that Canada already here are very high calibre people. He feels that Canadians are obligated to keep them feel at home.

In considering the Welfare Minister said he was very happy to participate in the opening of the new library.

SURPRISED BY NEWS

Chairman of the Library Board, J. F. Cole, announced that the Province of Ontario had awarded the board a grant of between $9,000 and $10,000. The announcement was surprised to hear this because only last week he had been informed that no provision had been made for a grant in the Trenton budget.

In his address earlier he pointed out that he was disappointed to learn no provincial grant would be passed along to the Trenton Library Board.

The history of the Trenton Library goes back over 70 years. It functioned for the first ten years and then interest waned for a considerable period. Finally, according to Mr. Cox, a concerned effort resulted in the establishment of a strong library board in 1921.

The library was located where the municipal offices are today. It remained in that area for 30 years and in the last few years new quarters were badly needed.

The present location was started for a new library. The town council consented to the extend by $2,000 and civic minded citizens provided the rest. Chairman Cox emphasized that no one person was responsible or no one person had the entire credit for the new Trenton library.

PRAISES BOARD.

Mayor Gordon K. J. Couch offering his praise said the fine new building reflects the big job accomplished by Mr. Cox and the members of the Library Board. "It appears to me that Governor Simcoe Park has been preserved for the library," he said.

Mr. Couch read a telegram of congratulations from Senator W. A. Fraser in Ottawa. Mr. J. F. Cox, chairman of the Trenton Library Board. Regret unable to be with you on this important day in the progress of Trenton. Artistic and beautiful library building in the best possible location. With its cultural educational and community service has always been one of my dreams for Trenton. May I congratulate and thank you and your colleagues on the Library Board for your efforts and accomplishments. Also please extend to "Buster" Alyea and Jack Farley and the members of the Parks Board my gratitude for their help and co-operation and untiring efforts in developing and making our utility of our parks which do mean so much to assist in making Trenton a better and more healthy place for our citizens to live and enjoy. Congratulations members of our beautiful community.

(Signed)

Senator W. A. Fraser."

Parks Chairman Dr. J. W. Farley said: "Many things were urgently needed, but nothing was more important than this library." He brought attention to Senator Fraser's tremendous contribution in the transformation of Trenton's unsightly waterfront into a beautiful park area.

Mrs. F. W. Sherozet, whose first husband was Mayor Fred Funnell, designated the library site as park land in trust, forever was called on to do the honors of opening the library to the public. She was presented with the first book to be passed out of the new building. Miss A. M. Hayes, a member of the Library Board, made the presentation.

Chairman Cox paid special tribute to Lorne Watson of Campbellford the builders of the library. "The building is a great tribute to him. He did a good job at a reasonable price."

Ex-mayor R. Z. Whilley added congratulations of praise.

The official welcome came from His Worship Mayor Ross Burt. The dedication and appreciation from the Library Board members came from H. R. Park.

Bowling Trophies Presented To Winning Teams

TRENTON (Special) — Mayor Ross Burt told the Trenton bowlers at the league's annual dinner Wednesday night that Senator W. A. Fraser was the one man responsible for Trenton's bowling alleys. He said he presumed that he often differed with the Senator but considered him a good friend.

Extending praise to the Women's Auxiliary of the Trenton Legion for serving the meal, Mayor Burt claimed that the ladies have done more for the Legion than the legionnaires have done themselves.

New executive elected for the 1954-55 bowling season includes Gord Carr, Glen Helyer, Bob Slight, Elmer Weaver, Chas. Lidster.

The Calvert trophy, emblematic of the playoff championship, went to the Trent Cleaners. Larry Murphy presented the beautiful prize to team captain Len Hunter. His team comprised: Roy Payne, Ron Shaw, Hank Deline, Clint Mitts, Al Thurston, Mickey O'Neil and Roly Ferrell.

The coveted Ostander trophy became the property of the league champion Farrar's Furniture team for the next 12 months. The team members: Gordon Liddle (captain), Art Mansfield, Earl Cruikshank, Bill Brummell, Tom Scelza, Earl Whitney, Gerald Farrar, Don Coleman.

Plan Tag Day To Finance Wading Pool

Belleville small fry are to have their own wading pool in which to cool off on hot summer days while their older brothers and sisters enjoy a swim in the Kinsmen Memorial Swimming Pool on Dundas Street.

Construction of a wading pool 20 by 50 feet at a cost of approximately $3,500 is the No. 1 project for Belleville Kinsmen this year and the Kinette Club is pitching in with a tag day on Saturday to help raise money for the pool. Saturday's tag day will mark the first drive to raise money and construction of the pool will be commenced as soon as the necessary funds can be arranged.

Over-all plans for the Kinsmen swimming pool included construction of the wading pool for the younger children but the later project was delayed awaiting provision of the necessary money.

The co-operation of Belleville citizens is asked for the support of this worthwhile project.

MILLBANK, N. B. (CP) — A middle-aged woman from nearby Lower Newcastle died of stab wounds received at a wild house party early today and police took her brother into custody for questioning.

The brother, Elmer Gildden, about 50, was taken away by RCMP.

Lavish Hollywood Party Exciting Affair With Fountain of Champagne

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A couple of millionaire newlyweds tossed a $30,000 party Wednesday night that almost died, until one of show business' greatest sister acts took over.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gilliland of Texas threw the whinging to celebrate the beginning of their second month of marriage. They brought out the Mocambo, one of Hollywood's fanciest night clubs, for 300 guests at $100 a plate.

It was a sedate affair, as Hollywood parties go, until the Dunne Sisters, long-time friends of the bridegroom, got the all-rich crowd jumping merrily by starting off with a rendition of "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You."

There was one mishap. The cotton tulle dress of actress Marie (The Body) McDonald "caught fire, evidently from a candle. Her husband, shoe manufacturer Harry Karl, extinguished the flame. She wasn't burned, but fainted in the excitement.

The finest imported champagne spouted in a steady stream from an iced fountain. The hungry guests ate pounds and pounds of caviar that retails at $28 a pound.

The Viet Namese companies fought back, but were unable to withstand the overwhelming odds represented by the 1,100 men of the three battalions.

One company extricated itself and retreated to a post at Ae Rieng, six miles to the south.

The Ae Rieng post then itself just beaten back an assault by a company of Vietminh.

Says Hypnotism Not Advisable In Dentistry

TORONTO (CP) — Hypnotism should not be necessary, nor is it advisable, as a substitute for anaesthetics in dentistry, T. Donald B. Moore, of Hamilton, says.

Dr. Moore added that there are no harmful effects from the use of hypnosis by physicians and dentists who have studied the subject, but he hypnotize or stage hypnotists have no place in treating medical or dental patients.

Dr. Moore, who said he does not use hypnotism in his own dental practice, expressed his view on hypnotism in commenting on press reports last month that he had demonstrated the use of hypnotism at a meeting in Toronto of the Ontario Dental Nurses' and Assistants' Association and for the faculty of dentistry at University of Toronto.

At these sessions, he said, he pointed out the difference between psychosomatic relaxation and hypnosis and did not demonstrate the use of hypnotism.

CIVIL DEFENCE SQUADS

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain Wednesday announced a long rather plan to create a reserve of civil defence "flying squads." The blueprint is the government's latest move in a running battle against indifference which began when the war-blitzed city of Coventry last April jettisoned civil defence plans on the grounds that atom and hydrogen weapons make such plans useless.

Thailand Brings Indo-China War Before UN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Over Soviet objections, the UN security council voted today to discuss a Thailand request for a UN peace watchdog commission to study the Indo-China war threat on Thailand's borders. This is the first time the Indo-China war crisis has been put before the UN.

The seven - year conflict thus reached the talking stage in the international organization, whose "moral sanction" State Secretary Dulles has made a condition for U.S. intervention in Indo-China.

The 11-member Security Council was called to examine Thailand's request that, because of the "large-scale fighting" near her borders, military observers be sent to Southeast Asia. Thailand, a member of the UN but not of the Security Council, borders Indo-China on the west.

SOVIETS OPPOSED

Diplomatic sources said the Soviet delegation opposed immediate council debate on the grounds that this might endanger current negotiations in Geneva for a cease-fire in Indo-China, and also the delegation lacked instructions from Moscow.

These sources added, however, that the idea of going ahead with the debate had the approval of more than enough other council members, including the Western Big Three, to put it through. Seven votes are needed to launch a debate, and the big-power veto does not apply.

ALL WE SEE IS PAST

When, three decades or more ago, Bertrand Russell undertook to explain Einstein in "The ABC of Relativity," he promised, somewhere which, had it been circulated in the pool-halls of the nation, would have provoked rhabid laughter or lusty rebellion. Mr. Russell, in an effort to make the coming and going of stars understandable to the layman, declared that billiard balls actually never touch.

What actually happens, he frankly admitted, is "inconceivably complicated." The past three decades, however, have conditioned us to the acceptance of the inconceivable and it is even possible that today the story of the untouching billiard balls would not even raise an eyebrow in the billiard emporiums of the world's more sophisticated cities.

Consider, for instance, the easy manner in which we accept the incredible when these Trenton jets burn around over our Belleville waterfront.

There was a time, just a few years ago, when it was axiomatic that if some machine made a noise, the noise was localized when the machine was seen.

With the coming of the jets, that is no longer true. And we are no longer amazed that it is not true. Subconsciously we have shifted our heads and mutter something to ourselves about the planes travelling faster than the speed of sound. That is not true, either, for if it were the planes would be overhead before we heard them at all. They are, however, preceded by a noisy, high, weak sound which belies their speed and power. If, when we first hear this sound, we look up quickly we shall see the planes sweeping overhead. The noise we have heard is a noise they made many yards away and which they chased swiftly towards us. After the planes are past and are fading in the distance we can still hear the rumble that they made when they were right overhead. What we hear is in the past.

This is nothing new. Every sound that man has heard since the dawn of time has been a sound from the past. But it required the speeding jet to bring this fact home to us, to make us accept it as natural and to force us to revise our earlier conceptions, that if a sound grows louder the source of the sound must be approaching us, if the sound fades the sound-maker must be moving away from us.

What is true of hearing is also true of light. Light travels much faster than sound, but it is still true that it takes time for it to travel from the source to our eyes. Thus, as every sound we hear is a sound from the past, it is also true that no man ever saw anything in the present, that every sight which meets his eyes is a scene from the past.

We accept this fact casually when we hear astronomers talk about suns which are many light-years distant from the earth. The light we see today may have started its journey many centuries ago; the sun which was its source may no longer exist.

But the fact that all scenes are out of the past is more difficult to accept. Perhaps, some day, the science will develop some marvel which will force us to accept this fact as nonchalantly as we accept the sight of a jet fading into the distance while the sound of its passing grows ever louder.

Perhaps, some day in the pool-halls of the nation, the story of the untouching billiard balls will be universally accepted as fact.

SENATE REFORM

George Drew, Progressive-Conservative leader in the House of Commons, says that unless the Senate is reformed Canada will eventually demand its abolition.

Some Canadians, including Mr. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, are already demanding its abolition.

The division, of course, is not strictly on party lines, but it would appear as if the stand of the Senate would determine the issue, even if their lengthy period in power in Ottawa should end. For that reason a report that Prime Minister St. Laurent is considering the Senate ministers may favor non-political appointments is interesting.

Mr. St. Laurent is reported to be leaning toward a plan by which the men selected would be Canadians distinguished for their activities in professional, educational and business life.

The difficulty in any such solution would be to avoid giving active political workers their reward for most men active in such fields also have fairly pronounced political opinions.

It is interesting to speculate on the many ways in which the manner of appointing Senators could be altered.

They could be named, or at least nominated, by the provincial legislatures.

They could be selected to represent various professions.

They could be elected by the people—for life.

They could be elected by the people—for seven years.

Or it could be left to the Senate to think of it, that is probably the only feasible method of making appointments demonstrably free of all political taint, if such freedom is desirable, which is perhaps a debatable point.

THE CYNIC

The American press has made quite an ado about the cat who is nursing a baby rat. The feline killed three in the night, during the American press, for some reason she took a liking to the fourth and adopted it. She nurses the rat along with her own offspring. Says the cynical fellow who doesn't like cats. "She's not being kind. She's just fattening the rat up for later." (Fort William Times-Journal).

OLD FASHIONED FLOWERS

Morning glories, pale of hue,
Candytuft and marigold,
Reaving every wind that blew
Just like faithful friends of old.

Peonies, both red and white,
Blossoming as best they could
Taking every little slight
As a thing they understood.

Such the garden mother made.

"Good old-fashioned flowers," she'd say.
"You don't have to be afraid
Pride will take their love away.

"Give them much or little care,
In your sad and lonely hours
When you need them, they'll be there
Brightening your day with flowers.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The whole art of public speaking has been put on the spot by radio and TV. The public, over a period of twenty-five years, which means the whole generation, has been conditioned by radio to brevity, condensation, conciseness, TV is now further compressing the technique of compression. In former times, all those occasions business was speaking, such as clergymen, politicians, professional speakers in all categories from service clubs up to national conventions, followed the ancient principles of oratory, which included ponderosity, time to build up, to create moods, to set stages and to arrive, by long-winded processes, at the punch line. Now the punch line has to come first, or within a minute or two. Audiences even captive audiences such as church congregations and service club luncheons, are impatient of the old style. They are accustomed, we might even say trained, to fast, concise presentation.

No doubt our conversation has been affected by radio. Domestic conversation, talk around the dinner table, chat in the living room, must have been streamlined by the example set by radio. There is probably a growing impatience with that rambling, idle talking that used to be characteristic of home life. The unexistence we can detect at a public meeting at which a speaker wastes words and time by old-fashioned oratorical effects must be a factor in the change in the style of talk that we feel we have failed to notice. Meals are soon over, soliloquies in the living room are of brief duration, before everybody is on his or her way to more exciting things or to any place else. Unless, of course, there is a TV set in the living room. In which case, the lights are dimmed, sushh is the word, and there we sit, captive fixed, captivated by the rising power of the really monstrous but still million dollar half hour, in which no word dare be wasted, in which meaning has to be compressed as subtly as that every flicker counts.

It may be a good thing, in the end, that so much idle chatter is being pruned from our talk. But a grim end it will be if we arrive at the time when the only words we utter must be words that count.

This Hostess Scorns Food

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

Epicurean purists will be dismayed at, as well as contemptuous of, the new fad in the Washington hostess that she is "not very interested in food"—and not merely from a purely personal point of view, either, but from the point of view of entertainment.

It is indeed a striking commentary on the length to which feminine emancipation has proceeded when a prominent hostess who aspires to entertain some of the cream of Western society, can say that "menus are a matter of routine," and that she is more interested in art, in community life, good citizenship and sports.

Anthem On Bagpipes

(Brantford Expositor)

A windy argument conducted across two continents has broken out in the Canadian Senate. "Can the British National Anthem be played on the bagpipe?" Intertwined is a subsidiary issue, to whether, if it can, it ought to be.

Strictly, this is a matter for the Scots who, with their genius for impressing the world with their own traditional harmless caricatures, have spread the quite erroneous impression that the bagpipe was a Scottish invention and is still almost a Scottish monopoly.

To put the record straight in passing, it might be mentioned that something very like a bagpipe has been found in a 4,000-year-old Egyptian tomb-many case, though there have been ill-willed hints that the find was no musical maker, but an instrument of torture. Then didn't the prophet Daniel have a bagpipe, which some experts say should have been translated as bagpipe?

But coming down out of the mists of remote history, it is incontrovertible fact that the Scots got the bagpipe from the Romans, who, before the days of Nero, in Hadrian's wall, so that the Scots pipers could have something concrete to blow their breath into.

The current dispute is notable for the fierce conclusion between Scots. A Caledonian piper named Charlie Stuart in the Southern Rhodesian town of Salisbury has, it appears beyond question, played the National Anthem, on the bagpipe. There were witnesses to the fact. Their testimony seemed impossible. One who survived the ordeal is a trained musician who says the performance was perfect except for a "flattened seventh" which he could live with an empty fifth. This soul is to be the fourth of the melody which, in the case of a prelude exactly so it is played half a tone flat. But to the average Scot who was a trifle. With a full piping accompaniment to smother it, they claim no one would notice.

All this has apparently reduced the pipers of Scotland to a state of apoplectic incoherence. There's "a novice's trick," "not authentic piping" are some of their epithets—a Glaswegian, lurching into their chanters, clutching their bleeding abdominals and gulping one for the road to the lairs, they are prepared to trade blow for blow and foot for gout in this inharmonious wrangle. A recording of the Rhodesian performance is being flown to Scotland for judgment by the supreme arbiters, the Edinburgh City Police pipe band. After that, of course, there's always the Hague Tribunal.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FRIENDLY TIE-UPS

I cannot conceive of anyone becoming a happy, successful friends—plenty of them. And the greater is variety of friends, the better. We learn of life group friendliness it nature. The herd of sheep, horses, cattle, etc., find them eating in the field all together.

We ought to be very friendly with our opposites. Being so much different from us we can often learn much from them that we don't know. It is very exhilarating to talk or associate with people who think and live differently than we. If we all were about alike there wouldn't be much doing in this world.

We should have friendly tie-ups with groups of people. One of the great advantages of a college education is gained from the friendly tie-ups during those brief years. The future leaders in the world go out from these great institutions of learning. I always enjoy the good fellowship with strangers on boats or railroads. Some of my lifelong friends I've met on railroad trains.

A friend, in many ways, is another self, as well as another existence. We can't live as we should in many friends, selecting them from the variety of those with whom we come in contact from day to day. We can soon learn of those to whom we like to make more permanent friendly tie-ups.

I like the companionship of country people. They are so frank and sincere. And living out in the clean air and sunshine they have a great deal of thinking, and their conclusions are usually sound. I've got some. There are no finer people anywhere than those on our farms and in our small villages. They make great friends. You can tie to them in confidence. The color of the soil is in their nostrils, and the voice of nature is in their hearts.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

RESERVOIRS IN RESERVE

Sometimes under the pressure of extreme excitement or fear, we do things we would never ordinary circumstances would seem impossible. Just recently there was a newspaper account of an 86-pound woman who, when she saw a driverless automobile slipping down her driveway and headed for the street, grabbed the bumper, dug her heels in and held it back. People of frail physical proportions can sometimes bring mountains around, when something of overwhelming value is at stake.

This involves the principle of reserves. There are sometimes days of a strong man that he really doesn't know his own strength. That is true not only of the strong; it is even more true of the weak. There are circumstances of such a character that they call forth a capacity for confronting them causes vast resources of power to be unleashed that we never knew we had. People sometimes bear sorrows that they would have thought impossible for them to endure before the time came when through them. Over the years, brave souls sometimes act with fortitude and patience with reference to situations that they could never have believed themselves capable of confronting in such a spirit.

Deposits of God's love switches on reservoirs of power within our own natures when we are most in need of such power.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

SEVEN YEARS RUNNING.

When a coin, button, pin, whistle, ring, a piece of bone or gristle, metal, wood, glass, stone, blunt or sharp, is inhaled into the "wrong way" there is generally immediate choking and coughing.

If the choking is severe it is good, emergency first aid to grasp the child by the feet and hold him suspended, head down, while you spank with the palm or thump with the fist (not the knuckles) on the spine at the shoulder level. Often this induces expulsion of the foreign body and brings immediate relief to the choking.

If it fails to do so let not more than one-half minute, begin artificial respiration by the Schafer method immediately and do not interrupt it for even a few seconds unless or until a doctor takes over.

If the foreign body is obviously stuck in the back of the throat, try to dislodge it with a finger, but first insert something between the back teeth so your finger will not be bitten.

Sometimes a child chokes on, say, a peanut or a piece of popcorn or some small object, and promptly stops choking and coughing. Then the parent thinks the child is all right, but days, weeks or even months later develops considerable coughing and wheezing and X-ray examination shows the object lodged in windpipe or bronchial tube. The object must be removed by bronchoscope — nowadays, fortunately, there are doctors in every city equipped and skilled to do this, so it is no longer necessary to stage a cross country "race against death", as the reporters of yesteryear loved to call it.

Present Day

Tomorrow is the day that always gets here just after you've got today's various problems all figured out.

Let Scholars Stand Apart

(Edmonton Journal)

At a time when the popularity of the "ivory tower is at its lowest ebb in many years the president of the National Research Council of Canada, Doctor E. W. R. Steacie, has come out boldly in favor of the university-as-distinct from the ivory tower attitude. Today, "the more the university can withdraw even a little from the world, he believes, "the better."

We do not know whether Dr. Steacie believes that Canadian universities have lately been getting away from this attitude, which is certainly the traditional one for institutions of higher learning and one which has been enormously fruitful. But the very fact he has spoken as he has, that he sees a trend away from the ivory tower and feels that trend should be discouraged.

One of the essentials for the operation of a university on the ivory tower basis would seem to be a very large measure of independence from government administration and public opinion. Dr. Steacie appears to be getting at this point when he says:

"I strongly feel that the more a university tries to do what other people want it to do, the less effective it is in doing its own job.

Since our provincial universities are sponsored and financed by the governments of the respective provinces, the independence of the universities will depend on the willingness of governments to leave them alone, and on the determination of boards of governors and presidents to stand firmly upon free and resist all efforts to interfere with policies and practices.

Dr. Steacie's views should command the approval of died-in-the-wool scholars and of all who have the long-term interests of the nation at heart. So long as our universities are staffed by scholars, we need not fear that the deadly inactivity which is behind the quiet facade of the ivory tower. Many a great man of action has found inspiration to commune with his thought; and history is replete with instances of the powerful influence for good exerted by the residents of men in the university tower. In our own time, universities have often been centres of thought and life where the independence of individuals was being beaten down on the streets.

But the universities, some one has confessed, should keep in step with the times. re these times so good? And should the university-like, should such communities of those who thirst for knowledge and understanding adjust to society, or would it be better if they sought after the means of adjusting society?

Railways Not Dying

(Ottawa Citizen)

Caught between trucks on the roads and airplanes in the air, the poor old railways might be excused were they to believe that their day was done. After all, had they not been the kings of transportation for more than a century, and should it not be time to yield place to something new?

Maybe it is, but the railways of Canada are showing little sign of it. Some of the war, they have laid down 144 miles of line between Hamilton and Lynn Lake, Manitoba, to serve a new and rich copper-nickel district. Recently they have been building another 46 miles of track from Kimberley to Kimberley in British Columbia, for the sake of aluminum. They are laying spurs to industrial sites and improving facilities at Steep Rock.

In Ontario, the railways have a road for trucks, that is linking some 300 miles between Seven Islands and Sept Iles, entry to Canada's most fabulous iron ore deposits.

In Newfoundland, meanwhile, money is being spent on fitting the railways into a general railway out of harmony with the rest of the country.

In British Columbia, the provincial government itself has determined after several decades to extend the two loose ends of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway. In Ontario a 15-mile railway is being built from Schreiber (near Peterborough) to serve a nephe-line mine.

Now some two more enterprises (both by the C.N.R.) a sweep into Northern Ontario, one north of which is Lake Chibougamau (total distance, 300 miles); and the other the Lake Superior region, to tap a new mineral development, the Michipicoten wadge.

If the railways are dying, they don't seem to know it. In the post-war years, many hundreds of miles of line have been built or else renovated. Neither airplanes nor trucks apparently, could n've quite filled the transportation gap. Thus railways continue to make their contribution to the growth of Canada, doing what other agencies are still unable to do. They don't seem to have discovered that they are actually archaic.

Asian Problems More Political Than Military

By HENRY C. FRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Indo-China conference of Far Eastern specialists here today to consider the problems of Communist aggression in Asia opened with Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson declaring that Soviet tactics were more political than military.

Ahead of the arrival of chief of their representatives for the U.S., Britain, France, Australia and New Zealand was first for the days of discussion of what might be done to stop Communist gains in southeast Asia, including threatened Indo-China, from falling to Red control.

But any strategy, or any further military commitment by these other countries will be limited to existing or future decisions of state and diplomatic representatives of the five governments.

The military meeting appears necessary because the U.S. state department hoped for. And this was reflected in Wilson's comment Wednesday night upon his retreat from a three-week trip to the Far East.

PROBLEMS POLITICAL

The secretary, saying the problems in Asia are political, became more alert the meeting than he, added:

"I will say that I understand the five-power discussions will be at a high political level. I happen to think most of the problems are on a political level."

Wilson added what the people in the Far East need, Defence Minister Chiang replied: "I think they (Asians) feel that Southeast Asia is a different proposition than East Asia. It's more involved with the remains of colonialism, which also complicates the problem."

Wilson's swing through the Far East did not include visits to Indo-China. But he did say he had talked, among others, with Major-Gen. M. (Tom Mike) O'Daniel, head of the U.S. military assistance group in Indo-China, who flew to Manila to meet the secretary there.

Would Continue Screening Seamen

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate Wednesday passed legislation to allow the federal government to continue screening of Canadian seamen on the Great Lakes and upper St. Lawrence river for security.

The bill, introduced by the government in the Upper House, now goes to the Commons for consideration.

It will continue authority given to the Canada Shipping Act, which lapsed May 31.

WANT NURSE

TORONTO (CP)—Board of control decided Wednesday to ask Prime Minister St. Laurent to invite French nurse Genevieve de Galard-Terraube to tour Canada. The board also decided to accord the "Angel of Dien Bien Phu" a triumphal reception here if she comes.

Nature Would Destroy Beauties of Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—If nature were allowed to take its course the face of Niagara Falls would not change, Resources Minister Jean Lesage said Wednesday.

He was speaking at the opening ceremonies of the $17,300,000 beautification project of the American and Canadian cataracts.

"The American falls would dry up and the Canadian Horseshoe falls would probably become a series of rapids," continual erosion," he added.

Mr. Lesage said the majesty of Niagara should be preserved for posterity and praised the action of the International Joint Commission in making it possible.

John Slosark, undersecretary of the U.S. Army, praised the conservation and the preservation of beauty.

"A desire to co-operate pervades both countries," he said. "Differences are not arguments but problems to be solved."

Reject Effort To Have Commons Control Money

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons Wednesday rejected a final Progressive Conservative attempt to implement effective control over the amount of money in circulation.

Before it did, however, Social Credit Leader Low took exception to remarks that the move is needed to guard against currency manipulations by irresponsible governments in future.

An amendment by J. M. Macdonnell, (PC—Toronto Greenwood) to a government bill revising the Bank of Canada Act was defeated 74 to 16 in a standing vote in which CCF and Social Credit members sided with Liberals in opposing the proposal. The bill was later adopted.

WOULD LIMIT AMOUNT

Mr. Macdonnell's amendment asked that bank notes and deposit liabilities, which determine the amount of money in the economy, should be limited to not more than 10 per cent above the amount outstanding when the act receives royal assent. Further increases in the money supply would have to be approved by parliament.

Finance Minister Abbott said the proposal would introduce an extremely unwise rigidity into the banking system.

Mr. Macdonnell, the Opposition financial critic, said that in future politics might influence banking policy and that an irresponsible government might inflate the currency to win elections.

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Almost 300 persons are drawing unemployment insurance in this district, Harry Brown, local director of the national employment offices, said Wednesday. The total is much higher than usual for this time of year, he said.

1500 Persons Attend Marian Year Rally

CAMPBELLFORD — St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church was the scene of the Marian year rally in this district on Sunday, when 1,500 persons from parishes in Hastings, Norwood, Havelock, Warkworth, Harwood, Wooler and Brighton took part in the services.

A procession, led by the Campbellford Citizens' Band, formed up at the St. Mary's school grounds, and marched to the church. The band, wearing their new colorful uniforms for the first time, led the procession, followed by altar boys from the various district parishes, carrying banner; St. Mary's members of the Girl Guides, under the direction of Mrs. F. W. Collyer; the men and women of the various parishes.

The procession entered the church, which could not accommodate all. Others were able to hear the services outside, by loud speakers spaced throughout the grounds.

The Rev. Richard Bedard, Redemptionist from Brockville, preached the sermon. Arthmael choir comprising the choirs from the participating parishes, under the direction of Father Carroll, of Norwood, with Miss Marie Crosson at the organ, assisted in the services.

Roman Catholic members of the Canadian Legion in Campbellford assisted local police in directing traffic.

Bandsman, Wife, Presented With Lawn Chairs

CAMPBELLFORD — Bandsman Dr. Ross Richardson and his wife, Docky, were honored Thursday night, when they attended the regular band practice in the Legion Hall.

Dr. and Mrs. Richardson will move soon to Port Hope, where Dr. Richardson has purchased a dental practice.

Harold Pierce, president of the band, made a short speech, saying the loss of Dr. Richardson would be felt, not only in the band, but also by the community as a whole, where he has been well liked and respected for many years.

Bandmaster Peter Bateman presented two metal lawn chairs to Dr. and Mrs. Richardson as a farewell gift from the band. Dr. Richardson thanked the members for the gift.

Bandmaster Donald D. Bennett also spoke, saying that the band would miss Dr. Richardson, especially in the cornet section.

A special item was that by Dr. Richardson. A male quartet, Harold Pierce, Peter Edwards, Ross Richardson and Ernie Archer sang a few numbers, with bandmaster Bennett at the piano.

Derby Winner Will Race In Ascot, St. Leger

EPSOM, England (AP)—Trainer Joe Lawson today ran an extra day into the Never Say Die, handsome chestnut winner of the 175th running of the Derby, and said: "Now we go after a mile-and-a-half race at Ascot in July and then the St. Leger."

That means Never Say Die, owned by Robert Sterling Clark of Upperville, Va., is going after a 74-year-old record.

The only American-owned and American-bred colt to win both the Derby and St. Leger stakes was Iroquois, who turned the trick for Pierre Lorillard, a tobacco millionaire, in 1881.

Never Say Die took the first leg here Wednesday with a two-length victory in the mile-and-a-half Derby.

Only 31 colts have won both the Derby and St. Leger. The last one to do it was Tulyar in 1952. The Aga Khan later sold the horse to the Irish national stud for £250,000.

Ontario School for The Deaf 'Visitors' Day' Well Attended

In spite of adverse weather conditions yesterday afternoon, many parents and friends took advantage of "Visitors' Day", at the Ontario School for the Deaf to inspect the exhibition of pupils' work of the academic and vocational classes; to view at first hand the manner of teaching followed throughout the various safe groups; to enjoy the fashion show, and in the evening, the athletic demonstration in the boys' gymnasium.

VISITS CLASSROOMS.

About an hour was spent in the different class rooms, by the groups of five guests, conducted by the senior boys of the school, Peter Klym, Peter DeRose, David Elliot, Mario Micetick, and Burton Foster, watching the teaching methods employed by the patient and brilliant teachers in their endeavor in assisting these handicapped children to take their future places as an integral part of society.

Following the teaching demonstration, a fashion show was held in the school auditorium, by the girls from the sewing and beauty culture classes. This demonstration included children's and sport styles, and party styles.

The stage setting was enhanced this year by a river scene showing a vista of distant purple hills, a tree-bordered river, and in the foreground, a most realistic, three-dimension, beached canoe, most ornately trimmed with bead work and resting beneath a lovely pine. The new blue curtains with their golden-colored fringe added a further touch of beauty.

WELCOMES GUESTS.

Previous to the modelling, Mr. J. G. Demeza, B.A., B.Paed., spoke briefly, extending a cordial welcome to the parents, to the representatives of the Trenton Girl Guides, and to the senior girls from St. Joseph's Convent, Belleville, and to the friends present. Mr. Demeza mentioned that the fashion show was another phase of school life, as was the beauty culture department, and the rhythm band—he intermediate, with this year as its first, and the senior rhythm band.

Following the sprightly rendition of "My Spanish Guitar", arranged by Mr. Alec Gordon, and conducted by a most versatile leader, the fashion show began with two little tots, a little lassie in wine and white check dress with white collar and cuffs, and a little laddie in blue and white blazer effect, and navy blue knee pants.

Another nice outfit was that of a blue ensemble having a full skirt and matching cap. A curvel sport, costume had a rather Chinese touch with long, midgy effect blouse in pink, worn over pale blue slacks, and topped with matching pink and blue jockey cap. A pink halter dress with pink pleats was also effective; an all black, sleeveless dress merited applause, as did the several plaids shown, one with yellow three-quarter puff sleeves; and one with white blouse with long sleeves. Mauve blouses and dresses were also favorites with the girls, as was a jacket dress with matching tiny hat, and a pale velvet dress, worn most chic.

SENIOR RHYTHM

Between the modelling of the juniors and the seniors, the senior rhythm band played the "Overture to Nushka Onawsy," also arranged by Alec Gordon, and played with ease and greatly enjoyed.

The senior styles were all praiseworthy, and demonstrated a soft pastel green with wide wing collar, and full sweep skirt; chartreuse and black in sleeveless style; mauve with necklike and sleeveless; shimmering green floral design in nylon, very pretty; a short sleeve yellow with square neckline and narrow black velvet bow tie; red, full-skirted taffeta and a red velvet also caught the eye.

The exhibits in the girls' gymnasium were exceptionally well done and included social studies, geography, history, travel, samples, of writing, arithmetic, drawing, spelling, reading, geometry, and art work, with fine displays of needle study. The drawings of the Monarch butterfly were outstanding, as were the samples in the intermediate with their clear, crisp coloring.

HOME ECONOMICS

Other displays included 'fire posters'; 'good things to eat', with the home economics drawing much attention. Here were shown samples of canning, tomatoes, pears and peaches. There were also nicely compiled recipe books, and pretty, little placards depicting a turkey, and other fanciful objects.

Sewing from the junior and senior departments was particularly well done, and included embroidered pillow slips, nicely scalloped; fancy dish towels; clothespin bags of fancy cotton bound with colored bias binding; oven mitts; all-over aprons; crib quilt in pink and white and a turkey red apron with pot-holders attached.

Every year the wood working department outshines itself. This year many new pieces of lawn furniture were seen, including a red and yellow chaise lounge with its twin in white linen seats, single and double; a beautiful black and white coffee table; typewriting desk in oak; a full sized play table and four chairs in oak; an artist's kit with division for the oils, brushes, and palette; a television cabinet and book case (built for the school); a sewing cabinet on a stand with swinging sides having compartments for thread; a modernistic desk in oak and plywood, and an utility cabinet in gleaming white.

CONTINENTAL BED HEADS

Besides these and many others shown, the boys had made 20 Continental bed heads for the girls' residence; a manicure table for the beauty parlor with black arborite tops, in all about 200 separate pieces during the school year. The school grounds also had many pieces of the boys' work, as slides, swings, picnic tables, and seats.

A fine row trellis with metal posts and yellow seats was on display; a farm sleigh; a farm wheelbarrow, and metal work including hand-pressed copper trays for fruit; "Marion" and "Jack" similar to the Mechanos sets; feed scoops; laundry supporter baskets, and mice-proof cake boxes. A large size trunk, reinforced with metal bands, and nicely lined with plywood; kitchen stools; original coffee table; African violet plant stands; filing cabinets in metal with easily sliding drawers, and picnic table in red and blue.

INTERESTING DEMONSTRATION

A most interesting demonstration was that of the boys busily engaged in making footstools. Their precision in handling hammer and plane, while the spectators gazed in rapt attention, was just short of marvellous.

A case of finely designed leather goods, such as billfolds, pencil belts, billfolds, and other articles, showed what care had been used in their manufacture, and how cleverly little hands can work when guided aright by conscientious teachers.

A splendid exhibition, concluding another successful year of handiwork at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Furnishings of Royal Yacht Styled With Clean Simplicity

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Canadian women would appreciate the furnishings aboard the royal yacht Britannia.

The clean simplicity of light woods, as a background for gay colored chintzes and contemporary cottons, helps provide a touch popular in North America. The same idea is carried out in the plain carpets, simple brocades and space saving furniture.

The trim, 3,000-ton yacht, built at a cost of £2,100,000, was shown to the press the day after the Windsors Queen returned from her Commonwealth tour. It was clear that the Queen had brought to her apartments the simple, lived-in quality of comfortable informality that has been one of her housewifely traits since early married days.

GREEN POPULAR

Her love of restful greens is perhaps the outstanding feature of the royal quarters. The sitting room, starboard side, has a variation of greens plus an ivory-white ceiling. The walls are a delicate green reminiscent of sea water seen through glass.

A deep settee and chairs, built for comfort rather than fashion, are covered with a cotton chintz patterned in red roses and deep green leaves. Other chairs bear a dull nettle-green cord cover, the carpet is moss green and the natural wood knee-hole desk has a dark green top.

The room's restful femininity is in direct contrast to the Duke of Edinburgh's part-side sitting room, which seems to reflect the vigor and vitality of its athletic owner.

REDWOODS

Light teak walls contrast with the knee-hole desk and other furnishing which are in rich rosy red. These match the red-brown teak handrails that encircle the ship. The duke's easy chair and chairs are covered in off-white knobby fabric with an expensive tweedy look.

The desk top is red leather, the curtains dark navy cotton with white contemporary design and there are two odd dark blue chairs. A dark grey carpet matches the grey marble surrounding the fireplace and tones with the blue grey sides of a large-scale model of the frigate "Magpie," the duke's Royal Navy command after his marriage.

There's green again in the drawing room and ante-room shared by the Royal Family. The mint-green walls, with white sea-shell border, are paler even than those in the sitting room. The lime green brocade curtains on the oblong windows are almost a shock in contrast.

Economy notes are the spindly mahogany chairs from the old royal yacht Victoria and Albert, the seats covered in white and green silk with green French stripes. The same silk tops the long piano stool framing the lines of the baby grand.

There are also card tables and a knee-hole desk from the Victoria and Albert, but the only sign of sovereignty is the royal blue velvet knighting stool, tucked away in a corner.

Guest bedrooms for the ladies have chintz hangings and light wood trim. The men's rooms have red woods and rich brocades. Sir Winston Churchill's bedroom for his night aboard, up the Thames, has navy carpet, ivory brocade and rich red wood.

The stateliest room aboard is the long dining room, which serves twice as a ballroom and cinema, with its mahogany table from the Victoria and Albert. The table can be extended to seat 32 people. The light matching chairs, also from the old yacht, and a few small tables against the wall are the only furniture in the white and gold panelled room.

Local Resident's Granddaughter Graduates As Nurse

The annual celebration of graduation at St. Michael's Hospital School of Nursing, took place in Convocation Hall, University of Toronto on Wednesday. One of the 90 nurses who graduated was Miss Marjorie Hogan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard W. Hughes, of Toronto, and granddaughter, of Mrs. Hughes of Belleville, and of the late Mr. William Hughes.

After the graduation, the Sisters of St. Joseph of St. Michael's Hospital, entertained the graduates and their friends.

Later, a reception was held at 157 Rose Park Drive, Toronto, for Miss Marjorie Hughes.

Trade Should Cure Own Ills

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. H. E. Vaute-let, national president of the Canadian Association of Consumers says that when something goes wrong inside a trade, the trade itself should cure the ill.

"If the small tobacconists are getting a raw deal, it is not the consumers who are giving them the raw deal," she told the annual meeting of the Ontario CAC Wednesday.

She said that 20 per cent of the retailers who claim they are suffering because of price maintenance, wast-ig place the rights of all consumers second to the convenience of their small group. They asked the right to cut off supplies from those who sell at a few cents cheaper an article needed by all consumers.

Mrs. W. B. Harvey, past president of the London branch of the CAC, was elected president of the provincial organization.

Mrs. R. H. Lamb of Hamilton reported total Ontario membership at 6,364, an increase of 34 per cent over last year. The increase was mostly in rural areas where 125 new groups were formed.

Among the vice-presidents elected was Mrs. J. H. Detwiler of Paris, Ont.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

TO TAN OR NOT TO TAN?

Choose now! Are you going to be a nut-brown maid this coming season or are you going to cherish and retain your gardenia complexion? Decoy summer-seekers are impatient to start the tanning campaign. To look like a gypsy is their ambition. As almost as if the bronzed face imparted social distinction, they will not let you join the cult! If you do, then be careful of over-exposure to strong sunlight.

The first exposure should be brief and the skin should be lubricated with a cream or suntan oil. Five minutes by the clock, certainly not more than ten.

Brunettes can take more tanning than blondes, whose skin is delicate and thin. But even the brown-eyed girls must realize that there is a chance that sunburn can lead to blisters, even infection.

When you have acquired a golden skin you can, within reason, disregard your time limits. But if you want to keep your skin soft and supple, with no sign of that leathery look that comes when you make a burnt offering of it, use a protective coating. After your sun bath use a light cleansing cream to cleanse the skin. Never use soap and water immediately after exposure or before going out in the sunlight.

When you sun bathe wear dark glasses. If you don't the unlined area you can use a darker powder there when applying make-up. With the summer complexion it is usually not necessary to use rouge in the daytime. At night the cheeks can be tinted slightly, though it is best not to do that if one is an eye-shadow addict.

A Strawberry Shortcake To Remember

By Mary Moore

Many long years ago when we were bringing a carload of students home after the school year was over in June, one of our springs broke (small wonder) in Illinois and we had to wait while it was repaired.

Everybody was aching to be on their way again, but one boy, Gordon said "As long as I'm home in time for mother's first strawberry shortcake I'll be satisfied."

Twenty years later, in Vancouver, I had the rare privilege of meeting Gordon's mother and of eating her famous shortcake.

Anyone can make a luscious shortcake, but it was the flair with which Mrs. Atkinson did it that made it so sweet a memory to Gordon.

She had an oblong platter, about three inches larger all round than the pan in which she baked the shortcake dough, just giving room for the whipped cream to droop over the edges and for a border of halved large perfect berries. His youngest sister, Belva, was given the honor of bringing it from the kitchen to place before Dr. Atkinson for serving on the china plates decorated with hand-painted strawberries.

Are you building such memory treasures for your children when they are far from home?

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

The Shortcake Dough: Two cups sifted all-purpose or cake flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 6 tablespoons shortening (part butter makes it better), 2-3 to 3-4 cup milk. After measuring the sifted flour, sift it with the sugar, baking powder and salt. Then cut into these dry ingredients the shortening or butter with pastry blender. Quickly stir in the milk to make a soft pliable dough. Choose your baking pan according to the size and shape of the serving dish you like best. The amount fits nicely into 8-inch layer cake tin. Grease the pan and pat half of the dough smoothly into it. Dot with 1 or 2 tablespoons butter and roll out other half on on. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for about 12 to 15 minutes. It requires more than a quart of berries to make this shortcake perfect. So prepare a quart of berries by washing, draining, hulling and slicing or crushing them and sprinkle with about 3-4 cup sugar. Split the shortcake layers apart and spread half between and half on top. Spread top with sweetened stiffly beaten heavy cream and garnish top with perfect berries either half or whole, using additional half or whole berries for a border.

Your cooking reputation can stand unchallenged for years by the manner in which you serve a favorite dessert of this calibre.

STRAWBERRY PRESERVES

Eight cups (2 quarts) perfect strawberries, 6 cups (3 lbs.) granulated sugar, 1-2 teaspoon red food coloring. Select firm, well-ripened berries. Wash and drain them carefully, dry them, remove hulls. Measure and put in large kettle with the sugar and place over low heat and bring slowly to full rolling boil, then boil rapidly for 15 minutes, or to 216 deg. Fahr. Stir occasionally, but do not crush berries when stirring. Remove from heat, skim off scum, add red coloring and stir gently. Pour at once into sterile pint jars and seal with sterile rubbers tops and rings. Store in cool dark place.

While strawberries are expensive they may be stretched by cutting them in halves and making up into fruit cups with sliced bananas and canned sliced peaches. Lovely with uniced chunks of snowy angel cake.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

WHO IS IN THE RECEIVING-LINE . . . AND WHO ISN'T

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

(1) Please tell me the proper order for the receiving-line at our wedding reception. My mother will of course receive. My father who is a wonderful host, prefers not to stand in the receiving-line, maintaining that he will be more "useful" (his word) if he circulates among the guests, thus, he says, being able to be a good host, greeting people, making introductions, and so forth. The bridegroom's mother will be present, and we have invited her to stand in the receiving-line. His father is not living. I'm to have a maid of honor and six bridesmaids.

(2) The best man and ushers don't stand in the line, do they? If not, what are their duties while those in the line are receiving? — Bride

(1.) The receiving - line: first your mother, as hostess, to greet and welcome the guests-next, the bridegroom's mother, the woman guest of honor; then you and your bridegroom (you at the right of the bridegroom); at your right, the maid of honor; and at her right, the bridesmaids.

(2) No, the best man and ushers do not stand in the receiving-line. The best man stands within signaling-distance of the bridegroom, to help promptly on hand to carry out any directions or suggestions from him. The ushers should act as cicerones at the reception, escorting older guests to the receiving-line, directing guests, after they have been received, to the room in which refreshments are to be served, making introductions, carrying out any suggestions your father or mother may graciously seeing that no one is neglected.

NO BIRTH-ANNOUNCEMENTS UNDER THESE BAD CIRCUMSTANCES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am expecting my first baby soon, and I would like to have you tell me what to do about sending out birth announcements. We had chosen, but had not bought, just the kind "we" wanted to send out. But, alas, my husband and I separated three weeks ago, our separation seems tragically final, but as yet it is not generally known. Under these circumstances would it be proper for me to send out birth-announcements? If so, how should they be worded. Is my name only? I should certainly think this would seem strange to those who do not know about our separation. What to do? — Puzzled, L.D.

Under these circumstances you really should not send birth announcements. Ask a kind sister or aunt or cousin, or a close, understanding friend to telephone the news in near and nearby relatives and friends. Then later, when it is convenient for you, write little notes to others.

SMALL, INEXPENSIVE GIFT TO THE BABY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For six years I have been private secretary to a very fine gentleman who was married three years ago, and whose wife is soon to have a baby. I don't know them socially, but my employer's wife is always most gracious over the telephone, and as a matter of fact she told me about the coming of their baby. I would so much like to send some small present for the baby, but I don't want to do anything out of order. What do you think about this? — Rosamond E.

I am sure your employer and his wife would be pleased if you make some little bow to the baby. Of course you mustn't send an expensive or consequential present. Either send a thoughtful little something now, . .or, if you prefer, send to the mother after the baby is born a few flowers and attached to them a little "baby bouquet" of tiny rosebuds and baby's breath.

ON SHOWER INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My dearest friend is planning to give quite a big bridal shower for me. She has asked my cousin for suggestions, as to relatives and friends to be invited. My cousin told me that she had suggested that my friend send invitations to several friends and relatives who live out-of-town and who couldn't possibly attend. I think this just doesn't make sense, and I am terribly disturbed about it. But my cousin insists that sending this invitation is a compliment to the person it is sent to. — Anne S.

You're so right about this. . . sending these shower invitations to out-of-town relatives and friends who couldn't possibly come, "just doesn't make sense." Receiving such an invitation would have no compliment or honor attached to it. It would merely mean, most obviously and most crudely, that the invitation is sent with the great big suggestion that a shower present be sent. . .in the spirit of "Of course we realize you can't come, but how's about sending a shower present?"

DIVORCED PARENTS SHOULD NOT VICTIMIZE THEIR CHILDREN

There is no more contemptible thing in the world for a divorced man and woman to do than to victimize their children by carrying on, through them, their own private fight.

One might I suppose, give such people the benefit of the doubt by saying that this kind of behavior stems more from stupidity than from international cruelty, so far as the child is concerned. They simply don't realize what they're doing.

Yet there are some parents, I am afraid, who are so bitter and so vindictive toward each other that even though they comprehend perfectly the effect on their children, disregard this for the sake of the sadistic pleasure they derive from hitting at each other through their helpless offspring.

To illustrate, let me quote from the letter of a 17-year-old girl who, after telling me that her parents were divorced over a year ago, goes on to say:

"Half the year I'm supposed to live with my mother and half with my father, and I don't know which of them I detest more, because each of them tells me to be the exact opposite about the same thing. Sometimes I think they do this because they just don't want to agree with each other.

"Most of the time I manage all right, but now something has come up that I care about very much and I have to know what to do.

"The problem is that there is a boy, 18 years old, I like very much and while my father says it is all right for me to go with him, my mother has forbidden me to see him.

"Do you think I should just go out with this boy when I am living with my father, and then meet him secretly when I am at my mother's?"

Unfortunately, I am afraid this girl is quite right in thinking that her parents are giving her diametrically opposed instructions about this boy because they can't bear to agree on anything. Keeping their grudge against each other in good working order is more important, to them than their own child's welfare and happiness.

On the other hand, of course, the mother may have a sound reason for her disapproval of the boy as a companion for her daughter, and it may be the father who is unsure at fault. In such a case, the father may simply want to irritate his wife by allowing the girl to see the boy during the time she spends with him.

Whichever way the trouble lies, between them these two have already hurt and bewildered a child whom presumably they love. As time goes on, they may also find that they have irreparably damaged her nervous and emotional development. She would be the loser, not either or both of them, who would have to pay, in "shell shock" and "battle fatigue," for their warfare against each other.

All I can suggest to this pathetic and unhappy girl, caught between a mother and father who won't even get together on their one common interest, is that she try to make sure that this boy is the right sort of friend for her to have, and that, if he is, she continue to see him during the six months she is with her father. Then, if her mother refuses to change her mind and grant permission for the other six months, she should try to persuade the boy that they must wait for other meetings until she is with her father again.

Even though the mother may be the unreasonable one in the controversy, I do not believe it would be wise for these two to meet secretly during the six months the girl is with her mother. Secret meetings furnish fertile soil in which all sorts of unhealthy things may grow, especially where there is a girl as lost and distressed as this one. And even though it may be hard to wait the six months for further meetings, if the boy really cares about her, the separation need not necessarily destroy their friendship. Another year, the girl will be of legal age in her state, to do as she pleases, and while that may seem a long time to her now, if there is any real substance in the friendship, it will certainly survive until then.

Gauguin Pink Is Hit Shade For Summer

PARIS (Reuters)—Gauguin pink a—warm Polynesian shade taken from the sun-drenched canvases of Paul Gauguin, is the hit shade for summer in everything from make-up and bathing suits to town and evening wear.

Combining sheer flattery with high fashion look, this soft and lustrous color has sky-rocketed to the top of the list. Helena Rubenstein launched the harmony in lipstick and nail-polish to coincide with the current showings of boutique and mid-summer clothes.

Jean Dessès bases his entire new bazaar showing on Gauguin pink, including accessories, beachwear and separates. One of the most exciting models is a holiday dress in smoky pink combined with black, on heavy pique. The redingote silhouette is achieved by a white pique binding which also accents the wide neckline.

Other finds in "la pink" are a large collection of bathing suits at the bazaar. Many are styled in keeping with the mood of primitive simplicity of Gauguin's native women. A one-piece model in tex has a wide band inserted across the hipline to achieve the slim Tahitian look.

Mr. Dovey has gone to be with his mother for a while, and Mrs. Dovey is taking the service next Sunday morning at this appointment at 9:30 a.m., and also on Father's Day service June 13th at 11 a.m., instead of 7:30 p.m., as by plan and the pastor asked for all to attend the services if possible.

LOVE'S LABOR LOST

SALFORD, England (CP)—John Marrary, 42-year-old garage man, can't fly his one-man helicopter that took three years and more than £1,000 to build. He was refused a certificate of airworthiness because the construction was not supervised by the air registration board.

Skinny men, women gain 5, 10, 15 lbs.

Get New Pep, Too. Be Thrilled With Results—or Pay Nothing

If you're 5, 10, 15 lbs. under weight, here IS one way to get it. It's a special kind of yeast (not ordinary brewer's yeast) scientifically known as Ayds Vitamin Concentrate. Many users gain pounds, see how much better they look, feel how much more pep they have almost overnight. Ayds are not a "cure-all" for anything. But if you're underweight because you don't eat enough and lack vitamins and minerals, so you're missing delicious meals because of poor appetite and poor digestion, you can't help but benefit from Ayds. Mrs. L. Stewart, Maitland Heights, Ont., writes, "I gained 15 lbs. Tired feeling, no appetite gone, too." Another user, Mrs. Ethel Hall, Cedar Chef, P.Q., writes, "I gained 15 lbs. and feel fine." Still another husband gained 15 lbs. how you!

Don't fear getting really fat. How, when you've gained the 5, 10, 15 or 20 lbs. you wish, Money back if you're not delighted. Ayds are sold on a scientific plan of proper balance nutrition. Getting fat alone is not good when other basics failed. Try Ayds Vitamin Yeast Tablets for new vigor and added pounds, this very day, at all druggists.

During the meeting delegates voted to investigate the possibility of the IODE sponsoring a doctor from India or Pakistan, or a nurse from Pakistan to post-graduate study in Canada.

Mrs. Laurence Grout of Toronto, secretary of "Echoes," the IODE magazine, has been given a national life membership. It was announced. She has served 18 years on the national executive.

Reports from the national Echoes committee, Commonwealth and Empire committee, film committee, and the national education committee were heard Tuesday. Delegates elected national councillors but they will not be announced until the meeting adjourns Thursday.

Baking Powders

Every now and then Mrs. Homemaker picks up a recipe and finds an expression or term about cooking which she does not understand. Of course, some homemakers are fortunate enough to have a food dictionary or a food encyclopedia but there are many others who do not have one and how to find out what the expression means is a problem. In many cities homemakers are fortunate because they can ask for help from the home economists of the excellent home service departments of electrical or gas companies. And, something we found out the other day that is very interesting is that many stores now have a home economist whose job it is to help customers with their buying and cooking problems.

All these home economics services are certainly a great help, but still there are plenty of cities where assistance is just not available and the homemakers living there often are in need of it. One way that they can get help is to write about their food problems to the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture — the home economists are always glad to help.

Two cooking expressions which often confuse homemakers are "single-acting baking powder" and "double-acting baking powder". Just what do these terms mean? There actually are three types of baking powder on the market, all containing baking soda, to furnish the carbon dioxide that leavens the dough or batter, an acid which reacts with the soda to make it give up its carbon dioxide and starch which prevents the powder from reacting in the can before it is used. When the acid which makes the soda work is tartaric acid (a form of tartar we have what is known as a tartrate baking powder. If the acid is phosphate of calcium then the baking powder gets the name of phosphate baking powder. Actually very little baking powder on the market today is the tartrate type, most of it is a phosphate powder. Both these types are what are known as "single-action" baking powders". They liberate their gas fairly rapidly after liquid is added. So, with this type of baking powder it is advisable to work as quickly as possible or much of the gas will be lost in stirring.

Double-acting baking powder is the type which contains not one, but two acid ingredients. It is called "double-acting" because part of the leavening or rising action takes place with the cold moist ingredients and the rest takes place when the product is in the oven. These reactions are fairly slow and so it is spoken of as a slow acting baking powder. And, just a suggestion, when mother is planning to perhaps teach her young daughter to cook or if she is a little inexperienced at it herself she might find that "double-acting" baking powder is a help because it reacts more slowly than the single-acting. She may be a little slow in her preparation and this slow action is what is needed. Not all baking powders mention on the can, what type they are but generally the "double-acting powder" is marked as such on the label.

VINEGAR.

So much for baking powders—now about vinegars. We often see vinegar labelled as cider vinegar, white vinegar, malt vinegar, wine vinegar, or blended vinegar. They are all vinegars but they are not all of the same origin. Cider vinegar is made from the fermented juice of apples, or the cider, whereas malt and wine vinegars are made from the fermented juice of malts and grapes respectively. White vinegar, which used to be called white wine vinegar, shall not contain more than 50 percent by volume. This is the type of vinegar that is recommended by the home economists in some pickle making, because of its "blended" flavor. This type of vinegar is not available in all cities but a homemaker can easily make her own by mixing about equal parts of cider and white vinegar.

The home economists mention that the aroma of the herbs from a kitchen garden can be captured by soaking them in vinegar. And, at anytime of the year, the basil, sage, garlic or thyme vinegar can be used in cooking to bring back those delightful summer flavors.

Abbott Refuses To Give Opinion On Interest Rate

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott declined Wednesday to give a legal opinion on whether chartered banks have a right to levy service charges on loans.

Gordon K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough) told the Commons the Bank Act provides that the interest rate on bank loans must not exceed six per cent. However, he said at least one bank is levying a service charge on loans bringing the rate to 15.44 per cent, and there is doubt that this is legal.

"Well, I am always leery about giving free legal opinions," Mr. Abbott said, "I would not care to express an opinion. It would be a matter for either the banks' or customers' lawyers or the courts in the final analysis to decide whether the bank was or was not complying with the provisions of this section (of the Bank Act)."

"You're too late, Daddy!"

Little tissues with big bowlfuls don't give a pig-tailed whoop that more families ran out of Corn Flakes this morning than any other cereal. But it does happen, because Kellogg's Corn Flakes just naturally taste best to more people. Always have. Still do. No wonder so many women pick up a spare package of Kellogg's Corn Flakes every time they buy any cereal of any kind. It's real good "tomorrow-morning insurance."

Peterborough Native Heads Presbyterians

TORONTO (CP)—Rev. Dr. J. Lewis W. McLean, a British Columbia minister who has spent 34 of his 40 years in the church, was elected moderator of the 80th general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada Wednesday night.

Minister of St. Andrew's Church in Victoria, B. C., he takes over the position from Rev. W. A. Cameron of Toronto.

Dr. McLean was selected on the first ballot as the assembly opened its session. Other nominees were Rev. John R. Waldie of London, Ont.; Rev. Donald MacQueen of Lindsay, Ont., and Rev. T. Owen Hughes of Forest, Ont.

A fifth candidate, Rev. Finlay G. Stewart of Kitchener, Ont., was also nominated but withdrew his name before the election.

Dr. McLean, a native of Peterborough, Ont., was ordained in the Presbyterian ministry in 1930 after graduating from Knox College here. He held charges in Toronto and Leamington, Ont., before he became minister in 1938 of St. Andrew's Church in Victoria, where he still serves.

GIVEN HONORARY DEGREE

Rev. W. A. Cameron, retiring moderator, asked Presbyterians to support the church's war against the forces of materialism and indifference.

He said present-day society is "one in which the kingdom of God is being threatened by an ideology in which the claims of the state come first, in which there is no place for God because there is no need of him."

Suggest Picking Good Churchmen For Jobs Abroad

NORTH BAY (CP) — A minister said Wednesday night the United Church should try to encourage Canadian companies sending men to oversea posts to pick up only those who are good lay members of their own church.

Rev. E. C. Armstrong of Gravenhurst told the Toronto conference of the United Church of Canada at the annual session that some basic training might be given business men before leaving for posts abroad.

He spoke after Rev. Roy Webster of Orillia, former missionary in China, said the church would have to rely more on non-ordained professional men than on ministers for overseas work. Only 10 of 23 posts to be filled this year in mission vacancies by the United Church are for ministers, Mr. Webster said.

Rail Conciliation Group Will Hold Ottawa Hearings

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice Ralph Maybank of Manitoba announced Wednesday future sessions of the federal conciliation board hearing a contract dispute between Canadian National Railways and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers (Ind.) will be held in Ottawa.

Members of the brotherhood are seeking a daily wage boost of $1.25, a five-day week in yard service with no cut in the take-home pay, time-and-a-half for work on statutory holidays and an improved vacation plan.

The company agreed to a five-day week but refused to freeze take-home pay. It rejected the other union demands.

TORCH CAUSED FIRE

ROCKLAND, Ont. (CP)—A garage and service station were destroyed here Tuesday in a fire which was touched off when an acetylene torch caused an explosion in a car under repair. Damage was estimated at $50,000. John Ruper, Jr., son of the garage operator, and a helper were thrown several feet by the blast.

Proposes Senate Study Postal Rates for Papers

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader in the Upper Chamber, suggested Wednesday the Senate look into postal rates on newspapers and periodicals at the next session of Parliament.

He said it would be a public service and also would give senators "some work" on Fridays, Saturdays, Mondays and Tuesdays.

Senator Haig spoke as the Senate gave approval in principle to a bill to amend the post office act aimed at speeding deliveries of periodicals, but with a provision that postal revenues will not be reduced.

Senator Haig, who was critical of an earlier postal bill, said he has been "accused as a pickpocket by most of the newspapers of this country." However, he said he would support the new amendment as being beneficial to people in outlying parts of Canada.

But he added:

"I honestly feel that the Senate should next year examine into the whole postal picture, and find out what is being done about newspapers and periodicals.

"There is a woeful absence of understanding with regard to the regulations affecting the mailing of catalogues . . .

"In my opinion, we owe it to the people of Canada to make a complete investigation of the postal field."

LEGROS REMANDED

TORONTO (CP)—Phil LeGros, 41, Wednesday was remanded without bail to June 9 on charges of receiving $120,000 in stolen bonds, part of a $500,000 loot from a bank robbery at St. Jerome, Que.

Sea Cadet Leader, G. C. Leitch, Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Clifford Leitch, 63, president of two large industrial firms and one of the keenest minds in Canadian business, died Wednesday.

He was president of Toronto Elevators Ltd., and of the Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Co. Ltd., and a director of several other Canadian concerns. He was also widely known for his work with the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps and for service with the Navy League of Canada.

He was a former president of the Ontario section of the navy League, and at his death was honorary president of the national council.

Down Payments On Veterans' Homes Questioned

OTTAWA (CP) — Two veterans, opposed politically, Wednesday questioned a provision for a minimum $800 down payment on homes veterans build partly from their own labor with government financial and technical help.

Lt.-Col. David Croll (L—Toronto Spadina) urged the government to consider abolishing the down payment on veterans homes. He forecast that no down payment eventually will be required on both veterans and civilian houses.

Lt.-Col. Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary North) described the $800 figure as arbitrary and unrelated to the 10 per cent down payment required for civilian houses under the National Housing Act. He suggested there will be cases where the $800 exceeds 10 per cent of the value of the home.

STUDY AMENDMENTS

Both spoke during study by the Commons veterans affairs committee of amendments to the Veterans Land Act. The changes would provide training to give veterans a knowledge of house building, supervision and guidance during construction, interest-free financing during construction and standard plans and drawings and free land service.

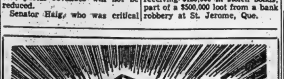
Col Croll said ultimately Canada would reach the stage in her home building program when down payments for both civilian and veteran housing would be abolished.

Colin E. Bennett, parliamentary assistant to Veterans Minister Lapointe, said this question has been studied by the government. It was not thought advisable to have no down payment because without a financial stake in the house being built the tendency was for contracts to be abandoned by the veteran.

Kingston Native Dies

KITCHENER (CP)—George B. McKay, 74, former branch manager of the Bank of Toronto in Kingston, Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg and Kitchener, died in hospital Wednesday after a long illness.

Mr. McKay was born in Kingston and was president of the Ontario Hockey Association from 1927 to 1929.



Surviving are his widow, two sons and a daughter.

Retired Farmer Will Share Prize With 10 Children

Mr. Allard, 68, retired last year and resides in St. Rosaire, 90 miles east of here.

B.C. Govt. May Endeavor To Enforce 1912 Railway Pact With Million Yearly at Stake

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VICTORIA (CP)—British Columbia's Social Credit government has quietly re-opened study of an almost forgotten railway agreement that could spark a not-so-quiet exchange with Ottawa.

The 42-year-old agreement involving the Canadian National Railways and the B.C.-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway contains all the ingredients for a first-class legal and political tangle. At stake is at least $1,000,000 annually in railway revenue.

B. C. Railways Minister Ralph Chetwynd said in an interview that the agreement, designed to run until 1962, is under government study.

But he will give no hint of possible government action.

"All I am prepared to say at this time is that I have a copy of the agreement on my desk right now."

STILL BINDING

Significantly, however, he said the government considers the agreement still binding despite the fact it has never been implemented. He estimated implementation would bring the PGE, which has yet to operate at a profit, $1,000,000 a year in additional revenue.

During the recent legislature session, Mr. Chetwynd hinted that opposition to planned extension of the PGE might be tied in with the agreement signed in 1912 when the PGE was founded to provide a 470-mile link between Vancouver and Prince George. The PGE was to tie in with the old Grand Trunk Pacific system traversing central B.C. from the west coast port of Prince Rupert to Red Pass Junction, near Jasper, Alta.

The controversial clause provided that all Vancouver-destined traffic originating on the Grand Trunk, later taken over by the CNR, was to be routed over the PGE. Reciprocally, all traffic originating on the PGE for eastern points was to move via the Grand Trunk.

But the PGE, originally a private venture, went bankrupt while the line was 80 miles short of Prince George and 40 miles away from Vancouver. Taken over by the provincial government in 1917, it finally reached Prince George two years ago. The final 40-mile stretch from tidewater at Squamish, B.C., to Vancouver is scheduled for completion next year.

Provincial legal authorities say that when the first train chugs out of Vancouver for Prince George sometime in 1955, the PGE will be able to force the CNR to implement the 1912 agreement. Yet the CNR, with its own Prince George-Vancouver line along the North Thompson river, has no need for the PGE. The North Thompson flows into the Fraser river near Lytton.

The $1,000,000 revenue figure used by Mr. Chetwynd and PGE officials is based on traffic on the old Grand Trunk line ending near the Alberta border. Some authorities, however, contend that since the Grand Trunk now is an integral part of the CNR, the agreement can be interpreted to cover CNR lines all across Canada.

WANTED CLAUSES DELETED

Mr. Chetwynd said federal authorities sought elimination of several clauses in the agreement as late as 1950 "so they apparently think it may be binding, too."

Government circles consider it unlikely that B.C. will make any serious attempt to implement the full agreement.

Political observers believe, however, the government may press for a lump-sum settlement from the national-owned line or use the agreement as a lever for more favorable terms when talks are reopened in about a year's time on the Dominion-provincial taxation agreement.

Grattan O'Leary Urges Revision Of Taxing Powers

OTTAWA (CP) — The three-day Eastern Ontario Development Conference has ended with a plea that the provinces get together immediately to draw up plans for a realocation of taxing powers.

M. Grattan O'Leary of Ottawa, chosen by the eastern communities to submit a consolidated brief to the province appealing for greater municipal financial aid, told the conference Wednesday that the plight of municipalities will not be overcome unless the provinces and local governments get more tax revenues from the federal government.

Mr. O'Leary, summing up the views of delegates, described the conference as a "milestone in history and practical application of democracy." He emphasized that it was not a "pressure group" but one designed to bring all the problems out in the open so that they could be discussed by the electorate and cabinet spokesmen. The big problem was that of taxation.

Mayor R. M. Simpson of Arnprior added is a statement that the province should enlarge the taxing powers of municipalities, municipal tax on real property has reached the saturation point.

AGREED ON GRANT

Some conference proposals were turned down by the province, but the government did agree at Wednesday's closing sessions to grant $10,000 a year for a trial period of three years to support the conference-proposed establishment of a permanent Eastern Ontario development association.

Planning Minister Warrender, accepting the brief for premier Frost, said the premier is keenly aware of the tax problem. He recalled that Mr. Frost has said the Ontario-federal tax agreement was only a "stop-gap" measure until something better is worked out.

Earlier, the conference recommended toll roads on some highways as a means of raising road-building money, a provincial request to the federal government for direct education aid and a shift to the province from municipalities public service costs. All were turned down by the provincial government.

One conference committee had planned to suggest a sales tax for education but withdrew the proposal at the last minute. Still, Education Minister Dunlop told reporters the sales tax and a suggested alternative income tax for education were not feasible.

Vertical Takeoff Demonstrated

MOFFETT FIELD, Calif. (AP)—An airplane with a rated speed of 500 miles an hour took off vertically from the floor of a huge dirigible hangar and flew straight up Wednesday in the first public demonstration of a strange new aircraft.

With a veteran test pilot at the controls and lying on his back, the powerful craft swayed and manoeuvred in the canyon-like building for about 12 minutes.

The hangar was chosen for the showing because of its enormous size, which gave the plane enough room to manoeuvre as well as facilities—for anchoring a safety leashes.

The XFY-1 was designed for vertical takeoff and horizontal flying. Thus far it has not been put into horizontal position during flight. Gradually it will be freed from its leashes until horizontal takeof' and level flight are achieved.

Public Works Are Approved

TORONTO (CP) — More than $2,500,000 in public works construction in the province has been approved by the Ontario municipal board.

The projects include three public schools, two high schools, a home for the aged, additions to schools, renovations and a grant to a public hospital.

Heading the list is approval of $750,000 for a new high school to serve the Lincoln and Welland district. Wingham's request for a $650,000 high school was also approved.

DISMISS CHARGES

NEW YORK (AP)—A judge Wednesday dismissed all charges against Walter Thornton, publisher of a model catalogue, accused of fleecing parents of some $600,000 in fees for publishing their children's photographs. Judge Peter T. Farrell dismissed similar charges of conspiracy and larceny against five women who had been associated with Thornton in the model work.

Chiefs of Twenty Indian Tribes Will Assemble

CAP DE LA MADELEINE, Que. (CP)—A riverside shrine in this picturesque Quebec community will be the scene this month of a historic meeting of Indian tribes from the Yukon to the Maritimes.

Chiefs and members of 20 Indian tribes will meet from June 25 to June 26 at Our Lady of the Cape shrine, situated on the shores of the St. Lawrence river, about 75 miles northeast of Montreal. Their meeting will be part of the shrine's Marian Year celebrations —a year in which Roman Catholics pay special homage to the Mother of Jesus.

At a prepared Indian encampment of tents will gather Mallseets Hurons, Montagnais, Mohawks, Algonquins, Crees, Sioux, Blackfeet and Chipewyans. The exact number to attend the meetings is not yet known.

Prior to their arrival in Quebec province June 25, one group of westerners will stay one night at the Canadian Martyr's shrine at Midland, Ont., and another at Ottawa where they will visit the Parliament buildings.

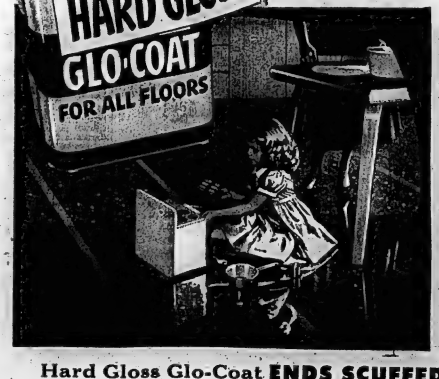
"Nightgowns" for FIRE-FIGHTERS



WIDE-AWAKE FIRE departments may soon be turned out in a new heat-resisting suit built on the general lines of the old-fashioned nightgown. Made of reflective aluminum foil, this outfit gives the hook-and-ladder lads a lot more protection from enormous heat.

Canadian farmers have the same idea when they build their barns of aluminum sheet. Not only is aluminum fire-resistant but it also keeps barns cooler in summer because it reflects the heat of the sun; and in winter reflects back into the barn heat that would otherwise escape. In fact you might say that in the products of Canada's aluminum industry are reflected countless aids to better living—on the farm, in the city, in your own home. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. BANCROFT

Bishop Evans Presides At Confirmation

BANCROFT — The Right Reverend Kenneth C. Evans, Lord Bishop of Ontario, of Kingston, spent the week-end in the district where he was the guest of the Rev. Owen E. Johnston at the Mission House.

On Sunday evening, the Bishop administered the sacrament of confirmation at St. John's Church, when 130 worshippers crowded the church. Altar flowers were placed in memory of Francis McCaw, who was confirmed in the church, and later died serving with the R.C.A.F.

CONFIRMATION

Confirmation candidates were presented by the Rector, who had prepared them. They were, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stanley Hegarth, Mrs. Joyce Snyder, Robert Leon, and Donald Gordon Bruce, John Thomas O'Shaughnessy, Dale Leon Twa, Franklyn Bernard Walker, William Earl Wiggins, Margaret Jean Bowers, Glenda Raye Grover, Glenda Frances Kellar, Betty Marie Latchford, Yvonne Eileen Mountney, Marlene May and Sharon Annabelle Thompson; Eunice Joyce Wiggins and Margaret Jean O'Shaughnessy.

In his sermon, the Bishop emphasized five important duties of a confirmed member of the church, which were, daily prayer, regular attendance at church, support of the work of the church, maintaining the ideal of a Christian family life, and the practice of Christian charity to all men.

PRESENTATIONS

At a reception held in the parish hall the communicants met the bishop and the Girls' Auxiliary festival cup was presented to Bev leader, Mrs. Kellar. The Archdeacon Dobbs Memorial cup, awarded for the highest percentage increase in Sunday School enrollment in the diocese, was presented to Sunday School superintendent, D. C. Stenzell.

Earlier in the day, the bishop celebrated communion at Coe Hill, where a communion breakfast, provided by the ladies, was held in the parish hall.

At 10:15 a.m. Bishop Evans visited Holy Trinity Church, at Maynooth, where he preached at Matins.

Grade Crossings Report Is Made

OTTAWA (CP)—The board of transport commissioners has completed study of grade crossings across Canada and submitted a report.

Transport Minister Chevrier made the announcement Wednesday night in the Commons with an apology to members who attempted to discuss the problem of grade crossings last week during study of transport estimates.

At the time, Mr. Chevrier appealed to the chairman to rule the discussion out of order because the problem was under consideration by the board.

Mr. Chevrier said he was in error. The study had been completed. It was being translated and stencilled and would be distributed soon to members of the Commons and later tabled.

However, it would be impossible to act on the report at this session because of the late date of completion.

Fluoridation Start Is Urged

QUEBEC (CP) — The Canadian Public Health Association Wednesday adopted a resolution urging communities across Canada to start fluoridation of their public water supplies as quickly as possible.

The resolution, adopted during final sessions of the association's three-day annual meeting, recalled that fluoridation as an effective method of reducing tooth decay had been recommended two years ago at the annual meeting.

Noting that there is "no reason to change its former opinion" the association said "valuable time is being lost because of the failure of most Canadian communities to implement—this procedure."

Dr. A. Somerville of Edmonton, Alberta deputy minister of health, was named to succeed Theo.-J. Lafreniere, of Montreal as president of the body.

Oppose Increases

TORONTO (CP) — Members of the Toronto metropolitan council said Wednesday they don't see why metro department heads should receive from $500-to-$3,500-a-year salary boosts proposed yesterday by the council's executive committee.

City and suburban council members said they will oppose the increases and new salary ranges from $8,000 to $24,000 when the schedules come before council for ratification.

Rampaging Indians Overcome Yankee Seven-Run Lead To Win 8-7 In Ten

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

PETERBOROUGH HERE TONIGHT!

If the weather man is in an amiable mood, the Batas tee off against the Peterborough Petes in a Viadact Ontario Baseball League fixture tonight. The game was scheduled when rain forced postponement on Tuesday evening.

The Batas are sitting in third spot in the loop with two wins and as many losses, and they hope to add to the victory string at the expense of the Petes tonight. The Littlockers, behind the fine hurling of young Jerry Frizzelle, 18-year-old right-hander, handed the Oshawa Transporters a raid in some quarters to be the most powerful aggregation in the league, a 5-0 horse-collar the other day, and it could be the young gentleman will take the mound against our side this evening.

While Coach Vern Geyer has not made his pitching selection as yet it is likely he will send Art Wright to the hillton. Wright flung a fine game for eight innings against Toronto Dependables on opening day, whiffing eleven and giving up but three clouts. He weakened in the ninth and was taken out of the game.

The Batas uncorked a batting orgy in Toronto last Sunday, smacking out 24 hits in two abbreviated pastimes, and if their sights are still lined, tonight's game should produce some neat diamond pastiming. Game at 8.30.

"I BEAT HOGAN" DAY!

Little Ben Hogan, winner of the Masters, British Open and Unlited States Open matches his likks artistry against the golfers of the United States and Canada on the third National Golf Day, on Saturday, June 5.

On Saturday night a large number of American and Canadian golfers will strut around the home clubs proudly boasting "I Beat Hogan"—and they will have a medal to prove it.

If you are a golfer you can "Beat Hogan" for a buck. That is all it will cost and it is little enough to pay for a year's boasting around the "19th Hole" or wherever golfers gather for more "holey" than righteous confab.

Pro Charlie Pidutti, Dr. George Faulkner, Ted Parker, Dick Fitzpatrick and the rest of the golfing fraternity at the Bay of Quinte Country Club, are going all out on the "I Beat Hogan" Jamboree.

The facilities of the club's course and pro-shop have been placed at the disposal of the golfing public for the day. All you do is pay one buck to Charlie in the club pro shop—and you're on your way to beat a topnotch champion.

Proceeds of the continental tourney will be divided equally between the Red Cross and the junior branch of the Golf Association. Last year Canada raised $12,000 through the medium of National Golf Day.

You can tee off any time Saturday, and if you can get more golfing fun for a dollar, besides the bragging for a year, then we're from Missouri.

NEGRO STARS COMING!

The Indianapolis Clowns, known in the States as "Those Funny Men of Baseball," and the Negro World Champion Kansas City Monarchs have scheduled an official Negro American League baseball game in Bellerville Exhibition Park, Wednesday night, June 16th. Game time will be 8.30.

This is not an ordinary ball game. It is a super attraction which plays Yankee Stadium, New York City; Fenway Park in Boston; Forbes Field in Pittsburgh; Briggs Stadium, Detroit, and in fact all the big league parks.

The Monarchs and Clowns come here direct from the Stadium in Montreal en route to Maple Leaf Stadium in Toronto. The same players will be seen in action here as appear in all the major league parks.

Not only do these clubs play major league baseball, but they bring along their own clown circus in which practically all the players take part.

Headlining the fun part of the program are three of the zaniest comedians ever seen on any ball diamond. "Circus Clint" Thomas, a World Series entertainer and a ball handling expert deluxe, vies with King Tut, the Clowns' No. 1 mirth provoker, and "Spec" Bebok, a 4' 3" midget, for the fans' plaudits.

Three female stars, who ask no quarter and give none, will be seen in action. Miss Toni Stone entered the game last season as regular second sacker for the Clowns, hitting the ball at a .304 clip while executing fancy plays around the keystone. During the off-season Miss Stone, who helped the Clowns attract over 250,000 fans last season, was sold to the Monarchs for a sum said to be in excess of $20,000. No one connected with Negro major league baseball in the States could understand this move until the Clown management announced the signing of two new girls. One of them, Connie Morgan of Philadelphia, is a second sacker like Miss Stone. The other, Mamie "Peanuts" Johnson is a curve ball pitcher. Toni Stone is a starting player for the Monarchs and one of the real stars.

LAMOTTA THROUGH

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Former middleweight champion Jake Lamotta, 31, abandoned his comeback effort and quit the ring Wednesday because "I'm tired and I'm through making excuses to myself."

Lamotta had been scheduled to meet Ernie Durando next Wednesday night at the Miami Beach Auditorium.

In his last fight here April 14, Lamotta dropped a split decision to Billy Kilgore.

Lamotta was the middleweight title in 1949 from Marcel Cerdan and lost it in 1951 to Sugar Ray Robinson.

Sensational Relief Hurling Holds Champs Scoreless in 9; Four-Baggers Tie, Win Game

By Ben Philegar
Associated Press Sports Writer

It appears more and more as if this Cleveland team really means business. The Indians like it up on top of the American League standing, and they're willing to fight to stay there.

Wednesday night they fought and won their toughest battle so far as they beat New York Yankees 8-7 in a 10-inning struggle at Yankee Stadium—after the Yanks had jumped off to a 7-0 lead in the first inning.

A home run by Bobby Avila tied the score in the ninth and another homer, this time by Al Smith broke it up. What made the comeback even more amazing was the sensational relief pitching of five Indian hurlers, who held the Yankees hitless for nine full innings after the six-hit splurge in the first.

PENNANT THREAT

This ability to fight back against a powerful rival on foreign territory makes Cleveland a solid pennant threat. The Indians have had consistently good teams the last three seasons when they have established second. But they've lacked the spark to fight off the Yankees over the full season.

By winning, the Indians pulled two games in front of Chicago White Sox, who bowed 5-2 to Boston. Baltimore pushed Philadelphia A's into 4th place and saw Detroit take a 9-1 decision. Washington defeated Detroit 7-2.

Brooklyn took first place in the National League by one game over Milwaukee Braves as they shaded it to a 7-6 decision against the Braves in five innings that consumed more than four hours, including rain delays that had to be cause of rain. Philadelphia Phils beat Cincinnati 7-0. It was too cold for Pittsburgh and Chicago in Chicago and too wet in St. Louis for the Cardinals and New York Giants.

RAN INTO STORM

Sandy Consuegra had piled up five straight victories, but he ran into a storm in the first inning at Boston. The White Sox righthander was battered for four runs in the first and his mates couldn't get even against rookie Frank Sullivan and veteran Ellis Kinder. Jackie Jensen's two-run triple was the big blow of the Red Sox' first.

Joe Coleman got another chance to touch his former mates as he registered his fifth victory for Baltimore and his second straight over the Athletics. The Orioles clubbed 14 hits, equalling their best total of the season. Clint Courtney's three-run homer climaxed a six-run rally in the eighth.

Eddie Yost of the Senators played his 700th consecutive game, the longest current streak in baseball. Gobrig of the Yankees ran up his total of 2,130. The occasion was a successful one for the Senators, who bopped on Steve Gromek for six runs in the first four innings for an easy victory over Detroit.

Del Ennis of the Phillies scattered six Cincinnati hits in winning his second shutout and his fifth game. He's been beaten four times.

John J. McGraw, the dynamic baseball leader, resigned as manager of New York Giants 29 years ago today. In 30 years as pilot of the National League club he won 10 pennants and four world series.

Tragedy Halts Little League Baseball Games

CARMANGAY, Alta. (CP)—The death of a 10-year-old boy after being struck by a pitched ball has caused cancellation of all Little League baseball games here until safety helmets arrive for the players.

William David McTavish was struck by a ball while at bat in a league game May 21. He played another two innings but complained that night of a headache. He died the next day in hospital.

Charles Fulton, treasurer of the Carmangay Lions Club, sponsors of Little League teams in the Wheat Belt League, said the helmets—plastic shells that fit under the regular baseball cap—have been ordered from Lethbridge.

Joe Black Has Troubles In International

By The Associated Press

Joe Black, star of Brooklyn Dodgers' pennant-winning drive in 1952, still is having his troubles with Montreal Royals in the International League.

The 30-year-old former relief ace who was the National League's rookie of the year in '52, received his International League first defeat, yesterday night as the Royals were turned back by Richmond Virginians 7-3.

Black compiled a 15-4 record in '52 and a 6-3 mark last year. This season with the Dodgers he was without a decision in five appearances. hurling seven innings in five games, allowing nine runs (all earned), 11 hits (three homers), three walks and three strikeouts He was optioned to the Royals Monday.

SCORED THREE

Richmond scored three runs—two—in the seventh and in the five innings he hurled Joe gave up only four hits, one walk and struck out eight before being relieved by Bob Ludwick.

Hitchcock wrapped up the game with four runs in the eighth inning off Ed Roebuck. Tommy Fine recorded his fourth victory against one defeat, scattering seven hits, walking four and striking out one.

In the other games, Havana Cuban Sugar Kings nipped Ottawa Athletics 4-3 in 10 innings Mike Guerra's sacrifice fly scored John Lipon from third with the winning run.

Buffalo took advantage of six unearned runs in the first inning as the Bisons broke a six-game losing streak by defeating the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs 10-5. The loss dropped the Leafs into a tie with Rochester Red Wings as Syracuse Chiefs headed with the Syracuse Chiefs was postponed because of rain.

Schedule-Maker Was Hunkey Dory Until Boys Discovered His Identity

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Stitching together the major league baseball schedules always has been one of the meanest, most complicated jobs on earth, and there has long been widespread wonder that any one man can have the patience and fortitude to undertake the task. Lately, with the realignment of franchises, the problems connected with the annual headache are just about insoluble.

For more than 25 years the schedules were made out by a somewhat mysterious genius named Clement Schwenger, a retired Boston banker who apparently had loads of time on his hands and a heaven-sent gift for solving riddles.

Though he was willing to pore over his calendars and railroad timetables through every August and nights and eventually arrive at 154 playing dates for each of the 16 clubs, Schwenger stipulated that his name be left out of it.

An angry club-owner, feeling that he had been shortchanged on choice holiday and Sunday dates in his own park, couldn't very well call Schwenger at midnight if he didn't know his name.

TOUGH JOB

Two years ago the man in Boston decided he had wrestled with his last schedule and the onerous job was turned over to Harry Simmons, young and able secretary of the International League. The first circuit-maker in the big-league schedule dreamer-upper, incidentally, is that he has been associated with either major league.

At the moment Simmons is struggling with bad rainouts and weather charts and patching together a master plan for 1955 which he will be expected to present to the respective league magnates meeting here in August. If they run true to form, each of the 16 will submit a number of glaring loopholes or maladjustments and demand changes be made.

The yelps of discontent seem to be louder and more frequent this season than we can recall.

TYPICAL EXAMPLES

Baltimore's emergence as a "western" member of the American League has, of course, thrown that circuit out of kilter. On May 25, for example, the Yankees found themselves rushing to catch a late afternoon train out of Detroit so they could reach Baltimore in time to play a doubleheader the next day. On May 18 the Bombers were back in Chicago for a night game.

The National League complaint is that the schedule is lopsided. Pittsburgh Pirates left Ebbets Field on May 26 and are not due to return there until Sept. 8. New York Giants' last game in Pittsburgh was scheduled for July 4, though they now will have to return there Aug. 10 to play a single rained-out game.

Perhaps it's just that Simmons hasn't yet had 25 years of practice, as the man in Boston had, and that he deserves to be more anonymous. This is the last time we intend to disclose his identity.

Musial 'Knotted Like Pretzel' In Rookie Batting Stance

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Stan Musial's spectacular slugging is no surprise now, but there was a time when baseball experts marveled how he could even hit the ball.

When Stan joined the St. Louis Cardinals in 1941, veteran baseball observers took one look at the 21-year-old rookie's stance and gasped in wonderment.

Leo Ward, the Redbirds' travelling secretary that year, recalled the first time he saw Musial face an opposing pitcher.

"All I could think of then," Ward said, "was how the heck was he ever going to hit the ball?

"KNOTTED LIKE PRETZEL"

"We were playing Boston and Jim Tobin, a canny knuckleball pitcher, was on the mound," Ward recalled. "Stan appeared to be knotted up like a pretzel as he faced him the first time. I remember he managed to hit the ball but it raised a little pop fly to the third baseman for an easy out.

"Two innings later, Musial again came to bat with two men on base. Tobin threw him another knuckler. This time Musial doubled against the right centrefield concrete to score both runners. We won the game 3-2."

Musial is unorthodox. Before squaring off on the left side of the plate, he limbers up with a hula-like motion, bat held above his head, hips and shoulders wagging. Before the pitch, he goes into a crouch in the far outside corner of the batter's box, stands motionless as a statue, feet close together, knees bent, body slanted forward.

CHANGED STANCE OFTEN

Musial chuckled when the subject of his batting stance was brought up.

"It looks awkward, doesn't it?" he asked, grinning. "I don't exactly know where or when or how I started hitting that way. I think it picked up the pattern when I first came up to the big leagues. I made changes in my stance as I went along. I did that in order to get a better look at the ball. . . to protect the plate better."

Most fans wonder how Musial can reach an outside pitch when his left foot, for the outside corner of the batter's box. Does he shift his feet?

"Baseball is a game of speed," Stan explained. "On a fast ball you haven't time to shift your feet. But relaxation makes it possible to put your arms and shoulders into the swing. I use the same foot spread on an outside pitch as one on an inside—unless a slow ball is coming. Then I may shift my feet.

"I've got a mental picture of a strike zone just in front of the plate, and it is when the pitch is there that I decide where to swing—whether to punch or pull, push or slice."

John Rutherford On Way Down

MONTREAL (CP)—John Rutherford, Canadian-born righthanded pitcher was sent on option to St. Paul of the American Association Wednesday by the Montreal Royals of the International League.

Rutherford, 29-year-old native of Belleville, Ont., had a record of five victories and one loss with the Royals so far this year. He spent last year with Newport News, Va., and Fort Worth, Tex., in the Brooklyn Dodgers' chain.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Anybody who says there is no luck in duplicate bridge is crazy. Duplicate is where all tables play the same hands. So, it is not a question of getting the best cards that count.

Plenty of luck is there in the kind of opponents you have on certain hands. Some opponents will bid incorrectly and get into a wrong contract that happens to work for them.

In the middle of a match came the deal you see here:

NORTH
♠ A K 8 7 3 2
♥ 9 8 5
♦ 9 8 5
♣ 8 6 7

WEST
♠ K 10 7 6 2
♥ Q 10 6
♦ K 6 4
♣ Q 4

EAST
♥ 6 5
♦ Q 10 7 2
♣ A 10 9 5 3

SOUTH
♠ Q 8 5 4 3
♥ 9 4
♦ Q 5 2
♣ J 5 2

The pair of gals who played against us got into a contract of four spades. Not because they knew it would make. But because they were in the habit of never stopping at a part score.

Against a stronger pair, my partner might have considered a sacrifice bid of five hearts. But there was a chance they would not play it right. And I was happy about it with my south trumps.

With west as declarer my partner in north ducked two hearts and led a third heart because of my come-on signals. It would suit me fine to have the dummy ruff with one of the high trumps there.

But dummy stuffed a club and I stuffed with the three of spades. My return, a small diamond, hoping to fool her into thinking my partner had the queen. Since enough she went up with the king and returned a trump that was won with dummy ace.

Spade jack was returned and I ducked. She let it ride and led diamond jack which I ducked. She let that ride, too. Then a small diamond was won with her ace and we still had only two tricks.

She then cashed spade king, stuffing a club. Now she led one of her two remaining trumps, which I won. But she then got in dummy with club ace and stuffed her club queen on dummy fourth diamond.

I still don't know whether she knew she was playing it like a master. She looked so dazed, she left me that way, too.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The fabulous Rin Tin Tin is ready to romp to what may be his greatest fame—as a television star.

Screen Gems is preparing a TV film series called "The Adventures of Rin Tin Tin," and it will probably be hitting the home screens in the fall. When it does, a new generation will be hearing the heroics of a star that thrilled their parents a couple of decades ago.

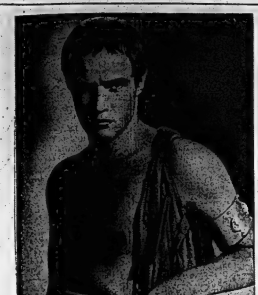
GREAT-GRANDSON

Well, not the same star exactly. The incumbent is Rin Tin Tin IV, whose great-grandfather drew millions of dollars to theatres in the silent days. I learned the story of the famed German shepherd from his owner, Lee Duncan.

Duncan rescued a dog in France in the First World War, and called it Rin Tin Tin, "after the little good-luck dolls the French women made and sold for charity."

After he came home, a friend, William Desmond, was making a movie at Universal. "They needed a dog and he suggested mine. We were to stay only a few days on the picture at $25 a day, but ended up staying six weeks.

SAVED WARNER BROS.



"That gave me an idea of making a picture with Rin Tin Tin. I went to Warner Brothers and they liked the idea. But by the time we spent $35,000, they ran out of money. I managed to borrow some more. The picture 'Where the North Begins' in 1923 cost $135,000 and grossed $352,000. Rin Tin Tin saved the Warner Brothers from bankruptcy."

The talented dog was a star for 10 years, earning as much as $3,000 a week. The original Rin Tin Tin lived to 14 years, still doing his own vigorous stunts to the end. A son took over. In the early '30s, Duncan decided he had enough of the Hollywood life and retired to a ranch on his earnings.

During the war, he was busy training dogs for the army. In 1947 he brought out "The Return of Rin Tin Tin" starring the third in the line. Now No. 4, who is three years old, is being groomed as a TV star. And Duncan is bringing along a bright puppy of three months as a possible successor.

BARONESS DIES

LONDON (Reuters) — Baroness Denman, whose career-list Women's Land Army gave British agriculture a vital boost during the Second World War, died here Wednesday. She was 69.

AT THE CAPITOL—Marlon Brando offers one of the year's outstanding screen performances in the dramatic role of Mark Anthony in "Julius Caesar". The dynamic young actor, who startled the stardom with his portrayal of Stanley Kowalski in "A Street Car Named Desire", now plays his Shakespearean role as the flawless avenger of Cesar's assassination. Also starring in the spectacular M-G-M. production are James Mason, John Gielgud, Louis Calhern, Edmond O'Brien and Deborah Kerr. "Julius Caesar" will be held over at the Capitol Theatre for an indefinite period. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 7-8-9-10. Special daily matinee starting Monday at 1.30, Tuesday at 2.30, Wednesday at 2.30 and Thursday at 2.30.

'Casanova's Big Night' Scores As Terrific Bob Hope Fun Fest.

A Bob Hope film always offers the best in motion picture entertainment and his latest excursion into unbridled merriment, Paramount's gay technicolor masquerade of mirth and romance, "Casanova's Big Night", which opened last night at the Belle Theatre, is no exception. In this fanciful fun frolic set in 18th century Italy, bumbling Bob portrays an impoverished inn keeper who will aim in life is to be agreat lover.

Naturally, Bob gets his chance. Casanova, the world's most fabulous lady killer, generously lends his horse. Donning Casanova's clothes, Bob is mistaken for the celebrated Casanova and soon finds himself in the midst of a plot to test the affections of a Duke's fiancee in the romantic city of Venice. If he is successful he will earn enough money to pay off Casanova's indebtedness.

Helping him earn this much needed money is Joan Fontaine, the town's beautiful grocery woman and Basil Rathbone, the real Casanova's rival. The oddly assorted trio set off to Venice to get involved in the wackiest, wildest adventures ever dished on the motion picture screen. Besides wooing every girl in sight, fighting a duel, with Italy's greatest swordsman, conquering all of the villians and winning the winsome Miss Fontaine for himself Bob, manages to sing and evoke a continuous flow of merriment.

Produced on a large scale by Paul Jones, "Casanova's Big Night" is replete with lavish settings strikingly colorful costumes and a gigantic cast. Besides Mr. Hope Joan Fontaine and Basil Rathbone, on hand are Audrey Dalton, Hugh Marlowe, Lloyd Carradine, Arnold Moss, Primo Carnera and many many others.

Bob Hope has never been seen to better advantage. His Millions of fans will glory in his impersonation of Casanova. It is comedy at his best. Joan Fontaine, as the love of his life, is an excellent foil—and is wonderfully adept as a comedienne.

All in all, "Casanova's Big Night" emerges as a splendid, flerous celluloid treat that tickles and be-dazzles the scenes and is guaranteed to chase away the blues.

BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN THEATRE.

"REACHING FROM HEAVEN"

The basic motion picture to be shown in Belleville during the year is that entitled "Reaching From Heaven," currently on the screen at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. It is best from the standpoint of the powerful impact that it leaves upon the audience. Minsters will agree that it provides a magnificent sermon.

The picture is great because it knocks human selfishness into a cocked hat because it leaves avarice and greed without a leg to stand upon, because it makes hypocrisy and sham feel like hiding, because it places child-like faith in the goodness of God in its proper perspective, because it lifts prayer to that level to which it rightfully belongs, because it teaches that Christianity is a seven-day business, not just Sunday, because it exalts the practical and realistic in Christian living, because it exemplifies the teaching of Saint James, "Be ye doers of the word and not hearers only."

If you wish to be lifted out of the hum-drum of materialistic living and get a glimpse of what God intended in the brief span of years allotted to us on earth, see this picture.

SIX INDIAN BEAUTIES BOW IN 'ROGUE RIVER'

The six most beautiful Indian girls in America, winners of a nationwide contest sponsored by Columbia Pictures, make their motion picture debuts in Columbia's action-packed Western epic, "Battle of Rogue River," starring George Montgomery and featuring Richard Denning and Martha Hyer at the McCarthy Theatre on Friday in color by Technicolor.

The bevy of Indian or part-Indian girls, all of whom are between the ages of 18 and 22, were discovered after a search had been conducted among the far-flung Indian tribes of this country.

The girls were chosen through a series of elaborate elimination contests. The six winners were picked not only for beauty, but also for talent.

The lucky secret are Ada Ellis abeth Deer, a Manominee, from Keshena; Wit.; Gayla Jean Jackson, a Sioux from Kayle, S. D.; Nakita L. Lester, part Choctaw — part Chickasaw, from Oklahoma City; Charlotte Markham, a Cherokee, from Tulsa, Oklahoma; Beulah Melvin, a Navajo from Fort Defiance, Arizona; and Cecile Hoover Roberts, a Chickasaw from Norman, Oklahoma.

"Battle of Rogue River" was penned for the screen by Douglas Heyes from a story by Mr. Heyes. William Castle directed for producer Sam Katzman.

Cut-Rate Dealer In Appliances Defends Role

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Association of Radio-Television and Appliance Dealers and a cut-rate dealer clashed Wednesday over the place cut-rate houses have in the retail world.

E. F. Black, president of Eddie Black Ltd., Toronto appliance dealers, said before the federal restrictive trade commission that retail-rate houses are here . . . to stay."

The association, in a brief presented by Wilf Hodgins, secretary-manager, claimed that any increase in cut-rate houses "will no doubt shake the economy of our country."

Mr. Black said his 24-year-old business turned into a cut-rate house not by choice but because it had to meet the new trend.

RATS BENEFITS PUBLIC

"We believe the cut rate is of benefit to the public by reason of low prices which result in the selling of brand names. At the same time it renders a service to the manufacturer because cut - rate houses usually are an outlet to move large quantities of inventory."

In his defence of cut-rate houses, Mr. Black attacked firms which use "vicious" forms of advertising which tend to confuse the public. Appliances are advertised when in reality the dealer does not have them in stock but uses the advertisements to lure customers into the store.

Shakespearean Festival at Stratford Will Open Soon for Another Season

By ROBERT TANNER

In just over three weeks time, on June 29th to be exact, the second Stratford Shakespearean Festival will open its doors to an eager and expectant public. With last year's festival still a glittering memory in the minds of so many people, the organizers realize that neither this year nor for many years to come will they be able to rest on their laurels, but instead must strive each year for higher and greater things, until at last the festival is established as the outstanding theatrical event of the North American Continent, perhaps of the world.

There is no doubt that the 1953 festival was a success, both artistically and financially, beyond the dreams of its sponsors. With a cast of 80, all but four of whom were Canadian, two Shakespeare plays were presented to capacity houses with a total attendance of 60,800 performances which won the excited acclaim of great drama critics and general public alike. At the end of the season, after starting from nothing, the Festival Foundation possessed a well-equipped theatre of extremely novel design, fully paid for except for the amazingly small operating deficit of just over $4,000. In the words of Prime Minister St. Laurent, it was something that redounded to the credit of the whole Canadian people.

CONFIDENT OF FUTURE

What of 1954? The organizers are again demonstrating their faith in Canadian actors and actresses, since this year only two imported stars will head the otherwise Canadian cast. In an expanded program of three plays, two by Shakespeare and one from Ancient Greece, James Mason, famous to most for his superb acting in both British and American films, and Douglas Campbell, who made such a hit in the comic role of Parolles last year, will play the male leads. Female leads are in Canadian hands, those of Eleanor Stuart from Montreal, Frances Hyland from Regina and Barbara Chilcott from Toronto. It would be invidious to single out any other names for special mention, but a glance over the complete list is enough to assure any student of Canadian Theatre that the supporting roles will be filled just as well, if not better, than they were last year.

On the directing side, Stratford is extremely fortunate in having the great genius of Dr. Tyrone Guthrie again at their disposal in the direction of "The Taming of the Shrew" and "Oedipus Rex" by Sophocles, as translated by the Irish poet and Nobel prize winner William Butler Yeats. The second Shakespeare play, "Measure for Measure", will be directed by Cecil Clarke, who has been associated with Dr. Guthrie for many years and acted as stage manager for the 1953 festival. All three plays, therefore, are assured of extremely interesting and intelligent treatment.

TENT THEATRE IMPROVED

The strange new tent theatre, designed last year by Miss Tanya Moiseiwitsch, in which the main acting area projects into the middle of the audience, none of whom is further than 35 feet from the stage, has undergone some improvements. The two huge tent poles, which last year restricted the seating to some extent, have been removed and replaced by two steel towers outside the tent, which as a result now seats an audience of 1900. In addition, a ventilation system has been installed which should greatly add to the comfort of both audience and actors on hot July afternoons. The approaches and surroundings of the theatre have been landscaped to give it an exterior appearance as pleasing and impressive as its interior.

The Festival office reports that so far advanced ticket sales have far exceeded last year's figures and that once again capacity houses seem to be assured. It is interesting to note that 75 per cent of the requests for seats have come from Canadians, with every province represented, so that the festival has already achieved national proportions. An interesting development is to be found in the arrangements which have been made by the Canadian National Railways to allow theatre seats to be purchased at any ticket office, another indication of the widening importance of the festival.

Space does not permit more than a brief mention of the associated events which have been arranged, such as the theatrical exhibition brought over from England to Stratford to display the evolution of stage design, or the course in drama lasting two and one-half weeks, which, it is hoped, will lead to the formation of a fully fledged theatre school within the next year or so.

In and around Stratford, and especially the blue and terra cotta tent, the excitement is mounting as the first night approaches. Drama critics from various corners of the world are already making their reservations, and lovers of the theatre are preparing to descend upon Stratford in their thousands to see what Messrs. Guthrie, Clarke and Mason have in store for them. To this gallant trio, and to all those who are standing behind them to uphold the honor of Canadian theatre, let us say, "We wish you well."

Eldorado Farmer Hit by Police Car, Instantly Killed

Bernard Carman, 51, Struck Stepping Away From Car

Bernard Carman, 51, Eldorado district farmer, was instantly killed—Thursday night, when struck by an Ontario Provincial Police cruiser in front of the Orange Hall on Highway 62, one and a half miles north of Eldorado. Eldorado is about six miles north of Madoc.

Police said the cruiser, driven by constable Arthur Holmes, stationed at Madoc, struck Carman when he stepped in front of the car after talking with the driver of a car parked along the road.

LIGHTS BLIND OFFICER

Lights from a car parked across the road blinded the officer and he failed to see Carman until it was too late. He swerved sharply to the left but the right headlamp caught the man and threw him to the roadway.

The mishap took place shortly after 11 o'clock and just after the lights on Highway 62 were lit.

Mr. Carman had been speaking with Albert Hagerman, who was parked on the east side of the highway and had turned to cross the highway to where his brother's car was parked almost directly opposite, when he was struck by the cruiser. Carman had attended the lodge meeting with his brother, Everard, and was intending to ride home with him.

Police said no charges would be laid following the mishap.

An inquest has been ordered by Coroner Dr. S. E. Beatty.

Bernard Wesley Carman, R.R. 1, Eldorado, was born in Madoc township, the son of Mrs. Carman and the late Collingwood Carman and has lived his whole life in that area.

In addition to his mother, he is survived by his wife, the former Vivian Clemens, and by two daughters, Beulah, 19 Barbara, 18, and Wilma, 16, all at home. He had no sons.

Also surviving are six sisters, Mrs. Percy Arthur and Mrs. Roy Carman of Marmora, and Everard, Sydney and Ezra Carman of Madoc township.

The deceased was a farmer, a member of Union United Church, Eldorado; Eldorado L.O.L. 517, and R.A.F. Lodge, Madoc.

Funeral arrangements had not been made at press time.

District-attorney Frank Hogan, Manhattan chief assistant, said he had no comment.

Jones, described at his hotel by the Associated Press, expressed surprise at the report.

"I haven't heard about it," the California fighter said. "My manager, Bob Meistal, showed it to me in the paper. Nothing like that ever happened."

"I've been contacted Jones on separate occasions in his room in the Plymouth hotel early this week. it was learned.

The fighter said he never saw either of the would-be bribers before, and ordered them out of his room.

'QUITE A NUMBER' OF SECURITY RISKS FOUND IN FORCES

St. Laurent Defends Screening Process

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's security screen has brought about the discharge of "quite a number" of men from the armed services but "not very many" from the civil service.

Prime Minister St. Laurent gave that information to the Commons Thursday in a statement which also said the government is guarding against attempts by foreign powers to obtain secret information.

He defended the government's security screening system after it was described as "McCarthyism" by Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops).

Mr. St. Laurent said quite a number of servicemen, screened after enlistment, "were found to be persons that it was felt preferable not to have in the armed forces."

"But in the civilian departments of government, there have not been very many".

COUNTRIES NOT NAMED

In his reference to foreign countries, which he did not name, Mr. St. Laurent said:

"We have got to assume that there are efforts made by foreign powers to obtain through their espionage or intelligence services information which they think they should not have."

Mr. St. Laurent who could say whether Canada's security system is effective were the persons to be investigated actually reported.

Mr. St. Laurent rejected Mr. Fulton's plea that he make several times earlier this session—for figures on security transfers and dismissals.

Mr. Fulton, speaking during an all-day discussion on justice department estimates, criticized the screening system as open to the abuse of McCarthyism.

URGES APPEAL BOARD

He said civil servants suspected of security risks have no chance to clear themselves of suspicion. And in discharging men for reliability, the government had accepted the principle of guilt by association.

There should be some sort of appeal board for civil servants to present their case before a cabinet minister similar to that existing in U.K.

As shown by British experience, many civil servants, given a chance, could give a satisfactory explanation of the charges against them.

The government's refusal to provide information about the screening system was unreasonable and dangerous, because only then could determine its effectiveness and the easily could be in the dark. The government alliance was that the system was ineffective.

APPEAL BOARD REJECTED

Mr. St. Laurent said the government has carefully considered the question of an appeal system. However, it made every attempt to be fair and no member could point to a single case of unfairness.

There was no room for guilt by association, since security was not a question of guilt but innocence. Furthermore, security involved solidity of character and discretion. No trial was necessary to determine the amount of confidence the government was prepared to place in an individual.

Grandson of Hindu Priest Ordained Presbyterian Pastor in United Church

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — The grandson of a Hindu priest and the son of Roman Catholic parents was ordained a Presbyterian minister Friday night by a minister of the United Church of Canada.

Rev Cyril Fitzroy Beharry, 34, of Trinidad was ordained at 11 and ordained at the Toronto conference of the United Church of Canada. Twenty-five others were ordained ministers of the United Church.

Mr. Beharry's grandfather, a Hindu priest, went to the sugar cane plantations of Trinidad when East Indian laborers just before the turn of the century. His parents were converted to the Roman Catholic faith. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church of Trinidad.

Other ministers ordained Thursday night in Trinity Church, North Bay's oldest Protestant church, included J. H. Duke of St. Mary's Ont., and R. B. Vanstone of Owen Sound.

Rival for King Tut Found In Oldest Untouched Tomb

By ROBERT HEWETT

CAIRO (AP)—Discovery of the oldest untouched tomb of one of ancient Egypt's pharaohs was announced Thursday night by an Egyptian archaeologist.

The tomb, containing a sarcophagus of reddish alabaster, is believed to be that of Sankhet, of the third dynasty, who ruled Egypt about 3750 B.C.

The tomb was discovered at Saqkara, about 30 miles south of the Giza pyramids where other antiquarians are in the process of uncovering the solar boats which Pharoah Cheops, of the fourth dynasty, is presumed to have built to carry him on his journeys after death.

The tomb was discovered Monday by Zakaria Goneim, chief inspector for the Egyptian antiquities department.

The sarcophagus is about six feet long and slightly more than two feet wide. The lid is of solid alabaster and the mummy was placed inside through an aperture at the end. This opening was closed by a sliding alabaster panel.

"We are unable to find inside the sarcophagus a coffin of solid gold, or possibly of wood covered with thick sheets of gold," Goneim said.

Goneim has been digging at Sakkara since 1951. Last December he unearthed there the remnants of an unlinished "step" pyramid buried beneath the desert sands.

Goneim said he find is undoubtedly the most important since the discovery of the tomb of Tutankhamen's tomb in 1922" and possibly more so because the Sakkara burial ruled about 1,200 years before Tutankhamen.

The discoverer of the Cheops solar boats, 32-year-old Kamal El Malakh, also is claiming that his find is more important even than King Tut's tomb.

So far, the only intact tombs discovered in Egypt are King Tut's, the 18th dynasty, and lesser tombs of kings of the 22nd dynasty of Tanis.

Thousands of others discovered have been looted by ancient grave robbers who stripped them of their gold and jewels.

Goneim said: "It was only by lucky chance that this tomb escape being looted."

Stoic Indians Winners Over Lie Detector

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—The tales about stoic Indians are not just legend. The vanishing American is actually poker-faced all right.

"It's an amazing thing, but it's unmistakably true," said E. H. Donahue, state mental health director who has conducted lie-detector tests on several Indians.

The full-bloods defy all theories of emotional and galvanic response on which the polygraph lie detector is based.

Every Indian tested here has shown nil," said the veteran psychiatrist. "We got no results at all. The graph just runs along with no quivers at all. We think it's because of their very stoic nature.

Christmas Tree Bauble Found Inside Johnny

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Little Johnny Feliek's trouble began under the Christmas tree five months ago when he picked up an apple from his sister, Kathy.

Kathy grabbed it back. Johnny snatched. And the apple proved and choked. His father patted him on the back and out popped an apple seed.

But the 10-month-old youngster wouldn't stop wheezing. He developed allergies and pneumonia. His condition grew worse.

Thursday doctors slipped a tube with a light on it into Johnny's throat, they removed a tiny cone-shaped Christmas tree ornament. Now Johnny feels fine.

Government Will Distribute 300,000 Radiation Detectors

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP) — The government will distribute 300,000 Canadians pencil-like instruments which detect and measure atomic radiation.

The small device, which clips in the pocket like a pencil and is known as a "dosimeter" was shown to members of Parliament who visited Canada's civil defence centre here Thursday.

Maj.-Gen. Frank Worthington, chief defence director, said it is planned to issue a dosimeter to one of every 50 Canadians. The instruments will be issued to these persons to measure radiation present at a time of attack and thus warn them away from radio-active areas.

The dosimeters would be distributed among wardens who would see that they are properly trained in civil defence.

Jack Wallace, chief instructor at the centre, told the MPs that radiation from nuclear weapons "is the least of our worries" as shock and heat from a nuclear explosion were worse.

He said the effects of radiation have been highly over-exaggerated and "built up out of all proportion."

A person in the open 1,400 yards from the centre of an atomic explosion would be killed by radiation if not by shock or heat. In the basement of a building at that distance, a person would be relatively safe from radiation.

Britons Think U.S. Takes Communism Too Seriously

EDITOR'S NOTE: As American reporter in this article seeks to explain why Britain's approach to the problem of communism differs from that of the United States.

By DON WHITEHEAD

LONDON (AP)—Is there a fear of communism in the United States that spills far beyond the bounds of good reason? The British people are convinced there is.

Some Americans think Britons are too soft and their policy is pondering on appeasement of the Communists. On the contrary, the good many Britons think the American attitude is too hard and that it is dictated by unreasonable fear, and that it carries a threat of starting another war.

There is to be found in this country, too, considerable sympathy (vocurious to an American) which seems to accept the British Communist party as the equal of the Labor Party and has no dangerous connection with Soviet espionage. Reynolds and Lt.-Col. Gerard M. Chaney, U.S. Air Force, Wright Field center near Dayton, Ohio.

Last April 25, Bell Telephone Co. unveiled a solar battery which converts sunlight into electricity through silicon transistors. Light striking razor-thin strips of silicon creates a flow of electric current in atoms in the strips.

Both the Bell device and the air force generator supply 6 volts of power up the energy taken from the sun.

This thinking was not an isolated case. The same thought cropped out in several interviews with Britons—that the loyalty to Russia can be taken for granted where loyalty to the U.S. is at least open to suspicion.

Britain's own Communist spy cases have not shaken the faith of the people in the loyalty and integrity of their government employees nor have they touched off the stormy debates and investigations such as those now familiar to Americans.

Only recently, Prime Minister Churchill rejected as unnecessary a suggestion for an inquiry into communism in Britain. British leaders—both Tories and Socialists alike—minimize the danger, the problem of subversives, loyalty suspects and espionage as not existing in Britain without making it a political issue.

The British see nothing dangerous in permitting Communists to mount their soapbox and openly advocate the overthrow of the government—as long as they don't actually incite anyone to help it.

"That is where we have a safety valve that you haven't got in America," one Briton said. "We think it's better to let them blow off steam in public where it happens, all the talk is just a damp squib and they look silly."

GEN. PAUL ELY TO LEAD FRENCH IN INDO-CHINA

Chief of Staff Given Double-Barrelled Job

By CARL HARTMAN

PARIS (AP) — France has ordered Gen. Paul Ely, armed forces chief of staff, to the double-barrelled job of military and political chief in Indo-China. By putting a new man in the combined command, Premier Joseph Laniel's cabinet hopes to bolster the sagging defenses of the revolt-torn country.

Ely, 56, replaces Gen. Henri Navarre as military commander-in-chief and Maurice Dejean as commissioner - general of Indo-China. Navarre particularly has been a major target of criticism since the fall of Dien Bien Phu.

Ely recently returned from a survey mission to the Far East-ern battleground. His report has been made the basis of government plans for all-out defense against new Vietminh rebel threats to the strategic Red River delta around Hanoi.

The appointment came shortly after Premier Laniel's regime gave further evidence of its determination to fight on in Indo-China. The premier's cabinet has named Edouard Frederic-Dupont minister for the associated states of Indo-China and raised the post to full cabinet rank. Frederic-Dupont's predecessor, Marc Jacquet, held the junior ministerial rank of secretary of state.

In combining the top Indo-Chinese military and political commands, the government returned to the set-up followed when Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny hurled the Communist Vietminh back from the delta in 1951.

De Lattre had been given both posts after a try at dividing them, to minimize military influence on the developing Viet Nam government, had not proved successful.

There was no immediate announcement of new assignments for Navarre and Dejean. Both had assumed their duties in Indo-China only last year. Ely's successor also was not announced immediately.

New Canadian Inventions Aid Arctic Airmen

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—RCAF and industry engineers have developed two new directional aids which they believe may give Canada world leadership in navigation devices.

The new gadgets are known as the synchronous astro-compass and the great circle computer, created to relieve pilots and navigators of the strain of making calculations and to boost accuracy and efficiency in charting flight paths.

Details of the new instruments are secret, but it is known that they are designed for the job of watching the stars for the arctic flyer, who cannot afford to rely entirely on northern flights. The other helps him follow a straight line to his destination.

Reds Claim Plane Refused to Land

VIENNA (Reuters) — The Communist newspaper Volkszimme today claimed that a U.S. military plane was fired on Thursday over Hungary because it refused orders to land.

The radio operator was killed and two other crew members wounded in the attack which occurred when the plane, flying a cargo of pedigreed pigs from England to Yugoslavia, Douglas Willmott, London Daily Herald correspondent in Graz, Austria, reported.

Statesmen in Geneva Converse In Cloak and Dagger Atmosphere

By EDDY GILMORE—
GENEVA (AP)—Always a city famed for international intrigue and just now sparkling because yesday has a cloak and dagger atmosphere usually exuded by few cities in modern times.

The reasons are obvious:

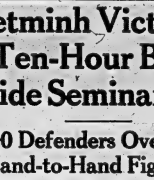
The Indo-China problem is at issue here by the conference of the big powers, and one can be sure their intelligence and counter - intelligence services are well represented. Late in the arena of international politics, the red Chinese and the Koreans obviously have their gumshoe squads. And the fact that Geneva has plenty of anti-Communist Chinese and anti-Communist Koreans is making them all ultra-careful.

Strange things are happening here. There is a whisper behind the potted palm, of every hotel lobby.

A high-placed delegate went to see another one. They had confidential matters to discuss. The man who made the call was surprised when he saw five men in the room—the man he'd come to see, and four others.

"It's all right," said the host, "we can talk in freedom."

The caller agreed to his discussion, each of the four unidentified men in the room retired to a corner, unfolded a newspaper and began reading. Each was discreetly ably would fould up any recording device.



Another delegation here is armed with anti-listening machines. There make a queer noise when turned on and are said to guarantee that the conversation in the room cannot be heard.

There is another delegation that holds most of its private conversations in bathrooms—with the water running—because they say it is a surf way of making certain your conversation is neither listened to nor recorded.

Eldorado Farmer Hit by Police Car, Instantly Killed

Bernard Carman, 51, Struck Stepping Away From Car

JUNIOR FARMERS' FESTIVAL QUEEN

Queen of the Junior Farmers spring festival, Prince Edward County, Ont., is Joan Wood, 19, who is from Ameliasburg rural section. (Central Press Canadian.

Bernard Carman, 51, Eldorado district farmer, was instantly killed Thursday night when struck by an Ontario Provincial Police cruiser in front of the Orange Hall on Highway #2 one and a half miles north of Eldorado. Eldorado is about six miles north of Madoc.

Police said the cruiser, driven by Constable Ross Holmes, stationed at Madoc, struck Carman when he stepped in front of the car after talking with the driver of a car parked along the road.

LIGHTS BLIND OFFICER

Lights from a car parked across the road blinded the officer and he failed to see Carman until it was too late. He swerved sharply to the left but the right headlamp caught the man and threw him to the roadside.

The mishap took place shortly after 11 o'clock and just after the lodge meeting had ended.

Mr. Carman had been speaking with Alfred Hagerman, who was parked on the east side of the highway and had turned to cross the road to visit his brother's car was parked almost directly opposite when he was struck by the cruiser. Carman had attended the lodge meeting with his brother-in-law Hagerman and was attending to ride home with him.

Police said the cruiser was not travelling fast at the time of the accident and was stopped within a few feet following the mishap.

An inquest has been ordered by Coroner Dr. S. N. Beatty.

Bernard Wesley Carman, R.R. 1, Eldorado, was born in Madoc township, the son of Mrs. Carman and the late Collingwood Carman and has lived his whole life in that area.

In addition to his mother, he is survived by his wife, the former Vivian Clemens, and three daughters, Beulah, 19 Barbara, 18, and Wilma, 15, all at home. He had no sons.

Also surviving him are six brothers, Percy, Arthur and Ernest Carman of Marmora, and Everard, Delbert and Kerr Carman of Madoc township.

The deceased was a farmer, member of Unica United Church, Eldorado; Eldorado L.O.L. 517, and R.B.P., Madoc.

Funeral arrangements had not been made at press time.

'QUITE A NUMBER' OF SECURITY RISKS FOUND IN FORCES

St. Laurent Defends Screening Process

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's security screen has brought about the discharges of "quite a number" of men from the armed services but "not very many" from the civil service.

Prime Minister St. Laurent gave that information to the Commons Thursday in a statement which also said the government is guarding against attempts by foreign powers to obtain secret information.

He defended the government's security screening system after it was described as "McCarthyism" by Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops).

Mr. St. Laurent said there is a number of servicemen, screened after enlistment, "were found to be persons that it was felt preferable not to have in the armed forces."

"But in the civilian departments of government, there have not been very many."

COUNTRIES NOT NAMED

In his references to foreign countries, which he did not name, Mr. St. Laurent said:

"We have got to assume that there are efforts made by foreign powers to obtain through their espionage or intelligence services information which it is felt they should not have."

The only persons who could say whether the present security system is effective were the persons to whom espionage agents reported, Mr. St. Laurent rejected Mr. Fulton's plea that he make several times earlier this session—for figures on security transfers and dismissals.

Mr. Fulton, speaking during an all-day discussion on justice department estimates, criticized the screening system as open to the abuse of McCarthyism.

URGES APPEAL BOARD

He said civil servants suspected of security risks have no chance to clear themselves of suspicion. And in determining what is reliable ity, the government had accepted the principle of guilt by association.

There should be some sort of appeal machinery through which ees to present their case before a cabinet minister made a final ruling.

As shown by British experience, many of the cases would be no chance, could give a satisfactory explanation of suspicions against them.

The government's refusal to provide information about the screening system was unreasonable and dangerous. Parliament could not determine its effectiveness and the only conclusion to be drawn from government silence was that the system was ineffective.

ATTAIL HAS PROTECTED

Mr. St. Laurent said the government has considered, and rejected, the idea of an appeal system. However, it made every attempt to be fair and no innocent could point to a single case of unfairness.

There was no way of satisfying critics since security was not a question of guilt or innocence; it was a question of the character, solidity of character and discretion. No trial was necessary to determine the amount of confidence the government was prepared to place in an individual.

Rival for King Tut Found In Oldest Untouched Tomb

CAIRO (AP)—Discovery of the oldest untouched tomb of one of ancient Egypt's pharaohs was announced Thursday night by an Egyptian archeologist.

Britons Think U.S. Takes Communism Too Seriously

EDITOR'S NOTE: As American reporter in this article seeks to explain why Britain's approach to the problem of communism differs from that of the United States.

By DON WHITEHEAD

LONDON (AP)—Is there a fear of communism in the United States that spills far beyond the bounds of good reason? The British people are convinced there is.

Some Americans think Britons are too soft in their policy is bordering on appeasement of the communists. They point to the good many Britons think the American attitude is too tough, that it is dictated by unreasonable fear, and that it carries a threat of starting another war.

There is to be found in this country, too, a contempt (unlike American) which seems to accept the British Communist party as a joke. The joke really has no dangerous connection with British political commitment. This attitude seems to imply that communism in the U.S. actually is a different brand of communism than that found in Britain.

One Englishman told me: "You realize, of course, that America is a country of many nationalities. These people may not feel British real loyalty is to the United States, which is another country. Over here we are British, and Britain comes first."

This thinking was not an isolated case. The same thought cropped out in several interviews with Britons—that loyalty to humanity can be taken for granted where loyalty to the U.S. is at least open to suspicion.

Britain's own Communist spy cases have not shaken the faith of the people in the loyalty and integrity of their government employees nor have they touched off the stormy debates and investigations such as those now familiar to Americans.

Only recently, Prime Minister Churchill rejected as unnecessary a suggestion for an anti-subversive law in Britain. British people see nothing dangerous in permitting Communists to mount their meetings and openly advocate the overthrow of the government—as long as they don't actually incite anyone to try it.

"That is where we have a safety valve that you haven't got in America," one Briton said. "We think it's better to let them blow off steam. They're harmless. If it happens, all the talk is just a damp squib and they look silly."

HANOI (Reuters) — Vietminh rebels have captured a Roman Catholic seminary at Quan Phong Ha—converted by the French into a defence post—after bitter hand-to-hand fighting with 1,000 Viet Namese, the French high command announced today.

After six hours of bloody fighting the Indo-China rebels reached the first floor of the building.

The Viet Namese threw many of the Vietminh through the windows as they fought with knives, bayonets and grenades. The battle raged on the first floor for four hours before they fought their way up. Eventually the defenders were overwhelmed on the second floor.

MANY DEFENDERS REACHED

Casualties were heavy on both sides, a French high command spokesman said, but about 100 Viet Namese escaped to tell the story of the battle. French officers believe several hundred more may have escaped.

The fighting began before dawn Thursday morning and it was not until 2 p. m. that the seminary finally fell.

French air force fighters flew in the spot in an effort to relieve the overwhelmed garrison.

The battle scene was about 70 miles southeast of Hanoi.

The French also announced that Viet Nam guerrillas have evacuated their strongpoint at Cho Noi, 40 miles northeast of Hanoi, after driving back five successive waves of Vietminh rebels using mortars, rockets and machine-guns.

But the greater part of the garrison died after inflicting heavy losses on an overwhelming force of Communists. The remnants withdrew to Hungyen.

Statesmen in Geneva Converse In Cloak and Dagger Atmosphere

By EDDY GILMORE

GENEVA (AP)—Always a city famed for international intrigue and cloak and dagger meetings, Geneva has a cloak and dagger atmosphere about it unrivalled by few cities in modern times.

The reasons are obvious:

The Swiss city is neutral and intend to remain that way. Hence, they have interested in all sides. Swedish and Korean obviously have their gunshoe squads. And the fact that Geneva has plenty of anti-Communist Chinese and anti-Communist Koreans is making them all ultra-careful.

Strange things are happening and there is a whisper behind the potted palm of every hotel lobby.

A high-placed delegate went to see another one. They had confidential matters to discuss. The man who made the call was surprised when he was ushered in the room—the man he'd come to see was not there.

"It's all right," said the host, "we can talk in freedom."

The caller opened his dictaphone, each of the four unidentified men in the room crouched to a corner, unfolded a newspaper and began to read. Each had a dictaphone ably would foul up any recording device.

The delegation delegation here is armed with anti-listening matters. These make a queer noise when turned on and are said to guarantee that the conversation in the room cannot be heard.

There is another delegation that holds most of its private conversation in bathrooms—with the water running—which is said to be a sure way of making certain your conversation is neither listened to nor recorded.

Corum said the fix attempt had been reported by Hogan to Robert Christenberry, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission.

Corum said in his story in the Journal American:

"Two men contacted Jones on separate occasions in his room in the Plymouth hotel early this week, it was learned.

"The fighter said he never saw either of the men before this time, and ordered them out of his room.

Mr. Nesbitt said it is a problem which might be considered at a federal-provincial conference of attorneys-general.

U.S. Air Force Devises New Solar Generator

BALTIMORE (AP)—The United States Air Force today announced development of a solar generator which when refined may be able to convert sunlight directly into energy to run a home.

The air research and development command said the new generator was evolved through research conducted by Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., Western Electric Co., and Signal Corps engineering laboratory at Fort Monmouth, N.J.

Dr. Daryl Chapin, Bell Telephone scientist, said the generator which converts sunlight into electricity through silicon transistors. Light striking razor-thin strips of silicon creates a flow of electric current in atoms in the strips.

Both the Bell device and the air force generator report a 6% power input up the energy taken from the sun.

Government Will Distribute 300,000 Radiation Detectors

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP) — The government intends to distribute by end of next year to 300,000 Canadians pencil-like instruments which detect and measure atomic radiation.

The small device, which clips in the pocket like a pencil and is known as a "dosimeter" was given to members of Parliament who visited Canada's civil defence base here Thursday.

Maj.-Gen. Frank Worthington, civil defence director, said it is planned to issue a dosimeter to one of every 50 Canadians. The Defence Research Board will test these persons to measure radioactivity in event of atomic blast and then warn them away from radio-active areas.

The dosimeter would be distributed among wardens who would see that they are provided person trained in civil defence.

Jack Wallace, chief instructor at the school for the staff that radiation from nuclear weapons "is the least of our worries" that heat from a nuclear explosion were worse.

He said the effects of radiation have been highly over-exaggerated and "built up into a bogey man."

A person in the open 1,400 yards from the centre of an atomic explosion would be killed by radiation if not by blast or heat. In the basement of a building at that distance, a person would be relatively safe from radiation.

Britons Think U.S. Takes Communism Too Seriously

EDITOR'S NOTE: As American reporter in this article seeks to explain why Britain's approach to the problem of communism differs from that of the United States.

By DON WHITEHEAD

LONDON (AP)—Is there a fear of communism in the United States that spills far beyond the bounds of good reason? The British people are convinced there is.

Some Americans think Britons are too soft in their policy is bordering on appeasement of the communists. They point to the good many Britons think the American attitude is too tough, that it is dictated by unreasonable fear, and that it carries a threat of starting another war.

There is to be found in this country, too, a contempt (unlike American) which seems to accept the British Communist party as a joke. The joke really has no dangerous connection with British political commitment. This attitude seems to imply that communism in the U.S. actually is a different brand of communism than that found in Britain.

One Englishman told me: "You realize, of course, that America is a country of many nationalities. These people may not feel British real loyalty is to the United States, which is another country. Over here we are British, and Britain comes first."

This thinking was not an isolated case. The same thought cropped out in several interviews with Britons—that loyalty to humanity can be taken for granted where loyalty to the U.S. is at least open to suspicion.

Britain's own Communist spy cases have not shaken the faith of the people in the loyalty and integrity of their government employees nor have they touched off the stormy debates and investigations such as those now familiar to Americans.

Only recently, Prime Minister Churchill rejected as unnecessary a suggestion for an anti-subversive law in Britain. British leaders—both Tories and Socialists alike—consider that the real problem of subversives, loyalty suspects and espionage is entirely a police matter making it a political issue.

British people see nothing dangerous in permitting Communists to mount their meetings and openly advocate the overthrow of the government—as long as they don't actually incite anyone to try it.

"That is where we have a safety valve that you haven't got in America," one Briton said. "We think it's better to let them blow off steam. They're harmless. If it happens, all the talk is just a damp squib and they look silly."

Vietminh Victors In Ten-Hour Battle Inside Seminary

1,000 Defenders Overcome In Hand-to-Hand Fighting

NEW MODERATOR OF PRESBYTERIANS

Dr. D. L. W. McLean, of Victoria, B.C., is the new moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, elected on the first ballot by 230 delegates at the opening session of assembly in Toronto. Dr. McLean is a native of Peterborough. (Central Press Canadian).

HANOI (Reuters) — Vietminh rebels have captured a Roman Catholic seminary at Quan Phong Ha—converted by the French into a defence post—after bitter hand-to-hand fighting with 1,000 Viet Namese, the French high command announced today.

After six hours of bloody fighting the Indo-China rebels reached the first floor of the building.

The Viet Namese threw many of the Vietminh through the windows as they fought with knives, bayonets and grenades. The battle raged on the first floor for four hours before they fought their way up. Eventually the defenders were overwhelmed on the second floor.

MANY DEFENDERS REACHED

Casualties were heavy on both sides, a French high command spokesman said, but about 100 Viet Namese escaped to tell the story of the battle. French officers believe several hundred more may have escaped.

The fighting began before dawn Thursday morning and it was not until 2 p. m. that the seminary finally fell.

French air force fighters flew in the spot in an effort to relieve the overwhelmed garrison.

The battle scene was about 70 miles southeast of Hanoi.

The French also announced that Viet Nam guerrillas have evacuated their strongpoint at Cho Noi, 40 miles northeast of Hanoi, after driving back five successive waves of Vietminh rebels using mortars, rockets and machine-guns.

But the greater part of the garrison died after inflicting heavy losses on an overwhelming force of Communists. The remnants withdrew to Hungyen.

Weather Man Hits the Button In Prediction

If the weather man was wearing a brand smile this morning he can scarcely be blamed.

For the often-maligned prognostician of atmospheric conditions called Thursday night's heavy downpour correctly, almost to the minute.

Nearly two-third of an inch of rain fell over the city and district starting at eleven o'clock and continuing through the night.

Proof of the weather man's accuracy in "calling" the downpour was evidenced in a telephone message to the Meteorological Bureau at Trenton by Manager Jack Carson of the Belleville Bates baseball club.

Carson, worried over the wet weather, phoned the weather man at three p.m. and was told a heavy rain was heading this way. In fact it was raining in Cleveland at the moment. It was three hours late and would reach Belleville at approximately eleven p.m.

Carson took his word and the game was played and completed before the predicted storm broke

The three-meeting euchre tournament concluded with six prizes being presented to the winners: Mrs. V. Milne, Mrs. J. Thompson and Mrs. W. Dentator, ladies; and J. Shambo, J. Preston and W. Martin, gentlemen. Those not engaged at euchre enjoyed games of checkers and Chinese checkers.

To end a splendid evening community singing was enjoyed, opening with the singing of 'God Save the Queen', in honor the anniversary of her crowning. Mr. Graham, of the O.S.D. presided at the piano. Mrs. A. Mann rendered a humorous reading which was heartily enjoyed. Mrs. Crosier and Mr. Graham were thanked by Mr. F. Pyke.

Refreshments provided by the executive committee were served under the convenorship of Mrs. Drummond.

Pork Chops Have Reached Caviar Class In Food Society

Time was when steer stuffed-shirts cured bovine neuritis at the lowly porker.

That was when juicy steaks were worth their weight in gold; roasts should have been set in platinum, and hocks bound in "bucks." The "bull" market was on the rampage.

Now times have changed. The once-snooty steer has been forced to relinquish the top spot in meaidom, and Sir Percy the Porcine has taken over the lead in the "Table's Who's Who."

Today a nice clean hog, with its bristles brushed, teeth cleaned and toe-nails polished is worth plenty of ransums.

And Sir Benny the Boar has reason to be high-hat. He commands prices that have reached the highest peak since the guns were firing in Normandy. In fact removed of his lamards and other unnecessary standard equipment, a proud porker today commands 40 cents the pound on the Montreal market.

You can buy the chops of this bloebiood of the barnyard for a mere 82 to 83 cents a pound. You can purchase his back bacon for a trifling $1.40 the pound. The rest of him is on a commensurate level. The only thing he tosses in for free is his grunt. And there is no market for it. No buying public has plenty of its own.

Stuart Phoney. Butchers are practically giving it away for 69 cents the pound.

But the proud porker had better beware. Mr. and Mrs. Public are shying away from his high-priced parts. One butcher stated today that last week he sold four ti his ilk. This week he has two of them remaining in the refrigerator. In ordinary times he would dispose of a dozen carcasses in that length of time.

And Mr. Porker had better angle his ratgs as lops in meat society while he may. By next fall it is predicted, there will be so many pigtails around, you will think they have been cross bred with bunnies.

The reason for the scarcity of pork? Last winter the government decided to remove the price support. Farmers stated that without it, they could not raise pork and compete profitably. They went out of the pig-raising business, sold their brood sows and some of them concentrated on cattle raising.

Now, with prices zooming to an all-time post-war high they are going back into the pork-producing business.

So ll should not be long before that slice of bacon will be content to bask with the lowly egg on your breakfast plate instead or curling a snooty edge in protest to a lowly plate-fellow. Even the toast was getting "browned off."

Consumer Price Index Declines Tenth of Point

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index dropped by one-tenth of a point in April to 115.5 from 115.6 as food prices continued to decline.

Rents continued to rise and there were higher prices in April for coffee, tea and some meats, as well as linoleum, glassware and ice.

But these were overcome by lower prices for butter, eggs, bacon, canned vegetables, cereals as well as electrical appliances, furniture, textiles and coal.

The consumer price index, yardstick for measuring living costs, is based on 1949 prices equalling 100. It had been declining for five months when it suddenly made a rise of a tenth of a point in March, the first jump in six months.

This resulted mainly from higher service costs, such as medical, dental and hospital charges, even though food prices were lower.

In April, food price changes asserted their strength, over-balancing other price fluctuations.

The April index of April level of 113.5 was the same as in February and is the lowest since the 115.4 recorded in March, 1953. It compares with the record high of 118.3 in December, 1951.

Senator Doubtful About Wisdom Of Loan Changes

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator Salter Hayden of Ontario said Thursday he wonders if Parliament is going too far too quickly in permitting chartered banks to make loans on household property.

The proposal is contained in a revision of the bank act now before Parliament. Senator Hayden, chairman of the Senate banking committee, explained the proposed changes in the Upper Chamber. The bill was approved in principle and referred to the banking committee for further study.

Senator Hayden commented particularly on proposals to permit bank loans on chattel mortgages.

He said the definition of household property on which loans might be made "could be extended to apply to all kinds of home appliances that can be easily and quickly moved."

He doubted that his lending field as one "which would seem to be a specialized field requiring perhaps 100 per cent concentration in order to have even a measure of success."

Albert College Record Praised

NORTH BAY (CP) — The United Church's Toronto conference Tuesday night adopted a resolution of appreciation for the service of Albert College, the United Church secondary school at Belleville, "during its long and distinguished history as a church school."

The resolution pledged support of a forthcoming campaign by the school to raise $300,000 for erection of a new wing.

Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, principal of the college, addressed the conference.

NEWS TO HIM

TORONTO (CP)—Barmaids are banned in Ontario but a Thorold hotelman and former law student said he was not aware of it after two years in business. The Ontario Liquor Control Board Thursday reserved judgment for two weeks on operator Joe Kociulym, charged with employing a barmaid behind the bar and with selling beer without food in a licensed dining room.

BRADSHAW, — In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Margaret Bradshaw, who passed away suddenly on June 4th, 1953.

We loved her, yes how we loved her,
Our heart her say hello;
There is a shock we didn't expect,
A hard and bitter blow.
Dear Lord, we're smiling, always content,
Loved and respected wherever she went.
Sweet memories linger in our mind
These are the memories she left behind.
Too dearly loved to be forgotten
Too sadly missed to be replaced.
Sadly missed and always remembered by mother, father, sister-in-law Flo and children. 23

Principal Currie and Teachers Who Are Leaving Collegiate Honored by Students, Staff

Students and staff of the Collegiate gathered in the school's auditorium this morning for the final assembly of the year. But it was a little different from most assemblies, for the Collegiate is losing 15 teachers, including the principal, at the term's end, and the students and staff were there to mark their appreciation of them.

Among the staff members departing are Principal G. Currie, who is going to St. Catharines C.I.V.S., after nine years in Belleville, and Miss N. Merry, retiring after 34 years' teaching Collegiate students.

For Miss Merry, those years have been ones "of wonderfully pleasant memories," she told the students, and some of the boys she once taught now are teaching side by side with her in the collegiate.

LOSING GOOD CITIZEN

Among them is W. J. Countryman, who has been appointed principal at Hanover high school. Making the presentation to Mr. Countryman, veteran teacher Mr. Kenneth Hill, noted Mr. Countryman's service to the community and also said he had done an excellent job of teaching in the collegiate.

"Not only are we losing a good teacher, but the citizens of Belleville are losing a good citizen," he said.

Making the presentation to Mr. Currie, Lawrence Moore, president of the Student Council, said Mr. Currie had built a fine organization throughout the school and has a splendid record of producing capable students.

Accepting the presentation Mr. Currie praised the staff and students of the Collegiate. "I do feel we have one of the most comprehensive schools and one of the finest schools in this province," he said.

"When I go away I'll carry you in my memories," he told the students, "and they'll be happy memories."

Three of the teachers, though leaving the Collegiate, are not, however, leaving the city. Being transferred to the new Quinte Secondary School, opening here next fall are Mr. L. Leslie Reid as school principal, Mr. C. Tanner and Mr. J. Ivy.

Leaving after five years service with the Quinte Collegiate is J. Field. A teacher of history and social study, Mr. Field has been selected by the Department of Education for a post at the new Hamilton Teachers' College, training ground for elementary school teachers.

Other teachers leaving the Collegiate are Mr. M. Rice, going to Port Hope High School after a year in Belleville; Miss McNab, after two years here, going to Hamilton CCSS; Mr. G. Fraser, two years here; Mrs. N. McVey, also two years here; Mrs. Alice Walker, one year in Belleville; Miss G. Bowron, going to Kitchener-Waterloo, after one year here; Mr. Lawrence Smith, bound for Ingersoll District High School after one year in Belleville and Mr. F. Theilmeijer, also one year here.

Prior to the presentations to the teachers, prizes and a trophy were presented to the athletes who took part in the annual cross-country run. Don Cherry, president of the Boys' Athletic Association, also presented crests to junior basketball team, winners of this year's COSSA title.

A framed photo-portrait of Mr. Currie was presented to the school by Suzanne Cavers, president of the Keyette Club, while Mr. Currie also accepted, on behalf of the school, two portraits, presented by Beverly Fox, president of the Art Club.

The assembly was chaired by D. C. Stirling.

The presentation to Miss Merry was made by Elaine Davis.

CINDERELLA UNDER FIRE

Cinderella has joined Snow White and Little Red Riding Hood on the list of fairy tales criticized by English officials as a bad influence on children. Dr. John D. Kershaw, medical health officer in Colchester, is reported as complaining that Cinderella's conquest of Prince Charming makes modern girls expect the same.

His criticism continued by noting that boys, too, get starry-eyed notions about beautiful, rich princesses. Both concepts, according to the good doctor, lead to trouble.

It was, in a way, almost inevitable that poor Cinderella would get in trouble with "officials" somewhere. We are somewhat surprised that she should be cited as a bad influence in Britain. We were rather expecting some adverse criticism from the Soviet Union where the "classless society views with 'disgust the propagation of the beastial, fascist idea of a class-ridden society of partying princes and princesses living off the toil of the down-trodden, ragged workers."

Or, as a Soviet book reviewer might explain, "Cinderella is a decadent capitalist fairy tale in which the readers are asked to believe that love rather than the thrill of working for the great people's republic is the one aim of all right-thinking young girls. It is a tale typical of the intolerable conditions in those war-mongering nations in which the workers, as portrayed by Cinderella, are oppressed by the rulers (her step-mother and her daughters) while the wealthy class go about fitting glass slippers to guests at their orgies."

Poor Cinderella is rich material for this sort of thing. No doubts about that.

However, it is a little disconcerting to learn that dreams of marrying a prince or a princess present grave problems of adjustment for the young.

And, what part will it play with boys being "starry-eyed" about marrying a princess? Usually the romance of Cinderella and all fairy tale heroes and heroines exerts an effect on immature youngsters to the age of eight or nine. By that time "comic strip" Cinderellas in various stages of undress are thrust upon their "starry-eyed" innocence to be followed in agonizing adolescence by "movie queens" and "starlets."

The pleasant fancies of Cinderella would seem to offer little real cause for psychological concern in the young. The activities of Cinderella and her story-book friends are correctly labelled as "fairy-tales" in an appraisal whose accuracy cannot be duplicated by the "comic" in comic books, or the "starlet" of movie and tabloid fame. There are few movie "starlets" whose tinsel glitter can light up the corners of imagination in as harmless and as entertaining a fashion as the "fairy Godmother" waving her wand over a pumpkin and six mice to change them into a glittering coach and six prancing white horses.

The suspense of waiting for the clock to strike twelve and Cinderella's return to rags and the chimney corner would seem to be preferred to the suspense generated by the six-eyed Martian monster who is about to demolish earth with a ray gun.

PRESS CONFERENCE PROBLEM

President Eisenhower, at his press'conference on Wednesday of this week, virtually barred all questions regarding Senator Joseph McCarthy.

The reason the President in the unhappy position of apparently evading an issue of considerable importance in the political life of the United States. The sharp controversy between members of Eisenhower's administration and the junior senator from Wisconsin may yet play an important part in deciding who will govern the nation in the near future.

But is this a fair appraisal of the situation? What other head of an important state regularly submits to probing questions by private citizens?

The press conference of yesterday, Premier Leslie Frost, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and Prime Minister Winston Churchill desire to remain silent on some particularly tickling issues. They may have sufficient reason for so doing because they can be questioned in the Legislature or the House of Commons by their political opponents elected by the people. In this country, the right, if the question at issue is not directly connected with the nation's business, if it is largely a "family matter" concerning their own political party, they can evade even the most skillful prodding. And at no time do they have to run the gauntlet of queries from persons entirely untrammelled by any political responsibilities.

Because the President of the United States is not a member of Congress, and cannot be questioned in either the Senate or the House of Representatives, the press conference technique often serves a useful purpose. At times there must be times when incumbents of the White House come to regard it as a great nuisance—and to wish they might be spared the necessity of regularly facing such an ordeal.

Bird note:—"The male scarlet tanager is a rich, bright scarlet but the female bird is greenish in color." Envy, likely.

"Bookmarks" left in books returned to the lending library in Bromley, Kent, included a rasher of bacon, a pipe-rack, love letters, shoelaces, hairclips, spectacles and scissors," says a news release. Maybe they were pointed reviews?

JUST FOLKS

HOUSEWIFE VS. WIFE

To be a "housewife" I suppose
Means mending shirts and darning hose
And making beds and sweeping She did the housework day by day,
And running off to various stores,
Yet, every woman who's a wife
Has vowed to do such work for life.

When lawyers to their clients say:
"What is your occupation, pray?"
If each replied: "A wife am I,"

The jury that should satisfy.
They'd surely know, lest dumb they were they,
She does what every housewife does
And that is, do the best she can
From day to day to please a man.

FROM THE RECORD

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JUNE 4, 1934.

Owners of summer cottages at Rossmore have reported to the police that numerous articles have been stolen from their cottages. Mr. Charles A. Ostrom reported the loss of bedding his cottage, which has been closed since the end of the last summer season, he discovered that the place had been entered and an expensive pair of binoculars and also a valuable reel and rod have been stolen. Other persons report that on opening their cottages for the first time this season, they found that the place had been ransacked during the winter months. The matter is being investigated by the police.

Mr. John A. Mullin, Moira Street west, is today celebrating his 85th birthday and he and his wife are spending the day with Mrs. Willis Bronton and her husband at their home in Corbyville. Until about twenty-seven years ago Mr. Mullin lived on his farm in the 4th concession of Thurlow township at which time he retired and took up residence in Belleville. He has two excellent farms which are now managed by his only son, Mr. Owen Robert, in the community where he lived for many years and in this city, Mr. Mullin is held in high esteem by many friends.

JUNE 4, 1924.

Here is an interesting item from our file copy at this time in 1894: "The second phonographic concert given by Mr. M. M. Shafer at Holloway Street Methodist Church on Saturday evening was well worth hearing. The selections given by Prof. Canfield and Miss Canfield and the cornet solo on the phonograph were especially appreciated."

The Rev. A. S. Kerr and Mr. William Kerr, of Fairfield, in this city.

Mr. J. Walter Wells, formerly of the savoy office here, and of late engaged in the same work in Vancouver, B.C., has been transferred to Toronto.

Why We Die

(Gall Reporter).

Need we die? We all believe that death is inevitable. Biologists tell us that we carry within us the seeds of our decay, and natural death is a necessary result of our life cycle.

Lethal chemical changes begin to work in our bodies from the day of birth, and accumulate even in the embryo stage. The ultimate cause of death is probably poisoning from waste products.

Yet scientists have shown that life is inherently continuous.

The paramecium is an animal found in stagnant water. Its body consists of only one cell, and because it is so small it cannot be seen except under a microscope. It is significant because it never dies. It lives on by the simple process of dividing itself into two new cells.

One biologist who has made a study of paramecia, has watched them reproduce themselves, by self-division, through 8,000 generations in 1314 years—a possible with a quarter of a million years of human life!

Does that mean that the individual cell is potentially immortal? Perhaps. We do not yet know.

Only a few years ago research workers threw away a tissue which had been kept alive and growing since the First World War.

It was in 1912 that Dr. Alexi Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute took a piece of heart tissue of chicken embryo, put it in special apparatus — and demonstrated that it would never die. That is why it was finally thrown away! The experiment could have been carried on for centuries.

What we call natural death is apparently something that has come with evolution. The idea of immortality which the paramecium has, may be lost millions of years ago when the animal kingdom began to exchange its single-celled existence for a more elaborate and efficient life as a multi-celled creature.

The complexity of man has proved to be his undoing, and it is because one set of body cells lets the other down. Liver cells may fail and bring death to the whole organism even though the heart, lungs, and kidney cells are perfectly able to function for many more years.

* * *

We do not die all over all at once. Days after an individual has been declared legally dead, fragments of him or God and of men have been still alive. Each organ, in the body dies at its own rate, and scientists are beginning to learn details of this fact with the thought of prolonging or preventing certain types of death.

Just how much distortion takes place depends somewhat on temperature. A famous physiologist, Jacques Loeb, prolonged the life of fruit flies 90 per cent by lowering the breeding temperature by two-thirds. Loeb has estimated that if the temperature of the human body could be lowered to 49.5 degrees F., human life could be extended 1,000 years.

German Town Is Sinking

(Gall Reporter)

Luxenburg, a town in northern Germany, is slowly sinking into the ground and apparently it will some day vanish.

Luxenburg is an ancient and picturesque Hanseatic market town dating back more than 1,000 years. The Hanseatic League was an association of wealthy mediaeval German traders banded together for commercial gain and it grew very powerful in its time.

Ulrich Gosling, writing in the Kansas City Star, deals with the city's coming fate as follows:

Luxenburg is famous for its lovely old brick buildings its gable windows and its ancient churches, all threatened by the blind force of geological change. Many of its narrow streets have been closed to traffic because vibrations could accelerate the process of nature's destruction.

Store windows have been walled up and new ones cut to hold the sides of buildings up right.

The people are stubborn and refuse to leave their endangered homes. The work is grave centers usually, there are strange creaking in cellars and attics, clocks stop suddenly, cracks appear in walls, break, table and chair legs have to be shortened, doors have to make them stand level on the sloping floors.

The town has a population of 60,000 and is crowded with an active port, industrial and water parts of Germany who lost their homes in the war, or who fled from the Russian zone. Luxenburg is in the British zone, only 12 miles from the Iron Curtain. It was originally built over a heavy stratum of clay. Subsoil water washes at this stratum and causes caverns which undermine the ground above.

Cars and trucks sink suddenly into new holes, buildings crack and collapse. The movement is horizontal as well as perpendicular. Recently a 100-foot long section of a double garden gate moved four inches either for or about 20 inches.

A thirteenth century church is doomed and no services are held in it now. To use its wonderful old organ would hasten the process that would complete the demolition.

Mere Million MOUSE Cost

(New York Herald Tribune).

A gentleman who makes a hobby of studying the mass of material literature on rocketry from behind the Iron Curtain has found there the outlines of a monster. Model, Mouse, Mickel, and is reported to be a rocket engine producing 2,000,000 horsepower—enough, it is said, to propel a satellite out into space where it would remain in orbit indefinitely. A fantastic speed or alternatively, to lob guided missile out of the heart of Russia and on any city in Europe.

For the mean time, while people in the know are discreet about what is being done on our own space ships, it is evident that things are humming there. Professor Fritz Zwicky, from the University of Maryland, is offering a million dollars for the head of the MOUSE — Minimum Orbital Unmanned Satellite of Earth — which could be launched in mere million dollars and would, he says, circle the earth once or twice for several days and radio back information on conditions before gradually slowing down and falling back to earth. And Gerald R. Ford, Jr., is having a guided missiles section, reports Time If Americans could be induced to spent $2 apiece on the project during the next few decades we would add, in eight years, an air home and watch telecasts sent from the moon. That is all for the other. In 15 or 20 years we'd have TV cameras scouting around the far side of the moon.

These men are obviously great but far above, the ordinary. Revolutionaries have lived in every age, startling the world with the fantastic ideas of the future. When one meets these present stories over, and shakes them off, there is one really serious question remaining, however, where do we send the two dollars?

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE ART OF RIGHT LIVING

How much time are you and I really giving every day to making ourselves upright, kindly, helpful, and well-balanced in God and our fellows?

We would not expect to become artists unless we put some work into learning the technique. No musician would dare to play in public unless he had practiced for countless hours. Successful career training, like musicians spend a lifetime practicing scales and preparing themselves for concerts. Ballet dancers subject themselves to incredible discipline in order that they may have the grace which this type of art requires.

What morally and spiritually? We take it for granted that we can see all right just shuffling along every day and trying to do our best. Once in a while we come up against something really serious, but we know that morally and spiritually we are children. Our moral life is so low that we have no idea of what it is all about. Our spiritual potency is so insignificant that we are like invalids living helpless on hospital beds.

Recently I read the statement written by a man named Herbert Read. Ponder it thoughtfully:

"What men do makes them what they are; how they do what they do is expressive of the quality of what they are; and it is only when the doing is raised to the dignity of a regular or habitual act that it penetrates into the deepest recesses of the soul."

British View Of U.S. Ride

(Manchester Guardian).

The idea that the average American senator who had been doing before a roll-call vote, and "when the bell was called he stood up and shouted in a clear voice "Not guilty."

Perhaps some of the senators have a good deal on their conscience, but generally speaking should have.

But may they (and their constituents) not have legitimate ground for feeling that Mr. Ameringer's hard work in the interests of the outside world earns her little gratitude?

May they not ask themselves whether it is really worth while trying to help foreigners thousands of miles away when all they get in return is to be kicked?

One wonders — especially when one reads in the Daily Mail and Chronicle provided in last week's Gallup poll.

That shows that 40 per cent of the people answering in Britain were unaware that the United States is now playing in world affairs!"

Some people will immediately think immediately of the particular forthcoming new policy being advocated by Mr. Dulles, such as his ultimatum to China, intervention in Indo-China, support for Chiang Kai-shek, and so on.

They would be understandably critical.

But one suspects that most people in Britain and other countries were expressing a more general feeling — the feeling of irritation, feeling — these and perhaps a certain number of people who ever believed America's role primarily in these terms.

Their perspective is wrong. If that if America has a leading role played by the United States in world affairs since the war was inevitable.

First, the United States has done more than any other country to guarantee peace in the world.

Secondly, America remains the foremost country in the world, whose ideal, in the words of its Declaration of Rights, is to secure the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity."

Thirdly, the United States has done more than any other country in the world to help others and promote their health, prosperity and welfare.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

THREE MONTHS IN BED.

Two years ago, writes a New Yorker, I had a coronary thrombosis, and am just now starting in exercises to overcome a weakness caused by three months in bed. (G.H.A.)

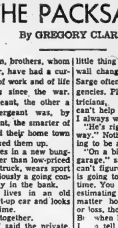
This, I believe, constitutes a record.

There are a lot of poor geeks who walk only on eggs for months, years of the rest of their lives after a "heart attack." This malpractice is sanctioned by many physicians and questioned by few—for two cogent reasons, first because the public has been taught that rest is vitally necessary for a damaged heart, and second because doctors who prescribe or sanction many weeks and even months of bed rest for such patients just don't know much about the physiology and pathology of the heart and circulation.

What! Have I the gall to claim . . . no, I'm not going to argue with you Yankee Hillbillies. All I know is what I read in the medical journals, medical books and letters from real doctors. I'm just telling you that if you lay in bed more than two or three weeks following coronary thrombosis or any similar "heart attack" you're in bad shape for you. I would mean stay in bed without getting up fcri an hour each day, then stroll about the room for a brief spell about noon for a similar or two twice a day, and remaining up a minute or two longer day by day.

This arm chair management, I can assure you unsophisticated and your bumbling doctors, has proved a good deal better and a good deal safer than weeks and months of so-called absolute bed rest—and I'm glad to see medical correspondents, not laymen, to the unbortrative sources of my knowledge.

It was only 42 years ago that Dr. J. B. Herrick described coronary occlusion (thrombosis) as the first knowledge physicians had of the condition. Medical textbooks before that didn't mention coronary occlusion or thrombosis. Nothing about it in Osler's Practice, 8th ed., published in 1906.



The 19th century notion that any one with a "weak heart" must walk on eggs if at all was simply carried over and applied to the treatment of coronary thrombosis.

Exercise is no less important than rest in the convalescence of any kind of heart trouble.

Let no reader assume that I approve of whether physical activity by the individual with a damaged heart may undertake. When I recommend exercise for heart trouble I mean graduated exercise, exercise in prescribed doses, and only your present physician can tell you what form of exercise and how much you should take.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Two young men, brothers, whom I met in the war, have had a curious experience of work and of life in the ten years since the war. One became a sergeant, the other a private. The sergeant was, by general agreement, the smarter of the two. I visited their home town recently and looked them up.

The private lives in a new bungalow, has a better than average car and a small truck, wears sport shirts and is obviously a going concern, with money in the bank.

The sergeant lives in an old house, has a beaten car and looks worried all the time.

We had lunch together.

"Serge, here," said the private, "is a builder. He's ambitious. He takes on big jobs. He's a carpenter. I only do little jobs. But while Serge is winning or losing on building a new house or a garage, that takes one month, three months, I'm doing maybe ten jobs a week. Small jobs. There is never any end of small jobs. Somebody is always wanting some little thing done, a door fixed, a wall changed, some shelves built. Serge often sends for me, in emergencies. Plumbers need me, electricists, paperhangers. Either I can't help being a sergeant. Me, I always was a private."

"He's right," said Serge, hollowly." Nothing worse than wanting to be a big shot."

"On a big job, like building a house, you've better than even chance you can't figure exactly how much it is going to cost in materials and labor, so you're always guessing. And estimating is guessing. And —no house, has a beauty

Says Some Policemen Abuse Ex-Convicts

OTTAWA (CP)—Harold E. Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) charged Thursday that a minority of police officers, including members of the RCMP, persecute Canadians who have served penitentiary terms.

The charge was denied by John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) and Justice Minister Garson said the allegation is hard to understand.

Mr. Winch told the Commons that the majority of Canada's police officers attempt to help persons after they leave prison and demonstrate they want to be useful members of society. However, there were some police officers "who go out of their way to persecute and not to help."

BIG ASPARAGUS

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — A couple of oddities in the asparagus world turned up in Mrs. W. A. Milton's garden at Gateway. One was a main stalk more than four inches in diameter. Another was a double stalk joined at root and head.

BANCROFT — An audience of 250 supported the display of dancing held in the community hall on Monday evening. The show, presented by 23 students of the art, was sponsored by the local branch of the Canadian Legion and president Bill Lavallay acted as M.C.

Young local tappers appearing were: Gail Mather, Emily Card, Barbara Ann Mochlmann, Dianne Price, Marlene Peever, Ruth and Thelma Towle, Valerie Barbara and Gloria McKenzie, Georgia Whitfield, Karen and Barry Martin, Linda Vance.

The Bancroft group, supported by 11 more advanced dancers from Belleville, were taught by school girl professional, Donna Turner, who also gave a dazzling display.

Choreography was by Barbara Diment. Lorraine Watson accompanied at the piano.

CLINTON, Ont. (CP)—Members of the Huron County Home committee said Thursday they are satisfied with the cleanliness and care given old persons at the home.

Boy to Remain In Penitentiary Garson Declares

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Garson said Thursday night a 13-year-old boy serving a two-year term in a federal penitentiary will remain there in view of a report by Quebec's Solicitor-General Rinfret.

Mr. Garson read the report which alleged homosexuality, frequent assaults and equally-frequent escapes from reformatories by the boy. However, two CCF members said they cannot believe Mr. Rivard's statements refer to the boy they saw during an MPs' visit to St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary near Montreal.

Max Campbell (CCF—The Battlefords) said prison officials told him the boy was sent to them described as a monster but that they believe he is a good boy.

A. M. Nicholson (CCF—Mackenzie) said he would corroborate what Mr. Campbell says. He urged Mr. Garson to get a report about the boy from his own officials at St. Vincent de Paul.

Mr. Campbell raised the matter during discussion of the justice department estimates in the Commons.

Mr. Garson said judging by Mr. Rivard's report he does not think penitentiary will have a bad moral effect on the boy's character. The opposite might be the case.

Count Frontenac Was Bill Collector's Nightmare Historical Assoc. Told

WINNIPEG (CP)—Count Frontenac of early Canadian history was pictured today as a bill collector's nightmare and a sorry choice as governor of New France.

In a paper presented to the Canadian Historical Association, Prof. W. J. Eccles of the University of Manitoba dips into the count's financial life and finds it quite a mess.

Mr. Garson read the report which alleged homosexuality, frequent assaults and equally-frequent escapes from reformatories by the boy. However, two CCF members said they cannot believe Mr. Rivard's statements refer to the boy they saw during an MPs' visit to St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary near Montreal.

Prof. Eccles said that to dig out of the heavy debt burdening him, Frontenac secretly married a young heiress but her papa prevented him from touching any part of her fortune.

By 1684 the Frontenacs owed approximately $440,000 in today's money and in September of that year he made an agreement with his creditors to repay the debts in full in the following four years.

However, he "completely disbursed" the terms of the agreement and was able to dodge his creditors once more when friends got him the post of governor of New France.

Prof. Eccles claims that Frontenac failed in the New World by allowing the Iroquois to gain the initiative. They attacked French outposts and fur traders.

"In the end, of course threat Frontenac pursued a policy of procrastination and appeasement which merely encouraged the Iroquois to intensify their aggression. . . ."

Makowiak said that for 30 days he had walked alone through the jungle, hiding from the Vietminh rebels. He eventually reached the French post of Myong Sai, about 75 miles south west of Dien Bien Phu.

Christ Church C.C. Plans Activities

Final plans for the "Summer Tea and Shopping Spree" sponsored by the Contact Club, Christ Church, this week-end were completed at a Monday evening's meeting. A large number of members were on hand, and each was allotted her place for Saturday's event.

The County ladies are convening the "Spree" and are in charge of the tea room, novelties, parcel post and fish pools. The Emergetes Bell will hand away at the children's booth, and the Atom Squad will have aprons galore to offer. Gifts of all kinds will be in charge of the Jack Sugar. The home cooking and candy booth will be convened by the Bayview Queens who have also been responsible for the compiling of the Contact Club cook book which will be on sale at the Spree. This cook book is a collection of some of the special recipes of the club members and should make an acceptable little gift. All that is needed now to make the Spree a success is a fine day and lots of customers.

Members were urged to have all ticket money in by this week-end if possible.

Next meeting will be a bowling party with refreshments in the parish hall after the game. A full report of the Shopping Spree will be given at this meeting.

The final meeting of the club will be a pot luck supper, convened by the June Bugs.

Refreshments were served by hostesses Marjorie Funnett and Barbara Sweet.

They also gave a national life membership to Helen Sterling, Fredericton, as order member for 25 years. Miss Sterling is the only surviving charter member of the first IODE chapter organized in Canada, at Fredericton, in 1900.

National councillors for Ontario include:

Mrs. Harry J. Brook, Simcoe; Mrs. E. H. Lancaster, St. Catharines; Miss Ethel Raymond, Brantford; and Mrs. W. R. Smith, Sudbury.

FINE HARBOR

The harbor of Sydney, Australia, one of the world's finest, extends for 20 miles inland.

MODERN ALUMINUM alloys seem tough enough to take almost anything. For instance, one manufacturer cast aluminum for those little electrified green cars the kids love to climb into at carnivals and fairs. The idea is to whirl around at high speed exchanging spine-shattering bumps with other "motorists". They actually stand up under this treatment (the cars, we mean). Our own Alcan researchers are constantly developing and testing new applications, better products, improved production techniques. There's always something new in aluminum! IODE Spent $921,000 Last Year

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire wound up its four-day national meeting Wednesday after the 300 delegates hailing from Vancouver to Newfoundland heard that the order raised $934,000 last year and spent $921,000 of it on everything from welfare work to scholarship for sons and daughters of veterans.

The women added one more project to their growing roster of services—a "Korea Projects Fund" through which they will raise money for child care in Korea. First objective is to buy an x-ray machine for a "save the children" fund, hospital at Pusan.

Mrs. Kathleen Drope of Toronto, was re-elected national president and many of the national officers were returned.

SILENT CONVENORS

Ontario women were elected convenors of the eight standing committees of the IODE national chapter at an executive session. The convenors and their committees include Mrs. C. M. Scott, Peterborough, Commonwealth and Empire.

Comradeship night at a dinner given by the national chapter for all delegates, eight provincial presidents brought greetings from their provinces.

Giving a report on Empire and world affairs, convener Mrs. Cecil L. Brown of Hamilton warned delegates to be constantly on the watch for misleading Communist propaganda. The IODE had learned in the last war a lie told often enough is believed.

Next year's meeting will be held in Winnipeg, May 28.

Q.G.C.C. Ladies Sponsor Blossom Tea

On Wednesday afternoon the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club ladies presented a delightful blossom tea under the convenership of Mrs. Don. Foxard and Mrs. Don Stanton, assisted by Mrs. Fred Carscallen and Mrs. L. R. Kreiger.

The guests and friends were most cordially welcomed by the members of the club, and invited into an atmosphere made cheery and warm by a glowing fireplace, and kindly smiles, which more than off-set the dreariness of the day outside.

The tea table was prettily appointed with a lace cloth, centered by tulips in multi-colored shades, blue iris, tall spikes of pastel shaded phlox, and fragrant lily-of-the-valley. Silver candelabra with tall blue and white candles and silver services added a gleaming accent.

Those pouring were, Mrs. J. Norman Carbolt and Mrs. S. L. Jose. Those who served, Mesdames Foxard, Stanton, Carscallen and R. Ketchum, assisted by other members of the club.

A dainty tea and splendidly attended convening that it was the first of the season.

Plans were made for the annual strawberry social to be held on the lawn of Robt. Richardson's home in the latter part of June.

Stirling Festival of Sacred Praise Completes Results

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

On Monday afternoon St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, was a beehive of industry as children and their parents gathered from far and near with interested grandparents, uncles and aunts, and neighbors for the Stirling Festival of Sacred Praise.

Mrs. Walter Elliott, secretary of the Festival, was busy in the Sunday School room as the various classes registered, and festival badges were issued to all entrants, accompanists and choir directors. She was assisted by Master Ralph Carlisle, who carried the adjudicator's returns from the church to the Sunday School room.

Mrs. Ken Baldwin, Mrs. J. B. Thompson, Mrs. J. Hough, Miss Lenora Williams, and others were in charge at the door while Mrs. Walter Warren and Miss Gena Spry looked after the order of the entries.

CHURCH DECORATED

The church was artistically decorated with baskets of lilacs, variegated tulips and other blooms.

Rev. A. K. Baker, pastor of St. Paul's, graciously welcomed everyone to the Festival and conducted a brief worship service.

He then introduced the adjudicator, Dr. G. Roy Fretwell, director of music of the Department of Education, province of Ontario, who spoke briefly, explaining the work of adjudicating. Mrs. Fretwell also attended the one day event.

Lack of Flag 'Ridiculous', IODE Ex-Pres.

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Mrs. John H. Chipman of Toronto, former national president of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, said Wednesday Canada's lack of a national flag is a "perfectly ridiculous" situation.

"We're a nation, after all," she said in an interview.

Mrs. Chipman, IODE president from 1930 to 1933, said that if use of the Red Ensign is to be continued the government should proclaim the banner as the country's official flag.

"The world is used to the Red Ensign," Mrs. Chipman said. "We'll look silly if we come out now with a beaver sitting on a maple leaf."

The IODE was not backing any specific pattern, but she thought the Union Jack should have 25 per cent of the design. It could form the upper left section and "what they put in the fly doesn't matter."

ELECTED PRESIDENT

TORONTO (CP) — A. C. Maclean of Toronto, MacLean Publications Ltd., Toronto, was elected president of the Periodical Press Association at the annual meeting Thursday.

by Gene Hitchon

I dropped a word last time about quiet, picture right two-colour sound receiving sets. Here's how they work:

Nothing more or less than the new channels that have been opened up in the U.H.F. because TV are faster than the experts ever thought it could.

U.H.F. stations have exactly the same sound as the V.H.F. stations in the air. It's the set you can't tell the difference. Always when anything new like this comes out there is always a temptation to wait-and-see, to hold off buying an "old" set until all the bugs are finally established.

The wonderful thing about these new stations is that ordinary TV sets can be made to receive programmes from them.

There are three basic ways of converting an old set to get the new channels. And of all the stations in the area,

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAYBE SHE'D BE WORSE OFF IF SHE LEFT HER HUSBAND

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the four years I have been married to my second husband, I've worn only clothes given to me. My two boys by my former marriage, who are ten and twelve, have no clothes except what they come from rummage sales, or whatever my husband finds thrown away at the military school where he works.

My husband's sister has borrowed the money he'd saved for the time when he would get married, and the papers in regard to the loan have no mention of me on them. I had an accident, and am unable to work, and have received two thousand dollars from the insurance company, all of which I invested in my husband's property, not even buying a new dress for myself. Now I find that my name is not even on the deed of the property.

I am wondering if I should stay with my husband and try to raise my boys the best way I can under conditions such as these, or start living quarters elsewhere. At present I have no place to go, but I might be able to find one.— Mrs. H.A.D.

Dear Mrs. H.A.D.:

Your husband's behavior in regard to money matters certainly is bad, but since you tell me nothing else whatever about your marriage, it would be impossible for me to form a really sound opinion on whether or not you should break it up as you propose.

It might be that, in spite of this money problem, you would be even worse off, if you left your husband, than you are now, particularly since you say you aren't able to work and have no place to go. Even though you succeeded, in some way, in forcing your husband to repay your two thousand dollars, how long do you think you and your two boys could get along on this amount of money? I'm afraid you would not only still be wearing clothes given to you and getting your boys' clothes at rummage sales, but would soon have to look somewhere for food to eat.

What I would advise you to do is to have a talk with some family welfare organization in your town, explain your whole problem and see what they would advise you to do. To discuss a problem of this kind personally, is far better than trying to do so by mail, for in a personal interview the advisory service can get from you complete details of your situation and find out from you everything they would need to know in order to really help you.

Will you do this and then let me know how you make out?

SHE'S TAKING A LOT FOR GRANTED

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About four months ago, I was very much in love with a boy three years older than myself. I did almost everything to be near him, and I guess he knew it, but he acted as though he liked me too.

One night we happened to be at the same party, given by one of the clubs I belong to and, during the evening, this boy came over and asked if I wanted to go for a ride. I accepted, and took my girl friend along, and we had a wonderful time. Well, two weeks ago I was talking to this girl friend and she told me this boy had asked her for a date. Boy, the nerve! For awhile I was awfully mad, and swore I would never speak to him again, but then the other day I talked to him and he was wonderful to me just like before.

So now I like him again though still not as much as before, so I would like to know if I should start all over again or forget about him.

— E.Z.

Dear E.Z.:

Don't you think you look a lot too far granted about this boy's interest in you? Just because he asked you to go for a ride on one occasion certainly didn't indicate that he was your property, and, as I look at it, you were completely out of line when you got mad because he asked your girl friend for a date. Was it the fault that you had built a great big castle in the air?

My advice to you is to stop trying to latch on to this chap and leave the pursuing to him. I can't see that there's any necessity of "starting all over again or forget about him." Can't you just be friendly when you happen to see him, without making it plain that you're crazy about him? If you will just treat him like a good friend, he'll let you know if he's specially interested in you and, if he doesn't show any special interest in you, it won't make a fool of you at all certainly would if you ran after him.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . you were kind enough to send me recipe for salt curing pork. . . . I have a few questions to ask: 1) Can this curing be done during warm months? 2) How is it kept after curing? 3) Does it need to be freshened? We have an exceptionally good cellar, and kept some pork in brine only late last summer. It was fine but I got a bit tired of soaking the meat in three or four waters to freshen it Or am I lazy? —Eileen Y.

ANSWER:

Since you have such a good cellar you can cure pork in the summer months. The meat-packing industry has an advantage over the individual in that as soon as the cured meat has had its full cure (roughly 8 weeks) they can wash off outside salt, enclose in cheesecloth and put in smokehouse. After smoking it is hung in storing room until sold. If you do not have smoking facilities your meat will have to be held in the brine until needed and freshened by soaking as you have been doing. A gal who prepares pork for curing isn't lazy.

QUESTION:

Is it possible to get other recipes besides the honey ones from Michigan State College? Do you know other recipes we can write to? Thanks for your cheery column. It is my favorite . . . I enjoyed your little sermon.—Winnie L.

ANSWER:

Well, thank you Winnie. Write to Ontario Honey Producers' Co-operative Ltd., Toronto, for their pamphlet on Honey recipes.

QUESTION:

. . . I do hope we appreciate you enough. . . we rent a locker and at present it is filled to overflowing and as I want to put in some rhubarb could I ask you some of the beef, thaw and steam it in jars? If this could be done would you please send me exact instructions . . . could I bother you for a small recipe for Cheese Souffle (4 servings)?—Dorothy R.

ANSWER:

You have to have pressure equipment to can meat. My advice re making room for rhubarb by canning meat is a strong "no." The intrinsic value of the meat is about 10 times that of the rhubarb and chances of spoilage without pressure are high.

CHEESE SOUFFLE (4 servings)

Make a white sauce by melting 3 tablespoons butter or margarine and stirring in 3 tablespoons flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt and shake of cayenne, then stir in 1 cup milk until thick. Remove from heat and stir in 3 well beaten egg yolks and 3-4 cup grated cheese (or finely cut process cheese) and stir until blended. Cool. Fold in three stiffly beaten egg whites and turn into buttered baking dish. Stand dish in larger dish containing hot water and bake at 275 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes, then increase heat to 375 for another 20 minutes or until when souffle is tested at centre with knitting needle it comes out clean. Serve at once.

QUESTION:

. . . enjoy the valuable information given on your page. . . could you supply me with a good recipe for Dandelion Wine?— Anxious.

ANSWER:

To all who ask me for wine recipes I want to say that I am not experienced at this and any recipes I give you have not been tested by me.

DANDELION WINE

Use only fresh blossoms and remove every trace of stems (otherwise wine will be bitter). To every quart of blossoms packed but not crushed, add 2 sliced lemons, 2 sliced oranges and 1 gal. boiling water. Let "stand 24 hours, then drain and strain off all juice. To every quart of this juice add 1 cup granulated sugar, pour this into clean jars and stand them in granite pans. Cover jars with tin foil until fermentation ceases. Each morning fermentation will cause jars to run over, so with the contents of 1 jar fill the jars to level full each morning. When fermentation stops, empty out the wine, wash jars well, and rubbers refill jars to overflowing and seal. This is a mild wine and is ready in three months.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

WEDDING GUESTS WHO DON'T ANSWER INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm to be married very soon. The formal invitations to my formal church wedding and to the reception following, in a large hotel suite, were mailed exactly four weeks ago, and to each invitation was enclosed an addressed, stamped envelope with the small card to return, indicating whether or not the person was accepting. However, in spite of our trying to make it easy for the guests to respond, there are still about thirty friends who have not mailed us their replies. Mother is getting jittery about telling the hotel's banquet manager how many guests to provide for. Should we or should we not, make provision for those who haven't answered? It's a problem. — Marie L.

It's a problem indeed. . . as many a wedding hostess knows. Even when you try to make it easy for the guests by sending ready-made cards to sign and to enclose in addressed, stamped envelopes, You may if you wish and if it is possible, get in touch with the "thirty" to ask if they are coming. Or your mother may provide, say, for about fifteen more guests.

PROBLEM OF MAID OF HONOR. SO RECENTLY IN MOURNING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have known my dearest friend practically all my life, and we have always promised to be maid of honor at each other's wedding. (Neither of us has a sister.) Now this dear friend is to be married very soon, planned by my cousins so lovingly and carefully, and I have already bought my dress and all accessories. But almost a month ago my mother passed on, and I keep thinking that it would not be proper for me to take part in this large church wedding, and the receptions following. However, some friends whose point of view I have respect, seem to think, advise that I should go ahead with my part in the wedding plans, that it would be highly unlikely, advise that the bride, for me to withdraw at this late date. Please give me your point of view. — Beatrice W.

Since you already have your costume, and since it would be practically impossible for the bride to get someone to take your so-important place at this late date, I advise you, as your friend, to co-operate with this "dearest friend" of yours and take your part in the wedding. I am sure everyone will understand. . . certainly no one would be so nonunderstanding as to criticize your not-easy decision. However, of course you should not stay long at the reception, and of course, if there is dancing you should not dance.

WHICH MARRIAGE DATE TO CELEBRATE?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please help us with our problem. My husband and I are so wonderfully happy in our marriage that we want to have a very special "wedding anniversary" celebration. But our problem is which marriage date to celebrate? You see, Mrs. Beeckman, we were married in March Friday, were divorced in the early-forties, and remarried. . . to each other, thank Heaven! . . . ever since ago.

We are so happy now, all our misunderstandings over, and we are trying to forget the unhappy years we were divorced. (Neither of us married after the divorce), until we re-married each other.) But now about the date we should choose for our anniversary celebration—should it be our first marriage date or the second? — "Himself" and I

The only guide for this decision would, I think, be your own personal reactions considering all that has happened. However, to me it would seem fitting that you celebrate the date on which you were married first.

Sunday School Lesson:

Fourth Great Destroyer

By ROY L. SMITH

All too long the problem of alcoholism has been left to the sentimentalists, the professional reformers, and the politicians whose chief interest was in the next election.

In recent years the scientists — chemists, pathologists, psychologists, and anatomists — have taken over and we are beginning to discover solid ground under our feet. Incidentally, it should be said, the verdict is very much the same as it was in the old days, though it is phrased in a new vocabulary.

AN ANCIENT ENEMY

The old Hebrew prophet, in the year 750 B.C., came out of the desert hills to spend a few days in one of the great cities, and there he was shocked at the disintegration of life that he saw stemming out of the use of alcohol. The people were sodden, the home life was being broken up, the courts were corrupted, and the general state of society was rapidly becoming vagabond. There were many factors involved, of course, but one of the major factors in the disaffection was the widespread use of intoxicants.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for June 13: "Amos Denounces Intemperance," Amos 2:6-12; 4:1-3; 6.

One of the most important facts in connection with the use of alcohol is that its chemical effect in the bloodstream has always been the same. Neither legislation, the new psychology, nor paid advertising had altered its action in the least. The results of drinking have been the same in all generations.

THE MODERN PROBLEM

This statistically minded generation is being reminded by scientific studies made by groups of all shades of opinion that alcoholism is the fourth great destroyer, being surpassed in seriousness only by tuberculosis, cancer, and heart diseases. And it should be said, that alcoholism increases the hazards of the other three in an alarming degree.

Generally speaking the statistics concerning the exact number of helpless alcoholics are not too reliable, for there is a twilight zone of considerable width between those who are no more than casual drinkers and those who are helpless addicts. Extreme figures, at both ends of the estimates, can be disregarded, but when that has been done, the hard core of alcoholism, with its hundreds of thousands of hopeless addicts and its half-million of border line cases, is a matter that demands the most serious and scientific consideration.

CURE IS SIMPLE

We are investing millions of dollars in research in the hope of discovering the cause of cancer and heart disease, though the total amount is only a fraction of the cost of one battleship; and each tiny fact that is brought to light is hailed with delight. But no research is needed to discover the cure for alcoholism. Any schoolboy can tell you that the abstainer need never fear the disease. The home in which no member of the family ever imbibes is safe from the terrors of alcoholism.

If we were to choose ten young persons out of any college or university, and introduce them at the end of the ceremony that we could be scientifically certain that within ten years or at most five years at least one of them would be a helpless addict. But there is no scientific living who would be certain of abstinence which one would be the victim. The most brilliant and the most stupid succumb alike.

And each one is, by the same token, capable of insuring himself against a lifetime's slavery to the disease. It can be done without paying out a dollar to any doctor, lawyer, psychiatrist or social agency.

The decision is absolutely personal.—

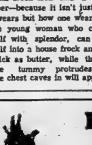
Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

STAND TALL AND LOOK SNAPPY

If it can be said of a girl that she "moves like a goddess and looks like a queen," chances are she will never have any anatomical defects to worry about. The regal manner will give her an air of distinction and make the little bargain frock look like a smart number—because it isn't just what she wears but how one wears it.



The young woman who carries herself with splendor, can pack herself into a home frock and look as slick as butter, while the one whose tummy protrudes an whose chest caves in will appear a ling or sitting.

frump no matter how costly and smart her dress may be.

Posture is important, not only for appearance but for health and well-being. It is a crying shame that cuties of grade school age seem to think it is smart to walk and move in a sloppy manner.

Observe the members of the coke crowd sitting at soda fountains. Pretty little legs twisted around the stools in an awkward manner. Shoulders and arms thrown forward, chests contracted. When walking they plop, minus slong or huddle up their shoulders with head thrust forward.

In future years they will be sorry because poor posture can become an accepted habit and the entire body structure will be affected. It is especially necessary that, during growth, carriage and movements should be correct - and graceful. Always keep your spinal column extended whether walk-

Bannister Slowed His Heart, Changed Its Very Structure To Run First 4-Minute Mile

By MILTON MARMOR

LONDON (AP) — This is the scientific story of how Roger Bannister ran his 3:59.4 mile.

It is the story of how he slowed his heart and changed its very structure, how he built up a giant supply of oxygen and finally ran on nerve alone to the point of absolute collapse.

Blessed with a barrel chest with a large rib cage for his powerful lungs, the 25-year-old Bannister began boosting his chest measurements even more. He altered the very structure of his heart, his blood vessels and his muscles by severe training methods. And all the time he was keeping close scientific observation of himself in the coldly detached way of a medico.

His basic problem was somewhat simple—oxygen. He had to get even more oxygen from the lungs to the muscles of the legs where breakdown food is stored.

SUPERLATIVE HEART

Then he set to burn that food to provide a necessary energy for his herculean efforts. Bannister was fortunate to have not only a superlative heart to start with, but a fighting one as well. He succeeded in piping his blood to pick up oxygen on the lungs more quickly that most athletes. And, meanwhile, learned to co-ordinate all his body muscles to take him the distance with the least wasted effo.

Bannisterand studied the action of various parts of his body with scientific gadgets that measured his intake and consumption of oxygen. e knew how much he needed.

Bannister too, was quietly confident, He knew the four-minute mile was possible. He had read and learned from Association's physiology ook last September:

"In theo there is no limit to any physal performance, but various psiological factors cause the magnitude which records are broken to diminish steadily. In sprinting nd javelin throwing speed of ovement is limited by muscle vicosity, an innate property which can be influenced little, if all, by training. In weight lifng speed of action is at the opin of the athlete. Sheer force or ass of muscle is what counts a suitable training can develop."

RIGOROS TRAINING

Bannist got down to hard work to build the extra strength last Winter. e engaged in what is known a "interval" running. One day he ld 10 dashes of 110 yards e ch, jogging between sports.

Then i April 12 last he began the heartwrich training drive to May. F began with seven half miles wh three minutes of rest between each half. From April 16 to 19 i went mountain climbing in Scotnd. On April 22 he cruised throug 10 quarter miles at an averag of 58.9 seconds. From May 1 to Ay 6 he did nothing, merely storin up energy.

Andre May 8 he ran his classic mile i Oxford in the classic tradition.

It s interesting to note that whe the great moment came, Bannister was human. He achieved his goal without the level-running he deemed best. A very fast first quarter, two slower inside quarters and then a fast last lap on his nerve and the stored-up oxygen—57.5; 60.7; 62.3; 58.9.

MILKER: TAKE NOTE

In time, of course, Bannister's epic effort may well be bettered. But before one glibly talks of a faster mile, it would be well to note the following:

The International Amateur Athletic Federation ranks all possible track and field achievements on a points basis. The 3:59.4 mile rates 1,261 points—highest for any recorded performance and thus by IAAF standards the greatest feat in track and field history.

The story of the May 6 mile now is well known. Added are some details.

When Bannister finished the race his pulse was 185. It did not become normal until three hours later. He momentarily was color blind. He was in a temporary state of complete collapse. Yet, so powerful is the Bannister physique that in less than three minutes he was jogging easily on the infield with his two friends, Chataway and Chris Brasher, who helped him in the race.

Bannister chose the mile because, as he once said: "running is the most elementary of sports. In sprints you run as fast as possible. I was too long in the legs for the sprints and I lacked the sustained stamina for distance races . . . and the mile is the classic of races."

The problem, therefore, was conquering anoxemia (shortage of oxygen). This is the problem mountain climbers surmounted when they went to the peak of Mt. Everest with oxygen. But such artificial assistance would take running out of the field of sports.

Thus, the solution lay in getting more oxygen into the system without resort to artificial aid.

The heart is a muscle and Bannister aimed to make it a more muscular pump. He strove to increase the per strokeoutput of blood and oxygen. By punishing his body he toughened it and thereby increased its recovery rate.

Ban on Resale Price Control Is Criticized

TORONTO (CP)—Lack of resale price maintenance has created a critical credit situation in the small appliance industry, the federal restrictive trade commission was told Thursday.

The Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association presented a brief to the three-man commission which concludes its week-long sittings today before leaving for Montreal. The association said not only are manufacturers' risks greatly increased and credit losses increased, but the reluctance of the banks and finance companies to give credit to appliance dealers, is adversely affecting the industry.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa.—(Reuters) — A blue-white diamond weighing 426 1-2 carats and valued at about $250,000 has been found at the Premier mine near Pretoria, the Anglo-American Corporation of South Africa announced yesterday.

A corporation spokesman said the diamond was found during normal mining operations.

NICE WORK!

While the bubbles of the Peterborough Prics' infield had quite a lot to do with the Bata' 5-2 victory last night, they were spotlighted, too, with the fine defensive play of the Gever gang's inner garden department. They played errorless ball and Fitzpatrick and Gerry Gever came up with a couple of sparkling plays that drew well-deserved cheers. Claude Carr and Keith MacDonald were "on the bit" too, and in fact the whole team came through with a fine defensive effort.

Young Master Mike Harrison, son of the well-known former Peterborough COBL star, "Hap" Harrison, who let the Batas down with six hits after going the route, deserved a better fate. The teen-ager, we are told he is 17, turned in a fine hurling chore, albeit his error accounted for a Bata run. The Petes had better cling to this young man as he showed plenty of promise here last night.

Art Wright, who won his second start, came through with some fine clutch hurling. He passed the redoubtable Tony Kotowski, who homered in the second, twice, to fill the bases, then forced the next batters to pop out. His best effort came when with two out and the sacks cluttered with Pete runners, he pitched to Tony and struck him out.

It was the Batas third win in five starts, and we guess they either hold down second place or are tied for that spot. We have no way of getting scores of games played in Toronto.

The Gever crew face a tough week-end. Tomorrow they trek to Oakville for an afternoon game with the Oaks of that town, then pack their gear and slop off at Oshawa for a game under the lights.

CARRERA TO OPEN CENTRE

This is Madeo's "night to howl"—and "howl" the good burghers will, for it is the occasion of the opening of their brand new community centre. Jack Baker and all the boys up thataway, have arranged a fine program which is being featured by the opening game of the Belleville District Softball League between Paul Mercier's Junior Bisebirds and the Madeo "Stalchos," that for the want of the right name which we do not know.

And as an additional attraction, Jack Baker has secured the green light from Marse Frank Tunney, Toronto's wrestling impresario, to have the former world's heavyweight boxing champion, Primo Carnera, eat the ribbon that officially opens the new centre. There will be bands, dancing and fun—lots of it.

The softball game gets under way at 8.30 under the new lights, we are told. The opening ceremonies will likely take place previous to the game since Carnera must be in Belleville by 9.30 to complete a wrestling engagement.

THE WHIP IS BACK!

Whipper Watson postcarded this department yesterday. The Whip is back in wrestling action—and that is news par excellence for Belleville fandom. He teamed up with the giant Yor MacKenzie to win the tag team championship against the villainous Mills Brothers in Montreal the other night. So it would appear the popular Whip has fully recovered from the head injury that barred him from action for a considerable length of time. It is to be hoped that Marse Frank Tunney sees his way to send the Whip down thataway before too long. A tag team go between the Whip and Carnera and the Mills Brothers would pack 'em in, Marse Tunney.

For several years Carnera has been campaigning in wrestling rings throughout the world with singular success. The Italian has, in fact, compiled a near-flawless record, aided by his weight (270 lbs.), size and strength.

All of which augurs no good for Tiny Mills, a 'snarly' chap, who collides with Du Preem in the main event at the Memorial Arena tonight. Mills has long been under the impression ring rules are made to be broken. Carnera, former world heavyweight boxing champion, is a clean wrestler but can put those booming fists to work when fouled.

Paul Baillargeon, former strongman from Quebec, whose amazing feats include lifting a horse, will oppose Hardy Kruskamp, of California, in the semi-final.

DIG THOSE GALS!

Bob Hunter, Pat Marsele and Doug Radner will match their pitching prowess against the booming bats of the Toronto Nortown Ladies' Softball Club at the CNR Recreation Park tomorrow evening. The boys had best be on their best flinging behavior for these gals, they tell me, are no slouches with the hickory. They have plenty of long-ball hitters on the line-up, who can send the overgrown baseball over the fences.

The Norlowns are a well-drilled, well-coached club that know a lot of the answers to inside softball. They are fast, "quick on the think" and can run bases with the best of 'em. And they make an impressive sight when they trot out on the diamond in their neat uniforms. They will arrive about five o'clock, have dinner, and leave for the park.

Prexy Steward has rounded up a lot of handsome prizes to a Corker to lucky ticket holders are going home with a neat gift in their pocketsie. Game starts at 6.30 sharp.

Willie Mays Also Gets Pair As Giants Wallop Cards 13-8; Chisox Gain Game on Indians

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

If a hitter in a slump came to New York Giants today for advice, he probably would get pretty confused.

Hank Thompson can recommend hitlip 10 days of rest.

Willie Mays would prescribe going "all out" for 10 games.

Both ways have worked miracles for the Giants' starts.

Thompson's idleness wasn't by choice—he was sidelined with a banged up knee—but obviously it did him a world of good.

Thursday night in St. Louis he came back to the line-up and smashed home runs in his first three times at bat. He was walked intentionly the fourth time as the crowd booed and singled home a run on his fifth appearance.

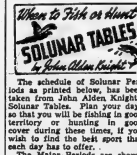
RECORD EQUALLED

He accounted for eight runs and raised his average 25 points to .262. The three homers in succession, which raised his total to nine, equalled the modern National League record shared by 16 other players but not duplicated since 1950.

Ten games ago Mays was hitting .260. Now he has a 19-game hitting streak working during which he's collected 32 singles, 10 of them for extra bases and eight of them home runs. He hit his 15th and 16th Thursday night as the Giants walloped the Cardinals 13-8, pulling into a tie for the league lead with Hank Sauer of Chicago Cubs.

Three games in the National League were postponed because of rain. Brooklyn was supposed to play at Milwaukee, Pittsburgh at Chicago and Philadelphia at Cincinnati.

In the American League, Chicago White Sox moved within a game of first-place Cleveland as they beat Boston 9-4 while the Indians were dropping a 2-1 verdict to New York Yankees. Washington edged Detroit 4-3 and Philadelphia and Baltimore swapped seventh and eighth places again as the Athletics beat the Orioles 6-2.



WILLIAMS HOMERS

The Red Sox battered Virgil Trucks and Don Johnson for 15 hits but left 13 men on base. The hits included Ted Williams' fifth home run and Harry Aggasni's fifth.

Cleveland collected 11 off Eddie Lopat and the Yankees got only four off Bob Lemon. But one of the four was a home run in the eighth inning by Joe Collins that gave the Yankees their victory at home over Cleveland this season.

Maury McDermott pitched Washington to its win over Detroit. All the Washington runs were unearned as Ned Garver gave up seven hits. Two of the three Detroit tallies also were tainted by errors.

Don Larsen lost his sixth game against only two victories as the Athletics pulled half a game ahead of the Orioles in the last place struggle. Joe Demaestri homered for Philadelphia and Bob Young for Baltimore.

Easter Paces Ottawa to Win Over Havana

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Strange things are happening in Ottawa these days. First the International League, The Cuban Sugar Kings have been making a habit of bounding into first place once they hit their tropical isle, but on this visit home they've lost two of their first three games. And to the last-place Ottawa Athletics, at that.

Ottawa clipped the Sugar Kings 4-3 Thursday night, last Wednesday but came back Thursday night for an 8-4 decision on the slugging of big Luke Easter.

The former Cleveland first-baseman let six Cubbie hits two aboard during a five-run Ottawa rally in the third inning and then homered with a man on in the seventh.

The loss left the Sugar Kings 3½ games behind Toronto Maple Leafs and Rochester, who are only 12 percentage points apart at the top.

TWO 1-0 GAMES

Rochester split a pair of 1-0 decisions with Syracuse and Richmond beat Montreal Royals 2-1 in other action Thursday night.

In the second game of a double-header Jack Fazsholz laid down a squeeze bunt in the third inning to bring home the only run. He gave up only five hits. Johnny Meyer of Syracuse pitched shutout ball through the first six innings before being relieved by Lonnett and allowed only one safety before being removed because of wildness in the eighth. Jim Owens completed the one-hitter. The Syracuse run came on a walk, a force and a double by Johnny Blatnik.

Rochester's regulars copped the fifth victory, tops on the Richmond staff, as he checked Montreal on six hits. Home runs by Jim Pyott and Ken Wood helped pin the second loss of the year on lefty Ken Lehman.

Batas Hit Behind Peterborough Petes' Miscues For Neat 5-2 Victory

Two Costly Bobbles Pave Way For Homesters' 3rd Triumph; Wright Chalks Up Second Win

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Costly errors by the Peterborough infield and clutch clouting by the Batas paved the way to a Belleville 5-2 victory over the Petes in a Vladuct Ontario League game here last night. The victory gave the Batas their third win in five starts.

With the score tied at two-all in the sixth the Petes firstbaseman, Bill Edger, threw the ball past everything in sight in an effort to allow two runs to second and third to score. Harrison's bobble in the eighth set the stage for the Batas' fifth run when Tony Pettiti singled Al Kelleher home with two men out.

BROKE UP DUEL.

Edger never spoke up a fine pitching duel between the Petes' youthful right-hander Harrison, and the Batas' Art Wright, who registered his second straight victory. Both teams scored singles in the second and third innings with Wright blanking the Petes in the scoreless over the rest of the route.

Wright struck out eight and walked four and helped himself to a single while pitching his way out. He came through with some fine clutch hurling in the third, fifth and seventh but he got in the third out with the bases loaded on each occasion. Tony Kozowski bleated a home run over the right centre field fence in the second with none aboard.

On the three successive occasions Kozowski came to bat, two were out and two were on. He was passed purposely on two occasions and Wright forced the third batter to fly out. On the third occasion he pitched to Kozowski and struck him out.

Harrison came through with a fine six-hit pitching job, whiffing four and walking five. He too rapped out a single.

FACED THE PETES.

Bill Huntley and Bill Rayner faced the Petes in doubles and got two singles for four. Harrison and Kotowski were the other Petes' batters.

Gerry Goyer, Fitzpatrick, Pettit, Kelleher, Jones and Wright were the Bata hitters.

The Batas matched Kotowski's four-bagger in the second when Davy Jones singled Mouse Bush who got aboard via the fielder's choice and stole second, home. Fred Gurney, who threw three walks, crossed the plate after two successives by Edger and Huntley in the third but the Batas tied it up in their half on a hit by pitcher, a walk, and Fitzpatrick's fielded hit.

MacDonald popped out in the sixth, Bush walked and Kelleher hit cleanly to left for a single. The play was made at third but Bush was safe and Kelleher went to second on the throw. Jones popped out and Wright dropped a lazy fly-ball down the first base line. Edger recovered the ball but threw it past Harrison who covered the sack and two runs scored.

JUMBO WHIFFED.

Kelleher got a run on Harrison's error in the eighth and went to second on a passed ball. Jones whiffed and Art Wright singled. Carr was walked purposely and Coach Vern Handley inserted himself as a pinch-hitter—and struck out. Pettiti's clean single scored Kelleher.

The Batas played errorless ball with Fitzpatrick and Pettiti each providing the highlights of a strong defensive game.

Soccer Gossip

A scan a result of last Saturday's games Batawa now share top spot in the Eastern Ontario Football League with Trenton, who beat Northern Electric by three goals to two at Trenton Memorial Park, Trenton. A strong wind down field enabled, the Shoetowners to obtain a two-goal lead in the first half. N. Smith with two and Kovacs with the marksmen for the locals, whilst Bunny Hall was responsible for the lone Northern counter.

Trenton Golden Rule holders of top position were idle on Saturday as a result of the Kingston Kon cordia game being given the commission. Thus they have a game in hand and a two point goals average than the Batawa boys. In the third scheduled game last week Batawa beat the Ajax Athletic Merchants in Peterborough by three goals to one. Scores are tied with Northern Electric in the league standings.

No Eastern Ontario League games are scheduled for this week-end but there has been given the week-end off as a strong contingent of players and fans will be journeying to Ajax on Saturday en-day to take in the "Dream game": Glasgow Rangers vs Chelsea which is being played at Varsity Stadium on Saturday afternoon. The pride of Scotland will be in attendance record on their tour of Canada and the Continent from London are sure to draw a good following. Reports from the authorities in Toronto indicate a close to a sell out crowd.

Brantford 20 Canadian Legion Ramblers and the Belleville Juvenile entry in the Ontario minor soccer league meet in Belleville in practice every Thursday evening at 7.30 p.m. on the Cricket Field. There have been good turnouts to these practices and lots of enthusiasm has been shown by the youngsters. Any other boys in the district under 18 and over 16 years who are interested in trying out for either of these teams should report for the Thursday practice.

In the Bay of Quinte League the game at Bain Memorial Park between Trenton Merchants and Batawa was rained out and rescheduled for Wednesday night. On the other game called for this week Northern Electric edged out R.C.A.F. United at the air force station by three goals to two. G. Smith, Lever, Inserted Lever netted for the Electrics whilst Bunny Hall was the marksman for both R.C.A.F. goals.

Games scheduled in the Bay of Quinte League next week call for R.C.A.F. United to meet Batawa at the air force station on Tuesday while on Wednesday Northern Electric play host to Trenton Merchants in the Northern Electric Sports ground. Both games are called for 7 p.m. kick off.

INSIDE BASEBALL for Little Leaguers

By MICKEY McCONNELL
Director of the Baseball Information Bureau

The first thing a first-baseman should learn is how to catch thrown balls. When a ball is hit toward another infielder, you run to first base, place your foot against the inside of the bag if your left foot if you're a lefty—your right foot if you're a righty) and turn to face the player who is fielding the ball.

Once you have determined the flight of the ball, you step toward it with the foot corresponding to your gloved hand and stretch your glove out to meet the ball. Naturally the sooner you catch the ball the better chance you have to put out the runner, so you should make your stretch as long as possible.

If the fielder makes a wild throw which prevents you from making the catch and still keeping in contact with the base, you leave the bag to catch the ball and then try to beat the batter back to the bag or to tag him before he reaches the bag.

Toronto Rookie Fulfilling Forecast He Could Help the Ailing Indians

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Prize stories of the last spring training season concerned the arrival of Dave Philley, a fairly undistinguished outfield, at the camp of Cleveland Indians in Tucson, Ariz. It was a story which bounced around quickly and produced many smiles among the baseball folk.

Seems that Philley, a forthright native of Paris, Texas, who had been shipped to the Indians during the winter by Philadelphia Athletics, showed up wearing his .275 lifetime batting mark like a shield and said he believed he knew what had been ailing manager Al Lopez' club. This was interesting, inasmuch as the Indians had just finished second to the Yankees for the third straight time while Dave had been laboring exclusively for the dull last season.

MODEST FELLOW

What Dave said, in effect, was that the Indians looked to him like a club which should win the pennant. They probably just needed a guy like Philley, all right, but then turned reflective.

"Tell you what," he said, "maybe the other Indians won't like hearing that too much right now, but they will when they see me do what Dave puts out for them. He might not be the best outfielder in baseball, but he thinks he is, and that can be important. I'll make you a prediction: Dave he'll help a lot more than Rocky Nelson does at first base."

The man didn't quite make a better prediction. Nelson is back in the International League and Philley is playing the kind of right field that Lopez had been looking for.

Partly due to the fine defensive play and partly due to the A's castoff and partly to several imaginative moves made by manager Lopez, such as shifting Al Rosen to first base and installing Rookies Al Smith and Bill Wilson in left field, this is a different looking Cleveland club.

For the last few years, if you went by the official batting and pitching records, you could explain away the injuns figured to beat the Yanks. They had the power and the pitching, they could field batted balls and could run the bases. The troubles was they didn't win.

Now, Cleveland seems to have given up some of its power by sending Luke Easter to Ottawa and by benching Dale Mitchell. It has a raw rookie, Rudy Regalado, at third, and Al Smith, who hit only .340 in 47 games with the Indians last year, in Mitchell's old job in left field.

But, it's winning the games the old Indians made a practice of losing. It has a new spirit. Lopez, himself, says he believes his club can go all the way this time because it's stronger defensively, runs the bases better and strikes out fewer times than the old bunch.

Parolee Fails To Impress In First Game

SUPERIOR, Wis. (AP) — Billy Joe Moore, paroled this week from the Oklahoma Penitentiary, made his first appearance in professional baseball here Thursday night. It was no ringing success.

Moore, a 24-year-old Negro whose athletic exploits in prison attracted New York Yankee scouts, looked tense, was safe on an error and struck out in four plate trips for Grand Forks of the class C Northern League against Superior. Superior won, 12-3.

Moore was charged with two errors at first base in 12 chances.

Moore was paroled after serving a term for burglary. In 129 games there three years with the prison team, he hit 77 home runs and averaged close to .400.

Yankee scouts helped arrange his discharge from the prison and predicted a bright future for him.

N. Smith and E. Smith scored for the losers.

Marlene Proves 'Hottest Star' With 3-Under-Par Opener

By ROBERT MOORE

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—Little Marlene Stewart, a Canadian who already has proven she's best of the British amateurs, threatened today to prove she's master of women golfers in America—professional and amateur alike.

The pert miss from Foothill, Ont., was the hottest star in the opening round here Thursday of the $7,500 "plus and minus" Triangle round robin invitation tournament.

Marlene toured the Homestead's par 74 Cascades course in a three-under-par 71 for the best medal score over the 6,400-yard layout.

Marlene is in a rosy spot in this 36-hole mathematical mix-up in which each of the 16 players is paired against every other player during five four-ball matches. A player figures her score by comparing her net score on each round with that of the other trio in her foursome.

PATTY BERG LEADS

With her game at its best, Marlene stands an excellent chance of overhauling Patty Berg, the veteran professional from St. Andrews' Hill., who wound up Thursday with a plus 25—eight points better than the plus 13 of Miss Stewart and Dottie Loggie of Atlanta. Miss Berg carded a one-under 73 and Miss Suggs a regulation 74.

Marlene was unfortunate in that she was paired with the hottest foursome in the first round. Jackie Pung of Hawaii scored a 72 but came out with only plus 9. Betty Dodd of San Antonio, Tex., breezed around in 73, leaving her minus 3, while Beverly Hanson, Silverwall of Indo, Calif., got only minus 19 for her effort of 79.

Miss Berg was much more fortunate. She played with Betty Hicks of San Antonio, whose 83 was the high medal score of the round for a minus 13; Betty Bush of Hammond, Ind., who shot an 81 for minus 11; and Betty MacKinnon of Dallas, whose 78 gave her a plus 9.

The tourney favorite, Babe Zaharias of Tampa, Fla., had a 76 for plus 3.

Eight of 32 professionals and two amateurs play 18 holes today. Tomorrow they tour the course twice and wind up the tourney with a single round Sunday.

Canada Has 221 Entries In Empire Games

VANCOUVER (CP)—Here is a break-down of teams in the British Empire Games here July 30-Aug. 7. Entries include contestants and officials.

Canada leads the list of entries with 221 followed by England with 127. Australia is next with 75; New Zealand has 67; and South Africa, 64.

Other countries and team members: Bahamas, seven; Bermuda, 13; British Guiana, four; Fiji, nine; Gold Coast, 12; Hong Kong 10; India, five; Jamaica, 15; Kenya, 13; Nigeria, 15; Northern Rhodesia, 20; Pakistan 27; Scotland 34; Southern Rhodesia 19; Trinidad, 15; Uganda, six; Wales, 22.

BIG SELLING JOB

The games organizing committee has done a powerful selling job. Not content to merely invite countries, they have appealed to national pride in an effort to draw the best athletes available. Part of the selling job was the promise of royal treatment for all athletes on hand—a promise that officials are determined to keep.

Canada, as host nation, naturally has the field with the largest members including 29 officials.

England came next with 20 team members followed by Australia with 7s, New Zealand with 67, and South Africa with 64. Barbados will have the smallest representation with two entries.

Canada said the last of the team members might shrink slightly before the opening ceremonies. Some countries have reserved positions in the entry lists but are still either in training or awaiting necessary funds.

Statistics indicate track and field will most popular with 37 events, 25 countries taking part. Weightlifting has attracted 14 nations to take second spot in team choices.

Canada's team is broken down this way: track and field, 56 men and 15 women; 10 boxers; 19 cyclists; fencing, 10 men and two women; seven bowlers, swimmers and divers, 30 and 10 women; five weightlifters; and eight wrestlers.

Stewart Warner Blanked By Northerns 8-0

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Northern Electric's early inning rallies that netted them eight runs were all they needed last night as they coasted to an 8-0 win over the winless Stewart-Warner crew.

Lonn Cavanagh hurled two-hit ball for the first seven frames to take the win with Al Adams yielding a double in two innings of relief. Carson fanned three with nary a walk, while Adams neither struck out nor walked a man.

Bunk Young started on the mound for Stewart Warner and was touched for all eight runs off five hits. He got one on strikes and issued three free passes in his one and one-third innings. Ernie Carter, Baldwin came on with one out and one on in the fourth to throw superb ball the rest of the way. He was hit for a single by the second man he faced and went on to pitch hitless ball the rest of the route.

Doyle Carter, John Baldwin, catcher teamed up to give the Northern club a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Goyer punched out a single over third and big "Jawn" fired Young's next pitch down the left field line for a home run.

Eleven men went to bat for the winners in the second frame with Whiting Carter at the bat to start the rally. Don Locke sacrificed him to second and was safe on the pitcher's error with DeRushie walking to fill the sacks. Young waltzed home on a passed ball and Carson banged a single off Jeffery's glove to score Locke. Jack Cubkin also hit safely after Carson went down trying for a double. Claude Carr walked and Vern Goyer sent both runners home with a solid two-base hit. The next record-setting batter as the ball was bobbled twice in the outfield.

Baldwin came on in relief at this point and shut the door, although Whiting scored each base on an error and Glenn Young singled. Whiting and Locke both popped up but the damage had been done.

Stewart Warner's only hits were singles by Roy Jeffery and Stan Cressy, and Young's double in the eighth. Dracup was the only Stewart Warner runner to reach second base.

Goyer led the winner at bat, although he played four innings, with a double and a single. Batchelor had a homer, with singles for Carson, Cubkin and Young.

The teams:

Stewart Warner — Miller, Jeffery, Hatfield, Lefort, Lewis, Ashley, Cressey, Carr, Smith, Bertrim, Dracup, James, Young, Baldwin.

Northern Electric — Carter, Locke, Carr, Burleigh, Goyer, Batchelor, Young, Whiting, Locke, DeRushie, Woods, Cubkin, Adams.

Greatest Mass Assault on Records Predicted in British Empire Games

By GRAHAM McCULLIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—This west coast city now is certain it will host the greatest massed assault on the record books in the history of the British Empire Games—being held here July 30-Aug. 7.

Games general manager Blair Clerk offers at least 796 reasons why the event this year will be the best ever. Now that the deadline for receipt of national entry forms has passed, the books show 580 finely-tuned artists and 106 team officials scheduled to show.

A total of 1,482 athletes, three short of the 28 eligible, have announced they will take part. Previous high was at the 1938 games in London when 16 countries and about 400 team members attended.

A number of reasons are unofficially advanced for the tremendous drawing power of the 1954 games. One is the central location of Vancouver. Another reason is the attraction and novelty for Canada, something of a glamorous older daughter among Commonwealth nations.

BERTIE MEANWELL

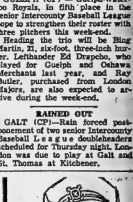
Bobby Locke Out of 'Open'

LONDON (CP) — Bobby Locke, ace South African golfer, said Thursday he has decided to turn down an invitation to play in this year's Canadian Open, scheduled for Vancouver July 14-17.

"I would have loved to have played, but it's not convenient for me, coming right after the British Open," Locke said. "If the tournament had been in Toronto or Montreal I would probably have accepted."

The British Open is July 5-9.

The South African ace will play for Canada next week in matches against the United States at the Mississauga club at Port Credit, Ont. From there he goes to Springfield, N.J., to compete in the U.S. Open June 15-19.



Strengthen Roster

GUELPH (CP) — Guelph-Waterloo Royals, in fifth place in the Intercounty baseball League, hope to strengthen their roster with three pitchers this week-end.

Heading the trio will be Bing Martin, 21, six-foot, three-inch hurler, Lethbridge Cubs. Martin played for Guelph and Oshawa Merchants last year. Ray Butler, purchased from London Majors, can be expected to arrive during the week-end.

RAINED OUT

GALT (CP)—Rain forced postponement of two senior Intercounty Baseball League doubleheaders scheduled for Thursday night. Galt was due to play at Galt and St. Thomas at Kitchener.

"REACHING FROM HEAVEN"

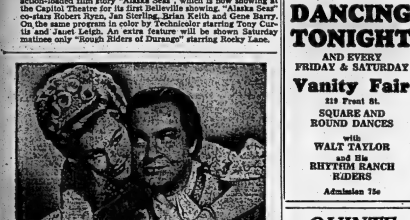
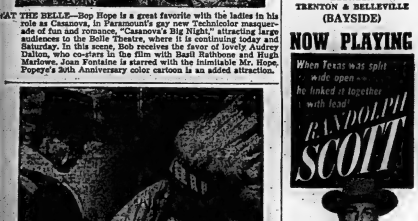
The best motion picture to be shown in Belleville this year is that entitled "Reaching From Heaven," currently on the screen at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. It is best from the standpoint of the powerful impact that it leaves upon the audience. Listers will agree that it preaches a magnificent sermon.

The picture is great because it knocks human selfishness into a cocked hat, because it leaves avarice and greed without a leg to stand upon, because it makes hypocrisy and sham feel like hiding, because it places child-like faith in the goodness of God in its proper perspective, because it lifts prayer to that level to which it rightfully belongs, because it teaches that Christianity is a seven-day business, not just Sunday, because it exalts the practical and realistic in Christian living, because it exemplifies the teaching of Christ James, "Be ye doers of the word and not hearers only."



If you wish to be lifted out of the hum-drum of materialistic living and get a glimpse of what God intended in the brief span of years allotted to us on earth, see this picture. 13-21

EARLY TRADING POST



Godout on the north shore of the St. Lawrence below Quebec was a trading post before 1670.

AT THE CAPITOL—With this thrilling painting, the artist captures the exciting spirit that is generated in Paramount's brand new action-loaded film story "Alaska Seas", which is now showing at the Capitol Theatre for its first Belleville showing. "Alaska Seas" co-stars Robert Ryan, Jan Sterling, Brian Keith and Gene Barry. On the same program in color by Technicolor starring Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh. An extra feature will be shown Saturday matinee only "Rough Riders of Durango" starring Rocky Lane.

AT THE BELLE—Bop Hope is a great favorite with the ladies in his role as Casanova, in Paramount's gay new Technicolor masquerade of fun and romance, "Casanova's Big Night," attracting large audiences to the Belle Theatre, where it is continuing today and Saturday. In this scene, Bob receives the favor of lovely Audrey Dalton, who co-stars in the film with Basil Rathbone and Hugh Marlowe. Joan Fontaine is starred with the inimitable Mr. Hope. Popeye's 30th Anniversary color cartoon is an added attraction.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 5, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Results today will be governed by your friendly—or lack of friendly disposition, and the judgment you employ. Look opposition over carefully, and don't attack unthinkingly.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Fine aspects for you who remain true to your innate powers of perception, your integrity and desire for fair play. There are hidden opportunities to dig out; no wasting time with idlers.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Some opposition, as we all find at times. Don't be hasty or heedless since there are details and objectives with which to reckon. Handle all matters carefully.

June 22 to July 21 (Cancer) — Try again, and still again, if at first you did not succeed. Sometimes it isn't good for us to succeed too quickly, for many obvious reasons. You may have unexpected help.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — While you should not look at things in a pessimistic manner, neither should you be too trusting or optimistic. Sane precautions are always in order, whether in personal matters or on a large scale.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Make use of your intelligence, reasoning powers, sense of fairness and tolerance of others now. These assets are important to your prestige and needless to say, your happiness.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — This day may require some experimenting, some deviation from the usual path in order to produce desired results. But be careful not to violate principle or the rights of others in so acting.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Don't act with such haste that you overlook those "little" things which always prove so important later; neither be uncertain or hesitant. Much may be expected of you.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Mark time where you should, and push ahead vigorously where that should be the order. The urgent thing now is to do the right thing at the right time. Be logical.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Besides astuteness, tact and tolerance will be needed today. Aim hold fast to principles.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Do what you must without pressure and with self-confidence and you will attain. Others are watching your example, so you can be a big help. Don't be extravagant.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Some of you may find today more co-operative if you use your versatility and forget personality-talk. All Piceans: Watch health and diet.

YOU BORN TODAY: Mercury, your Sign, indicates that you can be most successful but you will have to be mindful not to overstep reasonable bounds, to stand firmly on your honorable decisions, and be careful about promises. You can develop your intellect to a marked degree, also your personality, so you could well become a leader or counsellor. Always make decisions calmly and respect others' wishes. Pray daily for guidance. Birthdate of: Adam Smith, noted economist.

EMPEROR ARRIVES

TELEVISION PLAN TO BE RETAINED BY GOVERNMENT

Only One Station in Any Area to Be Permitted

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will retain its policy of one television station—whether CBC or privately-owned—in any area. It may change later.

Revenue Minister McCann, replying to opposition criticism of the policy in the Commons, said Friday night this policy remains "for a further period of time."

He gave no hint of when it will be changed except that it may not be long before there is sufficient degree of national coverage to justify the government and the CBC giving consideration to permitting two and possibly three cases more than two stations in certain areas."

"ENORMOUS SUMS"

Opposition leader Drew said Canadians are paying enormous sums for a television policy which isn't doing the job the government said it would. Dr. Blair Neatby (PC, Toronto Eglington) and Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—Macleod) described it as a monopoly for the CBC which places freedom in jeopardy.

Television sets for six major population centres of Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver will be available on exclusive CBC use. The publicly-owned corporation is also planning on creating in all except Halifax where private broadcasting station will be on the air by the years end.

Other areas are for privately-owned broadcasters who already are operating at Sudbury, London and Windsor, Ontario; Saint John, N.B., The CBC has recommended that the government license stations at Kitchener, Peterborough, Kingston, Windsor and Port Arthur in Ontario; Quebec City, Sherbrooke and Rimouski in Quebec; Sydney, N.S.; Saskatoon and Regina; Calgary and Edmonton.

PRIVACY STATEMENT

Dr. McCann's statement on policy was framed in almost the exact words he used in the Commons in March, 1953.

"It is anticipated that in due course private stations will be permitted in areas covered by CBC stations and the CBC may establish stations in some areas originally covered by private stations. The question of objection of the CBC is to have at least one station in every Canadian area of Canada where that is practicable.

"I understand that private applications are now under consideration.

"Of course, this is the condition but I think over a year ago. I just want to state in the interest that the policy of the government with regard to television has the same today and will continue to be the same for a further period as it was when we initiated it in March 30, 1953."

EXPECTS SURPLUS

Earlier, Dr. McCann said the CBC expects to have an operating surplus of $1,000,000 on a $5,756,000 in the 1953-54 fiscal year. Revenue from the 15-per-cent excise tax on television sets and parts totalled $11,700,000 and commercial revenue, $1,334,000. Expenditures totalled about $7,300,000.

Another 'Invasion' Is Staged By Canadians Who Ten Years Ago Stormed French Coast

Written for The Canadian Press
By LEN TAYLOR
Kitchener-Waterloo Record

SOUTHAMPTON, England (CP) the 3rd Canadian Infantry Division, which stormed the coast of France from assault boats 19 years ago Sunday, sailed Friday night on second "invasion" from this southern England assembly area.

But this time the departure from the continent, by a D-day anniversary party of 1,000 veterans and their wives, was a more prosaic and considerably less dangerous.

Instead of a grim mission carrying pitching boats, the wearers of the Canadian blue patch went by channel steamship. Today they will move into the Normandy landing area by bus from the town of Caen.

The Canadians will be feted by the city of Caen, rebuilt after the destruction of war, at a dinner tonight. Then they will join the mammoth French celebrations of the landings on Sunday and proceed north through former campaigning areas until June 11.

Monday the division will parade its colors which were deposited in the Ottawa Citadel in 1944 when the formation was guest of that Belgian city following a long, hard battle in its liberation.

The Canadian anniversary party is a far cry from the strength of the force fighting the following morning disembarkation of the main group which had come from Canada. Only two smaller groups crossed by air earlier this week.

Almost every unit in "Third Div" will be represented, and all ranks from private to major-general.

Officially representing the North Nova Scotia Highlanders will be Lorne Matchett and his wife, both of Newcastle, N.B. For them the trip is a "second honeymoon." The Matchets have eight children, three of them adopted, ranging in age from eight years to 26. They have been left at home.

Almost every section of Canada is represented. From the far west the QOMR, Combert Fitzgerald, of the Canadian Scottish, and the general who succeeded to the division of June 6, 1944, Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller of Kelowna, B.C.

One of the hardships behind the organization of the pilgrimage has been crippled veteran Clare Millar of Kitchener, Ont. This former Lieutenant of the Perth Regiment Light Infantry of Gall, Ont., operates a licket agency from a wheel chair. Minor is with the party, with his wife as chief aide.

Those benefiting from Canada's have been joined by a number of former services comrades now living in Britain. Many are confirmed and also by a group of permanent force soldiers attached with the NATO troops in Germany.

Canadians Plan Trips to Lands Of Ancestors This Summer

By JOE M'GWEEN
Canadian Press staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Each year more and more Canadians visit the lands of their forefathers.

Canadians, rapidly becoming known as the most travel-hungry peoples on earth, are expected to maintain the pace this year, equalling or even surpassing 1953 record figures.

Shipping and air officials report nearly solid bookings for the early part of the season. Although the rush of the Coronation last year, interest in travel has not diminished.

The transatlantic flow is to the United Kingdom and Europe, but a growing number also plan visits to such places as Bermuda and the Caribbean islands.

Despite the slackening in the general economy, resulting in unemployment and tough markets, there has been no appreciable slowdown in the demand for bookings, officials said.

"In fact ,it sometimes works in the opposite way so far as the business trade is concerned," said one source. "Canadian business men are travelling more in search of markets—and so are their counterparts from the other side."

Dr. Gordon Wood, vice-president of traffic for Trans-Canada Air Lines, said: "Bookings for our first-class passengers are expected to be down in the U.S. this year as compared to a total of 34,000 in 1953. Tourist class is expected to be up."

Cunard and Canadian Pacific Steamships, biggest overseas carriers, also report bookings are expected at least as much business as last year.

Independent sources estimated that a total of 63,000 persons sailed from Canadian ports for North Atlantic European destinations last year.

This compared with 304,000 from United States ports—a comparatively small figure when differences in population are taken into consideration.

"Many, many people go back to the land of their ancestors," an official said. "Often a man waits until his retirement, then sells his home and goes."

Another factor was the war. Many Canadian servicemen in British and European girls during the war. Many of these couples take their children, now grown, grandparents, and often the grandchildren, to visit their ancestral glory.

One official said "new Canadians" make up only a small part of the annual travel figure.

But westward, the story is different. Some 175,000 newcomers are expected this year, adding to the more than 1,000,000 who arrived since the end of the war.

Blackmore Says Some CBC Broadcasts Follow Red Lines

OTTAWA (CP)—John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge) said Friday night that some broadcasts of the CBC follow the Communist line.

He made his statement in the Commons during a discussion on the publicly-owned CBC.

"I have read through two or three Communist newspapers overseas and some from Canada which certainly followed the Communist line and which certainly would lead one to believe that Canadians with the Communist attitude," he said.

Mr. Blackmore referred to two instances—radio speeches by Dr. Brock Chisholm and a talk on termites.

The Social Credit member gratefully has criticized speeches by Dr. Chisholm, a former Canadian deputy minister of health and former director of the World Health Organization of the United Nations.

He said that a half-hour CBC talk on termites was a Communist talk because it indoctrinated the people on evolution.

"The first thing we know this country will be captured by Communist influences infiltrating into our hearts and our homes with-out our even knowing what is happening to us. It has all been the power of the Prince of Darkness at his subtlest," he said.

"Any one who heard Brock Chisholm talk, or who heard the termites talk, would discover who was the evil one. It is easy to see because it is calling in question the sacred teachings of the Bible."

Mr. Blackmore defined evidence of the Communist line as: "All speeches that are designed to show that the Christian faith in Christ is not any way out of the difficulty we are in, all speeches that support the CCF or socialism or right on up to communism, including governments controlling every thing, controlling control. . .

"The way which do this are certainly following the Communist line. All talks which seek to glorify Russia, articles like those by the famous Bill Boss (of The Canadian Tribune) and newspapers are today all over Canada abundantly, and which indicate that Russia has got some glorious form of life over there if we could only just find out about it, all those are following the Communist line and are softening the Canadian people up and are certainly giving comfort to the enemy.

"All broadcasts which tend to weaken the faith of the Canadian people in the Christian faith, in the Bible, the teachings of the Bible—all of those are pro-Communist."

GENEVA PARLEY TURNS ATTENTION TO KOREAN ISSUE

Talks on Indo-China In Recess for 3 Days

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

GENEVA (AP)—The stalemated Geneva conference turned back today to the question of how to unify Korea, a task already written off as hopeless by many Western delegates.

With the stalled Indo China peace talks in recess for three days the 19-party Korean parley scheduled a plenary session. Committee chairmen were expected to reply to a 16-point proposal made two weeks ago by the South Korean foreign minister, Pyun Yung Tai, that elections be conducted throughout Korea under United Nations supervision.

The Communists have maintained that the UN, as a belligerent in the Korean war, is not qualified to supervise all-Korean elections.

They are almost certain to reject the Pyun proposals and reject their demand the Communist style elections repeatedly rejected by the west.

U.S. RESTRICTED SESSION

The 18 UN allies of the Korean war agreed Friday to a proposal by John Foster Dulles and Anthony Bedell Smith of the United States to call a restricted session on Korea Monday.

Apart from a brief procedural debate, the session scheduled for Monday's session will be the first real discussion of Korea since yesterday. It will be limited to the Big Four, Red China and North and South Korea.

A conference source said the purpose of the restricted session will be to "find the most elegant means for breaking off the Korean talks" in view of the apparently irreconcilable positions of the two sides.

Britain's foreign secretary Eden flew back to London Friday night. He is due back Monday, when the conference is expected to switch to Indo-China with the first semi-public session after a series of

Transcripts of Phone Calls Clear Him States McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP)

Senator McCarthy claimed today that the story told in long-secret monitored telephone calls "blows up" the Army case against him. But in a bitter battle with defence officials before taking off for Ripon, Wis. Republican senator left no doubt that he regarded Friday's hectic developments as a prelude to final victory for his group.

He told reporters that disclosures during the televised Senate probe into the dispute of hitherto-unpublished transcripts of secretly monitored phone conversations, between Senate investigations subcommittee counsel and Army Secretary Robert Stevens "blows up their whole case."

The calls spilled into the hearing record soon after another day, breaking a tie-up over their release that had held them back since soon after the public inquiry began April 22.

The calls quoted Stevens, in a March 7 talk with Senator Stuart Symington (Dem. Mo.) shortly before the army filed its "pressure" charges against McCarthy and his aides, as saying allegations of pressure "are unfounded." Also, J. David Schine "were very much exaggerated." The army's formal charges accused Schine of "improper" use of his position in the army camp of seeking by improper means favored treatment for Schine, a former consultant to the investigations sub - committee headed by McCarthy.

The calls also disclosed that Symington, a member of the subcommittee, joined forces with the army side at one point in the disputed hearings to get a hot dog stage. Symington was quoted as advising Stevens he could get help from Clark Clifford, a former aide to President Truman, and as telling Stevens that the deputy attorney general, William F. Rogers, was "the one fellow that is on your side."

CBC Play Written by Man Deported From U.S. Stirs Debate in Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—Revenue Minister McCann says the CBC is not responsible for the personal or political views of freelance writers whose scripts are broadcast.

However, it is responsible for the broadcasting of all scripts, he told Frank E. Lennard (PC—Wentworth), during a Commons debate Friday night on the CBC.

Mr. Lennard had asked if the CBC knew that Ted Allan, writer of a play on the CBC's Sunday series last Sunday, was deported from the United States a year or two ago.

If it did not know, Mr. Lennard added, the CBC should screen its employees. He did not say why Mr. Ship was deported.

Mr. McCann replied that Mr. Ship, a freelance writer, submitted a play entitled "The Investigator" to the CBC. The script was accepted and produced.

The play told the story of a man who went to heaven and started investigating subversives such as Benedict Arnold, Judas Iscariot and rivals of early United States history.

In Toronto, Mr. Ship issued this statement:

"Whether or not I was deported from the United States seems to me to have nothing to do with the fact that a play I wrote for Canadian radio.

"I'm shocked to learn that a member of Parliament would question the desirability of broadcasting a play of merit and popularity solely because of the alleged political beliefs of the author, particularly because these allegations were made, not by a Canadian official, but by the type of American investigating committee which Canadian opinion has condemned. Such a committee of inquisition has finally come to Canada."

Bloomfield Dwelling Burns While Two Families Absent

PICTON (Special) — Fire of undetermined origin early Saturday destroyed a large double brick house on the outskirts of Bloomfield, the household possessions of both tenant families being a complete loss. The member of either family was at home at the time of the fire.

The house, owned by Mrs. Pearl Shannon of Bloomfield, was tenanted by Mr. and Mrs. Donald Best and their two children, with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tucker living in the other side of the house.

Best, a member of the Canadian Army, is a patient at Bumpyknoll hospital.

Lights were seen in the house about midnight Friday and when the fire was discovered about 3.30 for a time it was thought family members might still be in the burning home.

It was later learned, however, that Mr. and Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. Best and her two children had left shortly after midnight for Marysville where they were invited to the house but the flames were too far advanced and nothing could be done to save the double house. Only one wall of the building remains standing.

Propose Church Hospital For Treating Alcoholics

NORTH BAY (CP) — A proposal to set up a church hospital for treating alcoholics was placed before the Toronto conference of the United Church of Canada Friday.

The plan was submitted by the conference's committee on temperance and social service.

It suggested the United Church staff and maintain an alcoholics centre until federal or provincial governments set up such facilities.

Introducer of the bill, Rev. G. K. McMillan of Owen Sound, said the church knows the need for a hospital. However, the setup would require much planning and would be a heavy drain on the church's reserves.

The committee asked that the proposal be sent to the general council meeting in September because of little time left to discuss it and as only 50 of the 600-odd members of the conference attended the meeting.

Also under discussion was a proposal by members of the Grey presbytery to revoke one sentences in a marriage service.

The debate arose two years ago when a special commission was placed before the general council was appointed to study the question of the use of tobacco.

Their report was adopted but its last sentence was referred back issue that has been kept alive ever since.

The last sentence was: "The tobacco question is not a moral issue."

Sponsors of the memorial claimed the council had been ill-advised to approve the statement.

Rev. John F. G. Morris of Elmwood, urged strong support of the memorial. He criticized church elders who went from altar to altar ministering the Lord's Supper and put a glass in their mouths.

Rev. A. Semple of Sydney Mines asked the conference to consider the issue seriously.

"I'm not a smoker, but I hope we're not going to make fools out of ourselves across the country because of this debate."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: A disturbance slowly moving across southern Ontario brought cool, cloudy weather and intermittent rain to the southern half of the province Thursday and Friday. As this disturbance moves into Quebec today, a few showers will linger over most valleys during the day but by evening skies will begin to clear. Sunday will be pleasant day with temperatures somewhat higher than those of Sat.

French Planes Blow Up Rebel Munitions Dump

HANOI (AP) — French planes blew up a Vietminh ammunition dump 35 miles east of here today and dive-bombed Communist-led rebel troops creeping toward this war capital on two roads.

A French army spokesman said the flaming dump apparently was "an emergency storage area for small arms and mortar ammunition."

The dump destroyed Vietminh column from Dien Bien Phu was reported 50 miles west of the Red river delta defence perimeter.

Vietminh saboteurs cut rails on the vital supply line between Hanoi and the Haiphong seaport. A Vietminh radio announced that 65 of the damage was quickly repaired.

Viet Nam rail guards withdrew under rebel attack from a bridge near Haidoung, 32 miles east of Hanoi on the Haiphong road, but the post was retaken by French union forces at daybreak.

Canadians Not Long and Lean, But Short and Dumpy Survey Shows

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — You've heard about Canadians being long and lean?

Well, we're not. We're short and dumpy.

Men 20 years old and over weigh an average of 161½ pounds and are five feet, seven inches tall. Women weigh 135 pounds and are five feet, 1¾ inches tall.

The health department today issued results of a survey started last year by the bureau of statistics on the weight and height of Canadians. The survey also turned up these items:

Men are more hesitant than women in giving their age.

Canadians will give their year of birth more readily than their age.

Women talk more than men about reducing but their weight tends to increase more with advancing years.

The average Canadian is shorter and heavier than has been assumed for years. For 50 years, the weight figure for the average man has been estimated at 154 pounds; for the average woman, 132 pounds.

Dr. L. B. Pett, chief of the health department's nutrition division, said the best advice for those is to stay below the average weight and height for particular age group and height.

"Compared to other group, those above the average weight, by provide during the next 20 years most of the chronic degenerative diseases such as high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, cirrhosis," he said.

Dr. Pett said these diseases are more prevalent in overweight persons who are overweight.

Dr. Pett said the purpose of the survey was to obtain weight-and-height tables for men and women which would be helpful to the medical profession in dealing with their patients, particularly in cases of routine checking.

52 Persons Injured In Series of Blasts At Chemical Plant

Some of Workers May Have Been Caught in Blast Area

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Tons of water pumped from the Kanawha river held at bay today a dangerous fire in a chemical plant after a series of five "atomic-like" explosions shook the countryside and injured at least 52 persons.

Company officials said that as far as they could tell all personnel were accounted for. About 200 men were working in the plant of the Union Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Corp., about 11 miles west of here, when a tank car exploded and set off a chain of four other blasts.

A spokesman said there was a "possibility" some of the workers might have been caught in the blast area. He would not elaborate other than to say there had been no "roll call" of employees.

About 40 of those hurt were employees of the plant. The others included numerous persons cut or bruised by flying glass and falling debris.

Substantial property damage resulted from the blasts heard or within a 15-mile radius of the big plant in South West Virginia's "chemical valley."

RUGGED BATTLE

It was more than five hours before firemen got the upper hand on the fire in the styrene plant. Acrid smoke poured from the stored and water pumped from the nearby river, the blaze raged unabated.

Homes and business places were shaken by the explosions and fire. Windows spotted a few miles apart, along the heavily industrialized river front.

The first explosion, with a fireball striking like that from an atomic blast, occurred about 8:40 p.m. EDT. Seven hours later, firemen began to gain on the chemical-fed blaze.

Delbert Simmons who was driving past the plant at the time of the first blast, said: "All I could see was a big flash of white fire, and my car turned around."

Auto Industry In Deep Trouble Says Union Head

WINDSOR (CP) — A union spokesman said Friday that layoffs suspended by Ford of Canada "are more proof that . . . the auto industry's production race in the Canadian automobile industry has caught up with passenger sales."

President Charles McDonald of Local 200, United Automobile Workers, CIO, was commenting on the announcement of a series of layoffs affecting 6,850 employees of the Windsor and Oakville, Ont., Ford plants.

"More than speeches and blind optimism are needed now," Mr. McDonald said. "The automobile industry in Canada is in deep trouble. 20's profits may alone Ford, General Motors of Canada and the others to sit out any 'adjustment,' 'dip' or what-have-you in a big style. But among other things they should at least know that they are hanging the unemployment threat around their necks with this one."

Justice McKeur Fines Auctioneer $500 for Contempt

TORONTO (CP) — Chief Justice J. C. McKeur Friday gave a stern, 20-minute reprimand to Robert G. Roy, Clarmont, Ont., auctioneer, and fined him $200 and $300 costs on a contempt of court charge.

The chief justice charged Roy with contempt of court after the auctioneer sent Lord Beaverbrook a letter containing abusive language concerning a case the chief justice was considering for judgment.

Roy was the plaintiff in an action against Frank Waddington, Toronto auctioneer. The case ended last Friday when His Lordship reserved judgment. He reserved Roy's letter Tuesday.

The chief justice said the letter was a "scurrilous attack" on the defendant, witnesses and other parties to the action. He reserved judgment Thursday in citing Roy for contempt.

All Teaching Positions Filled For Next Term

Although 15 teachers will be leaving the Belleville Collegiate at the end of the present school term all staff positions for both the collegiate and the new Quinte Secondary School at Trenton already been filled for the re-opening of classes in September.

This was stated today by a member of the local high school board following rumors of concern being felt by certain residents that as many as seven were leaving the collegiate.

"Actually, the school board member said, "all teaching positions in both the collegiate and the new high school have been filled with fully qualified teachers, and the board is extremely fortunate in getting all positions filled early."

Of the 15 teachers leaving Belleville collegiate only five are leaving for positions with other schools. These include Principal G. E. Currie who is going to St. Catherines as collegiate principal there; W. J. Countryman who is going to Hanover as principal; John Field, Lawrence Smith and Miss Hilda Cook.

One of the teachers, Miss Merry is retiring, and another is not continuing in the teaching profession. Several others did not have the necessary qualifications for renewal of their contracts.

For the first time in several years the opening of the school term in September will see all teachers with full qualifications, it was stated.

Summer Theatre Players Busy On Rehearsals

Rehearsals are well under way for the first presentation of Belleville's initial summer theatre venture, the sponsorship of the Y's Men's Club, whose welfare funds will benefit from any profits made, the group, known as The Quinte Players, will present Dalton Wilham's "Night Must Fall," a thrilling mystery drama which has been played with tremendous success on two continents. The entire production, under the direction of Elaine Jardine, features local and district talent, and if enthusiasm is a measure, their first effort should afford the public of this area with a first-class evening's entertainment.

A proper stage is being erected at Tobe's County Gardens, where the group's plays will be presented in a real summer theatre atmosphere. The set design is being done by Phillips Faulkner, with lighting and special effects by Ed Kennedy. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 28th, 29th and 30th are the days of the first production, and preparations are being made to seat three hundred people each night. The stage is being raised to a level that will afford a good view from any seat in the auditorium, and it is to be hoped that this effort will be the beginning of a successful venture.

TRIAL SEPARATION

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Marie McDonald says a clash of temperaments has caused her and her husband, Harry Karl, wealthy shoe manufacturer, to agree on a trial separation. She said an insurance policy on a $20,000 night club party last Wednesday when her gown was ignited by a cigaret was not involved in the decision. Karl patted out the blaze with his hands.

Stories of Famous Hymns

Tell me the story of Jesus,
Write on my heart every word;
Tell me the story most precious,
Sweetest that ever was heard.
Tell how the angels, in chorus
Sang as they welcomed His birth,
"Glory to God in the highest!
Peace and good tidings to earth."

Fasting alone in the desert,
Tell of the days that are past,
How for our sins He was tempted,
Yet was triumphant at last.
Tell of the years of His labor,
Tell of the sorrow He bore.
He was despised and afflicted,
Homeless, rejected and poor.

Tell of the cross where they nailed Him,
Writhing in anguish and pain;
Tell of the grave where they laid Him,
Tell how He liveth again.
Love in that story so tender,
Clearer than ever I see.

Many of the world's most popular hymnists were called home before the songs became famous. But "Aunt Fanny" Crosby, who wrote several thousand hymns during her life-time, lived to hear many of them go singing around the globe. She was 95 when she passed over into glory and some of the songs for which posterity remembers her best were written near the end of her remarkable literary career.

"Aunt Fanny" was born in 1820 in Putnam County, New York, and she lived during the life-time of seven out of the first 28 presidents of the United States, except George Washington. Many of her songs—"Safe In the Arms Of Jesus", "Rescue The Perishing," "Saved By Grace", "Blessed Assurance, Jesus Is Mine", "Pass Me Not, O Gentle Saviour", and a host of others—are as popular today as ever.

"Tell Me The Story Of Jesus" was one of her most successful hymns for children. It was set to music by a friend, John R. Sweney, Pennsylvania musician, who wrote tunes for Eliza Hewitt's "More About Jesus" and "Sunshine In The Soul", and other gospel favorites. Homer Rodeheaver, gospel singer and hymn writer, tells an interesting story of the song:

"During the World War, he recalls, "I sang 'Tell Me The Story Of Jesus' to many groups of soldiers in France, — in the old, stone barracks, in dugouts where there was only a little candle with which to see the words, or in the open as the line of soldiers, marching to the front, would stop for rest; and, once in October 4, 1918, in the Argonne Forest, just as a big drive had started. "But no matter where I sang this song, the soldier boys would take off their dirty service caps, or hang their tired helmets on their arms and remain perfectly quiet. There was no song that I sang with the same effect. Many times since the war and referred to the unusual situations in which it was sung and the impression the song made upon them at the time".

What to do.

TO MAKE YOUR SUMMER SAFER

Summer and swimming go together like ham and eggs.

To make your summer safer, St. John Ambulance recommends that you learn artificial respiration before you go to a cottage or to a swimming beach. The three recognized methods are the Holger-Nielson, the Schaefer and the Silvester. None of these can be taught in a brief column like this —practice is the only way — but here are some of the fundamentals.

Be sure that the patient is lying on his stomach, that his left leg is lying on his back there is no chance of the water getting out of his air passages and the tongue may slip back, blocking his breathing.

Artificial respiration should start immediately and there should be no break, even if someone else is taking over or if the patient is being taken to hospital by ambulance. It should be kept up until breathing has been restored or a medical practitioner pronounces the patient dead.

KEEP PATIENT WARM

Some should remove wet clothes and loosen any tight clothing, especially around the neck, chest and waist. The patient should be kept warm with blankets, clothes and hot water bottles and the limbs should be massaged toward the heart to help the flow of blood.

Have someone call a doctor, ambulance and police or fire department emergency car if they are available.

When the patient has started breathing again, turn him on his back and don't let him sit or stand for several hours unless a doctor orders otherwise. Watch closely for a relapse and start artificial respiration again if it occurs.

St. John Ambulance offers instruction in artificial respiration as part of its course in First Aid and in many communities at this time of year special two-hour classes are available.

ABOVE TEMPTATION

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) —Authorities at St. Anne's school are taking precautions against further theft of the rope used for raising the flag. Since the fire department installed a new rope, the school has been using a ladder to tie it high enough to discourage theft.

A Lift for Living

Stand Up and Be Counted

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

One of the by-products of Big Business and Big Government and Big Labor and Big Crime and Big Cities is a loss of personal responsibility. As individuals we seem too small to count.

In New York City, for instance, we recently had a State Crime Commission at work uncovering the connections between criminals and politicians. We read the papers for each new scandal. But the whole thing seemed such a mess that the individual citizen felt helpless and tended to think the situation was hopeless. So he shrugged his shoulders and said: "What can I do about it? I have no influence, I have no political push."

That is the trouble. We are looking for political pull when what we need is political push. The gangster with pull can be checked by the good citizen with push.

A few years ago Bonaro Overstreet addressed some lines "to one who doubts the worth of doing anything if you can't do everything." She said that at least you can choose which side of a cause you'll add the stubborn ounces of our weight. We may carry not much weight, but if enough of us put our ounces on the right side we can tip the scales.

CAN TIP SCALES

Some men carry weight by the positions of power which they hold. You and I may not be among these. Some persons wield great influence by their creative ability as writers or speakers or scientists. You and I may not be in the genius class. We can, however, join churches and movements which are trying to tip the scales on God's side.

If we want a decent world, how can we do less when the forces of evil are trembling in the balance as they are today? Before this day is over, each one of us by some thought or word or deed will cast ounces of his weight on the Lord's side or against Him.

How do we measure the worth of a man? About 21 years ago my friend, Dr. Gaston Foote, a Texas minister, gave a rather vivid description of the value of a man as measured by the physical elements of which he is made. I have not verified his figures, but I give them for you.

CHEMICAL WORTH

He said that an average man weighing 150 pounds contains enough fat for seven bars of soap, enough iron to make two ten-penny nails, enough salt to fill the average salt-shaker, enough sugar for a couple of cups of coffee, enough lime to whitewash one medium-sized chicken coop, and enough sulphur to rid one ordinary hound of a coat of fleas. All told, this collection of materials at today's market is worth about 98 cents. In other words, according to this method of computation, a man is worth about 65 cents per hundred weight, F.O.B.

Since that was written in 1933, during the depression, we should now have to allow for rising prices! I suppose we could say that the physical elements of a man's body are worth about a dollar and a half a hundred weight!

I have selected this to show the absurdity of measuring a man's worth by chemical analysis. Can we them compute his value by what he earns? That, to be sure, is some measure, but hardly an adequate one, for a well-known prize-fighter a few years ago received more for his 55 minutes in the ring than a whole regiment of marines were paid for a month's service in the trenches of France in World War I.

HOW MUCH VALUE

Can we measure a man's worth then, by what he costs? Hardly, for contrast the millions it cost Egypt to raise a fellow like King Farouk with the few dollars it cost to raise Abraham Lincoln, the rail-splitter.

Is a man's value to be measured by what he earns? Certainly not, for on that basis a gangster like Frank Costello or the late Al Capone would be worth perhaps 10 times as an Einstein.

No, the only way to compute how much a person is worth to the world is to measure how much he has added to the sum of the world's welfare. How much better off is the world when he leaves than when he came?

Each one of us counts with God. God counts on each one of us. Therefore let each of us stand up and be counted.

Camp Adventure

By NANCY CLEAVER

Camp is a real adventure and "the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts." What finer expression of the idealism which stirs within campers at a good camp or "High Occasion" can be found than in this "Code for Campers"?

"We Aim. . . . . .

To live out the things we believe.

To have a sincere care for all people.

To be disciplined in all we do.

To see the job that needs to be done, and carry it through.

To be constructive in our thinking and speaking.

To learn to work in a group.

To be willing to recognize and to correct our faults.

To study and work for sound homes, ordered communities and a peaceful world."

(Written by the "Crees" or Senior girls at Camp Tanamakoon, Algonquin Park.)

To camp—or not to camp—that is the question in countless homes where boys and girls are eager to go to camp, "it's such fun!" they chorus.

ACCEPTED PATTERN

A summer camp adventure for a boy or girl has become an accepted holiday pattern in thousands of Canadian families. But with rising camp fees, accompanied by the higher cost of living, many parents are wavering about camp this summer.

The younger generation show no signs of doubting the value of camping. They just know they will learn to swim and dive a lot better, "Jim" can handle a canoe just like an Indian since he went to camp—and did he ever pick up some smart fishing tips!" Helen, who is an only child, says a bit wistfully, "Mum always leaves about camp being such a friendly place. The girls had a marvellous time in their group."

A good camp benefits the whole child—body, mind and spirit. It is not just a place for recreation, or even just for education, but for the growth of a boy's or girl's total character and physique.

A child's or youth's enthusiasm for a particular camp where he has summered is likely to be as ardent as his loyalty for his own school. There is a great satisfaction returning to familiar haunts. It is quite possible that the camp your child loves, even if it costs quite a bit, is worth every cent at the present stage in his development.

GOOD CAMPS

But if increased camp fees make this particular camp really beyond the means of money the family can devote to it, why not consider another camp where the rates are not quite so high? This would seem a better solution than cutting out camp completely. There are good camps in the different price ranges in most areas.

What is your idea of a "good camp?" Every parent will have a different answer—but they will agree that another year their child will be well cared for and happy. Mr. Burbidge's letter will know that the camp our boy or girl goes to is a safe place, that adequate provision is made for nourishing food and sufficient rest, that the camp leaders and staff have some of the same ideals for the campers that we have for our children.

We would like to feel confident that our child will be happy at camp, swimming and diving and boating, and trying out fresh hobbies and making new friends. Discreet inquiries made to parents of last year's campers satisfy or dissillusion a father or mother about the true quality of a camp!

Camps last all kinds of values for different campers, meeting their own special needs and helping them grow. As a counsellor four years and as a director for six, we saw very clearly that although the contribution camp life made to some youngsters was greater than to others, with very, very few exceptions they all seemed to receive benefit from it. A camper can echo Ulysses words in Tennyson's poem,

"All experience is an arch where through
Gleams the untravelled world whose margin fades
Forever and forever as I move."

WHEN OLD AGE CAME EARLY

About a century ago fifty was considered a ripe old age. "The Printed Word," a pamphlet published by the public relations firm of Johnston, Everson and Charlesworth, is authority for that statement. One's first reaction is to nod one's head sagely, bow politely to the statistics on the lengthening life span of modern man which are presented so stirringly for our inspection by various life insurance companies and pass on to something more startling.

But "The Printed Word" proceeds to parade some facts which the life insurance companies either overlook or neglect to mention. A hundred years ago a man of fifty was considered old not merely because he had survived for more years than most men but because he also acted like an old man. "Sir Walter Scott, in 'The Fortunes of Nigel,' depicts James I as an old man, although at the time the incidents of the novel are supposed to occur that king must have been in his mid-fifties," says "The Printed Word." Furthermore, this could not have been the result of ignorance by the author, on the part of Scott himself was fifty when he wrote the book.

More evidence: "Addison, writing at an earlier age, made his fine old English gentleman, Sir Roger de Coverley, display the genialities and crotchets of old age, and the universal respect in which Sir Roger is held owes something to the number of his years as well as to his character. Yet Addison definitely sets the knight in his fifty-sixth year."

"The Printed Word" then proceeds to outline the other side of the age story. "As men aged earlier in past centuries than they do now, they were also expected to mature earlier. Thus, when the Duke of Wellington, well launched on his military career while he was still in his twenties, and to the young men at the court of Elizabeth I who assumed positions of responsibility at ages when, in the reign of Elizabeth II, young men are still attending universities. George Washington is mentioned—and he was but one of many."

Various interesting conclusions can be drawn from these facts. For instance, perhaps the reader likes the idea of the operation of a law of compensations, whether the compensatory feature be long life or short life. Or maybe the necessity of spending more years preparing for life, or whether the increased time spent in acquiring an education is considered compensation for an increased life expectancy.

Personally, at this time of year, with summer holidays in the offing, the theory which we favor is that work is bad for one and that just as soon as young men avoided acquiring this bad habit until they were past their teens they added years to their lives.

It's a beautiful theory, anyway. Maybe the Boss would like to underwrite financially an interesting experiment, to determine whether an absolutely idle man could live to be a hundred and five. There is a call for volunteers, we'll sacrifice ourselves in the interests of science.

CONCEALED PRICES

"Industry," the monthly organ of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, makes an interesting point in a discussion of a recent request to the government for an extension of social security measures. Ottawa wanted to know where the money was to come from, asks "Industry." Then it adds: "Let there be no mistake about it: things which are paid for out of taxes, are still paid for—by the taxpayer. Those taxes are hidden, concealed, such things are never free and it is well for the people who pay for them to take note of the fact."

The second sentence is particularly significant and it applies to all purchases, not merely to those paid for out of taxes.

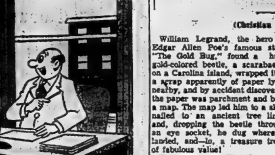
After much effort by publicists, people are becoming aware that they pay for what they get, they receive from their governments, whether at the municipal, provincial or federal level.

But is not always so certain that everybody recognizes that somebody has to pay, too, when certain services are not provided.

When a social security measure is demanded we need to ask ourselves not only who will pay for it but also whether anybody is at present paying for it.

There are many services which we cannot afford—but there are others which we cannot afford to be without, and which are now being paid for in a different manner than through federal taxes.

And whether this is true or not we need to remember that "though the price be concealed, such things are never free and it is well for the people who pay for them to take note of the fact."



A case in point is unemployment insurance. This costs us huge sums. But it would cost us much to be without it, too. Nor would the entire cost be in hardship and suffering to the unemployed. For, if there were no unemployment insurance scheme, we could not permit them to starve—and somebody would have to pay the cost of feeding them and their families. Even if it is probable that they would not be as well fed nor as well sheltered as they are today and in that sense the cost of this social security measure is higher than it might be. But the difference between what we pay today and what we would pay if the insurance scheme was not in operation would be made up in two ways—by hardship amongst the jobless and by a decrease in purchasing power which would spread the evil effects of their inability to obtain work and add to their numbers.

It is quite probable that this social security scheme is actually saving us money—as well as preventing suffering.

We ought to bear this in mind. The first question to ask in regard to all such measures is whether they are necessary. Then, if they are necessary, we need to decide what is the cheapest method of providing the required service. And we ought always to remember that if any service is truly necessary it will be provided and that, though the price may be made more cleverly concealed than in the case of tax-supported measures, some of us will have to pay it.

Conservation Briefs

A series of little known facts about conservation, under the heading of "Conservation Briefs" will occupy this space weekly. These briefs are being written by Moira River Conservation Authority to let you, the people, know what your Conservation Authority stands for.

DID YOU KNOW that soil from which trees and other plant cover have been removed is subject to floods and to desiccation; and is particularly susceptible to the disastrous effects of both flood and water erosion? The topsoil, which produces our crops is on the average only a few inches deep, yet from it springs all of our agricultural wealth. When the topsoil is lost we come to the subsoil which is relatively barren.

Through the Farm Planning Service of the Ontario Department of Agriculture a great deal of aid has been given farmers whose lands suffer from wind and water erosion.

THE YOUNG MINDS

Beyond the newest fast today
To use, as yet unknown,
An hour, a month, a year away,
For one who toils alone
There lies a truth which he shall find
To better all that lies behind.

That newest book in which is told
The last discovery made
May in another week be old
And on the shelf be laid,
For someone from the books will learn
What long has been unknown to learn.

Were youth, with all that is, content
And satisfied to rest,
Their time and thought would not be spent
To better what is best,
In books, in art, past the reader finds,
The future lies in youthful minds.

Treasure Hunt In Egypt

(Christian Science Monitor)

William Legrand, the hero of Edgar Allan Poe's famous story "The Gold Bug," found a huge gold-colored scarabaeus, or beetle, on a Carolina island, wrapped it in a scrap apparently of paper lying nearby, and by accident discovered it the paper was parchment and bore a map. The map led him to a skull nailed to an ancient tree, and, dropping the beetle through an eye socket, he found where it landed, and—lo, a treasure trove of fabulous value!

Two years ago Egyptian archaeologists found a stone scarab (a symbolic representation of the sacred beetle of the ancients) bearing decipherable hieroglyphics. These hinted that the long-sought tomb of Cheops lay near the southwest corner of the greatest of all stone pyramids. Workmen excavating recently for a new tourist road struck indications of the tomb's location. The archaeologists came to explore, and, in a mixture of ancient art and craftsmanship which, when brought to light, may rival or even surpass the finds in the tomb of Tutankhamen.

For the tomb of "King Tut" had been partially rifled a few years after he died. In fact, the tomb of Cheops may be the only royal sepulcher left intact after 1100 B.C.

Already discovered within it is an embalmment funeral ship, 144 feet long, complete with oars, rudder, and symbolically coiled linen mat provided for Cheops' use in the small of its fragrant timbers and cedar wood. Burned bricks were found in the walls of the sepulcheral chamber, a device adopted by the two monarchs never carved in deeds a niche in history comparable to what they wrought in stone for their inanimate remains. Tutankhamen was an obscure king who reigned but a few years and only as a boy. Cheops was a bit of a tyrant, circa 3000 B.C. model. He cleared all the temples, suspended all other public works, and employed quarterly relays of 100,000 men each in the building of his own monument—"The labor of an age in piles of stone," as the worthy John Milton, "that his relics might be hid under a starry-pointing pyramid."

'Ant Palaces' Kept Widow

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

Mrs. May Brunt, Bedfordshire, England, took to making ant "palaces" as a means of augmenting a livelihood after the odath of her entomologist husband in 1919. He had made a special study of the meadow ant and had given illustrated lectures. As part of his studies he had built small-scale dwellings for the insects which were two sheets of glass held together as a picture frame and between the sheets of glass colonies of ants could be seen going industriously about their daily toil.

After her husband had died Mrs. Brunt with three children to support, saw an opportunity of turning things to account. There were merely a hobby with her husband, but as a commercial venture. As things turned out, success came to her beyond her most sanguine dreams. Thousands of these structures were turned out annually and they are now a popular feature of British class rooms and naturalists' living rooms.

But the way was not easy nor free. It simply a matter of collecting ants in the fields, filling the glass cages with earth and leaving the insects to do their own devices. The soil was one of the most encouraging headaches. The key to the entire operation is that the soil, once cleaned, breathed and fed, must be an inviting that it will tempt ants to forget their old halls in the open field and carry on their housekeeping under glass. After countless experiments the ideal recipe was discovered.

Moreover, the industry must have a queen ant which brown meadow ants hide as far as three and four feet below the surface of the ground. This required a tremendous amount of digging, but was later learned that the queens move closer to the surface of the soil during the early morning o'clock, which assisted in finding them. Then, after providing the "palace." But since Mrs. Brunt caught all the ants and never killed them, the loss of the one queen was a most important part of her work.

But now Mrs. Briant, after 35 years with ant palaces, is ready for a change. She is willing to sell anything against meadow ants, but after 35 years of living, having the same guests for dinner and supper every day. The conversation there turns in the same topics. But the delight and instruction which this life pursuit has offered countless British children and adults will give Mrs. Brian little sympathy that her ant palaces have been indeed worth while.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GOD DEPENDENT ON US

Everyone would admit that we are all dependent upon the God who created us, but few people realize that God is also dependent upon us. He could not have made His spoken word, achieve anything His will desired, but He has chosen to achieve certain things through us. If we fail Him, His plans are not consummated.

In what particular ways is God dependent upon us? First, He is dependent upon us to keep the earth teeming with fruitfulness. God alone can furnish the seed which produce the harvest, but we must cultivate the seed, the private and reap and thresh. God is dependent upon us to keep the social and political life of the world secure. He will bring events to their proper climax, but we must strive after justice and righteousness. The ultimate goal of history is that for humanity what humanity can do for itself.

Finally and most important of all, God is dependent upon us in the fulfilling of our personal lives. God can give us health, but only if we respect and turn away from our evil ways. God can fill our lives with untold blessings, but only if we are receptive to these blessings.

We are all dependent upon God —that is obvious. But it is also true that God is dependent upon us.

Railway May Supplant Auto?

(Sudbury Star)

Has the wheel completed its turn in the loss of revenue passengers by the automobile? That old diesel born lure the weary traveller from the dust and discomfort of the touring car?

Engineers of the Canadian Pacific Railway have developed a blast of an impatient motorist? Streamlined highways on the Victoria Day holiday, in which one and one-half hours was the elapsed time to travel the 90 miles at stch between Barrie and Orillia may turn the traveller from the automobile, dust-filled road, fume-filled highway to the more restful comfort of the railway coach.

There is the pleasure driving on modern highways? Where is the pleasure in driving bumper-to-bumper for 90 miles in 90 minutes? It is not much faster than brisk walking.

Old Horsehair Sofas Scarce

(Galt Reporter)

Modern furniture is built for comfort and convenience. But we doubt if the fabrics which cover it are as long lasting as those that once familiar in old Ontario. We refer to the horsehair sofas. It was, of course, the long hair taken from the manes and tails of horses that gave it its name.

It was a poor home indeed which did not possess one of these sofas and, in their day, they were useful and often fancy pieces of furniture. They were the envy of even into the seating. It provided long lasting comfort and was also a slippery covering. It did, however, have certain disadvantages when it came to cleaning. When a thread of the stiff horsehair broke, the ends would work out and irritate the clothing. This naturally was annoying and possibly even dangerous.

Horsehair, of course, was widely used in the days before upholstered seating material for carriages, as well as for saddles, for riding and slippers and gloves. The old criminal cloth, for the stiffening of collars and cuffs of men's shirts.

It was about this time of the year that horsehair was plentiful during over the horses, inspecting either manes and tails, to see how much of the hair had been worn or thinned out without destroying the beauty of these parts of the horses. Farmers with a particularly luxuriant growth were favorites. The accumulated horsehair would be asked in a bag, until the man, who was going from farm to farm and such materials would call at each house. He would then sort out, after a bit of bargaining, at from 15 or 25 cents or more.

We doubt if there are many horsehair sofas left in Ontario. Those that are should be kept as museum pieces. They had romantic, as well as useful, connotations. Many of our grandmothers were wooed and won while seated primly on horsehair sofas.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

STEADY YOUR WEAK NERVES, SISSY.

Came a clipping in the mail the other day—a columnist convulsed his readers with some droll comments on The Keys to Vital Energy. The particular keys the humorist chose for his piece; if I remember, were breathing, nudity and somersaults. My recollection is hazy as to one other key—a violent one.

Dr. Brady.

Is, I'm not sure whether the humorist cracked wise about it or whether I just felt curious about how he might regard it, namely, temperance.

The humorist made no allusion whatever to the seventh key, namely, the rejuvenation diet. This is a corrective protective diet, a regeneration diet, a reconstruction diet, a medical or pattern on which to build your own everyday diet. The skeleton diet supplies all the vitamins and minerals one requires to maintain good health and vim, with the exception of iodin. It is virtually impossible today to get enough iodin to maintain good nutrition in the absence of iodized salt. In the Great Lakes basin, middle west, the great plains, Rocky Mountain region and far west. Fortunately nearly everybody in these areas knows soil and water and food grown animal or vegetable food are poor in iodin, and iodin from imported foods, especially sea food and/or from the use of iodized salt instead of ordinary salt.

One of the physiological functions of iodin is regulation of excitability of nerve fibres and nerve endings. In other words, calcium is a natural sedative, or, say, it tends to steady the "nerves".

I believe the calcium deficiency from which most Americans suffer, particularly the younger generation brought up on refined, processed food—food robbed of its natural vitamins and minerals—what I call chalk-food, accounts for the increasing consumption of aspirin, acetanilid, barbiturates and alcohol, which should be a matter of grave concern to sober citizens. Trouble is there are so few perfectly sober citizens nowadays. What with the constant drain upon everyone indiscriminately as an accompaniment to sustain health and vim, with the exception of iodin, it is virtually impossible today to get enough iodin to maintain good nutrition in the absence of iodized salt. THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Some areas of North America are still free of the starling. Some areas of the continent are free, too, of that other European bird, the white man. But we may be sure that just as the remotest regions of the continent have felt the unpromising desert of America is being shrewdly cultivated by white men, with Geiger counters or oil drills or some other handy device, so the starling will find every nook and cranny. It doesn't have to. He picks out a promising location, and stays there, the year round. Where the native species couldn't find sustance, the starling can. Where the native breeds couldn't multiply, the starling does; and in case some of them die off, the starling breeds so fast, the loss is soon made up. There appears to be less danger of the strongest starling than among the native birds. being thereby obliterated.

True, the starling is a nuisance. But how about us? True the starling displaces the native birds. But eat we? And it begins to look as if the starling is going to oust the native inhabitants. Well?

"I hate the look of the things," declared a lady of my acquaintance as he watched the starlings, giant-tailed, grey-bellied, waddling beakdown over his lawn.

"Let's go down-town tomorrow" I suggested. She spent three minutes to nine, and watch the folks hustling to their offices and stores."

"Nope, I disagreed, "A realist. We must recognize efficiency when we see it."

BE AGELESS!

I have every sympathy with women who do not desire to reveal their ages. Indeed, all of women who are kind and good, are really ageless. People grow old in their minds when they lessen their interest in life, and in the new thrill at some miracle in nature, but it is possible to keep the heart young until it takes its long sleep.

I never thought that the late W. L. (Billy) Phelps, the famous English teacher at Yale University, would ever grow old. He used to dash into my office when I was handling a daily article on books by him, have a long discussion on what wife all the workers, then go on to a lecture engagement in town before returning to New Haven. He was a wonderful woman, around the eighty milestone when he died but he was never old."Peoples Journal, Dundee.

That's the way it should be. Years don't matter so much. It's what we have done with them and how we have made them serve us and those about us. My memory goes back to my college days. There was a wonderful woman, who was the librarian in the town,

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BABY SITTING.

Males of certain kinds of birds assist their wives in household duties, others leave go near the nest. The male Bluebird or the sparrows belong to the first group. But did you ever see Mama Dove feeding each other's children?

Cowbirds always lay their eggs in nests of other species, and as their babies may have things to themselves, foster parents, both male and various other kinds of birds do foster parenting occasionally somebody has reported two families of wood ducks incubating in the same nest box.

A house wren has been known to use a bluebird box that had used the same nest. Then in 1932 an article by Mr. Mercey Brackbill explained that the wrens had cat, telling of his experience with a pair of wrens that had a nest of song sparrows occupying one nest.

The wrens had arrived a bit too late to see the start of the performance, he was told all particulars by the foster parents and proceedings extremely carefully for the last few days.

It seems that a cardinal that started the construction of the nest, so the exterior was made of weed stems, coarse grass, pieces of vine, and strips of bark, all interwoven.

In the absence for a few days (which is quite usual for cardinals) a song sparrow had taken possession, and had built inside by lining with closely packed human hair, fine grass, song sparrow style. Then both species laid eggs.

HATCH OTHER'S EGGS.

Both pairs sat on the three cardinal eggs and on one song sparrow egg. The cardinals alone waited until the other bird left before taking her own incubating, but the cardinal sat on top of the sparrow if it were still on the nest when she came along for duty. Even after the eggs hatched the same thing happened.

The four parents fed the nestlings, all of which were cardinals. The other egg never hatched. Often on hearing food and finding no adult there, the male cardinals waited until one came, gave over meetings to the local paper. "As to the baby sparrow and fed it.

Watch For LUCKY "35"

Some New Twists to Watches And Uses Made of Hairnets

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

TORONTO (CP)—Under the "unusual facts department" some clothes different twists are given to old-hat subjects like watches and hairnets.

The Basle Watch Fair, an annual exhibition in Switzerland this year features a "sportsman extraordinary" watch designed, among other things, to count golf strokes.

"An engineer's dream is an automatic-winding chronograph with a bubble slide rule dial which solves engineering and time study problems with ease. Watches have also been made especially for aviation and automobile experts for timing races and special events.

COCKTAIL WATCH

Sensitive to women's whims, Swiss craftsmen have come up with a lapel model which can be worn as a piece of jewelry or a cocktail watch. It has a tiny automatic self-winding mechanism and includes a centre-sweep second hand which jumps from second to second.

Switching to hairnets the big question is: Just what do Canadian gals do with the 10,000,000 hairnets they import each year? The figure came from Miss M. C. Wilson, vice-president of a Toronto firm which imports nets from China for the Canadian market.

She reports that the average coiffeur buys a five-and-ten-cent store. She wraps coal with them for bird feeding in her back yard.

Mothers use hairnets to cover small feathered hats. They say it helps the hat's smooth, unruffled look.

One of the weirdest uses on record, Miss Wilson said, was stretched a hairnet across her goldfish bowl so the fish don't leap out.

Most intriguing fact Miss Wilson reported is that men wear hairnets too. She has had several husband-to-be inquiries from males requesting them. Fascinated, she investigated with a European firm and found that many nets are small and cap-like, fitting close to the head.

KEEP HAIR SLICK

"They are used by bachelors," she says, "probably at the end of night to keep their hair slicked down."

The sales total of 10,000,000 hairnets in Canada per year, seems to be the shortest era. But Miss Wilson says styles have no noticeable effect on her business.

Women in the armed services use them as part of uniform, and Women Praised By Assembly

TORONTO (CP)—Many Presbyterian congregations think women are only good for making money out of their talents to cook and to sew, the 80th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church was told Friday.

Rev. Louise H. Fowler of Allistion, Ont., said such a function "saves the men from making an every-person canvass" or "meets a last-minute deficit when the books at the end of the year."

Mr. Fowler presented a special committee report on the question of ordaining women and their place in the assembly. Women could easily take an effective place in the work of most sessions.

Women were fighting against "customs and prejudices" unrelated to the church, which had become embodied in the laws of the land.

The commissioners asked the committee to continue its study of the question and to report before next year's assembly.

Delegates voted in favor of accepting an invitation from the Church of Scotland to share overseas mission work in Africa on a five-year trial basis.

This Year's Edition of 'Elevator' Excels in Editing and Design

Neat and nifty describes this year's "Elevator" — the student publication of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School which went on sale Friday.

The bright, breezy and well laid out school magazine with 144 pages, also has the distinction of being the biggest "Elevator" ever published.

It will probably be the biggest "Elevator" published for many years to come as the student body at the present collegiate will be divided this year by the opening of the new Bay of Quinte High School.

That something new has been added is self-evident before a page is turned. A blue-and-white cover is set off by a red plastic, loose-leaf binder, the attractive departure from the stapled and bound magazine covers.

Inside, in a wealth of pictures and other material, is chronicled the year's activities of more than 1,200 students at the Collegiate.

Editing this issue is particularly noteworthy because it has been dedicated to "our beloved teacher," Miss Nellie P. Merry, Bloomfield, with outstanding career of years on the Collegiate staff, and 23 years as head of the English department.

MANY TRIBUTES.

An excellent, full-page photograph of Miss Merry is accompanied by tributes and gifts from present students, alumni, and the Board of Education. In addition, outstanding career of a gifted and inspirational teacher and friend, the tributes state it will continue to reap in the accomplishments and success of Miss Merry's students.

One of the conspicuous features of the "Elevator" is the two-page, cartoon lead-ins for various divisions. These humorous line drawings are the creations devoted to graduates and alumni, literary activities, boys' and girls' athletics, clubs, activities, social events and jokes.

There are individual pictures and brief biographical sketches of each of this year's graduates as well as an extensive record of 1954's graduation.

The heavy volume of literary material comes as a pleasant surprise to readers who find most magazines seems to be more and more towards pictures to the exclusion of written material.

HIGH CLASS MATERIAL

Prize winning essays, articles and stories include humor, mystery, and narrative. Several of the stories, including a summary of George Howard's trip to the Coronation, are illustrated as well. Sports during the year are thoroughly summarized in the athletic section. Games are reported briefly all teams are recorded in pictures.

One of the largest sections of the "Elevator" is that devoted to the 18 student clubs at the Collegiate. Each club has its picture and a brief summary of its activities included.

Clubs in the magazine are: the students' council, boys' and girls' Hi-Y, boys' and girls' athletic societies, library, United Nations, dramatic, art, glee club, science, radio, camera, Keyette, Key, band, choir, social, signal clubs and the BCIVS rifle team.

In the section devoted to those activities not encompassed in any other way were reminders of "Commencement," the operetta, "Lady of the Terrace", "Kampus Kapers", and cadet inspection.

Mr. W. P. Youdale, who retired in June, 1953, was remembered in his position as principal.

Social activities, form news, class executives, and a full page personal day-to-day activities of the students fill many humorous moments that brighten the student's life.

STAFF MEMBERS.

Students responsible for the production of the "Elevator" are pictured on the last page of the magazine.

Editor for 1953-54 was Ross Burtt. Art Sutton was assistant editor and Vilo Targon, business manager.

Heading up the various departments are Jim Miles, sports; Peter Mitting; Isabel Bonny and Eleanor Hillyard, girls' sports; Mary Moser and Bob Owen, art; Joan Churchill, music; Marion Atwell, form news; Gordon Brown, class executive; Sheila Currie, social; Barbara Neal, typing; Harold Bennett, Ross, alumni; Peter Upper, Spectator; Sheila Currie, social; Barbara Neal, typing; Harold Bennett, census, clubs.

Ladies' Aux. C.N.R.A.A. Holds Charming 'White Blossom Tea'

Transcendently lovely was the assembly room of the Y.M.C.A., yesterday afternoon for the "White Blossom Tea" sponsored by the ladies' auxiliary to the Canadian National Railway Athletic Association, with its snowwhite fence and open gates, dividing the tea room from the homecooking and candy tables.

Large, white baskets of bridal-wreath, mixed cookies; lemon, square post and similar baskets, accented with crimson peonies, those of the white. Here and there about were other baskets filled with white and green mints, with orchid-tinted and deep cream iris; while the treasurer's desk had lovely sprays of deep orchid iris.

The homecooking table was most artistically entwined with lavender and yellow garlands and bows of lavender and yellow. The candy table likewise had its loops of lavender and yellow, and bows of lavender satin at either corner, while little containers of lavender and yellow added beauty unto beauty.

Receiving the guests into this enchanted bower of blossoms was Mrs. A. Cross, president of the Auxiliary, while welcoming the smile and warm handclasp were a forerunner of the good things to come. Mrs. R. Clarke, the treasurer, was near at hand to receive the accustomed dues.

FRAGRANT CENTREPIECE

The tea table, with its white linen cutwork was centred by a fragrant cluster of double, white lilac, tall spikes of orchid-colored lupins and crimson peonies. Tall orchid and yellow candles in crystal holders and silver service completed the lovely appointment.

The little guest tables were arranged round about, each having a white cloth centred with a spray of dainty sandwiches and tiny pastries, divided the one from the other by the ever-present iris.

Those presiding at the silver services were: Mrs. D. Brown, president of the L.S. or B.P. and E. and Mrs. H. Drury, president of the G.I.A.; Mrs. J. Smith, president of the Ont. E. and Mrs. B. Cross, president of the C.N.R.A.A. Ladies' Auxiliary. Mrs. W. Gray acted in the capacities, that of tea hostess and tea room convener, both of which were most graciously completed.

BOUNTEOUS GOOD THINGS

Here the butterfly cream-filled cup cakes; chocolate flakes dotted with whole walnut meats; chocolate cakes with apple and coconut cream pies; pineapple cakes with maple icing and sprinkled with nuts; chocolate cup cakes topped with shredded coconut and cherries and a host of marashino cherry; lemon tarts; marshmallow cakes with lip enticing aroma; iced coffee rolls dotted with minced pineapples and ground nutmeats; generous-sized old-fashioned cookies sprinkled with sugar, and many others, all mouth-watering.

DELICIOUS CANDIES

The candy table was convened by Mrs. C. Young, assisted by Mrs. J. Gilfedder, Mrs. A. Uens, Mrs. W. Dawson and Mrs. D. Mairs. Displayed for sale were cellophane bags bursting with chocolate fudge, maple cream and vanilla cream; bags of plain varieties, and little white cups filled with pink, orange and white peppermints; vanilla kisses; also large boxes of the same; the nougat, caramel and most attractively arranged and packed individual taste of the purchaser.

The annual meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club was held at the home of Miss Mary Moult on Monday evening.

Following the business session, Miss Joy Nichol, on behalf of the club, presented Miss Norma Ackies with a gift, prior to her leaving the city. She will be following her vocation as teacher in Toronto, and the best wishes of the club follow her.

The installation of officers was performed by the regional advisor and the candle-lighting ceremony was both beautiful and impressive.

In turning over the president's gavel to Dorothy Brown, past-president, Isabel Wallbridge, thanked the members of the executive and the conveners for their loyal co-operation and expressed the hope for a successful year to the incoming president.

Dorothy Brown thanked the members for electing her as president, and gave a resume of her proposed program for the coming year. She concluded her remarks by stating: "It is easier to do a good job than to explain why you didn't."

Florence Fitzgerald moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mary Moult for her hospitality to the club so charmingly in her home. The meeting closed on a high note of optimism for the coming year.

Treat Pleats With Care To Keep Them

OTTAWA (CP) — Permanent pleats may be far from permanent, the Canadian Association of Consumers reports in its monthly bulletin.

Treated fabrics of nylon or dacron will stand up to many washings, but pleats in orlon will survive only 5 to 10 careful hand washings.

The association also points out that all synthetic materials respond better to careful washing than to dry cleaning. However, after about 10 washings, the pleats may have to be put back in order by a professional cleaner.

When buying, the association says, it is well to determine if synthetic fibre in a blended fabric—to get durable pleats, reduced shrinkage or wrinkle resistance there should be 50 per cent orlon or dacron in the woven fabric and at least 75 per cent orlon in a knitted fabric.

Rabbi Kutziner Urges Teaching Of The Word of God in The Home

Tabernacle United Church Women's Association and Afternoon Auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society held their annual joint meeting Thursday afternoon, in the church parlors.

"Be ye doers of the Word and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves," was the theme of the devotional led by Mrs. Robert Johnston, assisted by Mrs. P. Izard, who read the Scripture lesson and Mrs. R. A. Rowley, who led in prayer.

Mrs. M. F. Duff sang to her own accompaniment "Standing in the Need of Prayer."

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. W. B. May, president of the W.M.S., introduced the guest speaker, Rabbi M. Kutziner, who was born in Warsaw, received strict religious education and graduated from Rabinical College in Warsaw in 1935. He worked as principal in a religious Hebrew school for two years. In 1937 he went to Jerusalem where he took postgraduate work returning to Warsaw before the outbreak of war. In 1939 he was believed Warsaw reduced to ashes and spent over two years in a Russian concentration camp from which he escaped to Palestine. Rabbi is a public where he made bricks with his bare hands.

ZIONIST

But fortunately, having a good voice, he was taken to Vienna for three years a half years as soloist of an opera until the Nazis overran Poland, when he was repatriated to Poland, finding it was no longer Poland but Russia, he took his wife and two children and left for Austria.

Rabbi Kutziner says it was only by the Grace of God and His will that they survived at all. Carrying both children, he and his wife walked in the dark of night, hiding in forests in daylight and eating only what they could find along the way until they reached Austria.

Rabbi Kutziner went to Vienna University where he was invited as lecturer of the Hebrew language and took a post-graduate course. In 1949 he received a call to Cornerbrook, Newfoundland, and in 1952 answered a call to Belleville. It is only since coming to Canada is he learned the English language.

OLD TESTAMENT DAYS

Rabbi Kutziney took his audience back to the Old Testament days when Palestine, Israel was the first nation in the world to adopt God's way of life, that of justice, love and righteousness. Since that day it has been a terrible fight between the Jews and nations who do not believe in God.

He referred to the holy day of Pentecost commemorating the giving of the law at Mount Sinai and how happy the people were to bring the first fruits of their harvest and how to follow the laws of the holy temple for distribution among the poor people. This is God's way—man not to live for himself but for his neighbor; to bring consolation to the sick and suffering. The Jewish nation had come to follow the teachings of God since Mount Sinai. Not an abstract kind of holiness but love and compassion.

BACK TO GOD

Our duty in this day and age to bring our growing nation back from the machine and science giants to the love and wisdom of God. One hour of study in Sunday School once a week is not enough to do this. Mr. Kutziner challenged the women to bring your children to a place of worship—be it a church or synagogue —let the children feel it is an Act of Faith to attend with all the congregation in the worship of God." Also he urged the teaching of the Holy Word in homes—a family altar where children may hear their parents in prayer, and where they themselves may participate in talking to God, and create a little nearer to our Heavenly Father, where worship is a little deeper.

"The status and laws of God have linked us over these thousands of years to Mount Sinai. It is our sacred duty to make that chain as strong as possible; to live up to, and to instil in the minds of our children, the teachings of God's Word. The English nation was the first to adopt the studying of a chapter a day of the Word of God in the schools. Let us follow that example.

"Let us pray again, we who are a link in this great chain, that Mount Sinai, Mount Zion, that we will have universal peace," concluded the speaker.

LIGHT READING

WINNIPEB (CP) — Too many people read to be amused rather than to learn, says Prof. F. H. Salter of the University of Alberta. He told the English literature section of the Canadian Society of Canada here in a talk on English literature that few readers look for the underlying moral of Chaucer—most read only to be amused.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

Nothing signals the approach of summer like the bursting-out all-over of music recitals, dance revues and children's concerts. Perhaps there is nothing sweeter than a three-year-old girl with long golden curls and pink foamy ballet dress taking the stage in her first public appearance with six other rosebuds.

All winter long, mothers have taxied their young ones to kindergarten, to dancing classes. All winter long, they have sewed, to it that the children practised their lessons.

Now, after a lot of time and money spent, parents are treated to an audience among other proud parents and if they're lucky, will catch a quick glimpse of young son or daughter on the platform.

In any case, if the moment is all too brief, there will be a photographer around who will take a flash photo for a few dollars. This will preserve for always, one important moment snapped months and years of watchfulness.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LETTERS AND ANSWERS

AN ALCOHOLIC GRANDFATHER MAKES HER HOME UNHAPPY

Miss Lovelorn:

My grandfather lives with my mother and me, and he's always getting drunk. I'm afraid of being anybody home for fear he'll be drunk and someone save. I've told him many times to stop drinking, but he won't.

What should I do? — L.J.L.

Dear L.J.L.:

I'm afraid this problem of your grandfather's drinking is a little bigger than a teen-ager can handle. The drinking habit is very complicated one, and no one has it is going to break it just because someone tells him to stop drinking.

At the same time, I fully realize how very difficult this situation is for you, and how you dread having any of your friends come to your home and find your grandfather drunk.

I'm going to suggest that you do two things. The first is to be perfectly frank with your friends about the habit in your home. Don't try to cover it up or pretend about it. But do invite them some friend home some time, and find your grandfather not himself, just say that he has a family problem and then take your friend to some place in your home where you will be away from him. Or, if that is not possible, then suggest that the two of you go somewhere for the afternoon or evening—to some other friend's home, to the movies or anywhere else that is permissible for you to go.

The other thing I am going to suggest is that you get in touch with the Alcoholics Anonymous and try to help people who have a serious drinking problem in the family. If you feel you could suggest this to your mother, she might like to do that. If not, then this it would be perfectly all right for you to do it yourself. It is a group yourself, explain just what the situation is and ask what you could do to help them. Address us in care of this newspaper and we will tell you just where to find this organization. At least then it can send you a personal reply, and we will tell you just where to find this organization. At least then it can be someone there who will take an interest in helping you.

THIS YOUNG WOMAN SHOULD KEEP RIGHT ON SAYING NO

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18 years old, and for six months have been going with a boy I like very much. He has told me that he loves me.

My problem is that when we are to gether he always asks me if he may kiss me. I just don't know what to say. I say "No," even though afterwards I am sorry for it. Sometimes he gets angry at me and says that I am mean because I won't let him love me or kiss me, but I just can't quite make myself say Yes even though I want to.

Why does he have to ask me? Why doesn't he just go ahead and do it? — A.C.

Dear A.C.:

Your young man has doubtless been brought up to be polite and considerate with girls, and so he doesn't think it quite the thing to take it upon himself to kiss a girl without being sure that his kisses will be welcome. Personally, I rather prefer a little restraint in these things, and it would seem to me a good sign that your friend has a bit more than most boys seem to have today.

None of you young people agree with me, I know, but I am in favor of keeping kisses for the time they really mean something. Oh, there's certainly nothing wrong with a quick goodnight kiss between two good friends, but beside is, most of you young folks don't content to let it go at that. You want to go in for contracts and caresses that stop just short of sexual intimacy, and all too often don't stop short.

You say this chap calls you "mean" because you won't let him "love" you, which seems to suggest that he doesn't intend to stop with a mere kiss. That, I suspect, is why he asks if he may kiss you, in order to find out how receptive you would be to his caresses.

My advice to you, if you really want it, is to try and avoid situations in which it will be necessary for you to say either Yes or No, and if it does become necessary, keep on saying No. If this young man is seriously interested in you, it won't discourage him too much. After all, you've known him only six months, and if he has any definite ideas you're the girl he wants to marry, he'll wait long

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I would appreciate help with a menu for 20 people. . . occasion is first communion of both my daughters and Godchild. . . am planning on a big dinner for the grandparents and parents only at noon. . . have buffet lunch for evening at which whole family will be present. Don't you think that might be better than another large meal? I would like something that entails as little work as possible. . . and that can be prepared the day before. . . any suggestions will be a real blessing. . . want the day to be a real success, and yet allow me some free time to enjoy it too.—Mrs. R. F.

ANSWER:

You will have to be a magician to prepare and serve two meals for 20 and not have any free time unless you have plenty of help.

The menus I have outlined below put emphasis on beforehand preparation.

NOON DINNER MENU
(For 20)

Citrus or Tomato Juice Cocktail
Glazed Boned Skinless Ham
(10 lbs. or over)
Candied Sweet Potatoes

Tossed Green Salad or Relishes
Angel Strawberry Delight
Milk for Children
Coffee for Adults

BUFFET SUPPER
(For 25 or more)

Cold Meat Platter: Sliced Cold Chicken and Ham (from noon meal)
Sweet Pickles
Potato Salad
Tomato Jelly Rings on Lettuce
Cheese French Stick
Chocolate Refrigerator Cake
Milk for Children
Tea for Adults

I am mailing you a copy of the recipe for the Angel Strawberry Delight, which is made with 1 large angel food cake, 1 box frozen strawberries and 1-2 pint cream. The recipe I am sending will serve 12 so you will have to make two.

CHOCOLATE REFRIGERATOR CAKE (Amounts serve 12)

One 7-oz. package semi-sweet chocolate, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons cold water, 3 eggs, yolks and whites separated, 1 cup whipping cream, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-2 teaspoon peppermint extract, 18 lady fingers, split. Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Add sugar and water, stir mix well. Remove from heat. Stir slowly into beaten yolks and whites until smooth. Cool. Beat the whites stiff, and fold into the cooled chocolate mix. Fold in whipped cream and flavorings. Arrange some of the split lady fingers on bottom of pan 10x5x3 inches. Pour in some of the chocolate and whipped cream mix. Alternate layers of lady fingers and chocolate mix having lady fingers on top. Cover with wax paper and chill 24 hours. Serve in thin slices very cold.

You may know how to prepare the Cheese French Stick but I think I had better run through it for you may have mislaid it on this page. Buy a large French Stick. (For 25 people you should have at least two—maybe three if pain is popular.) Slice it in 1-inch slices, but don't cut through the bottom crust. Brush both sides of slices with melted butter by prying the slices apart with the fingers. Sprinkle about 1-2-lb. grated cheese between slices and some on top. Wrap in foil and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 20 minutes, to heat through and melt cheese. You can enjoy breaking off the hot cheesy slices. It is very crunchy as provide large double paper napkins.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

THANK-YOU NOTES FOR SYMPATHY GESTURES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother passed on last week, and we received many flowers for the funeral, many notes and other messages of sympathy. My dear father-in so bereft that he has asked me to write the notes of appreciation for all the gestures of sympathy. My brother (he and I are the only children) has also asked me to write his notes of thanks. My father, my brother and I have definitely decided that, somehow and sometime, a thank-you note just must be written to every kind relative and friend who remembered us on this sad occasion, that it would be offensive to send printed or engraved thank-you cards for such personal thoughtfulness. But my problem is the proper form of my signature on these various kinds of notes I am to write.

Many of my father's friends are business friends of his whom I either don't know at all or don't know very well. And I don't know some of my brother's college friends who sent flowers and messages. Also I have only recently been married, am not too sure about the correct form of my signature in these various circumstances, and many of the people to whom I am signed with my own your first name only (particularly since your first name is so identifiable).

(2) The notes you write to people whom you don't know very well, but who you are sure know your married name, you would sign:

Sincerely,
Lorna Hall Baker

(3) The notes you write to those who don't know your married name. . . for example, your father's business friends and your brother's friends who probably know or don't know very well. . . sign like this:

Sincerely,
Lorna Hall Baker
(Mrs. Joseph Baker)

Note 1: Do not sign any of the notes "Mrs. Joseph Baker" in the direct signature. When it is necessary to indicate your married name, write it in parentheses under and to the left of your signature as in the examples above.

Note 2: Obviously, in the notes to your brother-in-law and brother, it is important that, for clear identification, you should include your maiden surname in your signature.

QUESTIONS ABOUT TABLE-SERVICE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

(1) When a hostess gives a dinner, either somewhat on the formal side (semi-formal is perhaps what I mean) or informal, should the hostess of the woman guest of honor be served first?

(2) And should all the women be served first, and then the men?

(Reader.

(1) The woman guest of honor (who is seated at the right of the host) should be served first.

(2) No. The people at the table should be served in turn. . . it would be an inconvenience, also somewhat an affectation, to serve the women first, then the men.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMESON

That cosmetics have been a factor in helping women to retain a youthful appearance; that music, cleverly applied, makes feminine faces more vivid and interesting, is a statement that cannot be denied. But if a woman is wise she realizes that they are but the cream on the beauty cake, which is composed of health, animation, pleasing characteristics, grace of manners and motion.

It is necessary to give serious thought to diet, hours of sleep, exercise, circulation, fresh air and sunshine. You cannot build putrefactibde and charm on any other foundation.

You must have a certain amount of exercise every day, activities that will stimulate circulation. Good circulation in the epidermis is a factor in maintaining a youthful complexion. If you haven't time for outdoor exercise, stand before an open window for several minutes each day and pump your lungs full of fresh air.

Nutrition is a subject to which few women give sufficient study. A surplus of fats, sweets and starches is said to make the complexion as it is for the feminine figure.

A certain amount of protein, found in meat, eggs and fish, must be a part of your diet. Fresh fruit fast should consist of fruit, a beverage, and a helping of bread, ham. To have just a cup of coffee and a nibble of toast is to deprive yourself of necessary food elements.

During the day there should be a reasonable intake of water, at least three glasses. The skin may be one's best mirror.

The daily bath is of cosmetic value as it helps the skin to function as an organ of elimination.

Peace of mind is, perhaps, the greatest insurance against wrinkles. Learn not to regret the past and to look forward and you will march along the beauty road with banners flying.

BELLEVILLE INDUSTRIAL, HOME AND

Choosing A Door

By 'Home Builder'

The choice of doors for a house can add immeasurably to the beauty of any home.

There are many kinds of doors. There are exterior and interior doors for homes, garage doors, cabinet and cupboard doors, doors for stores and industrial buildings—in fact there is a door for every purpose.

The front door of one's home, if properly chosen to suit the style and decor of the rest of the building, can seem almost to be an echo of the host's greeting, "Welcome to my home". Front doors should be chosen for their appeal to the eye as well as for their conformity with good architectural tradition that will never become outdated.

The entrance door expresses the personality of the house. A house which otherwise might be plain and unpretentious, can be made distinguished by its doorway. The house which is architecturally fine and imposing needs a carefully selected door of the best possible design and workmanship to complete its excellence. A friendly entrance door can give your home a look of character and interest that no other architectural feature can.

LARGE STOCKS

Most builders' supply houses carry stocks of standard door designs—colonial, English, Georgian, classic or modern. It can be panelled or of slab construction and manufactured in a variety of soft woods and hard woods to suit any individual taste.

Most soft wood panelled doors are made of western cedar, ponderosa pine or British Columbia fir. However, you can also obtain panelled designs in such hard wood veneer finishes as birch, oak or ash.

Probably the most popular material used in the manufacture of soft-wood slab doors in British Columbia fir while a wide variety of hardwood veneers are available to give the customer a good selection of slab design doors with attractive hardwood veneer surfaces.

As you may already know, all hardwood doors, whether panelled or of slab construction have veneered faces only. It is very seldom that a solid hardwood door is manufactured.

SOFTWOOD SOLID.

On the other hand, all softwood doors, with the exception of slab or monodoors are solid wood. A panelled door with flat panels usually means plywood has been used for the panels whereas one with panels displaying a raised effect in the centre are usually made of solid wood.

The material found most satisfactory and least likely to warp or deteriorate for the manufacture of exterior doors is western cedar. Ponderosa pine and fir are next in durability and popularity with veneered hardwood doors not recommended for extreme weather conditions. Their popularity is also curtailed because of their higher cost. The thickness of exterior doors for satisfactory results should not be less than 1 3-4 inches.

It is important that beauty should also be built into interior doors to form a charming background for house furnishings. When one gives so much thought and care to the selection of a lamp or picture to grace a room, it is obvious that equal care should be given to one's choice of interior doors—because a door, whether open or closed—takes up far more space than does a picture or a lamp in a decorative scheme.

SETS THEME

Commonplace doors have spoiled many a tastefully - furnished room while graceful doors set the theme of hospitality and loveliness that is completed by chairs, draperies, and the lamps which one chooses.

Interior and exterior panel design doors are constructed with mortice and tenon joints. The material used should be kiln dried with a moisture content not exceeding six per cent.

Slab or monodoors are constructed of a series of splices running either horizontally or horizontally and vertically attached to a wooden framework which you can see when you look at the edges of the door. This framework is heavier for exterior than for interior doors.

The splices are similar to pieces of wood lath used on their edges. They help strengthen the wood framework of the door as well as afford a glue bond for the layers of veneer which cover this core on both sides to give a very attractive and efficient slab or monodoor.

Interior as well as exterior doors may be purchased in solid fir, pine cedar woods as well as a wide variety of hardwood veneer finishes.

SUIT TASTES

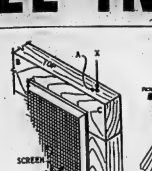
Panel designs are available with either flat plywood or raised solid wood panels. The varied selection of both interior and exterior doors allows one to choose a style with personality and individuality to suit one's tastes and the style of the house as well.

It is much more economical to use standard designs and avoid the costly manufacturing of custom-built doors.

If your garage faces the street, whether the garage is attached to the house or is separate, then the doors, which are always large and conspicuous, should be planned with care. It is possible to buy a variety of garage doors of fine architectural appearance for either hinge suspension or the new upward-acting overhead type of installation. When thinking of installing garage doors it would be wise to consult your local building supply houses for designs and prices.

All metal doors have recently made their appearance on the market and are enjoying growing popularity.

Much could be said, too, of the decorative effects which can be achieved with the proper selection of cabinet and cupboard doors but the problems and their solutions are individualistic and should be be settled by the individual in consultation with his supplier.



Hardware for use on doors is always efficient and should be decorative. The choice of ornamental and fancy hardware on exterior and interior doors can add much to the beauty of the door and can often enhance the decorative scheme of a room.

Repair Wobbly Screen To Insure Good Service

By J. RALPH DALZELL
Author of Books on Home Building and Repair

Although it seems easier to repair screens during the winter months, most of us wait until we try to put up wobbly old screens, and then make any needed repairs. Here are a few hints on how to make repairs easily, and how to make new screens when old ones are in too bad a condition to put up.

A loose corner can be repaired easily by drilling a quarter inch hole at A, as shown in picture A. Hold the drill straight up as indicated by line X. Hold aluminum corner in a vice and check its squareness by placing a carpenter's square on points B, C and D. Drill two or three inches through the top and into the side piece, and cut a quarter inch dowel (your dealer has dowels) to a length about two inches by a quarter inch than the depth of the hole.

Fill the hole partly full of glue, sharpen one end of the dowel bluntly, and drive it into the hole. Wipe off any glue forced out, and saw off any extending part of the dowel. For large screens with wide sides, two dowels are better than one. This makes a quick but sturdy repair. The same procedure can be used with screens with mitered corners.

When remaking a screen, mitered or butt joints can be used. With the new scotch and chevron wood joiners, screen making is easy. Drive these joiners on the inside of the screen.

For the most sturdy and long-lasting corners for screens as well as frames for cabinets, doors, old frames, shelves, shutters and other projects, a corner miter can be used as shown in picture B. Only a saw, hammer and vise are necessary. The procedure is illustrated in three steps at the bottom of picture B. Hold the two mitered ends D and E tightly in a vice until the miter is finally nailed fast. Make sure that the screen will fit before adding corner miter.

In step 1, place the miter at E and draw a pencil line along both sides of the corner. Make sure the pencil line is equal in length to distance AB and AC, as shown in the large part of picture B.

In step 2, make a saw cut the full-length of the pencil line, as indicated in the large part of picture B. Saw along the pencil line in step 1. Insert part F of the miter in the saw cut.

In step 3, insert nails in the nail holes of the miter and drive them in with a hammer. If pieces D and E are about two inches wide, use common box nails about 1½ inches long. Be sure nails are shorter than the widths of the corner pieces.

Questions and Answers.

Q—What wood should I buy for making cabinets to be painted?

A—Grade C white pine is soft and easy to work.

Q—Paint over knots in our woodwork discolors. What can we do?

A—Western Pine Association, Portland 4, Oregon, has developed a knot sealer. White to them for local dealer.

Build-It-Yourself Exponents Major Users Of Fir Plywood

Record production in 1953 by the B.C. fir plywood industry was accounted for both by a continuing high rate of general construction and by a boom in build-it-yourself uses of fir plywood, industry spokesmen say.

Last year more than 580 million square feet of Douglas fir plywood were produced on the Pacific Coast, an increase of 134 million square feet over 1952.

More than 95 percent of total production is sold on the Canadian market. A large percentage goes into remodelling, altering and repairing of homes across the nation.

$30,000,000 Spent

According to Dominion government estimates, a total of $30,000,000 was spent last year on alterations, repairs and additions, many of them made by the home owner himself. Reflected in this huge figure is the upswing in fir plywood use.

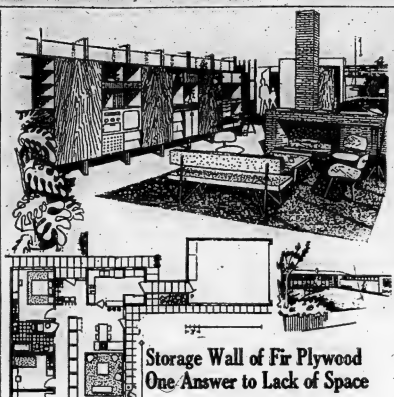
Plywood then indicate three important factors contribute to the boom.

First, do-it-yourself exponents are increasing in numbers and becoming major users; second, a trend towards plywood panelled walls has been developed; and finally, homemakers have shown preference for fir plywood building throughout the house.

Dry-Built Walls

These factors are added to the earlier discovery by construction men of a multiple of applications for plywood panels including development of dry-built construction techniques. Dry-built construction means interior walls are applied in panel form ready for finishing.

This is an increasingly popular building procedure because delays for on-the-job mixing, shaping and drying are done away with.



Inherent structural factors of strength, rigidity and speed of application, appreciated by both contractor and owner alike, have served to increase demand for panels as sheathing.

Main Reason

Another main reason given for mushrooming acceptance of fir plywood as a building material into the product.

B.C. mills pioneered many refinements used in cutting and laminating piles. High standard's have been set and no plywood leaves the mills with the industry mark PMBC Exterior unless it complies with rigidly enforced specifications.

Such plywood is bonded with waterproof glue to withstand severest weathering. Each ply is glued with the grain at right angles to the one immediately above and below it. The result is an exact 4x8 foot panel with strength and rigidity by test far beyond that of any other form of sheathing material.

Storage Wall of Fir Plywood One Answer to Lack of Space

One Canadian architect, tackling the old problem of not enough storage space in the average small home, has come up with a recent answer in the form of a central storage core around which the house plan revolves.

A free-standing two-way storage wall, which serves as a screen between sleeping rooms and living areas, is the result. As placed in the plan shown here it is easily accessible from every area which it serves.

The architect is Steve J. Majko of Montreal. He won a special award for "handsome detail" of his storage wall in a recent national home design contest conducted by the Plywood Manufacturers Association of B.C.

Maximum Space

Big attraction of the storage wall is that is gives the whole house maximum usable floor space with minimum need for bulky chests and bureaus. It is a particularly happy answer to storage problems in homes without a basement.

In addition, the open area above the free-standing wall increases the general feeling of spaciousness. This feeling is further enhanced by unstinted use of floor-to-ceiling windows across the front elevation. The windows open both living and dining areas to the flagged terrace and the full sweep of lawn and garden.

The storage wall, as designed, is a handsome series of clear, unbroken Douglas fir plywood panels alternating with built-in units. It provides some 300 cubic feet of bonus storage space spread so that every part can be readily reached.

Included in it are desks, bookshelves, drawers, cupboards, a radio-TV-phonograph unit and space for records. Interior shelves could be painted in solid colors to contrast effectively with a soft, rub-down paint finish on intervening fir plywood panels.

The bedroom side of the wall has similar panels alternating with plywood cupboards and drawers for storage of bedding, towels, brooms and other bulky household goods.

A built-in bar between the kitchen and dining area opens that whole side of the house from kitchen to study. The feature helps enhance the general impression of spaciousness.

Bedroom Units

The architect has provided further answers to the storage problem in all three bedrooms. Under windows in each are bureau-dressing tables of fir plywood. Clothes wardrobes, also built into the rooms, are fitted with trays for linens, shirts and small items of apparel.

A master bedroom feature of note is the private door leading to bathroom facilities. Note the out-of-way convenience of entry, kitchen and utility room storage.

In the garage, a work bench with storage space for tools is included along with a fir plywood locker for garden implements.

Whether you contemplate building a new home in the near future or not, many of Mr. Majko's ingenious and practical fir plywood storage units could be adapted to your present home.

HOME TALK

Watch Out! Home Is Dangerous Place But Handyman Can Help Make It Safer

By HERMAN HANDY

"Home," said the poet Robert Frost, "is the place where, when you have to go there, they have to take you in."

He should have added: "When they take you in, watch out!" —for home is also a very dangerous place. Statistics show that more people are killed or injured in their homes every year than on the nation's highways. But it doesn't have to be so.

The handyman, often with only a few week-ends of work, can turn a potential man-trap of his house into a much safer place for himself and his family. If you can use a few simple tools, or are not afraid to try, here's how to begin:

Equip your front door with 'a chain lock, to resist intruders. A hand drill and screwdriver will are you through this operation. Then install a view panel — one of those new glass types which let you see out without being seen is ideal, and if you have a modern flush-type door, it will go into place without difficulty.

NON-SKED TUBS

In the bathroom, see that plenty of grab-bars are located within easy reach. These should be set on an angle, so they won't always be cluttered with towels. If you are buying a new tub, consider a type with non-skid surfaces. See that shaving equipment is safe from little hands.

Kitchens, often the most hazardous rooms in modern homes, present plenty of scope for the safety-minded handyman. Cabinet doors should be made to slide instead of swing, and this is not a difficult operation with modern plywood cupboards. Sharp counter corners can often be rounded, using thin plywood sheets, for both greater safety and stream lined appearance.

Cabinets with work-table stops should, if possible, be located on either side of the kitchen range. Experts say this prevents fall against hot surfaces, and such cabinets can be easily built and installed by the experienced home craftsman.

USE TWO TANKS

Knife racks should be high — out of reach of children. If new hot water heating equipment is being installed, consider two tanks—one for super-hot water for dishwashing and clothes, the other for hand and face washing at more moderate temperatures. If you have a single automatic water heater, see that its control isn't set too high, and prevent painful scaldings.

Adequate storage is essential to home safety, and can be quickly supplied by the handyman. Modern low-cost materials, easy-to-work, make it possible to build storage cupboards as room dividers, in basements and garages quickly and cheaply.

Stairways and outside steps should always be provided with two handrails. Fire extinguishers should be available on each floor of a house. Electric wiring should be safety-approved.

SAFETY IDEAS

If you are planning, or building a new house, there's no limit to the safety measures you can use.

Here, for instance are a few of the ideas incorporated in a home which won a national safety award:

Built into a hallway wall is a plastic garden hose, attached to a faucet and long enough to reach to any part of the house. Floors have non-skid surfaces. Electric switches are placed at both entrances to every room. Switch plates are neon lighted. Electric outlets are protected against children poking conductors into them, and are placed 12 feet apart to avoid long tangling cords.

WINDOWS HIGH

Sharp angles and corners are eliminated wherever feasible. All windows are washable from the inside. Bath and bedroom windows are high enough that small children cannot fall out.

This house has no stairs, inside or out. A curving ramp leads up to the front entrance, and it has electric cables buried in the concrete to melt snow. Sidewalks, also heated when snow falls, are cambered to prevent puddles.

We can't all live in a house like this. But we can adopt its ideas to make our own homes safer to live in.

Who's Who In The Building Trade

LORNE McDOUGALL INSURANCE AGENCIES LTD.

Lorne McDougall Insurance Agencies Ltd., since 1954, have been offering home owners and prospective home builders in the Quinte area, a wide variety of expert financial services.

This firm has the agency for companies which will finance houses under the National Housing Act at the lowest possible interest rates. The 5 1-2 per cent interest on N.H.A. houses is possible because the government insures the mortgage to the loan company which then does not have to make provision for, loss.

Under N.H.A. the prospective home builder can borrow a maximum of $12,500 for a single house. Up to 90 per cent can be borrowed on the first $8,000 and up to 70 per cent on the balance of $4,500. This is the highest mortgage available under present conditions.

Options for repayment are available over a period of 25 years. General rate of repayment on these terms is approximately $6.11 per thousand borrowed per month. This rate covers payment of interest and principal but not taxes.

NEW HOUSES ONLY

However, such loans are available only financing new houses, and loans are extended only if construction has not started before the plans have been approved by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Lorne McDougall Insurance Agencies have all applications and necessary forms for such loans available at their office, 150 Front St., Belleville, and a staff that is trained to assist in the proper completion of these forms.

McDougall's also has available mortgages outside of those covered by the National Housing Act for houses already under construction or completed. Loans of this type are at a slightly higher interest rate and the mortgage which can be taken out will vary from 50 to 60 per cent of the value of the house.

These loans will provide funds for purchase of a finished home, or supply funds for construction progresses. Repayment can be spread over a 10 to 20 year period with the average time being 15 years.

Lorne McDougall Insurance Agencies also will arrange insurance protection for building materials as construction proceeds.

The firm also writes all types of insurance except life insurance, and has special facilities and experience with farm insurance. Insurance protection is available for fire, auto, boilers, plate glass, explosions, public liability, property damage, theft, bonds, windstorm and hail.

The Hastings Fire and Accident Insurance Company, which was formed locally eight years ago and which is locally owned, is operated by the Lorne McDougall Insurance Agencies Ltd. and offers fire and auto insurance at competitive rates.

STAFF OF 25

The Lorne McDougall Insurance Agencies Ltd. recently opened an office in Picton and now employs a staff of 25. Because this company writes the majority of its fire and automobile insurance policies, it is able to offer its customers a quick, efficient service. The staff is trained to handle efficiently all types of insurance problems, great and small.

A new feature of McDougall service instituted last year is their budget plan which allows people to pay insurance premiums by instalment.

For up-to-date, accurate, and prompt service on all insurance problems it pays to deal with the Lorne McDougall Insurance Agencies Ltd.

'Starved' Appliances Are Poor Performances

When an electrical appliance fails to perform to your satisfaction, your first thought is that the equipment is faulty, but the chances are that the cause of poor performance in the offending electrical appliance or lighting unit can be traced to inadequate wiring in the home says the Institute of Electrical Living. Electricity is, of course, only the energy—the push—that makes things move, heat up or cool off, and an adequate supply of this energy must be available at all times to obtain the degree of efficiency originally designed and built into the equipment.

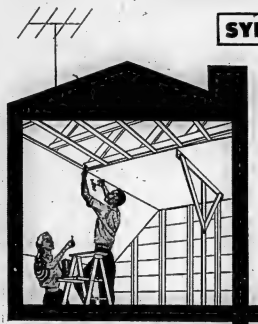
This energy must be brought to the equipment through pathways in the walls of the house. These are in the form of wires and outlets, and are known as "the wiring of the house". Unless this wiring is adequate, the electrical equipment may not operate satisfactorily or may not operate at all.

You might say, "Oh, we'll wire in accordance with the Canadian Electrical Code . . . that's good enough for us". This is a mistake many people make. The Code is not a set of specifications for adequacy. It is strictly a Code that guarantees you a "Safe" installation. Good service and satisfactory results for modern electrical living may require larger size of wire, more branch circuits and heavier types of equipment.

A definition of adequate wiring is comparatively simple. It means having sufficient wiring facilities so use electricity when, where, and how we want to. It means wires of proper size to deliver rated pressure or voltage to all lights and appliances and having convenient outlets properly located so that our lamps and appliances can be connected where and when we want them.

It means wall switches located so that rooms with two entrances can be lighted and darkened as you enter and leave. It means having enough branch circuits of the proper size to carry today's loads and those which we can anticipate tomorrow. Lighting circuits generally should be separated from those supplying appliances, particularly in the kitchen, dining room and laundry. Special circuits supply high wattage appliances such as ranges, water heaters, automatic clothes washers and dryers, dish washers and garbage disposal units; and the electric service entrance must be large enough for the largest foreseeable load in the house.

As a home owner or as one contemplating building a home, you should study the wiring plan to make sure of its adequacy in serving present needs as well as future requirements. Everybody concerned with any individual house benefits from the installation of adequate wiring. The home owner secures convenience and comfort in the use of electrical appliances and lights anywhere he wants them and safety too, because he doesn't overload any portion of his wiring. Long trailing extension cords are eliminated, also contributing to safety. Adequate wiring is a plus feature in case the house is sold because it adds to the value, or to obtain the best home mortgage deal it is emphasized that a home with a well-designed wiring system stays younger longer and is a better investment risk. Appraisers, consequently, now place adequate wiring high on the list of factors to be checked as deterrents to home depreciation and early adolescence.



Details of what constitutes an adequate wiring system for your particular electrical needs can be obtained free of charge from several reliable sources, the utility supplying you with electric current, your provincial electric service league, a reliable electrical contractor in your neighborhood, or you may communicate with the Institute of Electrical Living, 126 Davenport Road, Toronto 5, Ontario.

LILACS

Beside the farm-house, old and grey
The lilac rears its purple plumes
And buds burst bright with dewy spray
Shed all'-round a sweet perfume;
And as the purple banners toss
Amid the breezes of the May
The heart turns back with sense of loss
To find an old-time garden gay.

There, lilacs bloomed beside the door,
An enchanted spot it seemed to be,
And one whose voice is heard no more
Was there to share its joys with me;
And ever now when Spring returns
And lilacs bloom beside the gate,
For his loved voice my spirit yearns,
While I can only trust and wait.

— Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON — Driving through the country at this season one sees the old-time purple lilacs at many a farm home. And motoring from Florida some time ago we noticed how common they are, blooms where lilacs were in bloom. Should we be wondered if they were natives to this continent or if they had been brought here from Europe?

PICTON TIMES CENTENNIAL

The centennial of the Picton Times was observed last week by a splendid historical edition of the paper and a broadcast from the Picton Collegiate presented by Reid Forsee and Don Fairbairn. The broadcast was preceded by a parade led by the Belleville Kinsmen's Boys' Band.

On arriving at the collegiate, we found the large auditorium filled to capacity with an eager, expectant audience. The broadcast began with a "Salute to Picton" by Reid Forsee, and addresses followed by Mayor McFarland, Warden Walker, Sam Gentile, Miss Hillier, Ken Smith, and L. B. Calnan, Gazette editor. The script being too long for the allotted time, part of the broadcast was omitted, but was presented later before an audience of four hundred. At the close a social hour with refreshments was enjoyed in the cafeteria.

Altogether it was a day to be remembered and Editor Macleod and staff of the Picton Times are to be congratulated on the success of the celebration of the hundredth birthday of the Picton Times. The success of the undertaking involved not hard work alone (Mr. Ken Smith declared they worked like horses), but also required much executive ability.

Among those present were: Mr. Norris Whitney, M.P.P., and Mrs. Whitney; Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Foster, Hillier; Mr. and Mrs. Blake Conley and family, Gilead; Mrs. Arnold Vandewater, Miss Gladys Lamb, Mrs. G. C. Blakely, Miss Marjorie Blakely and Mrs. H. B. Anderson, Wellington, and Mr. Ed. Baxter, Mr. and Mrs. Don Baxter, Mrs. Laura Bedell, Miss Fiona Barker and others from Bloomfield.

The following poem, a tribute to the Picton Times, was read by the author:

THE PICTON TIMES, CENTENNIAL

Our county had no motor cars
One hundred years ago,
No telephones and no airplanes—
So dull the times and slow!
No railroad cars to carry freight
And travellers here and there,
No picture shows for old and young,
Nor television rare!

But it could boast a newspaper
In Picton by the Bay.
"The Picton Times" that brought the news
From districts far-away.
Through passing years in fame it grew
Ever upholding right,
Scorning to publish what was false
Or darkening as the night.

So steadfastly the publishers
Have worked from year to year
To give "The Times" an honored place
With journals far and near;
And while it stands for truth and right
And all that life endears,
We feel assured of its success
For many happy years.

— Helen B. Anderson.

REJECT $100,000 REQUEST

NEW YORK (AP)—The Metropolitan Opera Thursday turned down a $100,000 bequest from a man who left the money to buy for himself a measure of musical immortality. The man's widow willed the money to the Met if it would produce one of two operas he wrote before he died in 1941. The Met said Ilgenfritz's operas—"Pharaoh" and "Le Parsan"—didn't measure up to its standards.

TELEVISION PLAN

Debate centred largely on television policy and brought a plea from three French-speaking Liberals from the Ottawa-Hull area for an exclusively French - language television outlet to serve the area.

The three—Mayor Alexis Caron of Hull, J. T. Richard, Ottawa East, and J. O. Leger, Russell—noted that the CBC's Ottawa station broadcasts part of its time in French and part in English.

Mr. Drew said the government has agreed that the television policy will promote Canadian culture. That was the basis on which it obtained some $30,000,000 from Parliament for the CBC.

TUNE TO U.S.

But television viewers in areas within range of both Canadian and United States stations were tuning in 5 per cent of their time to U.S. outlets. Only 15 per cent was given to the CBC programs provided at great expense to Canadians.

It was time for an "agonizing reappraisal" of television policy. The CBC's job should be to carry program service to remote areas which might not be served under competitive television.

He said there is no evidence to justify Parliament spending another cent on the international service of the CBC to broadcast to countries behind the Iron Curtain. Canadian taxpayers behind those countries should be asked to report on how effective such broadcasts are before Parliament grants the $2,300,000 sought for the service this year.

CCF Leader Coldwell said television should not be allowed to monopolies because of the need for exclusive use of frequencies and channels by the broadcaster. Anything that is a natural monopoly should be publicly controlled.

CLAIMS MONOPOLIES

He would like to hear criticism of such "monopolies" as the Bell Telephone Company in Quebec and Ontario, the Aluminum Company of Canada and the International Nickel Company.

Both Mr. Fleming and Mr. Hansell suggested that a body be established to regulate broadcasting by CBC and privately-owned stations.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) asked for a statement of policy concerning network broadcasting as privately-owned radio stations.

He said he knew of one case where the CBC carried simultaneous broadcasting of a program over two or three stations in western Ontario. It seemed unfair that the request for network operations for one program was turned down by the CBC.

CANADIANS

He said no table for ideal weights can be drawn up. Various weight charts now used in schools or by doctors and insurance firms differed.

Dr. Peti said there is as yet no explanation for some of the figures resulting from the survey.

For instance, the weight of shorter men decreased for about 10 years after the age of 44 but weight of taller men in the same age period increased. The reverse was true for women in the same age group.

After 64, the weight of short men and women decreased but weight of tall men and women increased.

Dr. Peti said more figures on weights and heights will be issued. These will show the averages for children two years of age or over. There may also be an estimate of how many persons are underweight or overweight.

Press Correspondent Wins Second Place

It was in January 1913 that Mrs. MacMullen, formerly Florence Montgomery, a student at Williams Public School, took over the duties of correspondent for Mount Pleasant from her late grandmother, Mrs. Allen Wescott, and she has been a regular weekly contributor to the columns of the Stirling paper ever since.

In addition to her home duties as well as her activities in the W.I. and Church, she finds time to record the happenings of her district, and has been a highly valued correspondent throughout the years, says the editor of the Stirling paper.

Mrs. MacMullen is also the Stirling and Mount Pleasant correspondent for the Ontario Intelligencer.

Ontario Farmers Finding Hogs Very Profitable

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario farmers are making more money from raising thin-and-fat bacon hogs in the province — the latest Livestock Sales Ltd. — said Friday.

Although Thursday's market price to farmers of $36 a hundredweight, dressed, was below the record $40.50 in mid-summer, 1951, the monthly average trading is putting more money in their pockets, the agency said.

This year's average to date was $39.50, said Tuesday.

Increase in sales is seasonal but demand is greater than usual this time of year, an official said.

The price is thought to be at or near the peak. How long it will last depends on demand and receipts and relation of pork products to other meats.

The Ontario Hog Producers' Association said hogs have been scarce in Ontario and Quebec this year and part of last year. The two provinces are not producing enough at present to meet their own demands.

Present prices have mounted gradually from the 1952 government floor price of $26 when there was over-production of hogs. Many farmers have since got out of the hog business.

In the last two months price has gone up from $36. June, July and August are usually low-marketing and high price months.

OSHAWA HAS "MONSTER"

OSHAWA (CP)—Long without an oddity to draw tourists, Oshawa now has its own sea monster. Seen three times in Lake Ontario, it has the head of a large dog or deer, is dark brown and has a neck about four feet long. It usually swims 300 feet from shore.

QUEEN OLYMPIC PATRON

CANBERRA (AP)—Queen Elizabeth has agreed to be patron-in-chief of the 1956 Olympic games in Melbourne, it was officially announced here today. Unofficial sources said it is unlikely the Queen will be able to attend the games but her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, may revisit Australia to open them.

Ten Marksmen For Bisley

OTTAWA (CP)—Ten marksmen ranging in age from 15 to 18 years will represent Canada at Bisley this year.

The army said Friday the group, to be known as the Royal Canadian Army Cadet Bisley team, will proceed to British independent of Canada's regular Bisley contingent.

The cadets were selected on the basis of scores posted at last summer's Dominion of Canada Rifle Association meet at Connaught Ranges near Ottawa.

Lt.-Col. Neil Shaw, a reserve officer from Windsor, Ont., and a member of Canada's Bisley team six times between 1930 and 1949, will be commander of the cadet team. Lieut. R. F. Duse of Kingston, Ont., will be adjutant.

Members of the team: C. G. MacDonald, Winsloe, P.E.I.; K. G. Ludlow, Grand Falls, Nfld.; Robert Dubeau, Montreal; Claude Robert, Montreal; F. D. Ford, T. E. Tweedie, E. B. Mitchell and D. R. Smith, all of Hamilton; E. G. Papadynis, Semans, Sask.; and D. W. Peterson, Edmonton.

Empire Games Close Books

VANCOUVER (CP) —The athletes who compete in the British Empire Games here July 30 to August 7 will do so in the shadow of hundreds of other performers.

The games special events committee has closed out its bookkeepers which show a total of $205,000 raised in aid of the spectacle by professional and amateur athletes from the United States and Canada and show people.

Jack Diamond, president of a Pacific coast meat-packing firm and head of the committee, Friday thanked those who helped put the monumental task over in 12 months.

Diamond himself, a husky 44-year-old sportsman, organized professional golfers, hockey players, bowlers, pro and amateur basebailers, square dancers, racing officials across Canada and visiting entertainers.

He set up "days" at the Caledonian games, put on carnivals, arranged exhibitions and wherever there was a loose nickel, rallied it.

THE HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA
111 Avenue Road, Toronto 5,
In co-operation with this newspaper.

All questions submitted are answered anonymously by members of the medical advisory board or special technical sections of the HEALTH LEAGUE.

The "Health League Question Box" grew out of questions submitted over the years to the Health League of Canada—a unique voluntary lay organization which enlists the advisory support of leading specialists in every field of medicine to combat preventable sickness by means of public education. All questions submitted to the "Question Box" are answered by medical or scientific experts and checked for accuracy by members of the specialized technical sections of the Health League.

The Health League, in presenting this weekly newspaper feature, hopes, by making good medical advice available, to counteract the bad advice on health matters freely offered by non-professional passersby and old wives. Readers are invited to submit questions to the above address. Of course, the "Question Box" cannot undertake to diagnose specific ailments by mail. However, all questions will be given courteous attention and answered as fully as possible.

BE KIND TO YOUR STOMACH

The world is full of people who can and will eat anything, from champagne bottles to tin cans. The world is also full of healthy fanatics who will shy away from a plateful of anything that hasn't been laboratory tested for vitamin content, chemical innocuousness, sterility, and general vapidity.

In the middle, there are great numbers of unconscious people who do not care either to abuse their stomachs or bore themselves to death. Food is a morale-builder. It is believed, and it is possibly quite true, that our primeval ancestors had perfect teeth because they lived on raw meat. However, on the other hand, most people nowadays just plain don't like raw meat and in spite of this they manage to live longer and probably happier lives than their dentally perfect ancestors.

Most conservative nutritionists will recommend the middle course: Know your rules of nutrition; follow them; but remember that you were given a capacity to enjoy food and be guided accordingly.

QUESTION:

"My husband and I are fond of pickles, and have been known to finish off a jar of mustard pickles in two days. Some of our friends tell us that we are damaging our digestive systems, but both of us are fairly healthy and not prone to digestive upsets of any kind. Of course I wouldn't dream of substituting pickles for other, more nutritious foods, but they do make eating more pleasant. Are our friends right?"

ANSWER:

Either you are exaggerating or garbage can.

Garden Notes

Sabotage in The Garden

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Success in the garden depends largely on knowing the right answers. Here are a dozen common mistakes. Have you been guilty of any of them?

When you water either lawns or other plants soak them well. One good deep soaking once a week is better than a light watering every day. Light watering encourages roots to come to the surface, rather than grow deep to soak moisture.

Do you allow perennials and bulb flowers to go to seed? Perennials should be cut off as the flowers fade. This will often produce a second or third crop of blooms.

Tulips, daffodils and lilies will not produce blooms the following year if all the strength goes to producing seed. Annuals too should be picked frequently and cut back to prolong their blooming season.

Are you guilty of improper cutting of blooms? Allow at least two side shoots near the bottom of each stem to produce new growth, in cutting annuals. With shrub flowers, and roses see to it that there is some green wood left. Cutting too "long" stems for flower arrangements may cost you future roses.

TRANSPLANTING

When transplanting perennials, annuals, shrubs or trees have water available on hand. Do not wait until the plants are all in before giving them a drink. Have a pail of water-soluble fertilizer and pour some into the prepared hole before setting the plant in; then, having filled in the soil and pressed it firm, give the plant more water.

Do you provide the right soil condition for your plants. If you are planting acid-loving plants such as rhododendrons see that the soil is acid. Peat moss, humus or leaf mold will supply this need. Cottonseed meal, or a light dressing annually of ammonium sulphate will keep them in good condition.

Alkaline loving plants will need lime in small quantities at two or three year intervals. Cater to your plants' needs if you want top performance.

KNOW INSECTICIDES

Neglecting to supply ammunition against plant pests is sure to turn the tide toward the plants' enemies. Find out what plant pests are apt to attack your plants. Know what to look for. Guard against attacks by being on the alert, having spray material ready, and knowing how to mix and apply.

Using the wrong spray can be just as bad as using none. Fungus diseases do not take the same sprays as sucking insects. There is a right solution, or dust, for different pests. Many of the cures have been mixed to answer several. Study pest control materials at your local seed store and lay in adequate supplies of the equipment.

Over fertilization will often result in shutting plants, or burning them. Follow the directions on quantities and methods of application. Organic fertilizers will be absorbed by the soil, but it is best to give the plants what they need when they need it.

Deep cultivation will cut feeder roots. A fine surface mulch acts as a mulch to conserve soil moisture, and prevents cracks in the soil.

COMMON FAULT

Filling up newly-planted perennials, shrubs, roses, or trees is a common fault. A slight depression should be left to catch and hold rain, or water. Filling up the soil causes the water to run off and be lost to the plant.

Did you supply a strong support for the new trees and shrubs you set out? Newly-planted trees need an anchor to prevent wind moving the newly-set roots and to enable it to grow straight. If the tree is fairly large provide guy wires, padding the tree well where the wires are anchored.

Tubs, window boxes and cannas should have a stout stake planted with them when they are set out. If the stakes are driven in later the roots, or tubers may be damaged.

Wires and hard string or twine should not be used for tying. One gardener collects old nylon stockings to tie plants to stakes. They are soft and elastic enough to stretch a little when the plant grows.

Do you apply lime to your lawn each year? Have the soil tested before making applications of lime. A light dusting of ground limestone every three years is usually enough for the average lawn. Some land is naturally alkaline and just right for lawn grass. Lime encourages many weeds, so use it sparingly.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT NEW TITAN WHITE
ONE COAT
HOUSE PAINT
A beautiful white — a brand new paint, Lowe Brothers TITAN WHITE has extra high Titanium content that actually gives it the hiding power of two coats of normal paint ever previously painted surfaces. No need now for those high repainting estimates. You can do the job yourself simply by cleaning the surface and brushing on one coat of TITAN WHITE, saving half the time and labour expense of normal 2-coat repainting. And TITAN WHITE's new warm tone contrasts attractively with harsh, stark whites.
SELF-CLEANING . . . STAYS WHITE
Season after season Titan White retains its original beauty and whiteness. Microscopic particles of paint film are gradually washed away by rain, carrying with them surface dirt and grime. A controlled chalking process ensures that only enough of the paint film is washed away to keep the surface free of dirt . . . the surface is still adequately protected for the life of the paint film. The gradual wearing away of the paint film keeps the surface smooth and free from checks and cracks . . . eliminates burdensome surface preparations before eventual repainting.
TITAN WHITE ONE COAT HOUSE PAINT
$8.30 PER GAL.
WHAT'S BEST FOR YOU... ONE COAT or TWO?
If you are painting over previously painted surfaces in fair condition, one coat of TITAN WHITE will give completely satisfactory hiding and surface protection. When painting new wood or badly weathered surfaces Titan White or Lowe Brothers High Standard House Paints should be used over a coat of 260 Primer. This provides scientific protection by means of 'controlled penetration'. The specially compounded oils in the 260 Primer seal all porous surfaces, whether wood, brick, concrete or plaster—penetrating the immediate sub-surface just far enough to ensure firm anchorage of the prime coat. Enough oil is left on the surface to form a tough, elastic film, providing an ideal foundation for the finish coat and preventing its essential oils from being absorbed.

NORTOWNS TONIGHT!

The Toronto Nortown ladies' fastball team will provide the sports place-de-resistance for the week-end insofar as the city is concerned, and the gals will be in town bright and early this afternoon in readiness for their clash with the Belleville males of the species at the CNR Recreation Field starting at 6.30.

Don't call the game "softball" within hearing of the Nortownes. They claim they are baseball players—and the game should be called just that. And this department goes along with the idea. Once upon a time the columnar prebends came in violent contact with a brand new softball. The ball rebounded without the slightest indication of a dent on its polished surface. Our nasal appendage was driven back to such a point that we breathed from the back of the neck for the next four-days. Softball, my eye.

However that is neither here nor there. The Nortowns should give the "fastball" faithful an outstanding exhibition of the game as it is played by Canadian girls' champions and fans should not miss it.

Here is the lineup for the game: No. 1, Lill Davidson, catcher; No. 2, Madeline Neville, pitcher, Ruth Hayden, pitcher; No. 3, Neva Windley, 1st base; No. 4, Joyce Carinelli and Mary Fiki; No. 5, Joyce Johns, shortstop; No. 6, Lil Robertson, third base; No. 7, Marie Kirkpatrick, left field; No. 8, Alma Fewster, centre field; No. 9, Mary McCarnan, right field, and No. 10, June Roberts, utility.

WRONG NUMBER!

Norman Ross, American Olympic distance swimming star, took time out from his arduous training to indulge in some quiet ribbing. While training in Lake Michigan he was swimming not far out in the lake one afternoon off the Chicago beaches. As he made his way toward the shore a crowd began collecting. He arrived in shallow water, stood up and yelled to the crowd:

"What city is this?"

"Chicago!" they yelled back.

"Oh, hell!" the swimmer exclaimed, "I wanted Milwaukee."

With that he turned, dived into the water and swam away.

* * *

SET THEM RIGHT DEPART.

Michael J. Rodden gazing, perhaps, a bit wistfully at the goings-on in the Viaduct Ontario Baseball League up thisaway, is under the mistaken impression the Batas are a combined squad with players from this city and Batawa making up the roster.

The Batas, Mike, m'lad, are a strictly homebrew team with the exception of Keith MacDonald, who gets his mail around East Lake way in Prince Edward County, and Tracy Griffith, who made the visit more than worth while when he shook the Kingston dust from his spikes and decided to make his domicile along the banks of the Old Moire.

The Batas are being sponsored by the Bata Shoe Company, of Batawa, Miguel, hence the name. There are no Batawa players on the team. Samuel Schlolland has been a resident of this city for quith a long time.

However, the reputable Michael takes time out to pat his home town on the back for the basic baseball training given Griffith and Mcdiarmid, while existing in Kingston. We will concede they may have learned the fundamentals while playing minor ball down Reddesville way, but the vast improvement shown since can be laid at the door of Belleville coaches.

Here is what the man said:

"Perhaps it should be explained that those Kingston players, Mcdiarmid and Pettit, are very alert even when performing for Belleville and surrounding territory. They have been superbly tutored in the fundamentals and Belleville is thus the fortunate beneficiary."

NICE KEGLING!

It might be the spring tonic they're taking, or just the pleasant atmosphere, but some of these bowlers in the Spring League just concluded came up with some averages that top anything we have heard, even in the proverbial tournament.

Over a stretch of 21 games, Ron Saylor had a 378.3; Jim Carlies, 354.6; K. Jones, 348.3; Cec Hardwick, 347.8; H. Poister, 347.3; J. MacKenzie, M. Stocum, 346.7; J. Legault, 345; G. Garrow, 338.2; Bill Saleman, 337.3; W. Rawson, 336; G. Bellis, 329.8; L. Meagher, 329.3; W. Brown, 329.1; K. Greenfield, 328.7; A. Aitkin, 328.6; L. LaBelle, 327.9; F. Bailey, 323.3; J. Reid, 322.3; W. Corbett, 321.5; J. Fitzgerald, 320.6; J. Wade, 320.3.

Defeat Boston Red Sox 7-3 As Champs Humble Indians; Musial Hits Two Home Runs

By Ben Pheegan
Associated Press Sports Writer

Stan Musial, still denying he's aiming for the fences, has taken over the National League home run lead and is ahead of the record 1927 pace of the great Babe Ruth.

The two sluggers Musial passed Friday night when he hit his 16th and 17th homers—Hank Sauer of Chicago and Willie Mays of New York—are even with the schedule Ruth followed when he hit 340 for the New York Yankees.

This is not to say anyone of the three will break the Babe's mark. Long ball hitters have been trying without success for 26 seasons.

Jimmy Foxx in 1932 and Hank Greenberg in 1938 came the closest with 58 Hack Wilson set the National League record of 56 in 1930.

REASON WHY

The main reason Ruth's record has remained unattainable was the Babe's late season spurt in September when he hit 17 in 26 games. He took him 47 games to get his first 17.

Musial reached 17 in 46 games. Sauer has 16 in 45, Mays 16 in 44—exactly to Ruth's pace, and Mays has 18 in 50.

Musial's two homers Friday night were the big hits as the Cardinals defeated the New York took over second place with a 7-3 victory over the Milwaukee Braves. Milwaukee was bowing 4-1 to Pittsburgh. Cincinnati won its sixth straight, 5-1, over Chicago.

In the American League Cleveland took a two-game lead over the Yankees, 8-3, and Chicago climbed within seven percentage points of the first place Indians by beating Boston 7-3. Detroit edged Washington 3-2 and Philadelphia defeated Baltimore 7-6.

WIN EIGHT

Two pitchers, one in each league, won their eighth game. Harvey Haddix of the Cardinals pitched his third straight complete game and ran his record to 8-3. Bob Keegan of the White Sox received an 11-hit Boston attack for his eighth victory in nine decisions.

A three-run homer by Yogi Berra in the first inning off Early Wynn gave the Yanks on the victory trail against Cleveland.

Roy Sievers turned from star to goat in the Washington loss. He drove in the two Senator tallies with a homer and two singles, then misplayed a simple two-out fly ball long enough for the winning run to score from first base in the eighth inning.

DROVE IN FOUR

Ed McGhee drove in four runs as the Athletics temporarily won their battle with Baltimore to stay out of last place. The Orioles are now in the cellar by a game and a half.

Carl Erskine, Brooklyn's submigget pitching last season, picked up his sixth triumph and the first of his career in Wrigley Field when Roy Campanella singled home Jackie Robinson in the sixth inning.

Max Surkont tormented his former Milwaukee teammates, giving them only six hits as they lost their fifth straight game.

WAITS REPORT

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The attorney for a man and wife who claimed they were hit by Jackie Robinson's flying bat says he will wait for a doctor's report before deciding what action, if any, will be taken. The incident occurred Wednesday when Robinson returned to the Brooklyn Dodger dugout after being ejected from the game. The star Dodger tossed his bat. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wolin, 41 of Milwaukee, both claim they were hit on the head. An usher Harry Velvington, said he too, was hit on the head.

From Obscurity to Fame Is Stan Musial Success Story

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—From an obscure existence as a young pitcher in a classD league to general acclaim as one of the greatest and highest-paid stars in baseball—that, in brief, is the Stan Musial success story.

It seems impossible that at one time this brilliant outfielder and slugger was so erratic and unimpressive as a pitcher in 1939 that a minor league manager saw no future in baseball for him and recommended his release.

The following year, however, Musial won 18 and lost nine at Daytona Beach in the Florida State League. One day while doubling in the outfield, Stan fell on his shoulder attempting to make a diving catch and injured it so badly that he could not pitch any more. The accident changed the course of his baseball ambitions and he abandoned his specialty to become an outfielder—and hitter.

In the Cardinal organization's tryouts in the spring of 1941, Musial was tossed down by all but Ollie Vanek, pilot of the Springfield, Mo., club of the Western Association.

IMPRESSIVE DEBUT

He hit a home run his first time at bat, and after 27 games his batting average was .375. By then Rochester "needed him." Stan easily made the grade in the International League, again hit a homer his first time at bat and averaged .326 in 54 games.

Manager Billy Southworth of Cardinals was impressed and sent neck race with Brooklyn in 1941, and Musial was brought in hurriedly. He made two hits in his debut against Boston, his double driving in two runs in a 3-2 victory. Then he made four hits in a game against the Cubs. He finished with a gaudy .426 average in 12 games. Stan had actually led three leagues in one season.

The rest is history. He batted .315 to become the rookie of the year in 1942; won the batting championship with .357 and was honored as the National League's most valuable player in 1943; and was runner-up to Dixie Walker with .347 in 1944 before joining the navy in 1945.

Musial was better than ever upon his return. He captured five more batting titles in the next eight years, received two more most-valuable-player awards, and at the end of the 1953 season had a lifetime .345 batting average.

Santee Breaks 1,500 Meter Record, Misses 4-Minute Mile by Fraction

By JACK STEVENSON

COMPTON, Calif. (AP)—Lanky Wes Santee ran the second fastest mile on record Friday night and then watched Roger Bannister's time of conditions when he passed the 1,500-meter mark in a time that eclipsed the world record.

"I can do better in warmer weather," Santee said after missing the 4-minute mile by a fraction of a second at Compton Community Stadium track and field meet. He finished all alone in 4:00.8, faster even than Bannister's.

For the 1,500 meters, about 120 yards short of a mile, Santee broke a tape in 3:42.8. The accepted world record -shared by Gunder Haegg and Lennart Strand, both of Sweden, and Werner Lueg of Germany, is 3:43.

CONFUSED REACTION

"Oh, boy, a world record," Wes exclaimed happily after the race, but within 30 minutes most officials had him and the 9,000 fans thoroughly confused.

Wes said he had asked that three timers catch him at 1,500 meters and they were there. Immediately after 1st race it was announced that his time would be submitted as a new world record.

Then Dr. Floyd Hanes, president of the Southern Pacific AAU, said: "no." He said you couldn't time any fraction of a race beyond 300 yards.

Santee was flabergasted, and a recheck of the rules indicated Hanes' interpretation was wrong. It is just the reverse. So it a remeasurement of the track shows the distance is not correct, the time will be submitted.

NO PRIOR WORD

Still open to question is the fact that there was no prior public announcement that Santee would be timed at 1500 meters. He was not point mentioned in the official program. Santee himself requested that he be timed at 1,500 meters. The fans roared as Santee began his final lap after running the first three in 2:59 with a good chance of beating British Roger Bannister's record of 3:59.4. But the final lap was 61.6.

Santee said he might have done better if pacer Billy Tidwell had been able to stay ahead and break the wind for him. As Santee entered the race, the temperature was 63 degrees with a light breeze.

Wes took the lead midway in the third lap and immediately increased Ingmar Ericsson of Sweden, who took second, and Russ Banham of Whittier College, third. Santee's lap times were 58.1, 60.6, 60.3 and 61.6.

Blonde Dare-Devil Auto Racer Famous Abroad, Puzzle at Home

By JEFF RYAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A blonde dare-devil auto racer named Mike Hawthorn has become famous abroad and a controversial figure at home.

In two years in the big-time business of high-powered car racing, Hawthorn has won a sackful of medals, crashed thrice and gained a spot in the world-famous Ferrari racing team—one of the world's classiest motor manufacturers.

The controversy springs from the fact the six-foot 25-year-old hasn't proved his mettle on streets of military training. A questioner in Parliament was told by a government spokesman that Hawthorn probably would be called up "very rapidly indeed" if and when he arrived back in this country.

LIVELY ISSUE

The terse, prompted scads of letters to the editor plus opinions by such prize fighters as promoters Jarvis all Gordon Pirie, the runner, who said publicly he thought Mildred Hawthorn has done Britain more good by winning car races than a whole "battalion" of soldiers. Others accused Hawthorn of being unpatriotic because he drives an Italian rather than British cars.

Hawthorn has defended himself vigorously. He says that he has been in an Italian hospital recovering from injuries suffered in a bad crash.

"I'm no dodger—I haven't done anything illegal," he said. He was down for duty with the Royal Air Force when he made his racing debut in 1952.

"I crashed and when I came out of hospital I was told to go before another medical board. I waited all night. Nobody had appeared, so I joined Ferrari's."

Since then he's been scrambling around the world with the racing team. If he stays out of Britain until he's 27 next year, he won't be liable for the draft.

RACING FAMILY

Son of a racing father, he drove into prominence at Britain's autoracing track at Goodwood in 1952 with a victory over the reigning world champion, Juan Fangio of Argentina.

In 1953, Hawthorn won the British Racing Drivers' Club gold star, beating Stirling Moss, another leading British contender.

It has been suggested that Hawthorn be a new "British hope" models in Grand Prix competition, an event which a British car hasn't won since 1923.

The feeling is that Hawthorn, reported to be having trouble with a leg injured in his latest crash, might be the man to handle the new auto built by millionaire Tony Vandervell.

Archer Kills 1,500 lb. Shark

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Provencher, author, forester and archer, reported Thursday he has killed a 1,500-pound shark in the list of bears and other wildlife killed by his arrows.

Provencher said he killed the shark two days ago at the request of Sale Comeau Fishermen. Sept-Comeau is on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, 275 miles northeast of Quebec.

Provincher said he was with the fishermen, helping them hooked the shark with halibut bait. He refused to shoot it in mid-river fearing an arrow might puncture its air-bladder and sink the fish. Ashore it took 15 arrows to kill it.

Marlene Trails Patty Berg In Tourney

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—Milfred (Babe) Zaharias, the great woman athlete, fresh from battle with cancer and returned to golf, says she'd like to quit the game "for a little while" but the fun she derives gains her strength.

But something keeps telling her so. That something is the Babe's heart.

"I've said so many times I was going to pass up a few tournaments," she said, but the tournament sponsors keep calling me up and asking me to play. I hate to turn them down. I feel that if my presence in a tournament will help make it a success, then . . . well here I am."

Miss Zaharias was the Babe is playing in the $7,500 triangle round robin invitation tournament which got started into its third and fourth rounds.

BERG LEADS

Patty Berg, veteran professional from Minneapolis, carried a two stroke-point advantage into the third round of this "plus and minus" golf event with 20 points.

Trailing Miss Berg were Canada's Marlene Stewart, British amateur champion from Foothill, Ont., with a plus 18 and Jackie Pung, Honolulan housewife, with plus 18.

Then came Mrs. Zaharias, playing this type of golf for the first time, with a plus 17.

Miss Stewart, who fashioned a stirring 71 Thursday, carded a 78 for 36 holes and 151 plus 10; and Betty Bush of Hammond, Ind., 81 and 150 plus 9.

In "plus and minus" play, each player competes against other players in four-ball matches. She compares the medal score each round with that of her opponent and the foursome. The final round will be played tomorrow.

Western League Joins Pro Units

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League announced Friday that the Western Hockey League has joined another pro hockey leagues in signing a joint affiliation agreement.

The agreement is for five years and affects the NHL, the American Hockey League, the WHL and the Quebec Hockey League.

Under the agreement the relationship between each of the four members clubs will be governed by regulations said it regulated the territorial rights of the various leagues and member clubs, deals with rules governing acquisition and disposal of rights to players and the setting up and drafting of players by the various leagues. INSIDE BASEBALL for Little Leaguers

By HOWARD McCORMICK
Member of the Baseball Writers' Association

Every track star knows that you can't run fast if you don't look where you're running. Yet such an outstanding baseball authority as Barney Shotton believes that the most common mistake in the major league baseball is the failure of runners to look and then watching to see where it goes as he circles the bases. He may lose two strides going to first base by watching the ball.

You can run fastest in regular strides. Don't change to jump at a base. As you round the bases, hit the inside corner of each bag as you turn the corner. Dipping your left shoulder will help you make sharp turns. You will lose time changing your stride to touch a base with one foot all the time than you will in hitting the base with the feet that cross over in changing stride.

Remember that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points in baseball, too.

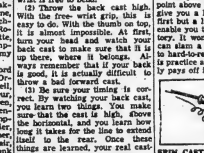
Suggestions For Tackle-Handling

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables.)

FLY CASTING

Each year, fishing as much as a day, I see a great many fly-casters. It seems strange that a very high percentage of them do not have the faintest conception of the fundamentals of good fly-casting.

It may be that most of them have had little or no instruction. More probably they have yet to take on the trouble to find out how to do it in the best advantage. They simply go fishing, and what practice they get is while they actually are after the trout, bass, salmon, bonefish or what have you.



Fly casting is not as difficult as some folks imagine. All you have to do to be reasonably good caster is to follow three basic rules:

(1) Hold the rod correctly and follow the casting arm in move freely, as it will. Book-under-arm methods are as obsolete as the bone and feather. Do not place the thumb on top of the grip. op- the thumb on the reel. Instead, keep the thumb to the side, so that your wrist is free to bend.

(2) Throw the back cast high. With the free wrist grip, this is easy to do. With the thumb on top, it is almost impossible. At first, turn your head and watch your back cast to make sure that it is up there, where it belongs. Always remember that if your back is good, it is actually difficult to have a bad forward cast.

(3) Be sure your timing is correct. By watching your back cast, you can tell when it is time to start your forward cast. Be sure that the cast is high, shows the horizontal, and not learn how long it takes for the line to extend itself to the rear. Once these things have been learned, your fly casting troubles are over.

As I say, good fly casting is not hard to learn. Obey these simple rules and spend a little time practicing on the lawn. The next time you go fishing you will be surprised at the ease with which you can handle your tackle.

PLUG CASTING

Far too many of the plug and bait casters still adhere to the "side-wheel" meothod. This consists of winding up from the side—instead of overhead—and then letting fly.

If you remember your high school physics, the plug, when it is released, leaves the arc of the cast in the direction it is going, with the side-wheel cast, this makes for inaccuracy, and accuracy is essential in plug casting, particularly when you are shore-line fishing.

By far the most accurate way to cast a plug is with the rod held erect so that the plug moves in an arc whose plane is vertical, not horizontal. A little practice with the overhead cast will enable you to hit your target.

Plug casting, unlike fly casting, is done in one position, with no pause at the end of the back cast. Thus, the rod is already bent at the start of the forward cast, thereby adding power to the cast and at the same time giving a smooth excess motion and effort.

Don't worry too much about backlashes in the reel while you are learning the overhead cast. Everybody has backlashes with a quadruple multiplier. You can't expect to be the exception.

The best way to cut down the number of backlashes is to make it a point never to remove your thumb completely from the revolving reel drum. Instead, when you release the plug for its forward journey, make sure that your thumb still touches the reel light.

While you are learning the overhead cast, another helpful hint is to aim your cast fairly high, at a point above the target. This will give you a high, looping cast at first but a little practice will soon enable you to cut down the trajectory. When you have done this you can slam a "bullet cast" back into the designated spots. All it takes is practice and, believe me, it really pays off in your fishing.

SPIN CASTING

It is not necessary to belong to the heave-and-hope group of casters, simply because you are using a spinning outfit. Spin-casting can be done every bit as accurately as plug casting.

Since the drum of a spinning reel is stationary, your thumb no longer controls the speed and distance of your lure. Instead, your index finger is the control.

Hold the rod in the overhead cast, just as you should in plug casting. When the lure is released, place the tip of your index finger lightly against the forward edge of the spool. Do this so that each turn of line must pass between finger and the spool edge as the cast goes forward.

This gives you absolute control of your cast at all times. Your cast can be fast or slow, high or low, short or far as you choose. Heave-and-hope spin-casting accomplishes the absolute minimum for the caster. As in all forms of casting, accuracy pays off in the long run. Let the revolving reel spinning lure instead of allowing it to pull you. This will only serve it add novelty and interest to your fishing but it brings better results in terms of fish caught.

Richmond Rides Four Game String; Bisons Blanked

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It took more than a third of the season, but Richmond Virginians seem to have found the winning combination.

The club wallowed in the depths of International League at the start of the campaign while manager Lake Appling vainly strove to get his pitchers going. Now the Virginians are riding a four-game winning streak, including Friday night's twin triumph over Montreal, 5-0 and 13-6, and rest in fifth place, just a game behind the Royals.

Jocko Thompson set the Royals down on three hits in the opener, while Bill Wight, Thornberry and Lee Phillips hit home runs accounting for all the winners' runs. In the nightcap, the Virginians had to come from behind twice, both times on the home-run route, by Jim Dyck, Ken Wood and Darrell Johnson, Ken Heintzelman was the winner.

ROCHESTER LOSES

In other action, Frank Foytack shut out Rochester Red Wings for the Buffalo Bisons' only hit and Cuban Sugar Kings and Ottawa A's split a doubleheader. The A's won the opener, 4-3, but Cuban pair triumphed in the second game 10-2. The Toronto-Syracuse game was postponed.

The Bisons belted out rookie Larry Jackson in the third inning to hand him his first defeat in three decisions.

Vinge Gohl got credit for the Wings victory when he relieved relief in the seventh. The Kings stinched the offensive end of the game in the second inning off Charlie Bishop.

AT THE ISLLE—Bob Hope and Joan Fontaine star in Paramount's gay new Technicolor farce "Casanova's Big Night", 23rd rollicking comedy is showing today at the Belle Theatre for the last times. Paramount's 30th Anniversary color cartoon is an added attraction.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Rogue River",Girl Back in Western

Like many another eye-dazzling newcomers, lovely Martha Hyer began her screen career by playing feminine roles in Hollywood Westerns. Miss Hyer, featured in Columbia Pictures' new western epic, "Battle of Rogue River," starring George Montgomery and also featuring Skip Homeier, closing tonight at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre in color by Technicolor, originally hails from Texas. She attended Northwestern University and studied dramatics at the famous Pasadena Community Playhouse.

Miss Hyer, spotted by a studio talent scout while she was appearing at the Playhouse, played the feminine leads in Tim Holt Westerns for two years, and then she embarked on a world-wide tour, making films in Australia, Japan and Africa. Returning to the States she was signed for a featured role in "So Big" opposite Jane Wyman.

In "Battle of Rogue River," Miss Hyer portrays a frontier girl during the turbulent days when the savage Indian wars prevented the sprawling territory of Oregon from attaining statehood. Douglas Heyes penned the story and screenplay of "Battle of Rogue River" and William Castle directed this Columbia picture for producer Sam Katzman.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 6, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Activities relating to home and community affairs are under fine specs. Do your best to aid good causes; go to church as a starter.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — A friendly day for religious and home interests, social and charity affairs, wholesome entertainment. Essential duties need not be a hardship and money can be raised for the underprivileged.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — A fine period for the artistic professions, reading, healthy relaxations; also for those in military service. Don't fail to nourish soul and mind with prayer.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Stimulating —Mars, Jupiter and Moon vibrations augur well for notable achievement in any worthy undertaking. Start day with prayer.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — This could be an eventful, delightful day if your interests go that way; can be quiet, if that's best. Include church services, wholesome fun, family gatherings in your program.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Be mindful of personal needs, appearance and health. Much good to be obtained this encouraging, stimulating Sunday. Diversion from usual routine advised.

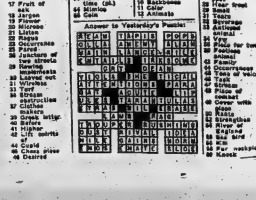
September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Large and small possibilities offered now. It is within your reach to gather benefits, blessings, especially if you seek and earn them. Thank God for His gifts, pray for others.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Use your fine reasoning powers to overcome any minor obstacles—although they shouldn't be too many or too difficult. Church services should not be neglected.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—It's better to be conservative and not lose than to take needless chances and wind up in the red. Think about other than material gains.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Be practical, as you folks usually are, but also sufficiently elastic in thought to accept new suggestions. Don't quibble over little things.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Listen well, but also use your own good judgment. Remember that if you don't have sufficient knowledge, you cannot make wise decisions. Study, pray, smile.



February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—No "following the leader" now—except where that leader is the head of your church, your honorable guardian, or rightful superior.

YOU BORN TODAY are bright in mind, quick in deeds; variable, dualistic, artistic, capable. You have excessive nervous activity, sometimes lack tact. You can improve upon others' ideas or create; should find solaces in music, outdoor exercise. You are especially suited to positions requiring dexterity, quick wit, adaptability and imagination. You need the steadying factors of religion and tolerance. Birthday of: Nathan Hale, Amer. patriot; Pierre Corneille, French dramatist-poet.

STAGED FOR TOURISTS

TORONTO (CP)—Band concerts in city parks will be freshened up with some be-bop and semi-classics this year. The parks committee has voted $550 for two trial concerts by a jaz zband.

Ben Hogan Delays Round Until June 12

NEW YORK (AP)—Ben Hogan, the champion of all golf, has put off his first drive of the year at the heavyweight champion of golf courses — massive, fanged Baltusrol, but 150,000 handicap golfers still will get a chance to outscore him today.

Hogan was to tee the 7,027-yard, par-70 Baltusrol, which has been armed with new rough and sand traps, in the third annual National golf fray in which hundreds say golfers match their scores against his.

They still will shoot their rounds, but bantam Ben will wait until June 12 before testing Baltusrol, scene of the national Open June 17-19.

"I'm no week to do justice to the event," Hogan said Thursday. The 41-year-old shotmaker has been ill since last week with a virus attack.

Petes Take Over Lacrosse Top

Ruby Slater scored four goals for the victors. Three were assists to Harry Wippler, two each to Bob Allen and Ken Nickle and one apiece to Jerry Fitzgerald and Bob Thorpe. Leading Hamilton scorer Jim McKenzie with three goals. Doug Davidson and Tony D'Amico each scored two. Reed McLean and Jack Dorney had singles.

'Da Preem Fixa Meels Bumb' In Hair-Pulling Main Event

By GEORGE H. CARVER

"Oh sure sure, da Rock, he'll win. He will getta in da poonch and Charlsa will go bye-bye, bambino."

That was Primo Carnera, former heavyweight champ of a-lo-a speaking. We talked with him prior to the 10,000 handicap golfers still will get a chance to outscore him today.

Hogan was to tee the 7,027-yard, par-70 Baltusrol, which has been armed with new rough and sand traps, in the third annual National golf fray in which hundreds say golfers match their scores against his.

They still will shoot their rounds, but bantam Ben will wait until June 12 before testing Baltusrol, scene of the national Open June 17-19.

"I'm no week to do justice to the event," Hogan said Thursday. The 41-year-old shotmaker has been ill since last week with a virus attack.

Clarence Henry Arraigned On Bizarre Boxing Bribery Plot

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Clarence Henry, the one-time No. 3 contender for the heavyweight championship, was arraigned today on a bribery charge in the most bizarre boxing "fix" plot that has rocked New York in decades.

Henry was accused of offering $15,000 to Bobby Jones to throw his middleweight bout with Rory Giardello in Madison Square Garden on June 1.

Ring experts scratched their heads, wondering why Henry would try to buy a fight against the former title contender asserted his innocence.

"This is a mistake," he said. "I went to see Bobby because I always go to see the boys in town. We're friends. They had to get somebody and I was the closest party."

He did not say who "they" were.

ANNOYANCE BEGINS

Just about everyone involved in the case was annoyed at someone with the possible exception of Jones, a fair fighter, but regarded as no match for the rugged Giardello.

District attorney Frank Hogan was irked because the story was broken before he was ready to move in. He said he was prepared to try to round up the "whole mob" just before the fight night.

But the first edition of Friday's New York Journal-American appeared on the streets with an 8-point column headline on page one announcing:

"$15,000 bribe offered fighter to throw Gardello mail fix."

The story, signed by Bill Corum, did not mention Henry, but when it reached the presses Henry and his men moved into action.

FIGHTER'S COMMENT

For his part, Giardello said he "ought to be insulted."

"A guy who would want to pay Jones $15,000 to lose a fight can't be thinking much of me as a fighter," he added. "I'm sorry I feel about it. Jones is in for a beating without taking any bribes."

Before Henry made the $15,000 offer, Jones had received two other offers, each of $5,000, from managers—one last Saturday and the other last Tuesday.

Jones' current representative, Bobby Minicki, then took the matter to Jimmy Marcus of the International Boxing Club, who in turn sent the tip to state athletic commissioner Bob Christenberry. After hearing the story, Christenberry turned it over to the DA's detectives moved in on the case.

IMPORTANT MATTER

Jones, a 28-year-old Oakland, Calif., fighter with five children, was told to continue as usual pending developments.

Thursday morning they came. He received four calls at Gleason's gymnasium from Philadelphia. One was from Henry, who told him he had to see Jones on "a very important business matter."

Detectives covered Jones' hotel and Henry appeared on schedule. Without preliminaries, Henry offered Jones $15,000 to throw the fight. The latter demurred, as instructed, commenting that he didn't think Henry could afford so much money.

"I'll go get a friend of mine and he will convince you my people are reliable," said Henry and he left.

Trailed by detectives, he met a man about a half block away from the hotel and engaged in "animated" conversation.

NAMES MAN

To the chagrin of the sleuths, Henry was standing right in front of a newsstand prominently displaying the Journal - American's story. It was there that Henry was nabbed, along with a man who gave his name as Joseph Hacken-bush, 27, of Brooklyn, who had in $25,000 bail as a material witness.

The gambling aspect of the fix attempt had even the professionals wondering.

For one thing, even to win $15,000 on Jones, the latter would have to lay $30,000. It's next to impossible to bet that much in this town these days. If they tried to bet it in smaller mounts, they would be probably a fantastic number of agents.

Bluebirds Edge Madoc 7-6 In Opener

(By GARRY ALEXANDER).

Gerry Goyer's double that climbed over shortstop like a racing rocket with two men on base in the ninth, allowed the Bluebird Juniors to go ahead and edge out the Madoc nine, 7-6, in a closely contested battle, played in the new community centre ball park in Madoc.

Jack Hatch's boys were out front 6-4 by virtue of their eighth inning rally going into the ninth and it looked as if the homesters would celebrate the opening of their new ball park with a win. Bruno McCurdy was the initial batter and gained a life when Fred Stewart lost the handle on an easy ground ball to second.

Paul Russell stepped in and drew a walk with Lee St. Denis fanning for the first out of the inning. The steps was now set for Goyer who made no mistake and the score read 8-6. Goyer advanced to third on the play at the plate and Pete Green brought him home seconds later with the winning run on a towering fly to right field.

McCurdy, who had just entered in the eighth, gained credit for the win, facing the batters and retiring two down by the third strike route. He had gone in to relieve Bruno who had held Madoc to one single from the second frame until the eighth when he notched three runs, and fanned 10 in 7 1/3 innings while walking five and hitting two.

Hewgill, also reliefer, took the loss after coming in when Russell was walked. He gave up only the one hit but lost when Goyer connected the plate. Eric McIntyre started on the hill for Madoc and was hit for six runs off eight hits when both McCurdy and Russell were on to bat for him. He struck out victims with two walks and was hampered by loose fielding behind him in the latter stages of the game.

Madoc's rally in the eighth was started by Semmelhack with a single. A stolen base, passed ball, a walk and a fielder's choice plus McIntyre's long fly accounted for the runs before McCurdy came in to get the third out.

Mercier's crew took the lead in the second with a trio of runs off a walk, an error, Bob Green's double and Paul Russell's single plating two. Madoc tied it in their half with three walks, a hit batter, a fielder's choice-homer and Stewart's one base hit. The Spafford coached team picked a 4-3 lead in the third with successive singles by Bovey and Casey scoring Jones. The two clubs settled down then to play even ball and wait for the breaks until the eighth frame.

Gerry Goyer and Bob Green led the winners at bat with a double and single while Russell and John Casey claimed a brace of singles each. Bovay also hit safely with a one-bagger.

Semmelhack met the ball for a single and double in a losing effort while Stewart getting two singles, Wayne Brown had a single.

The teams:

Bluebirds: Russell, St. Denis, Goyer, P., Green, Jones, Bovay, Casey, Day, B. Green, McCurdy.

Madoc: Shadbolt, Stewart, M., Brown, W., Brown, Semmelhack, Mayans, Hatch, Jr., Burnside, Kilderry, Mercier, Hewgill.

Line score:

Bluebirds	031	000	003—7	8	1

Minor Softball

In a pee wee softball game played at the Bridal Path on Thursday night, the Tip Top Cleaners pounded out a 24-4 decision over Jarand's Cleaners in the opening game of the Belleville Minor Softball League.

Pointer pitched the route for the winners giving up eight hits while fanning two and walking none. McGuire caught and led the winners at the plate with a double. They each had four hits.

Leonard Jarand, Mound's, allowing 22 hits, getting three via the strike out route and issuing no less than 14 free passes. T. Keller caught the game and banged out a home run in a losing cause.

2,000 Stolen Art Treasures Found In Home of Museum's Caretaker

LONDON (Reuters)—A court Friday heard the tale of a timid, little caretaker who stole more than 2,000 art treasures from London's famous Victoria and Albert Museum because he became obsessed "by the beauty of them."

The prosecution described how 58-year-old John Nevin over a 25-year-period hid the treasures in spare cubby-like hauls in nooks and crannies all over his simple home.

In the dusting of the vacuum cleaner police found 21 wood cases and a jade figure. Behind the insulation of a water tank were scores of gilt figures and another tank held a bagful of antique watches.

When all the stolen goods were removed, police said, there was "very little left" in Nevin's home.

DIDN'T SELL ANYTHING

Nevin told police he never made any attempt to sell anything from the £4,000 worth of treasures he took.

"My wife did not like me bringing them home," he said. "But I took no notice of her objections."

The caretaker today pleaded guilty to 24 theft counts and his wife, Mary, 54, to 10 of receiving stolen goods. They were committed for sentencing later.

The stolen art objects included a Spanish blunderbuss and two inlaid tables. Nevin apparently sneaked the items out of the museum by taking them apart and concealing the pieces in his pant legs.

Nearly all of the stolen treasures were recovered, but many were practically ruined.

Sunday School Convention Held At White Lake

WEST HUNTINGDON — The annual Sunday School convention of Huntingdon Township was held on Tuesday in White Lake United Church. Mrs. Milton Shaw presided over both morning and afternoon sessions. Rev. John Glover, minister of the convention church, conducted the morning worship service. Mr. Kenneth Holland, superintendent of the White Lake Sunday School, welcomed the delegates.

SPECIAL SPEAKER.

Mr. W. H. Farrow introduced the special speaker for the day, Rev. Lloyd Shorten.

Following the minutes of the last meeting, reports and business, and appointment of committees, Mr. Shorten gave a preview of the program.

Mrs. Earl Wannamaker the guest soloist for the day, contributed two fine solos.

Mr. Shorten explained the work of the Christian Educational council and also conducted an interesting and helpful discussion on Sunday School work. This concluded the morning session.

Ladies of the convention church served a bountiful dinner.

Following the worship service in the afternoon by Mrs. Milton Shaw, the officers were elected and installed by Mr. Shorten.

Lampreys Due To Get Shocked

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Parasitic sea lampreys which are threatening to destroy the $100,000,000-a-year Great Lakes fishing industry, are in for a shock when they swim upstream to their spawning grounds this month.

Dr. J. Murray Spiers, secretary of the Great Lakes research committee, said the idea is to "give the invading lampreys such a shock that they will return to the lake without spawning."

Three Men Missing On Lake Simcoe Fishing Trip

Locked Car Found on Beach, Men Seen Launching Boat

SUTTON (CP) — Police today searched for three Toronto fishermen, missing since Sunday on a Lake Simcoe fishing trip.

The men, John Fedora, 32, Joe Raley, 40, and Fred Raley, 36, were last seen launching their 14-foot boat in a high wind on the lake.

Mrs. Fedora, who notified police here when the men failed to return Sunday night, said the men had taken the boat with them, by trailer Sunday morning and were planning to fish off Virginia beach on Lake Simcoe.

Police said the men's locked car was found this morning on the edge of the beach. They said winds up to 50 miles an hour swept the lake Sunday.

Senator Thinks Somebody Lying In McCarthy Case

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The McCarthy-army hearings enter their 28th day of testimony today with the end not yet in sight, and with one of the seven "judges" contending that "deliberate lying" by witnesses may have hopelessly hidden the full truth.

Senator Charles Potter (Rep. Mich.), one of the sub-committee members, said Sunday sharply conflicting testimony presented to him has convinced him "there is one area of deliberate lying and a larger area of resistance, created by witnesses trying to cast a false light on the actions of others."

Potter in an interview, declined to say who he thinks is lying, or what the lying is about.

Canadian Leader Salvation Army Dies in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Commissioner Benjamin Orames, leader of the Salvation Army in Canada during the Second World War and former international secretary, died at his home here Saturday. He was 67.

Born in Guernsey, Orames served with the Salvation Army in New Zealand, North China and San Francisco prior to coming to Canada in 1939. During the First World War he was a chaplain major with the Australian Expeditionary Force in France. During the last war he supervised Salvation Army work with Canadian troops overseas and in Canada. He retired in 1946 after a year as international secretary in London, England.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Alfred Cunningham and Mrs. Edna Orames, in charge of the Salvation Army in Guelph and a son. Funeral services will be held here today.

Monster Youth Rally in Germany Reaches Climax

BERLIN (Reuters)—East Berlin pulled out all stops Sunday as a monster Communist youth rally reached its climax.

Paratroopers, glider pilots and sailors marched through the streets and thousands of blue-shirted East German youths joined in for an eight-hour march past down the Unter den Linden.

"From Berlin to Rome, Ami (America) go home, they chanted as they passed the tribune before East German President Wilhelm Pieck.

But the Communist cheers were no louder than those which greeted a jazz trumpeter, clayed at an open air show held specially for rally "deserters" who crossed to West Berlin.

More than a thousand of the blue-shirted youths greeted Jamal Conant, American high commissioner to Germany, at the show in the British sector.

Most of the acts were non-political. An acrobat would tell how they heard the jazz—banned in East Germany as "decadent and warmongering."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Under mainly sunny skies, Sunday afternoon temperatures ranged from the 70s throughout almost all of the province. Ontario's highest northerly winds. Temperatures will continue to rise today and Tuesday as the winds swing around to the south to bring hot humid air up from the Gulf of Mexico. Showers and thunderstorms, however, occurring west of the Great Lakes will spread into northwestern Ontario today, and southward to take across most of the rest of the province by late Tuesday.

GREGG PREDICTS LABOR COSTS WILL BE EXAMINED

Says Problems Ahead By No Means Insoluble

JASPER, Alta. (CP)—Labor Minister Gregg today predicted that Canadian industrial management will examine its labor costs more closely in the coming months.

However, he said that while the problems ahead for labor and management may be demanding, they are by no means insoluble.

In some cases the answer might be in more production by workers, Mr. Gregg said. He was speaking at the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

"There are those," he said, "who anticipate that the coming months will produce a different economic background for industrial relations, and who feel also that a change would not be altogether a bad thing."

"Personally I am not antigistened and marked change. We've been a very good reason for welcoming it.

"We as Canadians have got past the point where we are willing to tolerate any prolonged or avoidable unemployment.

DISLOCATIONS TO CONTINUE

"Undoubtedly some dislocations will continue to arise from time to time affecting particular industries and areas as they have in the past. During recent months many firms have certainly found themselves subject to competition somewhat keener than existed in the period of the early 1950s.

"Such developments, however, will be welcomed by those who believe Canada or beyond our border, need not cause us to lose sight of the fact that they are a healthy and essential of our economy."

Mr. Gregg said, though, that in the light of current conditions "it would certainly appear to be a very important time for coming months will see a sharper examination by government of legislation to form the commission.

SEEK SPEED-UP

Bidault and Bedeau also talked briefly about steps to speed up the military talks now going on in Geneva between representatives of the two high commands. These talks, aimed at ending the period of regrouping the rival forces after a cease-fire, were understood to have made no progress.

Four Women Are Missing As Ottawa Warehouse Burns

OTTAWA (CP) — Four women were missing today after a fire which destroyed a building owned by Charles Ogilvy, Ltd., in the garment district on Sweetown York street. The spectacular mid - morning blaze broke out in the stone and brick two-storey building jointly used by Ogilvy's as a warehouse and by the S. C. Walker Manufacturing Company, which makes uniforms.

All four women were employed by the S. C. Walker Company. They are Mrs. Jean Lapointe, 21 Brault, Germaine Sabourin and Rose Young.

As flames shot high in the air, firemen attempted to keep the blaze from spreading to other buildings in the market area, the oldest section of the capital.

VIETMINH TROOPS HAVE ENCIRCLED RED RIVER DELTA

Expect Rebel Attack Before End of Month

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—Communist-led Vietminh troops are in position all around the defence lines guarding the vital Red river delta, the French high command announced today. The rebel forces have a gigantic concern threatening an all-out assault to drive the French from their north Indo-China bastion.

Barring the unlikely chance the Vietminh commander might stop the war by ordering a cease-fire, indications today are that the rebels will hit the delta with everything they have before the end of June. A French army spokesman said rebel infantry units—estimated at upwards of 30,000 troops—had completed their movements back to the base areas they themselves carved from the southwest.

The French command is pour in reinforcements from other parts of Indo-China and from Europe.

TO ISOLATE HANOI

The French expect the rebels to try first to isolate Hanoi by severing the rail lines and highways leading the city with the port of Haiphong to the east and the south.

These routes carry the bulk of French war materiel from the Haiphong docks and the fighting fronts.

Vietminh attacks cut the routes nightly, but French patrols and repairmen restore them by about dawn of traffic daily.

Aware that Hanoi might be encircled and cut off, the French are heavily reinforcing the defences of the airport and the Doumer peninsula, 12 miles southeast of it.

South and southeastward of Hanoi lies the delta — the French are constructing their entire defence network.

SMALL POSTS FALL

They are leaving to the Vietminh the task of capturing isolated fortified rebels capture every night in overwhelming assaults.

The rebels' arguments a grim prospect for Gen. Paul Ely, newly-appointed commander in chief of French Union forces in Indo-China. Ely flew to Paris today to take over the post from Gen. Henri Navarre.

Vietminh troops armed with rocket launchers, heavy artillery and machine guns are also moving toward the delta defence lines on the west and northwest of Hanoi. Over Bien Phu, Heavy air attacks have slowed the flow but the rebels have also had little to say about these troops except that they were crossing the mountains to the north - western and northwestern defences.

Vietminh broadcasts Sunday said they had successfully announced part of the government of Bidault, who has been shunted southeast in an obvious move to hit the delta from the rear and flanks.

NARROW LIST

Police first feared two others were missing when the narrowed their list to the Pape boy. Choppy waters made it impossible to use dragging tackle and all boats were recalled when darkness fell.

Bodies of the victims were laid out on the beach just south of Woodbine racetrack. Police failed to respond to artificial respiration

Four Are Drowned, One Missing In Sea Cadet Tragedy

Navy Whaler Capsizes After Leaving Ashbridge's Bay

TORONTO (CP)—A gust of wind spilled a sailboat full of sea cadets on a cruise in Lake Ontario Sunday. Three boys and their instructor died in the frigid waters and a fifth is missing, believed lost.

Five others, all suffering varying degrees of exposure, were rescued after a sharp-eyed pleasure boat owner touched off an alarm. Police launched a big search operation with deep-sea dragging tackle, continued the search at dawn today in fleet of draggers and a helicopter off east end Toronto where the sailed-rigged navy whaler capsized after leaving Ashbridge's bay.

LITTLE HOPE

Harbor police doubted that 15-year-old cadet Dewar-Pape would be found alive. One official said there was little hope of his surviving a night adrift even if he succeeded in donning a lifebelt.

Two crews of the Toronto harbor police took up the search early today. Lt. Stanley Watson said he expressed the water was sunny and calm. After several hours, the crews reported they had found nothing.

The dead, whose bodies were found buoyed up by lifebelts in the choppy, 46-degree water, were Cadet Donald Arthur Corscadden 23, Karl Knudsen, 18, Norman Ellis, 15, and Cadet Peter Pape, 15, all of Toronto. Knudsen was an officer boy on the Toronto staff of The Canadian Press.

Corscadden pulled one boy to the overturned hull and was last seen swimming away from the whaler in an attempt to reach another. He had been a sea cadet for seven years, devoting his spare time mostly to training young-sters.

FULL INQUIRY

Naval officials announced a full inquiry into the accident will be conducted by Harold York, the naval division for Toronto, headed by Cmdr. Douglas Elliott of the RCN.

Chief coroner Emirle Lawson of Toronto said he is holding an inquest, the attorney-general's department before any decision is reached on an inquest. He said an autopsy has been performed on one body to determine whether drowning was the cause of death.

Dr. Sirois, the one of those rescued, said there were plenty of lifebelts aboard but nobody was wearing them. Cadet Dien Bien Phu kept heeled over and started shipping water. One of the victims, apparently entangled in the rigging during the scramble for the boats to overboard, had suffered severe throat injuries.

A search started after Alex Morrison, 17, reported to the Ashbridge's Bay Yacht Club in his cabin cruiser; picked up the overturned whaler and pulled five boys aboard. A cutter from the list sea scout base picked up the other three.

Ferry Boat Sinks

PUSAN, Korea, (Reuters)— All 22 passengers and the crew of eight were drowned when a ferry boat capsized and sank off the South Korean coast during the week-end, South Korean national police reported today.

It was the second disaster in the area in a week. A ferry capsized at the mouth of the Naktong river near Pusan on Friday and 27 persons were drowned.

Retention Of Death Penalty Is Approved

TORONTO (CP) — Retention of the death penalty for certain cases as murder was approved Saturday during sessions of the 78th general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

The report was first adopted from the report of the board of evangelism and social action submitted to the assembly. The report also called for state action to relieve unemployment and condemned any extension of legalized lotteries.

The statement on the death penalty was introduced by Rev. E.C. McCullagh of Dunnville, Ont., and said "we would affirm the right of the civil magistrate to impose the death sentence for crimes like malicious and deliberate homicide. The state is given this right as a minister of God (Romans 13:1-17) and it shall have this right as long as it continues to defend a social order."

Supporting the motion, Rev. M. DiGasgi of Hamilton said "the murderer is given time to prepare to meet his Maker, he is given trial and the right to appeal but what about his victim, whose life is taken without warning?"

The assembly commended the form of service for public confirmations and their men out on planned visits to confront the community with the challenge of the church.

Plane Drops Ice?

BRISTOL, England. (Reuters) — A block of ice "big as a bucket" fell on Stanley Birchall's cutting garden on Sunday morning while he and his wife were in the house. It smashed through the roof, and shattered hundreds of tiles.

It is believed the ice may have fallen from a transatlantic airliner.

LONDON (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said on arrival in London from Geneva last night the Asian conference in Geneva is making "slow progress."

Present Atomic Law Prohibits U.S. Telling Allies About Red Weapons

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secrecy provisions of the U.S. Atomic Energy Act are so 'tight that the United States can't tell its allies what it learns about Russia's nuclear weapons program.

The Atomic Energy Commission is asking Congress to include, in revision of the act, a section specifically to permit exchange of intelligence information on the production of the atomic capabilities of potential enemies.

A library committee of the atomic law, and the AEC leans heavily on its counsel, has to build the letter and spirit of an act which contains drastic penalties for violation, is responsible for the curious situation.

The present act, which the commission recommends be amended to allow some exchange of vitally atomic information with friendly powers, contains a definite ban on communication of "restricted data" to any foreign nation or national. Information gleaned from two intelligence sources on the capabilities or intentions of a foreign power is classified as restricted, secret, or confidential.

This means that even information on the soviet explosion last year picked up, cannot be passed on to the British or other allies unless there is a public announcement by the White House.

Much of that information is a two-way street. Britain, feeling that the law is unreasonable, the U.S. Atomic Energy Act have choked off all data coming from the United States, is not passing her own information to herself to the Americans on certain Soviet atomic developments.

This is known to be of major concern to those responsible for estimating Russia's progress in nuclear weapons. Exchange of military intelligence with Britain, which operates one of the oldest and most experienced intelligence organizations of the world powers, is considered by many to be peace and wartime collaboration of the two countries.

Four Armies for Armistice Raised by Talks With Molotov

By EDDY GILMORE

GENEVA (AP) — French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and Russia's Vyacheslav Molotov were reported by French sources to have had a "useful" exchange of views today on supervision of the proposed Indo-China cease-fire.

The two met for 50 minutes in what was described as "a cordial atmosphere," but were unable to reach an agreement on composition of a commission to police the cease-fire.

The French were reported, however, to be more come around to the Soviet position that at least one Communist nation would have to be included in the supervisory agency. Canada is the name usually have insisted upon this as a minimum.

French sources said Bidault now believes something can be worked out by taking three nations—possibly India, Pakistan and Ceylon—as a base and adding one Communist and one neutral nation to form the commission.

SEEK SPEED-UP

Bidault and Bedeau also talked briefly about steps to speed up the military talks now going on in Geneva between representatives of the two high commands. These talks, aimed at ending the period of regrouping the rival forces after a cease-fire, were understood to have made no progress.

Bidault plans to leave tomorrow night for Paris after a semi-public session of the Indo-China peace conference at which Molotov is expected to make a major policy declaration. Bidault will take part in the foreign affairs debate of the French National Assembly and return here Thursday morning.

This morning's talk was arranged at the request of Bidault, who was understood to be making a determined effort to find out how whether there is any basis for a negotiated peace in Indo-China.

Western diplomats expected to learn Bidault's views on questions within the next 48 hours.

MOLOTOV IS KEY

It was generally believed Molotov's attitude, as disclosed to Bidault, would be made at a conference Tuesday, will go a long way toward determining how much Russia's Communist allies will be willing to continue the talks.

Another development in the Western position is the critical political situation in France which the French government now finds itself in.

In Paris, high political figures predicted that unless the West scores a victory at Geneva this week, Premier Joseph Laniel's cabinet will be turned out. This would bring the possibility of the French government falls, the Indo-China conference may collapse.

Employers Advised to Look To Long-Term Labor Relations

JASPER, Alta. (CP)—Employers were advised today to look to long-term labor relations, rather than attempt to gain immediate advantage for any short-term advantage.

W. A. Osbourne of Galt, Ont., president of Babcock Wilcox and Goldie-McCulloch Co., Ltd., had prepared for delivery to the Canadian Manufacturers Association annual convention.

"While the employer may be in a stronger position under present circumstances, this may be a good time to take a look at the whole employer-employee relations with a view to laying firmer foundations for the future.

"Any thought of approaching this in the light of 'now that the tide turns' would, I think, serve to promote the same reaction from the other side as we have in what we hope will soon again be a time of business expansion and full employment."

R. A. Mahoney, Vancouver labor relations consultant, said in another prepared address:

"Any economic recession could put management in a strong bargaining position temporarily at least. But I hope no one here is short-sighted enough to think that economic recession or depression is any sort of permanent solution to collective bargaining problems."

The two were scheduled speakers in a discussion entitled "Labor relations and labor relations," of which R. F. Hinton of Toronto (Shell Oil Company of Canada Ltd.) and R. Sparks of Montreal (Northern Electric Co. Ltd.) were co-chairmen.

J. Howard Kelly, Calgary lawyer (Burns and Co. Ltd.) dealing with the role of legislation in collective bargaining and setting out what he described as "a school of thought" said:

"It is high time that unions and the community dropped the naive notion that the unlimited right to strike is an inherent and necessary right of free men."

The strike should not be used by unions to battle other unions, and strikes of jurisdictional nature be used to force government or control changes in public policy.

Now the coercion by employers is unlawful, public policy should also prohibit the use of coercion by unions to force men to join or leave a union.

Legislation should protect the right of workers to pick their bargaining agents free of interference, should include the right of workers to refuse to work as proposed in strike settlement negotiations; and private adequate arrangements for handling disputes which impact national health and safety.

Labor relations problems, said Mr. Kelly, go far beyond negotiation of agreements.

"An employer who signs an agreement with his employees and who either deliberately or carelessly frustrates its purpose but will ensure increased trouble in his next negotiations.

"A union which sets out to keep the relationship at fever pitch by constant bickering which gives its service to the obligations it assumes under the law, has benefited the voluntary co-operation by the employer which will be the key to any new institutional status to which it aspires."

Labor Minister Gregg, in a speech prepared for opening of the discussion, urged increased use of labor-management conciliation.

Some employers had reduced personal relations to a point where more could be done if employers, unions and conciliation boards agreements attacked the problem as a team.

Mr. Gregg predicted a growing vigor in collective bargaining; increasing stress on year-round employment opportunities and a growing sense of responsibility for the welfare of the community, as well as for the rewards of the two immediate parties to the bargaining agreement.

Mr. Osbourne, in his address, predicted a future in which there will be greater emphasis on fringe benefits and the guaranteed annual wage. This did not however represent any basic change in labor's long term objective of higher wages.

Mr. Mahoney in his address, pre-dicted:

More rational and more intelligent bargaining increasing attention on security measures as opposed to straight wage increases; a trend toward wage agreements of more than one year; and more industry-wide bargaining together with purpose of industry-wide bargaining within a given area.

Montgomery Hopes Some Day to End 'Full Story' of Normandy Landings

By LEN TAYLOR
Kitchener Waterloo-Record

CARPIQUET, France (CP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery hinted Sunday that he hopes some day to write the "full story" of the Normandy landings and the fighting that followed.

In a speech at Carpiquet airport, the commander of the Allied ground forces for the D-day landing said the full story of the struggle should have ended in 1944.

"I don't think I have ever said so in writing but that will come when I am a free man," Monty said, adding that he plans to take up the pen when he lays down the sword. His retirement date, however, has not yet been decided.

After the D-day landings, Montgomery came in for considerable criticism from some U.S. interpreters and quarters when his forces made methods.

slower apparent progress than the U.S. armies particularly under the late General Patton.

The British field marshal has always denied reports that grounds that his strategy aimed at one big push in the Normandy bridgehead supported by powerful mobile reserves. The Americans, however, claimed that everything into the line along a wide front.

Monty's speech Sunday hinting at a full-scale publication of his memoirs apparently merely said the full story has not yet been told of what "really have happened" after the landings.

Montgomery, now a top-ranking soldier in NATO, addressed some special remarks to the divisions gathered here for D-day anniversary ceremonies. To the Canadians he recalled that when they served under him in southern England he introduced some rigorous training

He intended to turn down Humewood and started into the turn, but changed his mind and attempted to straighten out the machine. In doing so the car turned on its side and crushed Murray's arm which was protruding through the open window of the auto.

The arm was badly fractured and police reported today doctors saying the limb may have to be amputated.

Albert College Graduates Attend Baccalaureate Service

"If you will enter your life's work, whatever it may be, and find in it your opportunity for service, doing of what you owe, your's will be a successful life. If you will say, "I am a debtor, help me to pay back something of what I have received, your life will be satisfactory and successful. To forget is to grow embittered and narrow-minded and soul," said Rev. Dr. E. C. Hunter to the graduating class of Albert College at the baccalaureate service.

The occasion was the Baccalaureate service of Albert College, traditionally held in Bridge Street United Church. The altar was graced with purple iris and spirea bouquets. The processional organist was led by the clergymen and visiting dignitaries, members of the college governors, the faculty in gowns, the graduating class wearing the new gowns of dark blue and red, presented as a gift from W. S. Gordon of Toronto; the girls in white long veils and gowns, and the male students.

Impressive in its quiet dignity the service was performed in full by the minister of the church, Rev. Duncan McTavish; Rev. M. E. Collins, assistant, who read the selection from the psalms; Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, B.A., one of the governors, vice-chairman of the board; and Rev. Bert Howard, Principal Emeritus.

The choir under the direction of the organist, S. Alec Gordon, provided a fine rendition of "Festival Te Deum" and—a feature—the female voices was heard in "I'll Thine Eyes."

PRAYER TO CAPACITY.

Many friends and relatives of the students joined the regular worshippers to fill the church to capacity.

Introducing the visiting minister, Rev. Dr. Howard explained, that it was a matter of deep satisfaction, to the faculty, that Dr. Hunter had consented to bring to the service a message of inspiration and challenge to the young people. Dr. Hunter had filled some of the great churches in the East and West and his works spoke for him. He had been a real friend of Albert College and had rendered a great service to the school.

Basing his sermon on the verse, "Freely ye have received, freely give", Dr. Hunter prefaced his theme by relating a story of David Grayson's adventure with a shabby man.

DETERMINED TO FIND CAUSE.

Mr. Grayson was determined to find the reason for the man's gloominess, whose whole deportment showed carelessness. Listening to a rosy hue story of life, the shabby man agreed with the speaker that they should sum up and take what belonged to them. Mr. Grayson pointed out the names carved on the bridge of the bridge across the street. To Mr. Grayson the names Benjamin Franklin meant that life had been easier and pleasanter because of his discoveries, and the same true of Thomas Edison. The name Shakespeare meant hours of pleasure. But to the shabby man these names meant nothing. Grayson discovered that the reason for the shabby man never dreamed he owed the world anything. He never realized the action that people are great in proportion as they feel a sense of indebtedness. Many men have no debts.

"You students belong to the most indebted generation the world has ever known", Dr. Hunter continued. "Your generation has much as this one. For ten thousand years the world has literally been storing gifts of tradition for you, gifts of science, music, art, inventions and institutions. Out of the authors to whom you are indebted, the composers of music, the scientists.

HAVE FUNDAMENTAL FREEDOM.

"No one in this service has given a thought today of what he is surrounded by the police or authorities. We have the fundamental freedom, religious freedom, and if we lost this all others would go. Whence came this priceless freedom? It cost much to the deliverers who made it our land to make their heritage religious freedom," said the speaker outlining the hardships of the Mayflower and rivals. "Think you we are indebted to those, who made this possible?"

"Albert College is almost one hundred years old. Already it has a great tradition and a noble history. Its student begins to pay for the things he receives in this college. Increasingly with the passing of the years he will realize what you owe; the friendships you have made that have enriched your life, you will cherish what you have received.

"That vision of the anniversary of D-day, and where our troops landed the waters were red with Canadian blood. These were young men, who loved life as you love it, they had planned for years of useful happiness as you do. Think you we owe them anything?

OTHERS HAVE GIVEN MUCH

"Other nations and other people have given us much. Egypt gave us the science of mathematics. Arabia gave us our alphabet. Greece gave us philosophy and treasures of art, Rome gave us science and discoveries. China gave us the mariner's compass, the guiding instrument on water and in the air, and Palestine gave us our religion. Are you unthankfully any nation or people for we are indebted to many.

"A sense of great indebtedness was the great power behind Albert's pioneering ministry. But all these are small compared to what we have received from our Saviour, because He gave Himself for us. Jesus left these words ringing in the hearts of His disciples, "Freely ye have received, freely give." That is an adequate and sustaining motive."

PRAYER FOR COLLEGE

During the service a prayer for Albert College, composed by Principal Emeritus, Rev. Bert Howard, was read in unison.

"Our Heavenly Father we thank Thee for the inestimable privilege of knowing Thee. Our souls rejoice in that we can speak expression to Dr. Irwin, Dr. Meldrum, special nurses and nurses of the fourth floor, and Dr. Ann West. Thanks to my many friends for cards, flowers, gifts and visits. His Blessing Rest on them all and remembered me with cards and flowers, a special thanks to Rev. Percy Ford Workshop and Rev. Clarke of Plainfield.

Nurses made 101 visits to infants under one year of age and 61 visits in prenatal and postnatal service. Twenty-four preschool clinics were held and 12 home visits for TB prevention.

There was an attendance of 75 at four child health clinics held at Kitawnia Centre and Parkwood Heights. Planned Parenthood of well babies and, pre-school children and 177 attended immunization clinics at City Hall.

The report was considered until the first Tuesday of October, had an attendance of 42.

During May Miss Grace Arnot, Reg. N., who is taking a postgraduate course in public health nursing at the University of Toronto School of Nursing, did field work with the local health department.

One new case of active TB was reported and admitted to sanatorium. Seven cases of mumps, one case of measles and one case of chickenpox were reported.

"I will fight for the rest of my life to have such institutions made possible in my country," he was quoted as saying.

Before the officials left for an official visit to Washington as the guests of the United States, they were made honorary life members of the ANAF Dominion organization.

Accused Found Not Guilty Of Driving Charge

CAMPBELLFORD — Alvin Edward Hollings, 32, of Campbellford, was found not guilty on Thursday afternoon when he appeared before Mr. Justice John L. Miller in Cobourg on a charge of dangerous driving.

Lasting two days, the trial was the result of a fatal accident at Campbellford on November 3, 1953, when the car which Hollings was driving, left the road, skidded across a stretch of grass, and plunged into the Trent Canal. A passenger in the car, Harry Smith, who was then lockmaster at Healey Fall, was drowned.

Judge Miller said that he did not consider the evidence against the accused sufficient to warrant a conviction, but told Hollings that he hoped the incident would be a lesson to him, and a warning to others. Hollings was defended in the action by J. C. German.

CAR ROLLS OVER.

John T. Kelly, a member of the Canadian Forces, was taken to hospital from Halifax, escaped injury on Tuesday when his car in which he was driving rolled over on the Sunbrae road, a few miles east of here.

Kelly told police that he was travelling at speed when he suddenly saw a herd of cattle on the road just as he broke over the hill. He applied the brakes but the car skidded on the loose gravel, turned sideways and rolled over. He climbed out, shaken, but otherwise uninjured.

OPP Constable Doug. Ross investigated. The car received damage to the extent of approximately $525.

NEW YORK (AP)—A school girl rape victim died Sunday shortly after her alleged attacker was jailed without bail on charges of committing that assault and three other murders.

John Francis Roche, 27, a husky steamfitter, was the first of two alleged killers seized by police during the week-end.

The second, arrested Sunday, was Norman Roye, 18-year-old Negro who police said admitted raping and killing three Negro women.

He aroused suspicious, police report, when he stood munching crackers and watching detectives examine the body of his latest alleged victim, 66-year-old Mrs. Isadora Gomez.

His open shirt revealed scratches across the stomach. Police questioned him and, they reported, he admitted strangling and raping Mrs. Gomez and two other women.

GIRL IS SLAIN

Roche was held for a hearing June 23.

FIVE CENTS

In grilling their second alleged killer, police said they learned that tne crackers Roye was eating when first questioned had been bought with five pennies stolen from the victim's pocketbook.

Similar questioning of another police said Roye admitted were those of Mrs. Margaret Branch, 60, and tucked in home last Jan. 2, and Mrs. Kathleen Stewart, whose body was found in the Polo grounds May 28.

Roye was booked on charges of homicide and rape.

To Change Style Of Auto Licence Plates Next Year

TORONTO (CP) — New-style license plates are to be carried by Ontario vehicles in 1955, Highways Minister Doucett announced today.

No letters will appear on the first 999,999 passenger car plates and from then on, one letter will be used for each 100,000.

Mr. Doucett said a registration plate is only as legible as its smallest figure or letter and there had been considerable confusion in attempting to distinguish between such letters as I and T, N and M, C and G.

Although the figures on the new plates will be half an inch shorter than those now used, the legibility of the plate will be increased by omitting the three-inch letters, officials said.

BURMA DEFEATS COMMUNISM

Burma is defeating Communism by example as well as by force, declares David Chipp, Reuters correspondent. The Burmese government's vigorous policy of social and land reforms has, he says, "successfully counteracted every Communist argument."

This is important news at a time when the danger of the Red tide engulfing all of Southeast Asia is causing concern to the statesmen in all the capitals of the free world.

Nor is the geographic location of Burma the only link between the problem of Communism in that land and the fears of a Vietminh victory in Indo-China. Indo-China and Burma are two of the very few countries in the Orient which produce more rice than is required to feed their own populations.

In most of the Far East the mouths of teeming millions quickly gulp down all the harvest from the rice paddies. But Indo-China and Burma have more rice than they need—and for that reason they occupy the same role in the rice-eating East as that filled by Canada and the United States in relation to the wheat-eating countries of the West.

Its rice paddies are what make Indo-China so important, particularly to Japan which, as the most industrialized of the nations of the East, will inevitably play a key role in deciding Asia's future. It was the need for rice, as much as anything, which sent Japanese armies flooding into Indo-China after the Nazi conquest of France. It is the prospect of this granary passing under the control of the Communists which adds weight to the worries of the U.S. about the success of the Vietminh forces.

It is obvious that, if the Communists do extend their rule in Indo-China, Burma's rice-producing ability will be enhanced in importance. Thus Chipp's declaration that Burmese policies are defeating Communism becomes news of the highest importance.

Perhaps the methods ought to be studied by the nations of the West—and efforts made to have these methods copied wherever it is not already too late. It is not surprising to learn that a key to the government's success has been the satisfaction of the peasant's hunger for land. The government nationalized all the land—and then, for its equitable distribution, compensated all landlords, established co-operatives and granted loans and help to peasants who had not the equipment or animals to start farming on their own.

In other words the government turned "have-nots" into "haves"—thereby weaning not only "the ordinary nonparty peasants" but a number of fairly high-ranking Red leaders from the perverted ideology.

Burma has proved this is an effective way to fight Communism. It might be added that, in Asia, it may well be the only effective way; that tanks and guns and planes and even atom bombs may in the end prove powerless to stop the flood of revolt; that food and reform may be the only answers.

MANY BRIDGES ARE HAZARDOUS

Railway crossings are not the only danger spots on our highways. Bridges can be hazards, too.

That fact was made tragically plain last week, when two distinct bridge accidents occurred in this area, as automobiles in which they were passengers struck bridges.

Wednesday morning Mrs. Gordon Green, of Trenton was killed when a car struck a bridge at Stockdale. Thursday morning Mrs. Irene Bonisteel of Belleville was killed in a similar accident on the 2nd concession of Sidney township.

It is evident that there is more than coincidence in the similarity between these deaths. Bridges are so short, make up so small a percentage of the total distance of roads, that it is unthinkable that two fatal accidents would occur at bridges on successive nights, unless bridges were more hazardous than the open road.

In the case in the Sidney township bridge, the Suburban Roads Commission already made plans to widen it. Steel for the work is on the site and the project will be undertaken this year.

In many cases bridges are narrower than the stretches of open road which they link together. It may be argued that for every person who meets with an accident at a bridge, thousands cross it safely, no matter how narrow it may be. And it may be added that motorists ought to use additional caution when approaching a bridge, particularly if signs warn that it is narrower. All this is true—but still narrow bridges remain one of those highway hazards which it is desirable should be eliminated. Indeed, it may not be out of place to suggest that a safe bridge would be a structure wider than the road it serves, for there is a mental hazard involved in entering the steel cage of its superstructure, or passing between its concrete walls. Many a driver finds himself moving out into the centre of the roadbed, in order to make certain that his car does not strike the bridge. He mistrusts his judgment of distances. It is wise to do so is shown by the two fatal accidents last week.

THE GIVE-AWAY ROSES

There are two kinds of roses and the difference all can tell.
The first, within a greenhouse has been grown with utmost care.
They are tall and straight and lovely, all intended for display.
But the other kind, in gardens, has been grown to give away.

The roses sold by florists must be perfect to the eye;
Weed and rain have never touched them, every storm has passed them by.

But the other kind has suffered. Every fragrant, small bouquet
Is made of garden roses that were grown to give away.

I like the fancy blossoms. They are beautiful to see,
But somehow the garden roses mean a little more to me.
They lack the true perfection, for which always we must pay,
But they have this touch of glory: They were grown to give away.

Dr. Cody, and the tablet will be unveiled by Mr. John W. Sinclair, both of whom are elders of the church and served with Mr. Sinclair.

Rural Househunting

(New York Times)

Everybody ought to go house-hunting in the country at least once in five years, even without the slightest intention of moving, from the city. The entertainment value of a turn around the rural areas inspecting the dwelling places of a former era is very high, especially for the third party—the country real estate broker—is there to provide a marvelous show. He has nothing whatever to do with the architects. Played in days past, it has the wonderfully incongruous flavor of a scholarly British commentary on the "period" of a film depicting the unsuccessful efforts of a gang of small boys to essay the broad jump without dropping a greased watermelon.

There are perhaps no people in the world more keenly aware of the silver lining, which, as the philosophers of Tin Pan Alley teach, outlines every dark cloud, than real-estate people. Frequently they are able to discern silver linings even when there are no clouds and long after the sun has set. The fact is, proceeding from the city to the suburbs to the villages, real-estate people are the most optimistic and sensitive to the presence of silver linings so that, in the time that a prospective house buyer is out beyond the town limits and into the country, he is able to make a verbal silk purse out of a material that's as much sow's ear often being struck dead by lightning on the spot.

* * *

It is a rich experience to watch an old farmer trying to sell a decrepit stance waist high in the growth behind his abandoned barn. Island as "the front lawn," twist his mustache reflectively, cast an admiring eye at a few apple trees and accepts many have housed delegates to a Farm Bureau International Congress and airily estimate that with a little carpentery here and a touch of paint there it will be possible to make himself a right homey little place." It is quite possible, indeed, even to the unpractised eye that a battalion of sternly disciplined carpenters and painters working in a frenzy from dawn to sunset might make a shambles of the place and confusion after spirited hand -to-hand combat. "They built 'em solid in those days," one will be told, "made 'em to last." But then in time even the most realistic ranges are ground to plains.

* * *

Optimism, of course, is a likable trait, and there is no reason why real-estate people, particulary rural real-estate people, should not be the best-liked people on earth. Facing a house whose back has dropped off but whose front is perfectly good, how bold on, an experienced country real-estate man can, without perceptibly changing the expression on his face, launch in to an eloquent panegyric on the rustic virtues of an iron wash-tub whose top has rusted out.

The country real-estate agent has an extra sense—in addition, that is, to his regular eighth which enables him to use a driving rod with ease skill. It is always fun to watch the old gentleman, when asked if there is water on the place, pick up a forked stick, walk a dozen deliberate paces, thrust the stick violently downward, grin and say: "Water? Why there's a spring down there, folks." And truly there is. The well-diggers may have some difficulty locating it, but a reference to a globe of the world will convince that there is, indeed, an ocean down there. The Pacific.

* * *

Also, the country realtor is invariably a man of boundless love for scenic beauty. He will direct attention not to the house, which is, after all, a matter of handiwork, turning instead to the magnificent view from the side doors. It is here under unlimited skies that the air is clear and fragrant that a man can expand his chest and live abundantly, filling it with the sweet odors of nature again and again to focus the contemplative eye on the panoramic vistas of the house, but the man of nature will not be dragged to the window. It is a great wonder he will speak of and the sweet smell of the fields. Later it will be found that the bill of sale contains rather little about the great valley and the brook and rather much about what, by the exercising of a little ingenuity on nature, is called a "house" in the country.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is well known that restaurants which depend on a fairly quick service of customers have put some thought and money into the design of their chairs and stools. After years of study, they have arrived at a type of chair, stool and counter, depending on the type of restaurant, which is comfortable enough for a certain time, but which does not invite repose.

I was a little startled at lunch yesterday to hear the restaurant chairs being the subject of conversation, discussing with a couple of experts the reasons why they are employed shortly when the place is to be redecorated.

"There is anatomy in the restaurant business. But there is also psychology. They plan to be able to figure out a color scheme that is most attractive to a hungry person, but which is guaranteed to disturb and distress a person who has just eaten. The chairs, having has, as we all know, got us hypnotized, are built so that we, noticed, compelled, pushed about by the art of design in color.

"We did a night spot recently, "one of the experts told my friend the restaurant owner, "and that is the reverse problem to the one you are faced with. You want the customers to leave the place as soon as they have eaten. In a night club, the longer they linger, the bigger the tab. We did it up in the most restful colors imaginable. Not only the colors but the design, the decoration, the lines, were hypnotic. After a little while in the club it was quite difficult to move. You feel pinned to your chair. The only comfortable the chairs are."

My friend the restaurateur sighed sadly.

"Now you see," explained the expert, "we can decorate that wall over there, which you notice is the first thing the incoming customer sees, in lovely soft pastel tones, but a pattern and color that will act on his appetite like a cocktail. That will be the first meal, cocktail. But here, on these walls, and this ceiling, we have employed design and the color, so as to give the effect—"

"Victim?" I suggested.

"The victim," pursued the expert, "of a slight anxiety, of a desire to be up and doing." poor us!

Construction Delays

(Toronto Star)

Most great construction projects take longer to build than the public thinks. The public is told that the (St. Lawrence) seaway project is scheduled to be completed within three to five years," which appears to be too optimistic. It would be reasonable to assume that the seaway will not be completed in less than five years and that all the electric equipment will not be installed for seven or eight years.

BERIBERI WIDELY PREVALENT IN U.S.

Dr. Brady

What is beriberi, anyway? Beriberi is a nutritional-deficiency disease, a result of extreme weakness which first partially and eventually completely disables the victim. In Singhalese "beriberi means 'I cannot,'" signifying weakness. The name of the disease is too well known to require description.

Because beriberi is usually associated with famine or restricted food supply it has occurred chiefly in India, China, the Philippines, Japan, Malaya. Hence it came to be known as an oriental disease, and although outspoken beriberi has been observed in Africa, Brazil, Paraguay, Uruguay, Seattle ,San Francisco and Bangor (Maine), these outbreaks" seldom appeared in the headlines, and so we smug Americans continue to pretend beriberi can't happen here, where living scale is the highest in the world.

Unfortunately some medical authorities in the U.S. have ascribed beriberi to the use of rice as the staple food article of diet. But since the discovery that lack of vitamin B1 (thiamin) is the cause of beriberi we know that the disease is as likely to occur where wheat is the chief or exclusive item of diet.

It is not rice, which is one of the richest sources of thiamin, nor wheat, which is the rich or nearly as rich a source of thiamin (B1), but the removal of nearly all the vitamin from the grain by milling, refining, polishing to make the "white" rice or refined white flour, that is responsible for beriberi.

Even American beriberi takes five weeks to five months to develop, when the diet is restricted to minimum B1 contents—say white bread, sugar and tea.

It takes years of use of the usual ultra-refined, processed, flabbergasted chest-foods that compose the namby-pamby Lenox diet to produce the symptoms of the modified beriberi that is so prevalent in this country today—and so seldom diagnosed. In the orient the poverty of the peasants invites beriberi as the incidence of nutrition makes the well-to-do easy victims.

Instead of displaying a select line of symptoms of American beriberi for you to try on, I'll just mumble a mouthful I came across in one of the finest books of the day—Bicknell and Prescott's Vitamins in Medicine" (Grune & Stratton, New York):"

The clinical picture" (of beriberi "is one of ascending, bilateral, peripheral neuritis."

Any Yankee Wiseacre understands such gabble. But only go away mad, folks. Read next Thursday's paper, I'll explain all.

Just What Is An Emergency?

(Edmonton Journal)

One of the boldest pieces of social legislation ever brought down in Canada is a recent amendment to the Ontario Telephone Act. It provides a fine of $50 for anyone who refuses to surrender a party line in an emergency.

This law is sound enough in theory. It was doubtless inspired by numerous cases in which individuals refused to cut short their conversations and hang up even though frantic neighbors were trying to call the fire brigade or the doctor. But enforcing it is going to be quite a problem.

Most of the offenders in these cases are women, and it is a well-known fact—well-known to men anyway—that the fair sex regards interminable telephone conversations as one of its constitutional rights. They will certainly resist vigorously any effort to rule them off the wire.

Then there is the question of just what constitutes an emergency. Fire, police and ambulance calls obviously qualify. But what about an urgent call to a heedless husband or offspring to dick, the roast out of the oven before it is too late? Is this serious enough to justify breaking up a conversation about Mrs. Binks' new hat?

Ontario rural magistrates, we suspect, are going to need an extra supply of the wisdom of Solomon.

Drunk Indian Is Quiet Man

(Sudbury Star)

It is coincidental that on the same day Commissioner R. Renison, Anglican archbishop of Moosonee, said in a Sudbury interview that Indians should be given the same privileges as their white neighbors the Ontario cabinet passed an order-in-council asking the federal government to grant equal drinking rights in Ontario.

It has always been a source of ironical amusement to many people who know the Indians best that the drunken Indian is much to be preferred to a drunken white man.

An Indian who has imbibed too freely of alcoholic beverages is likely to find a quiet corner where he can curl up and go to sleep without bothering anyone. Too many drunken white men, on the other hand, must display their "Dutch courage" to the world in arguments, violence or boisterous revelry.

Those who have stood by the side of Canadian Indians for years in their demands for equal rights share the opinion of Archbishop Renison when he said:

"If a man is a man he should be treated as a man, and not as a child."

Those words express the true appreciation "of human values without regard to race, color or creed."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

CROAKERS

I read a very interesting comment by Bertrand Russell recently. He said: "There are croakers in every country, always busybodies to tell us of the evils of the day. Pessimism is a form of intellectual sin. Not only the croakers but the busybodies are responsible for a large part of the misery of the world."

Franklin commented that this man continued, however, "to live in this world even when there are no croakers." Franklin was able to claim it in the same strain, refusing for many years to buy a house there, because all was going to destruction; and at last I had the pleasure of seeing him give five times as much for one as he might have bought it for when he first began croaking!"

What a lot of descendants of that Philadelphia croaker there are in America today! But, as Franklin stated, we have such specimens always with us. In every prosperity these people can't see beyond their noses. They keep looking to their front door to make sure no one wouldn't fill a thimble!

It never pays to sell Opportunity short. Faith is the substance of things hoped for, as it is true today, and will be long after we have all gone hence and others have to take up the count. Croakers are a nuisance and should be treated as such.

The free nations of the world decided to be free, and did something about it. They let the croakers to their sad end, while they marched to victorious triumphs. There are better times ahead. There always will be! Let the croakers say what they will.

Boys Missing Two Old Games

(Fort William Times-Journal)

Some oldsters were reminiscing the other day in the office and in a discussion of the fun they used to have as youths. One of them told of two games they played which the modern boy apparently does not know—Duck on a Rock and Peg.

French cricket was played with a ball and bat. The boy who was "in" stood with his two feet close together, and he was equipped with an ordinary baseball bat or narrow piece of wood about the length of a baseball bat.

The object of the game was for the older boys to hit the batter's shoes with the ball. The boy with the bat used his bat to intercept the ball, belting it as far away as he could. If at any time he moved either foot, he was "out." The closer the ball thrower got in, the easier it was to hit a shoe, and of course the big advantage was to be able to throw from behind the batter, since the latter had to twist his body around to watch behind.

Peg was a "home-made" game. The boys took a piece of wood from four to six inches long and about four inches in circumference. The two ends were whittled to points, so that when the boys banged down on one end of the stick, the peg rose in the air, the player hit it with his stick to drive it as far as he could. The opposing player then had his turn, to send the peg in the opposite direction. It was a groundgaining game, in some ways similar to modern golf or football.

Leave boys alone, however, and they will always have fun. Probably if new activities have replaced the old, it is because the youngsters want it that way.

Boys When Bristol Barred Wheels

(BBC News)

The importing and blending of sherry is a complex trade that still thrives in Bristol, and in a series of talks in the BBC's General Overseas Service called "Sam Sherry and Company," this traveling reporter said that in Stuart times no wheeled vehicles were allowed in the streets of Bristol—one of the corporation all transport was on horseback and sledges. The reason for this prohibition was that the corporation was frightened that execution would greatly harm the city's buried wealth, casks of sherry which local bread sherry, known then and still known as Bristol Milk, which lay in all the underground cellars of that rich everywhere beneath it.

Head of Manufacturers Advocates More Buying from United Kingdom

By FORREST RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

JASPER, Alta. (CP)—More buying from the United Kingdom was advocated today by J. D. Ferguson of Rock Island, Que., president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

It has been estimated, he said in an address prepared for delivery to the association's annual meeting, that if Canada bought seven per cent less from the United States, and that much more from the United Kingdom, Britain's trade deficit with Canada would be wiped out and she would be better able to buy Canadian products.

Mr. Ferguson said he could see no reason why this suggestion made recently by the Canadian Dollar Sterling Trade Council should not be adopted.

"The facts are clear," he stated. "The United States already earns, from goods she sells us, far more than she requires to buy the goods she wants from us.

"I am sure no thinking American would suggest that so modest an adjustment would cause any serious harm to the over-all United States export market.

BUYING TOO MUCH?

On the other hand, Britain already was buying more goods than she can afford. She obviously wanted to buy still more. The seven-per-cent switch would enable her to do so.

Mr. Ferguson forecast that the present year and the future would be good to Canada.

Some people "mournfully proclaim" that 1954 won't be as good as 1953. However, new investment, usually a good guide to the future, "would indicate that it would be as good or even better".

Even such a "spectacular nation" as Canada must occasionally face readjustments, but this did not mean that the economic pendulum must swing as far back as it had swung forward. The Canadian economy could not do anything else but expand over a period of time.

Even if one took a view of extreme pessimism, he could not foresee any deep depression.

Much had been learned since the 1930s. "The government has methods of attacking depression, including modification of tax rates and relaxation of credits, and I feel sure it has in reserve some blueprint of public works that could create jobs and increase demand for goods and supplies."

SAVING MORE

Additionally, Canadians had more money in the bank for a rainy day than ever before, with an annual saving rate of nearly $1,500,000,000 unemployment insurance reserves, pension plans and family allowances were further guards against depression.

On the production side, was the fact that Canadian industry must face foreign competition both at home and abroad.

Management and labor, Mr. Ferguson said, must remember they can face complete and utter frustration in their battle towards successful competition, if the men who operate the machines and handle the materials refuse to admit that they, like management and capital, are part of the competitive economic system—and are, in fact, part of the country's business team.

J. C. Whitelaw, general manager, in his prepared report of the year's activities, said some progress had been made toward a more flexible system of world trade, but a great deal depended upon the trade policy of the United States.

Officially crowned up as an RCAF CF-100 pilot-navigator team, they were posted to 423 All-Weather Squadron, where they're now on operations.

F/L DON McNICHOL, 25, of High River, Alberta, has a civil engineering degree from the University of Alberta. While there he excelled in the University's RCAF Reserve Squadron and after three summers of flying training won his Pilot's Wings. Reception Held In Honor Of Recent Bride

One hundred and forty guests attended the reception held recently at the home of Mrs. W. J. Diamond, 28 Green Street, in honor of Mrs. C. E. Mahoney, nee Carrie Canning, a recent bride.

The door was opened by little Carolyn Fearnley, who was in her white nylon frock spotted with tiny blue forget-me-nots. The gifts were received by the hostess, Mrs. J. L. Diamond, assisted by the bride's cousin, Mrs. Ambrose E. Mahoney, of Keswick, and the bride, Mrs. C. C. Mahoney.

The tea table was daintily appointed with a hand-crocheted white lace cloth, centred with a silver bowl of white sweetpeas and lily-of-the-valley, flanked by silver candelabra with tall, white candles, and silver service. A lovely arrangement of white carnations and white larkspur occupied the coffee table in front of the spacious fireplace.

Those presiding at the silver services were: Mrs. J. D. Empson, of Roslin; Mrs. R. Carruthers, Mrs. G. R. Hall, Mrs. Hazel Heise Symons, of Belleville. Those serving included: Mrs. S. Christ Church C.C. Holds 'Summer Tea, Shopping Spree'

Christ Church parish hall was "in full" on Saturday afternoon for the "summer tea and shopping spree" sponsored by the Contact Club. Gorgeous, cool summer-ies decorated the walls and gleamed from the pillars, while large baskets of pastel-tinted iris and graceful bridal-wreath, with spirea, adorned each window ledge. Upstairs the "shopping spree" in all its bazaar-like appeal, occupied the four sides and spread out into the centre sections—but more of this anon.

Receiving the guests were, Mrs. J. B. Creeggan, wife of the rector, and Mrs. L. Lennox, president of the Contact club.

The tea table, presided over by Mrs. F. Blaker and Mrs. H. Fisher, Mrs. R. Lennox and Mrs. A. Mathews, was lovely with its centrepiece of crimson gladioles in a crystal bowl flanked by all red candles in silver, tri-branched holders. Little red-bordered serviettes added their pleasing touch while situated at strategic points, were the quartet guest tables, each covered with a white cloth and centred by a single red peony in a silver covered holder, the whole bearing out the red and white theme.

EMPORIUM

The emporium upstairs presented various booths, outlining the large quadrangle, prettily decorated in colors of blue and yellow, green and white. The main centre was a small rectangle of little tots' clothes, while at the west end, was a large revolving clothes-line filled with sprouts of every hue, colour and description while others filled the window space and covered the counter beneath—a grand total of over 140 sprouts. Above the booth was the legend: "Anon Sprouts" in red roma.

At the east end was the home-cooking table, and along the north side was a "wishing well," with roof outlined in colored sausage-like balloons, and near to this a novelty booth, and rolls of comic books, and along the south side, the post office, while the plant table, grab-bags, and gift booth.

'Well-Women' Clinic Proves Very Popular

MONTREAL (CP)—Mink-draped clients now line up regularly for checks at the Royal Victoria Hospital's "well-women clinic," set up five years ago as a free service for poor patients.

"About a year after we started the clinic we started charging a fee—$12 at first, now it's $15," said Dr. J. W. Philpott, head of the Royal Victoria's gynaecological department.

The Hospital keeps every Friday afternoon open for poor patients, but the number of non-paying patients has dropped to a ratio of about one for every five who pay the fee.

The clinic started as an offshoot of cancer detection clinics. Dr. Philpott said, and the main idea still is cancer detection. But the tests now are designed to uncover a variety of diseases ranging from anaemia to syphilis and benign tumors.

Altogether some 10,000 women have been examined since the clinic opened in 1942. The present rate is about 25 a day.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

A SIMPLE, EVENING PARTY. . . NOT A SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Some of my girl friends is to be wed shortly, and another girl and I want to plan to give a tea for the bride-to-be, but not a shower. Can the tea be given in the evening (which is a more convenient time for most of us), and may we serve lunch instead of tea?—And what other refreshments should we serve?

2. Is it proper for us to telephone the invitations, or must we send notes, of invitation? —Peggy S.

1. A "tea" is a party given in the afternoon, beginning about four o'clock. I suggest you call your evening gathering-of-friends by the simple, festive word "party." Yes, instead of tea you may serve punch; and small, simple sandwiches; small cakes or cookies; and perhaps such accessories-for-dieting as potato chips, popcorn, salted nuts, mints or other candies. (The more accessories you provide, the fewer sandwiches you'll need to make!)

2. Indeed it's proper for you to telephone the invitations, more efficient, time-saving too, for you'll be able to tell at once if and how many can come. Say, "Betty, won't you come to a small party Jane Smith and I are giving at my house on (day, date, hour), in honor of (bride-to-be) at a shower. . . just a get-together of a group of our mutual friends. Do tell me you'll come."

YOUNG GUEST OF HONOR OPENS PRESENTS AT ONCE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

At a child's birthday party should he or she open each present as it is received, or wait till the giving guest, or wait until all the guests have arrived and presented their presents? — Mother

4. As a present is handed to him or to her, he shall say, "Thank you," and immediately opens the present. Young guests are also eager to have their presents opened and appreciated and exhibited, so wait using for the birthday child to postpone opening their presents!

SHOULD SHE GIVE OR KEEP THE SHOWER PRESENT SHE BROUGHT?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

The following situation has come up twice lately in our group, and we would like to have you tell us what is the right thing to do. When an engaged girl goes to a "miscellaneous" bridal shower, supposedly for someone else (also a girl who is engaged and is to be married shortly) and the shower turns out to be for herself, who keeps the gift she brought to the shower? Does the girl herself keep it, or should she give it to the girl whom she thought the shower was to be given?—Vitilis

My judgment is that the girl who brought the present for the engaged girl should give the present to the girl for whom she brought it; if she has grace enough, she would. I should think, feel cheap not to. Here would be a delightful opportunity for her to present the gift to the other girl, graciously, merrily, saying perhaps something like this, "This was intended for you, Rosna dear . . . it has your name on it and my devotion in it. . . and please accept it with my best wishes that you will find it useful in your new the enthusiastic words.

Allergic to Wheat, Eggs or Milk

By Mary Moore

Two months ago I received a letter from Nora K. in which she offered to give me some recipes for breads that did not call for wheat flour.

Such recipes, as you can imagine, are hard to come by, and I accepted her offer gratefully. They are grouped under the title of "Allergy Breads."

Subsequently Nora K. had these typed out and mailed them to me. They include Buckwheat and Rice Muffins (W-E-M). (NOTE: Where the letter W or M appear after the title of a recipe this means that recipe is free from wheat or eggs or milk.): Buckwheat and Rye Muffins (W-E-M); Old Fashioned Johnny Cakes (W-E-M); Potato Flour Muffins (W-M); Soy Bean Muffins (W-M); Rice Flour Muffins (W-M); Rye and Cornmeal Muffins (W-E-M); Rye and Rice Muffins (W-E-M); Soy Bean and Cornmeal Muffins (W-E-M); Soy Bean and Potato Muffins (W-E-M).

Orange Juice On A Stick Solves Worry

OTTAWA (CP) — If you are worried about your children eating too many sweets, orange-juice-on-a-stick may be the answer. The frozen product originated in Florida, but is now available in Canada.

It not only gives the youngsters something to lick, it provides them with the equivalent of an entire orange, by weight, of fruit juice. The research department of the Canadian Association of Consumers has tested for vitamin C content and found it high—practically unchanged during processing.

Facial Cosmetics Universal Says Beauty Expert

MONTREAL (CP) — Western women spend more thought, time and money primping their faces than their counterparts in other countries, the chief beauty expert of an English cosmetic firm maintains.

Here on a business trip, Mrs. Olive Cato said in an interview problems in the use of facial cosmetics are almost universal.

But she said she found women elsewhere in the world are generally less liberal with the paint and powder than white females. One outstanding exception was among harem girls who use a lavish amount of the colored stuff.

In the Orient, women often use no make-up at all rather than risk offending hubby, she said. They won't even experiment and those that do are content with under-made-up.

IGNORE SKIN CARE

Australian girls liked plenty of color but didn't pay enough attention to skin care.

Mrs. Cato said Canadian women are more conservatively made-up than their British cousins, and that the British girl was a far cry from the harem lassies.

A touch of color was a big help to most women and particularly to Orientals and dusky-skinned types, whose skin tones "tend to a grey overcast at times."

When you are buying a coat or suit, take plenty of time to examine the fit before you buy. Look at yourself from the front, back and sides in a full-length mirror. See how the garment looks in action—sit, pull, walk, sit, and reach.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

AT 15, SHE WANTS TO GET MARRIED NOW!

A girl who is on the eve of her 15th birthday writes that she is at odds with her mother over the question of her marriage to a young man of 19.

"We want to get married when I am 16," she writes, "the fact we'd get married today, if possible. But my mother wants us to wait two years. I'm in love.

"I know you will think I'm just another kid who's in love with the idea of being married, but it isn't so. I'm the only one who knows, and I say I'm in love, and people who are in love get married. I'm mature enough for marriage, both physically and mentally, and I understand what marriage is like. My sweetheart says he will wait for me no matter how long, so I suppose I'll have to wait, but I'm not. While we have never done anything wrong, he admits it's awfully hard for him and me, and I don't want to wait, either. He's saving for our marriage, both has a good job and can support a family.

"I must convince my mother that I'm in love and that I honestly do want to wait two years for marriage, and I hope you can tell me how I can do it.

Now of course it's possible that this girl is one of the exceptional teen-agers who is ready in all respects at 15. I certainly wouldn't make a general statement that she isn't. But I'm glad she's willing to wait until she is 17-years-old.

"Marriage is—or certainly should be—a lifetime affair. And while the average teen-ager is wiser to live the life, and have the experiences, that are normal for this age group, and wait awhile for marriage, I'm for doing it, too. I instead marries very young, she is almost certain to find out that she has been cheated of her youth. I know this 15-year-old won't believe that, but the answer should try, at least, to be open-minded enough to give it some thought.

Again, while she says that she "understands what marriage is like," that simply isn't possible unless she has had some experience. I'm right now, I am sure that her feelings are so wrapped up in this that she can't imagine marriage being anything but one long honeymoon. But the sober truth is that very shortly after marriage, people are apt to find themselves facing one problem after another—financial, emotional, personal and physical with one another—and to solve these problems wisely, requires a degree of maturity and emotional maturity than the average teen-ager has had time to develop. Hence, all too often, if boy and girl marry too young, they are totally unprepared for the big adjustments that must be made, are unhappy in their marriage, and wish themselves out of it, before it has even got really under way.

It seems to me that if this girl really is "mature enough for marriage," as she says, she should realize the wisdom of waiting a little longer.

Don't think I don't fully understand that she and this boy find it hard to wait, and that the expression of their feelings for each other, of their feelings for each other. But I can assure her that if she will wait, she will not regret it, as she very well might if she doesn't. In this, too, she has an opportunity to prove how mature she is.

The wisdom of the young people to cope with the problem of maintaining their chastity, and for them not to spend too much time off by themselves, but to be with their friends a lot, sharing in active interests, including sports. This will help to keep their minds on other things besides their emotional desires. And there is value, too, from prolonging their goodnight kisses and expressions of their affection last date, practice the danger point.

My advice to this girl is to stop trying to argue her mother into letting her marry earlier than she thinks wise. Offer a plan to wait a year anyhow, and in that time, she will have a chance to show her mother that she has a mature viewpoint by living a happy normal, full dating everything she can to make her mother happy, and not thinking her unhappy by continually teasing her about what she wants to do a year from now.

This, I would say, would be her very best chance of winning her mother over, when the time comes to her plan to be married as an end of a year, it then seems the right thing to do.

Overfriendly Boss Can Be Discouraged, Ask For Raise

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—What can the poor working girl do to protect herself against "the overfriendly boss"?

An office worker, writing to Patricia Porter of the Boston Traveler, recently raised the question of "How to discourage the office boss from conveniently placing his hands on (a girl's) shoulders, arms or back while discussing business."

At a drugstore counter where a number of girls from several offices crunch down their mailed milk lunches, I made an informal poll on what they thought about this problem of "the overfriendly boss."

Their reaction was mixed—and entirely feminine.

"If your boss does pinch me every once in a while," said a plump young file clerk, blushing, "but he doesn't mean anything by it. He's the fatherly type. I'm sure he'd be sore as a boil if I'm not getting undercourished."

UNROMANTIC TYPE

"When a boy does pinch me over my shoulder, it's anything but love," remarked a stenographer. "It's only done it after one of those four-martini, three-hour business luncheons, and he just wants something to lean on until he can reach his swivel chair."

"I wish you boss would thaw out more," admitted another stenographer. "After all, if he were trying to put his arm around me, he'd shut up about what a lousy typist I am."

The girls went into a huddle when I asked them what was the best way to curb an employer who really did insist on getting overfriendly on company time.

"Every time he reaches for you," said one, "ask for a raise. Boy, his arm will flop down as if you'd hit it with a crowbar."

The program under Mrs. J. Churchill consisted of two cute cartoons on motion picture films.

After the meeting closed refreshments and a social time were enjoyed.

The Foxboro W.I. catered on May 27, to the C.N.I.B. in the school auditorium.

PLUNGES TO DEATH

NEW YORK (AP)—The wife of a titled United Nations official climbed a guard rail on the George Washington bridge Friday and plunged to her death in the Hudson river 212 feet below. Board Found Dr. Oppenheimer Loyal But Security Risk

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—You could sell yourself about associating with a long-time Communist friend if you worked in a department store. There's no law against it.

Suppose, though, you were one of the great atomic scientists, working for the government, and carrying around in your head secrets involving national security. Would you then be free to associate with that long-time Communist friend?

That's only of the points in the decision which cost Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer his top security risk. Oppenheimer, director of the wartime atom bomb development and a United States government consultant afterwards on atomic problems, was told last December he could no longer have secret information.

Oppenheimer asked for a hearing to clear his name. The Russian Atomic Energy Commission appointed a special, three-man board to conduct the case. It did, for weeks. It heard 40 witnesses and read 4,000 pages of testimony and evidence. This week it gave its verdict.

HIGH DISCRETION

It not only found him to be loyal but said he had a high degree of discretion and a great ability to keep secrets. In addition, the board ruled 3-to-1 that he should no longer be entrusted with government secrets. In short, it called him a security risk.

Oppenheimer became director of the bomb project in 1942. Before then he had associated with Communists for years, attended Communist meetings, married a Communist, and had a brother and sister-in-law who were Communists. His wife, sister and sister-in-law and they quit the party before 1941.

Oppenheimer denied he was a member of the Communist party. The board called that a deliberate traveller in the years before 1942. "Then it told the story.

Haakon Chevalier, friend of Oppenheimer, and identified years ago as a Communist by a California state investigating committee, in 1943 tried to get atomic information out of Oppenheimer for the Russians. Oppenheimer turned him down cold.

Oppenheimer didn't tell government security officers about this until months later, twice lied to them, finally told the full story. In 1938 Chevalier visited Oppenheimer and in 1953 Oppenheimer visited Chevalier and his wife in Paris. The scientist calls Chevalier a friend.

BOARD'S EXPLANATION

The board said this "is not the kind of thing that our security permits on the part of one who customarily has access to information of the highest classification."

The board made this explanation: The government has a security system. The only way in which it can work, and in which the country can be safe, is if everyone like Oppenheimer, with his head full of secrets, abides by the rules. No individual can rule himself on how he observes the rules.

Another ground on which the board considered him a security risk seems far less clear; Oppenheimer, who favored a well-balanced atomic program, joined with others in opposing a crash effort to make the hydrogen bomb and succeeded against it in 1946. The board blamed him for not being "enthusiastic" about it after former President Truman made the decision early in 1950 to go ahead with the H-bomb.

This raises a basic question: How can any scientist be expected ever to give an honest judgment on anything if, as in the case of Oppenheimer, he may find his judgment used against him?

This is the fourth execution publicized in the Soviet Union since Moscow announced recently reimposed the death penalty for murder.

CIVIL DEFENCE HEADS

Three civil defence leaders look over a huge map of Canada's capital at civil defence headquarters in Ottawa. They are: (left to right) Maj.-Gen. M. H. S. Penhale, commandant of the civil defence college at Arnprior, Ont.; Maj.-Gen. F. K. Worthington, federal co-ordinator of civil defence, and Sir John Hodsoll, head of British civil defence. Gen. Penhale, facing the Ottawa river, points toward the Sandy Hill residential district lying between the Rideau river and the Rideau canal. The Parliament Buildings are just to the right of the point where the Rideau canal joins that Ottawa river. The canal runs to the right of and parallel with Gen. Penhale's pointer. The lettered flags stand for civil defence posts—Forward Welfare Detachment and Welfare Assembly Area. (CP Photo);

In the event of atomic war, enemy bombers could fly across the top of the world to strike at Canadian cities. This map shows the distances between bases in Northern Russia and such cities as Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg and Montreal. Radar and communications networks like the Lincoln and Pinetree lines and the McGill Fence would give warning. But in the event of an attack, civil defence would come into play. At civil defence headquarters in Ottawa and at various government levels across the country men are planning what can be done to prepare for such an attack. (CP Photo).

Much Groundwork Done In Civil Defence Preparation But Program 'Only Begun'

What civil defence preparations have been made in Canada? How far have the country's 15,000,000 people been organized for self-preservation in an atomic war? To find out, Forbes Rhude, Canadian Press business editor, has made a coast-to-coast survey. This story is the first of a series in which he reports what he learned about a controversial subject.

By FORBES RHUDE

Canadian Press Business Editor

One man said in February: "There is no use frightening people."

Another said in March: "I think people should be frightened."

A third said in April, with the hydrogen bomb flaring out in big headlines: "Now they have been frightened!"

The three were talking about civil defence, their words a running commentary on the developing urgency of recent months.

GENERAL SURVEY

To learn what has been done in Canada, I talked to civil defence administrators and workers from across the country, visited civil defence installations and makeshift buildings that a stick of dynamite would wreck, and listened to confidential discussions.

I can say that if an atom bomb struck a Canadian city today, thousands of trained workers would go into action and administrators who have studied what to do under atomic attack would undoubtedly accomplish near-miracles in direction of their organizations.

Canada is in a leading place in civil defence preparation, as far as civil defence in the atomic age has progressed. Much detail and groundwork has been done.

But some Canadian cities have little preparation of any kind. Probably no civil defence head anywhere feels we have more than started to tackle the problems of atomic living, though a few communities have made good beginnings.

ANSWERS TELL STORY

The answers given to questions in two of the best-prepared cities in Canada may serve as an illustration:

Question 1, in a western city: "If your sirens sounded today, how many of your citizens would know what they mean?"

Answer: "Perhaps 50 per cent."

Question 2, in an eastern city: "Do you feel you are in substantial measure prepared to cope with atomic attack?"

Answer: "Not by a long way. We could take care of a disaster of the proportions, say, of a tornado which destroyed 100 homes."

To repeat, these answers were given in two of the best-prepared cities in Canada concerning a situation which envisages casualties, in the event of attack, of tens of thousands to millions.

If atomic attack came today, many thousands would die who might have been saved or have saved themselves. In some centres the lives of the people would rest on blind chance.

CIVIL DEFENCE BADGE

This is the badge of Canada's Civil Defence. It is worn on the arm-bands and helmets of civil defence workers and is stamped on all civil defence equipment. The letters also stand for the French equivalent —Defence Civile. (CP Photo).

But what has been done means thousands would be saved who would have died in an attack two or three years ago.

STAFFS WORK HARD

Brisk organizations exist in many places and at various government levels across Canada, their slender staffs pushing for all they are worth amid many handicaps, partly of public apathy, partly of the gigantic size of their problem.

In some communities the leadership of one man has meant the difference between a good program and none.

High-ranking ex-servicemen with experience in handling people hold top posts—some as dollar-a-year men or on loan from their companies as a public service; some serving at a sacrifice of what they could get elsewhere; some able to take civil defence jobs at the salaries paid only because they have service pensions or other income.

Federal headquarters is a vibrant place of over-all planning which the government feels to be its part in the country-wide set-up, along with financial aid.

BUSY CHIEF

One conversation with Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, federal co-ordinator, in his Ottawa office was interrupted three times in 15 minutes by long distance calls from Washington, Montreal and Winnipeg.

Whatever is done in civil defence preparation, there will remain some measure of gamble and calculated risk. Not all the resources of Canada could fully protect us from the nuclear bomb as we know it, and such possible new weapons as the cobalt bomb. For these, so far as can be seen, there is no adequate answer except a world that has learned to live in peace.

But how much gamble and calculated risk should there be ?The answer may mean the difference between survival and destruction for you and your family and for Canada.

Sir John Hodsoll, head of British civil defence, said me in Ottawa:

"The civil population is in the front line and will be attacked first if there is war. The issue of the war will depend on how they stand up to it."

TRANSPORT VOTERS

ACCRA, Gold Coast (Reuters)—Gold Coast voters in remote areas will be brought to the polls in the June 15 election in four-wheel-drive vehicles and canoes. The special vehicles will be provided in Dangbe-Shai constituency, where heavy rains threaten to isolate some villages.

SKILL ON FARM

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask (CP)—Employment office D. A. Rose says there has been a shortage of farm help for seeding. A farm-hand now needs to be a mechanic to handle all the equipment, he said, and farm mechanics are not too plentiful.

IVANHOE

Young Couple Honored By Friends, Neighbors

IVANHOE — A large number of neighbors and friends from the communities of Ivanhoe and Minto gathered in Ivanhoe town hall on Wednesday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. Gaynor Rendall, (nee Doris Twiddy). Rev. R. R. Bonsteel, of Stirling, acted as chairman for the following program: Community singing led by Mrs. Lindsay Tanner, with Miss Beesie Fleming at the piano; reading, "Grandpa's Courting," Mrs. H. Bray; trio, "A Lonely Little Robin," Joe, Glenn and Grant Hagerman, encore, "It is No Secret"; reading, "To Him and To Her," (Edgar Guest), Miss M. Wright; accordion solo, "La Spagnola," Miss Linda Sine.

Doris and Gaynor were asked to occupy seats of honor and an address was read by Mrs. Thomas Clements, in which was mentioned their willing participation in the work of his church and in all community activities. The presentation of a floor lamp, an occasional chair and hassock was made by Mrs. George Wood, Mr. Earl McMaster and Mr. Stan Thompson.

Words of thanks and appreciation were expressed by the honored couple, and a cordial invitation extended to all to visit them in their home in Demorcste. All joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

Their many friends in this district wish for them a long and happy married life.

Refreshments were served and a short time spent in visiting.

BUMPER SEASON

HALIFAX (CP) — If inquiries by mail are a good indication, Nova Scotia is in for the best tourist season it has ever had, says a spokesman for the provincial information bureau. A tourist official said there was an unusually large proportion of inquiries from Ontario, Quebec and some of the western provinces.

EMPLOYEES WARNED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign Aid Director Harold Stassen said Thursday he will fire any employee who gives unauthorized information to Senator Joseph McCarthy. "Any employee of the foreign operations administration who violated the laws and executive regulations," he said, "would not be an employee very long. He would of course be discharged."

Hatching Robins Make Frequent Truck Trips

MARMORA — A robin, which chose the bracket of the rear spring of his oil truck as the site for its nest, laid four eggs thereon, and most recently hatched them out, is the wonder of Manley Lavender, Marmora business man, these days.

It is the more remarkable when it is known that this truck has been in frequent usage for oil delivery and also journeys including two to Peterborough, over this particular period.

The tenacity of the bird in this hatching period is to be noted, but once her young were born, she did not think it necessary to join them on their unusual jaunts.

However, she has not forsaken them and when the truck returns to the regular parking place in the Lavender yard, she is soon there to greet them, and feed them, unfledged as they still are.

INTERESTING BIRD LIFE

Mr. Lavender has noted other things of interest regarding bird life on his premises. For three years a robin returned to build its nest and hatch its young outside his garage. The doors being left open the oftener this year the bird thought it more advantageous to make its temporary home within. Also a bird of grass bird type, changed its location for the past three years when it built in a rambler rose bush to the right of the front door. This year it became a leftist, choosing a Dutchman's Pipe vine, left of the door, where it sits in its nest in motley expectancy.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

...R WEATHER!

The weather kicks dipped into his bag of tricks over the week-end, got his signals crossed and came up with something like Grey Cup weather, garnished with some thing was neither fit "for man or beastie." It was raw and cold with plenty of rain to wash it down in various parts.

The Belleville Batas senior baseball club merely went for a ride to fulfil a double-header against Oakville Cats and Oshawa Transporters. They set off on the Junket on time, cast eyes at the threatening weather, but got the O.K. from Oakville both Oshawa and Oshawa. But the weather man got in his tricks and both games were postponed.

While there was no rain in this village on Saturday the few Octoberish weather played a big part in the attendance at the game played between Toronto Nortown Ladies Softball club and "a bunch of the boys" from the Belleville District Baseball League. The game was played at the CNR Recreation Field but yet needed a far cast, year red planted candles and an electric heater if you had any degree of comfort. The Nortown Ladies put on a splendid exhibition despite the weather and showed flashes of why they won the Canadian Ladies' crown last season. The gals nearly froze in their smart blue-trimmed white nylon uniforms and it was hardly to be expected they would be able to give their best under such weather conditions. However the crowd on hand enjoyed the show.

A lot of soccer fans braved the inclemency of the weather and trekked to Toronto to watch the famous Chelsea Pensioners whip the equally famous Glasgow Rangers 4-1 before a rain-soaked crowd of around 17,000. The loyal fans sat through it all and the British and Scottish clubs came up with a brilliant exhibition of how soccer is played "over" and how it should be played here. They say it was drizzling at times despite the teeming downfall.

• • •

TOP OF HEAP!

The Batas are due for a week's layoff, according to the schedule, but it is more than likely they will try to catch up with one or more of the postponed games. The schedule says they play at Bath and Napanee on Victoria Day, then back to Toronto for Hookings, who play a night game here after taking on the Peics in Peterborough in an afternoon fixture. On Tuesday, June 15, the Oshawa Transporters will be here.

• • •

At the moment the Batas and Transporters divide the top perch of the loop with three wins and two losses for a percentage of .800. Toronto Hookings have won four and lost on many for .800 while Oakville Cats have won two and lost two and the Toronto Dependables have won three and lost three, with all three teams tied with a .500 mark. The Peterborough Peics trail the pack with two won and four lost for a .400 percentage.

• • •

It looks like a real snappy race if the clubs maintain their present calibre of baseball. The Batas have come up with some fine efforts and in their last tilt with the Peics gave the finest performance defensively we have seen this year.

• • •

FEMININE STARS!

Feminine baseball players will be very much in the spotlight when the Negro World Champion Kansas City Monarchs clash with the famous Indianapolis Clowns in Belleville Exhibition Park, Wednesday night, June 16th. . . . The game time will be 8.30, but a clown circus, which is said to be a genuine crowd pleaser will get underway at 8 o'clock.

Toni Stone, the first girl to ever sign a professional baseball contract, will start at second base for the Monarchs. Next season she will be joined by Mamie Johnson, the talented 17-year-old lass who broke baseball's sex barrier when she pitched the Braves to a 4-0 opening game victory.

TRIPLES PAY OFF

A trio of triples paved the way for Cleveland's pair of victories over Philadelphia here on Sunday, then came in the second inning of the first game and Al Rosen's triple helped record the 251st victory of his career. They were hit by Vic Wertz, Jerry and Dave Philley and Larry Doby. Each scored on a sacrifice fly. The third triple was hit by rookie catcher Hal Naragon with the bases full in the fourth inning to provide the margin of victory in the second game.

Minoso surrendered first game batting honors to teammate Jim Rivera, who hit for the circuit cycle, slammed a pair of homers, doubled and scored three runs to extend his hitting streak through 14 games.

Four straight singles by Peewee Reese, Duke Snider, Jackie Robinson and Gil Hodges after two were out in the 10th snapped a 4-4 tie and enabled the Dodgers to sweep their four-game series in Chicago. Robinson, with four hits including a home run, took over the National League batting lead with .388.

Chicago Outfielder Is Tops In Nearly Every Dept.; Indians, Brooks Retain Lead

By Joe Reichler
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

Orestes (Minnie) Minoso, called by Ted Williams "potentially the greatest player in the American League," has thrust himself boldly into the running for the most coveted honor the junior circuit has to offer the most valuable player award.

No player—and that includes Williams, Al Rosen and Yogi Berra—has done more for his club than has Minoso. As the season nears one-third mark, the 30-year-old Chicago White Sox outfielder leads the circuit in runs batted in, runs scored and triples. He's tied for the lead in stolen bases and is the top five in hits, home runs, doubles and batting.

BIG GUN AGAIN

Minoso was Chicago's big gun again Sunday as the Sox swept a doubleheader from Washington 5-3 and 6-4 on two their winning streak to five straight and stay within eight percentage point of first place. He smashed his 10th home run with a man on base to provide the winning margin in the opener. He collected three singles, drove in his fifth and sixth runs and stole his seventh base in the nightcap. For the day, .333.

Cleveland protected its first place margin by sweeping a double-header from the Athletics in Philadelphia 5-4 and 2-1. The victories boosted its National League lead to two games, since Brooklyn split a pair with Chicago 8-4 for its ninth straight.

The Baltimore Orioles held New York to a single hit in the first game to drop the third-place Yankees 2½ games behind. Vic Raschi, veteran Joe Coleman, continuing his fine comeback, beat the Yankees 4-0 for his third win of the year but the Yanks won the second game 5-3 as Alfie Reynolds outpitched Don Larsen.

HOME RUN SPREE

Boston's Red Sox went on a home run binge to defeat Detroit 7-4. Homers by Ted Lepcio, Mitt Cuellar, Harry Agganis and Jackie Jensen accounted for all Boston's runs as Willard Nixon turned in his fourth triumph.

Philadelphia's Phillies outslugged the St. Louis Cardinals 11-8 to tie Milwaukee for third place in the National League as Braves won a game of the runner-up New York Giants. Bobby Morgan's grand slam homer in the fifth broke a tie first.

The Giants and Cincinnati Redlegs exchanged 3-2 decisions. The Giants won the first game on Monte Irvin's 10th homer of the season in the eighth.

Pittsburgh became a grand slam homer by Milwaukee's Eddie Mathews to win the second game 5-4 after Ernie Banks had pitched the Braves to a 4-0 opening game victory.

Locke Likes Canada's Chances

MONTREAL (CP)—Bobby Locke, South African golf star, said Sunday he thinks Canada has a good chance of winning the Hopkins Trophy golf match next week.

As in the last two annual matches between teams of the Professional Golfers Association of Canada and the United States, Locke will again be a member of the Canadian PGA. The American team won both matches since the tournament was organized two years ago.

One reason for Locke's hopeful outlook this time is that his own game is better.

"I am playing my best golf of the season right now," said Locke, who arrived Friday and lost little time getting in a few practice licks. . . .

Montreal High School Wins Dominion Track, Field Title

MONTREAL (CP) — Out-of-town schoolboys starred but High School of Montreal won the senior championship Saturday in the two-day 30th annual Dominion interscholastic track and field meet and provincial competition.

Fifteen records, including two Dominion scholastic marks, fell and one was equalled. Torondo athletes figured in eight.

In winning the Arthur Currie Memorial Cup, emblematic of the Dominion championship, Montreal High piled up 56 points in the senior class while not scoring a single first place. The 17 points by Ottawa Fisher Park boys who trumped in three of the 14 events.

HUGE ENTRY

More than 350 boys representing 41 scouts from Ontario to New Brunswick participated in the 24 events in five different age groups: class 1 for boys under 14; class 2, under 15; class 3, under 16; class 4, under 17, and Dominion class 2 or senior, under 20.

Missing from the Molson Stadium meeting was Bruce Kilpatrick from Simmsing who won the senior Dominion solo title last year for championship Canada Collegiate.

Montreal High won only five events to tie for first with Fisher park, and six by Toronto Lawrence Park, but the local boys were in so many that it also won the class 1, 2 and 3 championships. Toronto Royal York took first class.

The Dominion records were set by Torondo Forest Hill's G. McNair who leaped five feet, 10¼ inches in the high jump to better the previous figure by ¼ inch, and Fred Hall of Fisher Park who ran the senior 120-yard high hurdles in 16.5 seconds, 0.2 seconds better than the old mark.

The remaining records were provincial. Forest Hill's J. Engel tied the record of 11.3 seconds for the class 1, 100-yard dash.

BROKE TWO RECORDS

Standouts were D. Brown of Toronto Vaughan, Toronto Lawrence Park's Brian Cooper and Gardenvale Forest Hill who broke two provincial records apiece besides winning other events.

Competing in class 2, Brown leaped 39 feet, 7¼ inches in the broad jump to beat by breaking the record of 36 feet, 9¾ inches and his distance of 38 feet, 7¼ inches in the broad jump beat the provincial record by 3¾ inches.

Cooper created a record 36 feet, 3¾ inches in the class 4 hop, step and jump, outdistancing the previous mark of 35 feet, 8¾ inches. He shared the spotlight with G. Gardner who set the pole vault record of Cronick of St. Stephen, N.B., in eight feet, 8¾ inches. Gardner cleared nine feet, three inches in the class 1 event.

Gardner started in class 4, chopping 9.3 seconds off the record of 11.2 for 220-yard low hurdles, and cutting 0.2 seconds off the record of 23.2 for the 440-yard dash.

In class 4, C. Cook of Colling wood, Ont., jumped five feet, 8¾ inches in the high jump to beat the previous mark of five feet, 4¼ inches.

Mangrum Takes Western Open

CINCINNATI (AP)—Lloyd Mangrum, 39-year-old professional from Hillside, Ill., won the 31st Western Open golf championship Sunday when he defeated Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N.Y., on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff.

Rudy Horvath of Windsor, Ont. was tied with three others for 290, spot and picked up $52 in prize money. Thirty-two of the 66 entries won prizes. Mangrum earned $2,400, Kroll $1,800 and Robert de Vicenzo of Argentina $1,400 for finishing third.

Patty Berg Wins Triangle Tourney; Marlene Fades to Finish Eleventh

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—Patty Berg of St. Andrews, Ill., won the $7,500 triangle round-robin invitation golf tournament here Sunday with a score of plus 73, 31 more than runner-up Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex.

Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., British amateur champion who was second in the first-three rounds, faded in the last two and finished 11th.

Under the tournament's "plus and minus" scoring system, points are awarded on the number of strokes each contestant is able to pick up at the expense of others in her foursome.

Miss Berg led by 32 points after three rounds in the five-round competition. She shot a 76 on the fourth round and played her best golf in the final round when she registered a two-under-par 72.

TOP FIVE

She won $1,500 for finishing first. Miss Jameson got down to par Sunday but her partners included Miss Jameson (73) and Betty Rawls (78). Miss Stewart ended all even with the plus-minus totals.

Marlene's first-round 71 was the lowest 18-hole score carded during the tournament. Her total medal score of 291 would have tied her for 10th place among the 16 contenders in a conventional tournament.

Canada Finishes Second to Aussies In Golf Tourney

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (Reuters)—Australia carried off the Eisenhower trophy and medals victory in Britain within two weeks by capturing the bicentenary Commonwealth amateur tournament here Saturday.

Canada finished second, drubbing Britain on the final day of the round-robin tournament to drop the Aussies' chief threat into third place.

The Australians, in their final match at the Royal and Ancient club here, overwhelmed South Africa five games to two with two halved. They wound up the tourney with a record of three victories and one halved match against their four Commonwealth rivals—Britain Canada, New Zealand and South Africa.

Australian Doug Bachli, who last week won the British amateur title, retained an unbeaten singles record by defeating Jim Boyd, ex-South African open champion, one hole in Saturday's final round.

CANUCK RECORD

Canada's record was two wins and two losses, followed by Britain with one win, two halved and one loss; South Africa with one win, one halved and two losses and New Zealand with one win and three losses.

Britain, which started on Saturday with one victory and two halves, was Australia's closest challenger but its hopes were smashed when Canada won five games to three with one halved.

Britain had to go to extra time halved after the foursomes but lost five of the six singles.

Thousands Play 'I Beat Hogan' Golf Tourney

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian golfers, the club sharpies and the duffers, took a crack at Ben Hogan during the week-end. Ben was too sick to do anything about it—this week.

They turned out by hundreds from coast to coast in the third annual National Golf Day Saturday. However, rainy weather knocked down attendance as the golfers, supported by local bankcaps on their own courses, played the 18-hole event sponsored by the United States Professional Golfers' Association and Life magazine.

The idea is to beat Ben Hogan, the mighty of the game. Ben is still down with a virus infection but will play next Saturday.

HUGE U.S. TURNOUT

In the U.S., an estimated 125,000 golfers toured the links. Each golfer who enters the competition pays $1. If he beats Hogan's score he gets an "I-Beat-Ben-Hogan" badge. The money goes to the United Service Organization and National Golf Fund.

The small turnout in Canada was caused partly by poor weather and the fact that Hogan did not play. Most courses will accept the $1 and scores any day this week.

In British Columbia, 823 golfers in the Vancouver area registered to tackle Hogan's score. Last year 70 challenged the score of Julius Boros and 88 beat him.

Al Balding, professional at the nine-hole Gleneagles course in West Vancouver, shot a scratch 61. Stan Leonard, pro at Vancouver Marine Drive, shot a 70.

WET AND DUBY

At Edmonton wet weather cut registrations to 120 at four courses. A strong wind, a dust storm and rain reduced Saskatoon's turnout to 313 players, a slight decrease from 1953.

Nearly 150 played at Saskatoon, and a total of 401 at Calgary.

Only a smattering of golfers played in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes. No scores were available. Hogan will tackle it sometime this week.

Boston, Chicago To Sponsor Galt

GALT (CP)—A new local group has taken over the franchise of the Galt Hockey Club, guaranteeing its continuance in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A. circuit.

Jack Patrick, president of the organization, said transfer of the franchise was completed Saturday with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League as sponsors. Boston Bruins will also help in developing the club here.

Baldy Cotton, Boston talent scout said the Bruins will operate a junior training camp here with 40 or 50 hopefuls training for a week separately from the Chicago camp. The Galt club will have its pick of players.

Cotton said the working agreement between Boston and Chicago on a two-year basis, has the blessing of NHL president Clarence Campbell.

Arthur A. White is chairman of the local committee with Arthur Parsons as secretary and William Meyer, treasurer. A coach will be named later.

Mount Kailas in the Himalayas of western Tibet, sacred by Hindu tradition, rises 22,000 feet.

Quebec League Cuts Schedule; Limits Playoffs

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Hockey League decided Sunday to cut its schedule by 6 games during 1954-55 and limit playoffs to four clubs, instead of six. The changes are designed to shorten the season, considered grueling on clubs, players and fans.

The league, at its first meeting since the close of last season, voted for a 60-game schedule, for the seven clubs. Last year each team had 72 regular starts.

George Slater, re-elected president, said the shorter schedule and fewer playoffs would prevent the season running far beyond the limit as last year when the champion Quebec Aces played from October, until losing the Edinburgh Cup series May 13 to Calgary Stampeders.

Slater said the shorter schedule is also designed to be easier on the budgets of fans in smaller centres and should benefit weaker clubs.

SAVES LAYOFFS

The four-team playoff series will save weak teams from layoffs they were forced to endure under the old system while paying heavy salaries to players, he said.

An added reason for curtailing the season was the fact that the Edinburgh series will be played in the east next year.

The season will open Oct. 9 with the same clubs as last year taking part—Quebec, Valleyfield, Ottawa, Montreal, Chicoutimi, Springfield and Sherbrooke. Despite reports at the close of last season that a team from Providence, R.I., would seek admission to the league, no application for a franchise was received.

The league closed the franchises of Shawinigan Falls Cataracts and Boston Olympics, suspended since last season.

INSIDE BASEBALL for Little Leaguers

By MICKEY McCONNELL
Director of the Brooklyn Dodgers Baseball School.

Easy does it! The good hitters make it look easy, and that is one of their secrets.

A story from Johnny Mize's boyhood shows how a simple practice problem was solved and how it helped him become a great hitter. Johnny lived on a farm in Georgia; and he decided to sharpen up his batting eye by batting a rubber ball against the side of the barn. It didn't take him long to discover that when he swung under the ball, he'd hit it over the barn and have to go after it. And when he swung over the ball, it would hit the ground and again he'd have to retrieve it. But when he swung level and hit the ball in the middle, it would rebound off the side of the barn and he would keep swinging. John soon mastered the habit of swinging level and he has never lost it.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

We were rolling along in good shape until a pair of giggly gals came to us. They had been having a good time throwing tricks away in all directions. This was before they reached our table.

Our first deal with them was the spread shown here:

NORTH
♠A 8 4 3
♥J 8 3
♦8 6 5
♣10 9 2

WEST
♠Q 10 9 7
♥Q 4 2

EAST

that all the other tables bid the west and east hands by rule. That is, west opened with two hearts and the first response from east was two no-trump.

This response was signal for denying a sure trick. Therefore, no spade would be there. So, not knowing how many spade tricks might be lost, none of the other tables went to a slam.

The post-mortem argument might include a claim that slam would be safely shown by use of a point count. But this would fall flat if it is considered that east could have club ace instead of spade king.

Despite no reassurance that east has spade ace or king it might be contended that an expert pair should be in slam. Maybe so. This is something that comes more under the head of instinct.

The gals at our table were not expert enough to use conventions and other rule signals. From what I could see they did not bother much more than they had. They could get by on their looks.

Their bids were like this: (gasp) "two hearts" by west, (giggle-giggle) "three hearts" by east, (twitter-gleam-twitter) "I guess I'll try six hearts" by west (giggle-twitter-sigh).. There they were.

She could have made six hearts while sopping blotch and a henna rinse. In fact we let them take all 13 tricks which did not hurt us any more. Because we had a cold bottom anyway.

But what gets me is the remark somebody made after the match. It was: "Duplicate is a game in which luck is eliminated."

Were.

She could have made six hearts herself requested to bring us out there to make up a 4-at table of bridge Friday nite, but of course I'll have to tell her you played bridge last Monday and I wouldn't think of asking you to brake your homework schedule against playing more than once a week, oh dear.

I've stuck out my chin and put my foot in my mouth, and a man can't be any more trapped than that pop said. It's a woman's world, and all the men and children are merely players, he said.

Meaning he would go no matter how he felt about it.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma started to sigh to herself, saying, Oh dear, well, mite as well forget it. After all, we dont live forever, everything is bound to be over sooner or later, she said.

Yes gosh, what's wrong? pop said, and ma said, Oh, what's the difference?

Oh, come on, get it off your chest, pop said. An honest cry is good for the solar plexus, is said, and ma said, Now William, you always keep your trubbles on your own chest. You think I'm not intelligent enuff to understand them. So why should I bother you with mine? she said.

For Pete's sake, if you want an earfull of bizness grief, including leeky renewal options and residual rites in subsidiary clauses, just bend your ear and I'll fill it, pop said, and ma said, Oh jabberwocky, what do I care about that? Do you really want to know what's bothering me? she said.

Start poring, my dear, pop said, and ma said, Well, as long as you really insist on hearing, everybody has heard of the Mr. Van Tuttles gorgeous home in Luxer Hites with its raised balconie and Maud Hews has managed to get

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 8, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Attractive advantages for the sincerely studious, energetic person. Advertising, investments can prosper. Surprise elements may stay advancement awhile, but not for long.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — The only things that will really stop progress this auspicious day are inefficiency and inertia. You have aptitude and go-getterness: use them properly. Bluffing won't help.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Stifle a tendency to act without thought, to jeopardize your future through improper knowledge of pertinent facts. Don't rely on hearsay: do heed children's interests, family's.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Certain influences warn against acting hastily, taking chances with assets, valuables. Heart interests can be upsetting if you follow an easy-come, easy-go attitude or indulge in moodiness.

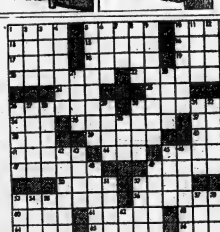
July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Of opportune day for most well-planned and executed affairs, especially those involving finances and business where wise precautions are needed. Guard against misleading figures, impractical schemers.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—A healthy outlook for healthy thoughts, doings. Plan action according to your ability to deliver. And, remember, we need a certain amount of preparation no matter how easy things may seem.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—It may be you against the field today, so go slowly enough to be able to act with prudence. Personal affairs have improved aspects, can bring happiness, contentment if thoughtfully handled.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Stimulating rays for improving your position, future security, investments. Study prospects carefully before acting; get better acquainted with close interests.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—A greatly improved period for advancing work, personal and children's affairs. Concentrate on the important and do not waste time or thought on nonessentials, foolish side issues.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Curb a tendency toward carelessness and you can make exceptional headway now. Watch your interests or someone else may achieve rewards you could have.

January 22 to February 19 (Aquarius)—Clear vision and sincere effort will put over your best ideas and efforts. Be free and above the little annoyances that mean nothing in the final analysis.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—One is always to be commended for enthusiasm, but at times caution is also advisable. A little fun with true friends and loved ones eases tense nerves. Guard investments.

YOU BORN TODAY: Planetary aspects will be in conflict for the next day or two. You have procautions but do not indulge in worry. Thoughtful research helps counteract errors. Keep business, personal and money matters in order; don't make snap judgments. You are usually active, full of ideas. Step with the best ones and follow through consistently. You can do much good when living on the higher plane. June, July and August promise new benefic opportunities.

CAMPBELLFORD Night School Is Approved At Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD — A large representation of the people from both farm and town gathered in the kindergarten room of Campbellford public school on Wednesday night to attend a meeting being held to discuss night school in Campbellford.

Mr. Roy Loucks of the local high school board, was chairman for the evening, representing both rural and urban community. Mr. Charles Weir, representative of the Board of Education in Belleville, explained regulations governing night school and how they were set up—that Department of Education was authorized to pay for four teachers, plus a teacher for basic English language. Also the Department of Education would pay for a principal of night school, providing there was a sustained attendance of 100.

TO PAY FOUR TEACHERS

Mr. Ralph Banbury, representative of the Department of Agriculture, pointed out that the Department of Agriculture would be authorized to pay for four teachers on subjects concerning Home Economics, Leadership Training and Agriculture.

After considerable discussion, a motion was made by Mrs. Austin Tatham, seconded by Mrs. Tatham, that a rural community night school be set up for Campbellford and Seymour. A motion was made by Mrs. Jack Rannie, seconded by Mrs. Murray Watson, that a management committee be formed.

Appointed for the meeting were: Mr. Roy Loucks, Mrs. C. Seyman, Mr. Earle Nelson, Mrs. Will Wallace, Mrs. Joe Smith and Mrs. Campbell. Two vacancies were left to be filled later.

It was moved by Mrs. Frank Garneau that the high school fee be suggested for the use of the high school for night classes. This motion carried.

It was pointed out that the classes meet on Wednesday nights from eight to ten beginning in November. The classes to continue for 15 weeks. Local teachers will be hired if available

The fee for the course is usually $5.

REGISTRATION FORMS

It was suggested that registration forms be taken home by the children, sent through the mail, and registration coupons be inserted in the local paper. Mr. Banbury agreed that the Department of Agriculture would pay for the publicity and registration forms.

From the representation of people from Women's Institutes, Catholic Women's League, and others who attended the meeting, it was seen there would be full classes in dressmaking, commercial and leather craft.

Mr. Weir pointed out that handicrafts, square dancing and specialized farm interest had received excellent support in other communities. The choice of subjects for night school is flexible to meet the special interest in each district.

Mr. Weir expressed his pleasure in seeing that the community is progressive, energetic and ambitious enough to improve education.

Ivory Tower of Scientist Crashed by War, A-Bomb

Just what is the scientific mind? Is it different from the average mortal's? Does the scientist live in an ivory tower, cut off from worldly doings? Many of them once did. But no more. New urgency and political implications have replaced the old feeling of leisurely experimentation.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—The ivory tower of many scientists came crashing down with the war and the blast of the A-bomb.

The picture of the bearded, absent-minded professor was never fair or apt for most scientists. But before the war many led a cloistered life, preoccupied with their work.

Now that has changed into a life with new problems, attitudes and responsibilities.

It was so for Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, now denied access to the growing store of atomic weapons knowledge he did so much to create. But Dr. Oppenheimer, "Oppy" to his friends, was looking beyond the tight ivory Tower walls by the time war came.

Until 1936, he says, he never read newspapers or magazines, was "almost wholly divorced from the contemporary scene in this country."

Then Nazi treatment of Jews and the effects of depression on his students impressed him. "I began to feel the need to participate more fully in the life of the community. Still I had no framework of political conviction or experience to give me perspective in these matters."

OPPY TOLD HIM

Another atom scientist admits: Before the war I never paid any attention to politics. In fact it was Oppy who once told me I was naive politically.

This call to war duty was one reason for a change in many scientists.

Some, once they had made the A-bomb, felt a "sense of sin," and became publicly concerned with the moral, social and political implications of their fearsome invention.

Conscience seems to weigh more heavily upon the scientists whose particular work concerned making the weapon, the bomb, itself, rather than work which contributed to atomic energy which could be used for war or peace.

ANTI-SCIENTIST REACTION

A physicist thoughtfully brought up another aspect of how people may be looking at scientists:

"In wartime, we scientists rule the roost. We have to be done to defend our country. If real 'peace' were established,' I think there would come an unbelievable reaction against scientists. People might feel, 'We escaped destruction by the skin of our teeth, and it was the scientists who got us into it. We don't need or want scientists anymore. They brought us to the brink of destruction.'"

It was scientists, not military men, who saw the possibility of an atom bomb, or atomic energy to run factories or do useful things.

It was a letter to president Roosevelt, signed by one of the most ivory-tower of all scientists, Albert Einstein, which began the atomic project, carried on in the United States with great help from British scientists.

There were some maddening delays at first, although brilliant mathematical calculations showed that a chain reaction was possible. The chain reaction was achieved in December, 1942, in Chicago. Scores of men contributed brilliant steps at great laboratories and plants sprang up and difficult problems were solved.

SEES NEW TOWER.

A famous man in atomic energy spoke of the time lag between discovery and application.

"It's somewhat as though Faraday's experiments with electricity had been followed within a few years by creation of a great electric power industry. Scientists once could argue and discuss freely all their ideas and findings. But what once were academic arguments about facts of nature now are quickly becoming central points of national policy."

"Ivory Tower?" said another scientist. "I think most physicists and scientists read a newspaper a day, spending about half an hour with it. Most read one or more of the weekly news magazines. In all, they probably read as much as the average commuter.

"Scientists may not meet as wide a cross-section of people as the average man does. Maybe the scientist has less understanding of people because of that.

"But, if we're living in an Ivory Tower, the windows at least are wide open."

FINED IN FATALITY

TORONTO (CP) — Ronald Parsons, 23, found guilty Friday of dangerous driving, was fined $200 or 30 days in jail and barred from driving three months. Parsons was charged following an accident Dec. 19 when his car struck and killed Eleanor Nutting, a 51-year-old cripple, and injured her mother, Mrs. Asa Nutting.

Seventy Mile Gale Fans 7-Hour Fire In Winnipeg

Three Big Office Buildings Gutted in $2,000,000 Blaze

WINNIPEG (CP)—Three large office buildings and a dozen business establishments were damaged or destroyed in a fire which engulfed part of downtown Portage avenue in a liquid pattern of flames.

Damage was estimated at possibly in excess of $2,000,000.

Not one store in the block could open this morning, even those that escaped the flames. Police were letting employees through, but nobody else.

The wind helped start the fire and then fed it. The gale's force is believed to have caused a short circuit in an electric sign at the front of the Tribune building.

The first alarm was turned in at approximately 2 a.m. EST—two others followed but for hours there was more fire than firemen and they battled small retail against the fury of the flames.

The miracle in the tumbling of walls, the smoke and the searing heat was the lack of any serious injuries. The only reported hospital casualty was fireman Nick Sullivella, who suffered a broken leg.

Not until seven hours after the fire broke out in the seven-storey Tribune building could firemen claim it as under control.

STORM BAFFLES CITY

From the Tribune building—nothing but a shell and a pile of rubble—the flames boiled in three directions under a gale which hit Winnipeg with gusts of 70 miles an hour.

Westward it spread to two clothing wear shops, a cafe and a billiard and bowling centre. Eastward it jumped Hargrave street to ward off the Hargrave apartment store, another cafe and a finance company office. Northward it spread to the four-storey Henry's building, which housed the camera store, a cafe, the office of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, a furrier and a jeweller.

Destroyed on the main floor of the Tribune building were a musical supplies store, a men's clothing shop and a shoe store.

The Eaton department store on Portage avenue briefly to start a fire in an upper-floor window of the eight-storey T. Eaton department store but firemen were able to stop the flames there.

WINDOWS CRACKED

Windows on that side of Portage avenue—probably Canada's busiest street—were cracked by the intense heat.

Thatcher Differs With His Party Over CNR Hotel

Says Expenditure Is Not Justified

OTTAWA (CP)—Ross Thatcher, the Saskatchewan hardware merchant who occasionally differs with his CCF party, has done it again.

The member for Moose Jaw-Thatcher was criticized by two colleagues in the Commons Monday night for expressing opposition to plans by the Canadian National Railways for a $20,000,000 hotel in Montreal.

Mr. Thatcher, who recently urged a series of government economies, said it is not sound business for a company facing a deficit this year to ask Parliament to authorize a capital outlay of $5,000,000 to start the hotel this year.

NOT PROFITABLE

He said he would be happy if the hotel were built out of CNR profits. But CNR hotel operations had not been profitable in the past.

Ultimately the taxpayer will have to pay for this luxury hotel. . . . I do not think the people in my constituency would be enthusiastic about an expenditure of this kind, nor do I think that the Canadian taxpayer will receive value for his money. . . .

Mr. Thatcher said he was not speaking for his party and added that he realized few members agreed with him.

His views promptly criticized by two CCF colleagues, Clarie Gillis, Cape Breton South, and H. W. Herridge, Kootenay West.

Mr. Gillis said that as members of the Commons committee on railways he examined the project, he and R. R. Knight (CCF—Saskatoon) recommended it to their party.

BETTER TAKE LOOK

"I feel—a little bit hurt when my honorable friend rises in his place behind me and breathes down my neck and tells us that we were not exercising our duty. I am going to be charitable to him and say that he had better take another look. There is a distortion of the fact to say the hotel was a luxury hotel. Only Presidential suites and the Canadian had told the Commons committee that they would like to have hotels for three years with conventions.

"There is no doubt of it paying for itself."

Mr. Herridge said he has confidence in the committee which recommended the hotel as part of the $234,623,685 capital investment program for the 1954-55 fiscal year.

"I have personally every respect for the chairman of the committee, Moose Jaw-Lake Centre (Mr. Thatcher). I have greater confidence in the financial ability of the president of the Canadian National.

HAD LAST WORD

Mr. Thatcher had the last word when the Commons approved the CNR capital budget.

He said the fact that Mr. Gillis and Mr. Herridge support the hotel makes him all the more certain it may be right.

Mr. Thatcher differed with his party colleagues on another item he did not vote on a CCF motion favoring nationalization of chartered banks.

His most publicized difference with CCF policy, however, was in 1951 when he argued against a CCF suggestion for an excess profits tax on Canadian business.

Power Project O.K. Received, Now Planning Seaway Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government, welcoming a legal clearance in the United States for a start on the St. Lawrence hydro-seaway project, now is preparing to open talks with the U.S. on joint construction of the seaway's navigation works.

Officials said these are expected to begin soon, in the wake of Monday's U.S. Supreme Court decision removing the last legal barrier to the $600,000,000 hydro phase of the development.

That verdict, refusal to act on a challenge by New York state's right to join with Ontario in the hydro job, was acclaimed by Transport Minister Chevrier, in charge of the Canadian government's part of the undertaking.

The last obstacle in the way of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway now has been removed, he said in an interview.

This means that Ontario and the state of New York now are constituted as entities to build the power works that Canada will have to follow soon thereafter with navigation facilities.

"All of us are relieved and pleased at the court's decision."

Next move by the federal government, it was understood, will be the signing of a "St. Lawrence seaway authority" to handle the construction and operation of the navigation facilities in conjunction with a similar agency to be named by the U.S. administration.

Apart from the location of the 27-foot canals, points to be ironed out include the question of tolls, division of costs and a timetable for the construction of the shipping facilities. These will be somewhat slower than the hydro works.

Hope to Be Selling Power From Project in Four Years

NEW YORK (CP)—Power authorities of New York state and Ontario say they hope to be selling electricity from the St. Lawrence power project in four years.

Officials of the power authority of New York and the hydro-electric power commission of Ontario agreed on a construction schedule Monday a few hours after the last legal barrier to the $600,000,000 project had been removed by the United States Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court action also removed the last legal obstacle to joint participation by the U.S. and Canada in the St. Lawrence seaway.

Robert Moses, chairman of the New York group, and Chairman Robert Saunders of the Ontario commission said in a statement following the action of the U.S. Court they hope actual construction on the power project can start "in a very few months."

"It is anticipated that construction of the conference will begin early this summer," the statement said.

In a telephone interview from New York with the Toronto Globe and Mail, Saunders said the power project will provide jobs for 10,000 Canadians.

The last obstacle to the controversial development was cleared when the Supreme Court in Washington refused to act on an appeal contesting the right of New York state to join with Ontario in building the project.

The appeal was launched by the Land Development and Power Protective Association, an organization of property owners along the Niagara River in New York State, which asked the country's highest tribunal to reverse a lower court's decision.

The association has 15 days in which to file a request for reconsideration of the decision, but such request was rarely granted and court aides expressed doubt that any of the justices would issue a stay of mandate.

While the seaway job was not directly involved Monday's decision, it has been regarded as practically part of the power project it built. President Eisenhower signed the seaway bill May 13 authorizing the U.S. to join with Canada in constructing a 27-foot channel by-passing the shoal area of mandate.

Constitutional Rights Suspended In Guatemala

GUATEMALA (AP) — Guatemala's Communist-backed government today ordered a 30-day suspension of constitutional guarantees.

The action, taken at an extraordinary session of President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman's cabinet, followed three weeks of rising tension between the government and factions to delivery of a large shipment of arms from Czechoslovakia to this Central American country.

Among the civil rights suspended was the constitutional article establishing freedom of expression and the press.

Would Extend Pensions For Veterans' Widows

OTTAWA (CP)—The veterans affairs committee Monday night recommended that widows of veterans of the First World War be entitled to pensions providing the marriage took place before May 1, 1954.

The recommendation was one of nine approved by the committee on the completed study of amendments to the Pension Act. The other recommendations urged that the pensions of veterans of the First World War are not entitled to pension on the death of their husbands if the marriage took place after April 1, 1954.

The section is included in the act to prevent deathbed marriages between older veterans and young women with mercenary motives.

Smash Red Bases Just Seven Miles East of Hanoi

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI (AP) — The French claimed "10 per cent" of the enemy had been combined air and ground attack on two Vietminh airfield bases close to Hanoi.

The French high command said its pilots, flying fighter-bombers and fighters, ripped apart the two straw-thatched, mud-caked villages near Senho, just seven miles from the Communist railway and highway.

French tanks and infantry drove into both centres after the heavy bombing, routing the rebels from their last places of underground and killing 110.

A high command spokesman said planes and armored and infantry forces now are trying to clear all Vietminh bases close to Hanoi. Having cleaned up three of them, they now are shelling and blasting the rebels north and west of the city.

Northeast Red river delta action, the French said Viet Nam troops have killed 30 Vietminh.

Paris Paul Ely arrived in Saigon today to take over the double-barrelled job of French military chief in this war-torn land.

OBSERVATORY SACKED

DURBAN, South Africa (AP)—Valuable observatory instruments were smashed at Durban's observatory Monday by vandals who scrawled hammer-and-sickle and swastika signs in chalk on the roof. Instruments were ripped from their cases in the observatory dome and flung on to a concrete floor 15 feet below. The instruments included eyepieces of the big telescope.

Wheat Prices Suffer Biggest Postwar Cut

Slashed 10½ cts. Bus. By Canadian Board

OTTAWA (CP)—The price of Canadian wheat has suffered its deepest cut since the Second World War, but Trade Minister Howe still is optimistic over the sale of it.

The Canadian wheat board announced Monday in Winnipeg a slash in wheat prices of 10¼ cents a bushel, biggest in post-war years, shortly after Mr. Howe told the Commons that "in spite of recent reductions" the United States cut its—wheat price by 19 cents a bushel last Friday.

When Mr. Howe told John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) that he was as optimistic as ever about Canadian wheat sales, Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre) caustically interjected:

"You are going to shoot all you have left."

Officials estimated that the extra weight of a cent in the Canadian cut represents differences in Canadian and American funds.

SECOND PRICE CUT

The cut, affecting the three top wheat grades, was the second in the last five months. It followed a reduction of 6¢ at the Lakehead to $1.72½ a bushel for No. 1 Northern, the basic wheat grade.

Canadian officials met with Eisenhower in Washington last week and though Mr. Howe declined to disclose details of the talks, he said wheat sales were discussed. The Canadian government apparently made certain "representations" to the U.S. that were rejected.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who told reporters the price drop is a blow to the western farmer, blamed it largely on Canada's stubborn refusal to agree to a floor price and a ceiling of $2 a bushel instead of $2.05 under the International Wheat Agreement.

He hoped this would not lead to a recurrence of the depression of the 1930s when Canada also lost wheat markets, but "the circumstances are no similar for anything but the engendering of fear."

Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) said he believed Canada started a price war with the U.S. when it cut the wheat price by seven cents a bushel at the Lakehead and followed with another by the U.S. The U.S. next day made a similar cut.

U.S. CONCERNED

Social Credit leader Low said the government should maintain the price to the farmer by the use of subsidies.

(Under the U.S. system, the 10-cent reduction is achieved by increasing the government's shipping subsidy, which farmers receive in full instead of any Canadian price drop.)

American officials are reported to be concerned about the fact Canada has been shipping more wheat, bushel for bushel, to Britain even though the U.S. has given some away through various foreign-aid deals.

Canadian wheat recently, however, has moved very slowly. In May new IWA sales totalled about 15 million bushels, but exports by Canada available for export and carry-over were about 100,000,000 bushels, down from 605,000,000 a year before. Another $22,000,000 was lost in cancellations.

up from $20,000,000.

Father and Son Are in Hospital After Auto Crash

Mrs. Carman Clapp, Frances Die As Family Car Hits Tree

A mother of nine children and her daughter were killed and the father and son seriously injured at midnight Monday when their family car swerved off No. 14 Highway and crashed into a tree near Bonarlaw, 22 miles north of here.

Killed were: Mrs. Virginia Clapp, 38, and her daughter Frances, 14. Carmen Clapp, 45, and Wellman Clapp, 16, both of Belleville General Hospital with severe lacerations and other injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. Clapp lived at Wellman's Corners, two miles south of where the accident occurred. Police said the family was driving from Marmora to Madoc when their car swerved off the highway, hurtled down a bank and left side of the highway, bounced off one tree and hit another.

The bodies of Mrs. Clapp and her daughter were thrown from the car and were found across the highway from the wrecked car.

COMES ON WRECKED CAR

A Marmora man returning home from a livestock auction at Hoard's Station was first to come on the wrecked auto piled against the tree at the side of the road. Several cars at the same time Mr. and Mrs. George Empey, also of Marmora, came on the scene.

Charles Clapp was semi-conscious and was able to give the information to the first persons on the scene and told them where to call to notify relatives. Police and other assistance was phoned from the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Barlow, a short distance south of the scene of the accident.

The injured were taken by Bush's ambulance to hospital in Belleville, where about 40 stitches were required to close the lacerations in Mr. Clapp's face and scalp. More than 20 stitches were required to close the cuts the injured were attended by Dr. S. Cronk, while first aid at the scene was given by Dr. R. C. Shatford, of Marmora.

A former Thurlow township girl, Mrs. Clapp was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grills of Belleville. Two of their sons, Charles and Norman made their home with their parents and aunts, while they worked in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Clapp had moved to Wellman's Corners from Bellefonte about two years ago.

LEFT EARLY IN EVENING

Relatives learned later from the younger Clapp children that the parents and the eldest son and daughter had left home for Marmora about 7:30 Monday evening. It was at that time that the car left the highway and crashed into the tree, killing Mrs. Clapp and daughter.

Although it was known that two had been killed in the accident, the identity of the dead persons was not known to relatives. Some of the victims arrived at the funeral home. It was then that Mrs. Harry Grills identified the body of her daughter and granddaughter.

"I'll never smile again," Mrs. Grills said as she identified the bodies.

Provincial Police Corporal Ernie Hatch investigated the accident.

TORONTO (CP)—The $600,000,000 St. Lawrence River power project will make work for a Canadian labor force of 10,000 — Hydro Chairman Robert Saunders said today.

"We are ready to proceed as industrial construction can start in a very few months," Mr. Saunders said.

He made the comment after the United States Supreme Court gave New York state the go-ahead to join Ontario in the venture by refusing to act on an appeal contesting New York's right to participate in the international project.

Laniel Regime May Be Ousted Over Indo-China

By HARVEY HUDSON.

PARIS (AP)—Premier Laniel's foes returned today to the National Assembly back on the Indo-China policy amid signs that the shaky French government may soon be forced out of office.

The Indo-China debate, which began hesitantly last week with the usual assaults from the Socialists and Communists, was expected to warm up with members of parties in Laniel's own majority coalition opening fire on his conduct of the war.

Debate on the explosive issue is not expected to reach the crucial stage until Wednesday, Foreign Minister Bidault—on whom Laniel apparently is counting to turn the tide in his favor—will return from the Geneva conference to speak then.

Bidault waited over in Geneva to hear Foreign Minister Molotov's Russian bloc speech to the Indo-China conference today.

'Joe Must Go Club' Has Flopped In Its Effort to Recall McCarthy

SAUK CITY, Wis. (AP) — The "Joe Must Go Club's movement to recall Senator Joseph . McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) failed Monday and the organization quickly announced it was disbanding.

Leroy Gore, Sauk City weekly newspaper editor, who started the drive to recall McCarthy from the Senate, said other leaders concurred in his decision their drive had failed, claimed that "it proved that anti-McCarthy sentiment would see him defeated in an election today."

McCarthy supporters, on the other hand, pointed to the fact that the Joe Must Go Club, by its own admission, obtained only 335,000 signatures on petitions for a recall election.

This figure, they said, is less than half of the number of voters who cast ballots against McCarthy when he was elected to the Senate in 1952.

Sen. McCarthy defeated Thomas E. Fairchild, a Democrat, in 1952 by a vote of 870,444 to 731,402.

Wisconsin's senior senator took no public notice of the recall movement.

A.E.C. Member Suggests U.S. Stage H-Bomb Demonstration for Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commissioner Thomas E. Murray of the United States Atomic Energy Commission suggested today that the U. S. stage a special demonstration of a 1,254-model hydrogen bomb for representatives of all nations, including Russia.

Murray, one of five members of the AEC, said that might help to avert war with weapons capable of driving civilization backward "to the primeval jungles."

"I think the United States might well unveil the new face of war—war's new look in this atomic age," he said in an address prepared for a commencement exercises at the Catholic University of America.

"If my display were made, I think the peoples of the world and their leaders would cry out with a great voice:

"We reject war! We choose peace! We refuse methods of violence as the way out of our conflicts! We choose the methods of reason, of truth, of justice, of love, of heaven! We choose the methods of reason, not of wreckage. Let us have heavens fall, let justice be done."

Molotov Plans New Bid to Get World Attention

By MAX HABERKORN.

GENEVA (AP) — Russia's Foreign Minister Molotov planned to launch a new bid for world attention today with a policy statement which could determine the fate of Indo-China sessions of the Geneva Far East conference.

He was scheduled to speak at a closed-door — but semi-public session of the Indo-China parley this afternoon. The text of his speech was expected to be released for publication shortly after he finished delivering it.

Though there was no advance word on what the Russian would say, Western diplomats generally believed he would either: (1) Make new proposals to make it difficult for them to break off the conference, or (2) blast the West for refusing to accept Communist proposals as the basis for a cease-fire in Indo-China.

The accident, Coroner Dr. R. S. Beatty, of Madoc, attended at the scene and ordered an inquest. Date for the inquest will be heard in Belleville today and adjourned to a later date.

But the Belleville hospital had a banner across the street a short time ago," objected one alderman.

He was told that a city-owned organization did not come under the by-law.

Patching Program Speed-Up Urged

A speed-up in the pavement patching program in the city was asked last night by Mayor Both.

The mayor asked why the pavement on Front street has not been patched up "the way it should be", and said it was time all city streets were fixed up.

Alderman D. Moxam, speaking for the public works committee observed that patching equipment was now being used on the West Hill and also in the Victoria and Bleecker Avenue districts.

Will Not Hire New Engineer As Keith Cowan Quits Post

The resignation of Assistant City Engineer Keith Cowan, and a recommendation directing that the vacancy not be filled at the present time, were the result of city discussion in city council Monday night.

When the recommendation was tabled it at first appeared, it might go through without comment but at the last moment Alderman Argue asked why the filling of the vacancy was not to be filled.

"When I first came into council I was told that our engineering department was understaffed. Is it that the work of the department has now diminished or did we not need the engineer in the first place," he said.

"That is a good question" observed Alderman Keegan, chairman of the city planning committee. He said he was not satisfied with the matter first being dropped.

He observed that with possible annexation staring the city in the face a great deal of assistance would be needed in the engineering department.

MUST DECIDE POLICY

Alderman Tice declared that council must first decide and declare itself on an annexation policy. "Then we will know what we use the planning committee going ahead and planning annexation if the engineering department was not able to handle the work. We may need assistance of a consulting engineer might be required.

He noted the planning committee had the work of annexation well in hand. He declared that council had to make up its mind whether or not annexation was going to be the case or they have the engineering help to carry it out.

He noted there has been a tremendous building boom and the engineering department and this was just now beginning to be caught up. He said the resignation caused by Mr. Cowan's resignation he declared the city was going "backwards."

With all the work ahead two engineers were needed, he said.

Alderman Temple observed a new engineer would not be hired right away in any event and suggested the matter be left over for a few weeks. Alderman Moxam, however, noted that after the recommendation was withdrawn at the request of property committee completed the sale, but the recommendation was withdrawn at the request of property committee chairman Alderman C. D. Tice.

"I have learned the property may be required as a tailrace for the proposed College street dam and there would be no sense selling the property and having to buy it back at a greater price," he said.

Mayor Both wanted to know where the proposed dam was to be built. He was told the site of the new dam would undoubtedly be opposite the mouth of North James street, now being opened by Thurlow township.

Alderman Keegan said the department of planning and engineering had built a model of the dam but this had proven not satisfactory and another one was being built. Construction of the dam according to the latest model would require the old quarry as a tailrace.

After a brief discussion the matter was referred to the property committee.

Four City Masons Inducted Into Order of Shrine

Nearly 80 Masons from various parts of Ontario were inducted into the Ancient Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine at the opening ceremonial and initiation of Ramses Temple held at the Royal York Hotel.

Four of these were from Belleville and included Charles Wilson McIlraith, David Alexander Pierson, Ross Edward Purchase and Harold M. Youngbusband.

The unique ceremony, in which Shrine bands, chanters and pedals in colorful costumes participated, was attended by hundreds of Shriners from all parts of Ontario.

During the day the Shriners paraded to the Hospital for Sick Children where a presentation of a substantial cheque was made by Illustrious Potentate Fred Midgley on behalf of Ramsses Temple to J. Grant Glassco, the chairman of the hospital's Board of Governors. This gift, which represents a portion of funds from the annual Shrine Charity Circus held in Toronto last Fall, brought to more than $75,000 the total Shrine contribution to this one institution of mercy.

May Need Quarry If Dam Built, So Sale Delayed

Possibility of the old College street quarry being required in connection with the proposed College street ice control dam has resulted in city council holding up an offer to purchase the property.

Harold W. Wilkinson submitted an offer of $350 for the old quarry and a recommendation was tabled by the property committee to complete the sale, but the recommendation was withdrawn at the request of property committee chairman Alderman C. D. Tice.

"I have learned the property may be required as a tailrace for the proposed College street dam and there would be no sense selling the property and having to buy it back at a greater price," he said.

Mayor Both wanted to know where the proposed dam was to be built. He was told the site of the new dam would undoubtedly be opposite the mouth of North James street, now being opened by Thurlow township.

Alderman Keegan said the department of planning and engineering had built a model of the dam but this had proven not satisfactory and another one was being built. Construction of the dam according to the latest model would require the old quarry as a tailrace.

After a brief discussion the matter was referred to the property committee.

Film and Talk On Wallpaper Given to Club

Like everything else, when the wife gets her teeth into the idea that the happy home could do with some interior decorating, there isn't a newspaper published big enough for hubby to hide behind.

"George," she tells you, "I think we need some new wallpaper."

How George, who's been following the leagues so long, anything outside of black and white knocks him color-blind, the wall coverings probably do not cost him a thought.

But after all the wife does the cooking (sometimes she even admits it) so with a happy grunt George swaps his week-end of double-headers for a paper hanging spree and goes out to buy new wallpaper.

However, there's a little more to this kind of purchase than a set of rolls with a suspiciously friendly salesman.

HINTS GIVEN

A few hints thrown out on the subject in a film shown at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club, yesterday by Miss Bettie Slight, color stylist at the Canadian Wallpaper Manufacturers Limited, might be helpful to this end.

Three of the important things to look for in interior decorating are (1) color; (2) design and (3) style.

In other words, George, you've got to make your wallpaper blend with the furnishings and the particular type of room to be decorated.

(If your furniture isn't up to much, the cause of art you'd better reverse the process.)

If your rating in matters artistic is not high, it would be well and these qualifications to good taste. Otherwise, you might just bring a piece of fabric or the general color scheme in the room to the salesman and ask him to match.

The new designs of wallpaper are multifold. Its versatile designs can change the architectural features of the room-making it seem small or large, high-Gillespie of the company, according to your tastes.

It also covers up those holes in the masonry where you tried to hang pictures.

One more thing. When buying wallpaper make sure it's of the right weight. This provides against every stain marring the general effect, from cooking grease and blood spilt in family rows to the stains left by the eldest grandchild uncle who always overshoots the spittoon.

At yesterday's meeting Miss Blight was introduced by Phil Morrall and thanked by Orland Pinkston. The meeting was

Keegan Protests Planning Group Not Consulted

Commencement of new housing subdivisions in the city without first consulting with the planning committee was the main contention from Alderman Arthur Keegan, when speaking on the matter, at last night's meeting of council.

Elmer Woods, local builder, had addressed council a week ago on public works department to expedite the erection of a new road to open the Emily street extension, noting that lack of a roadway was holding up construction of houses.

"There are nine lots in the area ready to build, houses and roads have been approved but we cannot go ahead until there is a roadway," he said.

He noted that mortgage loans had already been approved and that contracts called for construction to be underway by a certain date. Delay was holding up by lack of a roadway.

Alderman D. Moxam, speaking for the public works committee, said the delay was because efforts were being made to have the road straightened and that a survey would be made to acquire the necessary property.

Mr. Woods said he had already had the land owners in the area object strongly to paying for assessment.

Alderman Keegan said he was greatly surprised to learn of the new housing sub-division. "I knew absolutely nothing about this," he declared. "It is the duty of the town planning committee and it is not proper that such projects should be approved before coming to the planning committee."

Nearly Drowns As Auto Upsets

TILBURY, Ont. (CP) — Pinned inside his overturned car, Frederick Sullivan, 25, Tilbury, narrowly escaped death from drowning early today by breathing into a pocket of air space next to the floorboards of his car.

His cries for help brought rescuers nearly 10 minutes after the accident.

Jacob's foot was jammed between the clutch and brake pedals and he couldn't extricate himself from the car which was upside down and lying in about two feet of water. He told police he lost control of the car when it hit loose gravel on the old section of Tecumseh road.

Protests Denial Of Right To Address Council

An explanation as to why city council should refuse to hear a taxpayer who asks the right to address council was demanded Monday morning by local restaurant operator George DeVuyst.

Two weeks ago Mr. Devuyst asked the right to address councillors late in the council session but was denied this privilege when councillors voted not to return to the second order of business to hear delegations. Instead council was adjourned.

"May I ask as a taxpayer and a citizen, why we should be refused our right to address council," Mr. DeVuyst said last night as he returned to council for an explanation. "Under what legal procedure have you refused to refuse a taxpayer."

Mr. DeVuyst complained that citizens have the opportunity to address council only twice a month and that delegations are denied and noted that all city business was now transacted at committee meetings.

Mayor Both noted that the meeting two weeks ago had to be adjourned meeting to complete the business of the previous council meeting.

Alderman Argue is not here now but he will be here in time to register and get his vote," was the parting shot by Mr. DeVuyst.

Is No Decision On Sale of Lots In Parkwood

City councillors are still discussing the sale of the remaining lots in the Parkwood Heights district.

Within the past two weeks two offers of purchase for several lots in the Parkwood area have been received by the city building committee. One was from Milton and J. Salt, for 12 regular lots, and the other was from Grant Brown, real estate agent, for 11 lots in the area and at a slightly higher price.

Alderman Tice noted the offer of Milton and J. Salt had been received first and he asked council to decide which purchaser they would prefer to negotiate with. There was a prolonged discussion and the matter was ultimately referred to the property committee for a recommendation.

Mayor Both declared that the highest offer should be accepted, stating that the city could not afford it if it had been the custom to sell lots in the area at a certain price.

To this Alderman Temple asked why councillors, contractors, tradesmen, or whether they had some sense of responsibility.

Alderman Counztyman observed that the lots in question had been taken over for taxes for taxes and had been offered for $1250 per lot, which would have been making a profit as all local improvements were to be paid by the purchaser, as is the case of the debentures.

Alderman Argue noted that lot prices in the city had advanced greatly during the past few years and in this connection he observed that council had not seen fit to change the price of lots.

"We shouldn't perpetuate a mistake in the past," declared the Alderman Safe, "the lots should be advertised for sale to the highest bidder."

Alderman Bradford said council has always been conservative. He said the idea of previous councils had been to get the lots off the tax rolls and to encourage people to acquire a cheap lot. He noted that the sale of lots in parcels had not been anticipated.

"Are these purchasers speculating or are they intending to build?" asked Alderman Argue.

Alderman Bradford declared he was ready to start building immediately.

Here council voted to refer the offers back to the property committee for recommendation.

Children's Aid Seeks Increase

The Children's Aid Society will ask for increased maintenance costs to be paid by municipalities within Hastings county. Yesterday at city council a letter from Magistrate T. L. Wills was read setting June 28th as the date for a hearing on the request. Alderman Bradford as chairman of welfare and the city clerk comptroller were authorized to attend.

Clause in Tender Forms Causes Lengthy Discussion in Council

Whether or not a member of city council who is a shareholder could in a limited company should be permitted to do business with the city was the question which will probably be decided by a special committee, who will make recommendation at the future city policy.

The matter came up for lengthy discussion by council members last night following it being noted that tender forms issued by the public works department indicated limited companies whose shareholders included city officials could not do business with the corporation.

The clause had been inserted in tender forms despite the fact municipal regulations allow council members coming under this category to submit tenders.

HELD UP TENDER OPENING

The particular clause has held up opening of tenders for the concrete curbs and sidewalks until after when it was noted that Jack Both Ltd., a company owned by Belleville contractor, Mayor Both, entered into the construction work.

City Solicitor H. A. Pringle said it was all a matter of policy and that in his opinion there was nothing illegal in a limited company entering into a contract with a municipality where individual shareholders was included a member of council.

DISCUSSION INVOLVED

Alderman Duffy declared the whole matter was one which involved more than it actually was. He felt that council must take a firm stand and see that the clause was included when specifications were drawn up. Otherwise, he declared, anything then council had no alternative but to follow.

Alderman Temple introduced a recommendation, ruling that no city official should have an interest on city business if he owns more than one-third of the shares in a limited company.

Two amendments to the recommendation were then moved, one by Alderman Duffy calling for the tenders for the curbs and sidewalks to be tabled for two weeks and a committee to be struck, and the other amendment was from Alderman Tice calling for tenders to be opened.

Alderman Tice noted that in the past such tenders had been accepted.

If council feels it wants to change the policy from here on in it is quite okay, but we should not change it after tenders are in," he said.

Alderman Argue agreed that if such a policy was adopted it should not be retroactive. It seems ridiculous that a man can ride beyond a corporate veil and others be denied," he said.

THE QUESTION

Alderman Thomas wanted to know if the clause was included in city officials who were members of limited companies had been asked to sign tender forms. He was told that the clause had been in all tenders recommended by one of the city's engineers and that it was included in some way or other for three years.

Alderman Keegan said that he "ruled out" any business "in which there was a profit motive, where contractors were creating something. It should not apply to agents who sell manufactured products to the city," he said.

"That would certainly be discrimination to say that a man could deal with the city as an agent and not otherwise," observed Mayor Both. "After all labor would be involved in the case of an agent and any contract is only labor and materials."

FAIR FOR ALL

He said it was "ridiculous" that a shareholder of a limited company cannot tender on city business if one of its members was a city official. "If it's fair for one it is fair for all," he said.

Alderman Duffy wanted to know if the question of supervision of contracts by any city officials had been entered into the matter.

To this Mayor Both declared that if a city official might not want to carry out his duties if a contract were being fulfilled by another city official, then he would be the one to call it off.

Alderman Safe declared there should be no special rules for special conditions and agreed that council should set some policy for the future. The question in his opinion that a member of city council could not "morally" accept business from the city.

DISCUSSION INVOLVED

Alderman Duffy declared the whole matter was one which involved more than it actually was. He felt that council must take a firm stand and see that the clause was included when specifications were drawn up. Otherwise, he declared, anything then council had no alternative but to follow.

AMENDMENT CARRIED

The amendment to open the tenders was carried by a 7-5 vote. Approving were Alderman Argue, Clarke, Hyde, Freeman, Moxam, Safe and Tice, with Aldermen Bradford, Countryman, Duffy, Temple and Thomas opposed with Mayor Both refrained from voting.

The amendment calling for 8 committee to be formed to look into the matter of policy was carried unanimously. No committee has been named.

Tenders for construction of the street curbs and sidewalks were then opened, tenders being submitted by The Tatham Company, Hugh Murray, Ltd., Geo. Cowle and A. Crull.

The tender for construction of the curbs was submitted by Hugh Murray at $10,740 and for the curbs and sidewalks from The Tatham Company at $12,000.50.

Mayor Both moved that the lowest tender be accepted and the matter will be passed on for checking by the city engineering department.

Talented Cast Gives Magnificent Performance in 'Julius Caesar'

By BOYD UPPER

"Julius Caesar", William Shakespeare's drama of the assassination of a dictator is probably the best gangster play ever penned.

MGM's star-studded version currently showing at the Capitol Theatre, is a firmly-paced, powerful and accurate rendition of the original Shakespeare.

The story is that of the assassination of Julius Caesar by group of Rome's "noblest men" and the consequent civil strife arising from the fall of an empire's strong man.

The play opens with Caesar's return in triumph to Rome after defeating Pompey in 46 B.C. to the hysterical acclaim of the Roman populace. Everyone is not equally enchanted, however, and several men, professing to love the cause of peace for an absolute dictator, band together to do him in.

The brains behind the plot, and the chief architect of Caesar's downfall is Cassius of the "lean and hungry look". Brutus, one of Rome's most respected leaders, is cozzened by Cassius to put a good face on the murder for the Roman populace and to prevent reprisals on the plotters.

Caesar, despite the warnings of a soothsayer and the pleadings of his wife, does not "beware the ides of March" and is stabbed to death in the senate.

Brutus subsequently quiets the Roman people with the explanation that Caesar's ambition was dangerous to the common good and that he took part in the murder "Not because I loved Caesar less, but Rome more". Caesar was dead. He almost gets away with it.

The rest of the play is the clever, crisp double-crosses ever engendered, influences the people with words and the play's climax, a staccato classification of his killers as "honorable men".

Brutus is played by Edmund Gwenn, a four-time Academy Award winner, could very easily win another for his magnificent presentation and for proving, after several long, lean years, that there is no reason Hollywood cannot produce good Shakespeare.

A newsreel and an MGM Symphony Orchestra rendition of "Capriceo Italien" round out the Capitol's program.

Clothes-Line Is Road Allowance Is Approved

A road allowance extending 1275 feet along the north boundary of the Northern Electric property was approved by city council last night.

The Northern Electric Company petitioned for the privilege as made for the road allowance although it was pointed out that a request was being made for the road at this time. The road would be required when the 10th ward reclaim limits of the property.

Mayor Both noted the property from which the road allowance would be taken was owned by Lorne Richmond and was willing to donate the required land. He observed it was customary for owners to donate land for road allowances when they planned sub-divisions.

House Erected On Small Lot Draws Inquiry

Construction of a dwelling unit on a small lot which will result in a building lot not meeting the minimum requirement of 4,000 square feet in area, has drawn an inquiry from a local resident, who has asked council to look into the matter.

It was pointed out that a new dwelling was being built on a Bertram Blvd. lot which contains only 2,700 square feet. Under the by-law requirements for a lot an area of 4,000 square feet is required.

The construction of the house on the smaller lot is apparently without permission.

Communications from both the city building inspector and a newspaper reporter have called attention to the fact that the lot in question had been divided into two lots a few years prior to the passing of the by-law. Prior to the by-law being finalized a house could be built on a lot smaller than the 4,000 feet now required.

"It was permissible at the time," observed Alderman Keegan, chairman of the planning committee. "That particular clause allowing construction of a house on lots of with less than 4,000 feet was one of three which were cut when the by-law was finalized."

Just to be on the safe side, however, council referred the matter to the city solicitor.

Quick-Thinking Probably Saved Life of Child

The presence of mind and quick thinking of a gasoline worker on the Hotel Quinte probably saved the life of bricycle-riding youngster on Bridge street Monday morning.

The painter, Arthur Duby, was on a ladder working when he heard a child screaming. Down the sidewalk of Bridge St. came the tricycle out of control; headed for Pinnacle - Bridge Streets intersection.

Duby hurried down the ladder and managed to stop the runaway "trike" before it raced into the heavy traffic at the intersection.

His quick action, Police Constable William Evans said, probably saved the three-year-old child from serious injury—or worse.

Council Approves One Resolution, Rejects Another

A city of Windsor resolution asking on the provincial and federal government to inaugurate a program of public works to relieve the current unemployment situation was the only resolution of local city councillors last night.

Alderman Duffy declared that although there was considerable unemployment there was no emergency at present.

"The only people out of work are those who don't want to work," he said.

"I disagree," replied Alderman Tice, declaring that council was unemployment in Belleville and area last March reached 1,800 and there are still over 600 out of work."

It is this Alderman Duffy replied the normal unemployment in Belleville was around 400 persons.

Alderman Tice said he is St. Thomas resolution opposed to a 48 hour week in the manufacturing factory for firemen.

"I very much object to a 48 week for firemen' would put Belleville, with all other cities of Belleville's size, in a very bad position."

Council concurred in the resolution without further comment.

Madoc Child ,3, Struck by Auto

MADOC (Special) — Dale Foley, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Foley, 184 Madoc, is under observation in Belleville General Hospital today following an accident on Madoc's main street last night when she was struck by an automobile.

The girl was crossing to the west side of the street and darted in front of her parents when she was hit by a car driven by Jerry Kellar.

Since she didn't appear to have sustained any injuries the parents took her home. Later she showing concussion they took her into Belleville.

She received an X-ray examination at the hospital. Dr. Bruce Cronk decided to hold her for observation.

THE FIRST STONE

Recently a poll among Ontario grocers indicated they favored a change in legislation which would permit them to sell beer and wine.

Rev. Peter Gordon White of Toronto, addressing the Toronto Conference of the United Church, was extremely critical of this attitude.

"I say to them from this pulpit, Mr. Grocer, don't ever sneer again at a streetwalker. She's in the same business of making money," he declared.

The Kingston Whig-Standard takes issue with Mr. White. The grocers of Ontario are morally and legally entitled to vote in favor of the sale of beer and wine in their stores and would be morally and legally entitled to sell these beverages, if legislation approving sale were enacted, it says.

"In effect," it continues, "Rev. Mr. White has labelled the grocers who voted for sale of the beverages 'immoral' by intimating that they are to be classed with practitioners of an immoral and illegal profession."

It is perhaps unfortunate that the Whig-Standard injected the question of legality. In some countries the profession of the streetwalker is as legal as that of the bartender, but few would suggest that because both actions enjoyed the same status of legality they should also rank as equally moral.

Mr. White, as the Whig-Standard observes, appears to believe that the sale of alcoholic beverages is immoral. Some will agree with this view, but even they would surely admit that there are degrees of immorality. Most of us would consider a grocer's act in selling beer less reprehensible than prostitution. And many of us are acutely aware of the fact that not only the streetwalker prostitutes herself. Only the very courageous or the very stupid consistently avoid selling themselves for gold, and what reader have we who has not prostituted, if not the mind a lesser sin than the prostitution of the body? The grocers of Ontario, if they have no greater sin on their souls than the desire to share in the profit in selling beer and wine, should be able to sleep easily of nights.

PERTINENT QUESTION

Recently Nikolai Khokhlov, Russian secret police agent sent on a murder mission to Western Germany, sought asylum.

His wife, her young son and her sister, who remained in Moscow, have now disappeared from their flat.

Khokhlov had declared that it was his "wonderful wife" who persuaded him not to carry out his mission of murder.

The Montreal Gazette, observing that it is presumed that his wife is "being interrogated" in the manner for which the NKVD is infamous" raises a pertinent point.

Why, it asks, did Khokhlov involve his wife in his decision, "thereby condemning her to certain imprisonment, possibly to death?"

Why, indeed?

The story of the "wonderful wife" who turned a secret police agent from his evil ways sounds very pretty reading. But why should a man who loved his wife praise her moral integrity at the price of making certain that arrest which otherwise might merely have been probable?

If this was the act of a loving husband, it was certainly not the act of a clever one. And if it was the act of a clever one, then it proceeded from a cleverness in which love had no part.

What is Khokhlov? A fool? Or a knave?

EXPERT BETRAYED

Shoemaker, stick to your last!

The editor of the Wall Street Journal has probably heard that saying and applauded it. But the other day he was lured from the simplicities of high finance, from the simple rules of working capital, depreciation, bond interest, overhead, markup, credit, inflationary and deflationary trends and hard and easy money, into the maze of the comic strip.

It was, we suspect, the marriage of Spray O'Hara and Charles J. Charles which betrayed him. This wedding, which finally will leave Throat-y Thorax a widow and the Pirates which share with him the title of the comic strip "Ferry and the Pirates," was certainly an earthshaking event to many of those who read the funnies —as the editor of the Wall Street Journal apparently does.

True, ominous shadows had been cast before. When Daisy Mae finally dragged Little Abner before the preacher, we all sensed that something that anything could happen. In fact, there has been a decided trend toward this sort of thing in recent years.

Maggie and Jiggs, of course, have been married for as many years as most of us can remember. But then memories are not as reliable as we would like to make out. Consider the plight of the editor of the Wall Street Journal. He sagely remarks that "of course, Dagwood has been married from the beginning." Why it was Dagwood who started this whole thing! Or, perhaps more correctly, it was Blondie.

Well, having set that right, what can we tell you about the prospects for Diversified Doughnuts of North America, Incorporated? Or will somebody present us with a last to stick to?

BOYS, MEN AND WOMEN

Since boys are boys and men are men When Nellie I grew up to wed, men We loved each other,
And cannot be re-molded, Shed could for things I did or
By women, time and time again, said—
They will be scolded. Just as my mother.

When I was just a little boy, Now, since I give the children
Too much mischievous, small
My mother often I'd annoy What they withhold—
With sendout grievous. Insisting that I'll spoil them all—
My daughters scold.

A news dispatch from Toronto states that the settlement committee of the Toronto Conference of the United Church, which is likely to be considered by the church, will face a knotty problem when it meets in that city, as it has to deal with a surplus of ministers in that conference. At least seven changes in the ministry of Toronto churches will have to be dealt with by the committee.

In a baseball game at Marmora yesterday the Belleville juniors were defeated by the team of that village, the score being 13 to 5. The Belleville team under the management of Bill Hillis and Walter Green looked like winners until the sixth innings when luck and the crowd went against them and the Marmora boys ran in nine runs in one inning. The following composed the Belleville team: Hunter, Gerow, Laichford, Burley, Peck, Rigby, Hibbard, Scott, Rose and Wilkins. The game was handled by Mr. Gerow.

On the Ridge Road a barn was struck and destroyed with all its contents, the owner's name, could not be ascertained today. Mr. F. A. Bird, who lives in the Mills Hall was a valuable cow killed by lightning; the animal was standing under a tree. Mr. John Downey of Crookston, Huntington township, had a cow killed. The cow had taken shelter under a tree and other cows which were in the open escaped. Mr. Arthur Hamilton's barn in Oak Hill, Sidney township, was struck by lightning and destroyed. Mr. A. THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the highbrow magazines has lately printed a new reproduction of a famous masterpiece on its front cover, entitled: "Portrait of an Unknown Man, by Van Dyck."

He was a fine looking fellow. His face was noble, serene. Around his neck was the beautiful linen ruff of the period. His hands were noble, too. He wore the mustache and stylish flimsy chin whisker of 1635, when Charles I reigned over us, happy and glorious.

Since Van Dyck painted both on the continent and in England, it is a little difficult to say whether the gentleman was English or Flemish. But there is about him a quiet air of authority that suggests he was some pumpkins in his time. Doubtless he had one of his lackeys bring the small leather bag of golden guineas or guilders to pay for his likeness by the fashionable Van Dyck. In his portrait, he wears a pale expression; but doubtless he felt a little amused at the antics and pretensions of the chap with the brushes and palette, as he toiled at the canvas. But to have one's portrait painted was fashionable; and after all one had to go through the tedious business of being measured for one's clothes, too.

But here he is, worth a fortune today, and nobody knows who he was, what he did, not even his initials. The only name on the canvas is Van Dyck.

One way of escaping the cruel insignificance of life and death is a suppose that the unknown man was a model picked up by Van Dyck and dressed up in borrowed finery. But Van Dyck not only did not have to borrow clothes to have the time to. He was a busy little man, and guineas and guilders were gold.

No, the gentleman is unknown. But little more unknown, after all, than the kings, princes and gentlemen of name whose portraits hang in the precious galleries of the world, not because they were great men but because Van Dyck painted them.

Home-Coming Farmer

(John Gould in the Christian Science Monitor)

With my suitcases covered with legitimate hotel stickers, I felt sure my arrival home from an extended trip to Europe would be accepted without question. But the first 25 home folks I met all asked me if I was going somewhere. I think that would be it. It's all right to be deflated, but I don't think they need to jump up and down on the idea.

It was a good home-coming, though, and closer friends gathered in the living room to hear the latest news from "abroad," and the stickers really are legitimate. I enjoyed the hospitality of some fine reporters and distant boatlories while I was away, and the pasting-on of stickers is a great indoor sport over there. The smallest I have is a tiny triangle of mountain from the Hotel Shotsky in Freiburg, and the biggest is from the Hotels Deutsche Kaiser and Schweizer Haus in Bad Reichenhall. These two are almost there being a world's fair present whereby advance advertising is altogether too much for the case. The stickers are legitimate, all the same, because I certainly did buy them at the hotel desks.

Arriving home thus bestuck with evidences of my travels, I headed for the cold water tap in the kitchen and slacked off a long drought. I've heard all manner of stories about deprivation away from home who developed great love for the simple, homely comforts, and went into tirades of surfeit when they came again to the source of supply. Mine was one young lady on the boat deck going down the Rhine who said she would sit there with a peacock feather fan and a tall glass of deep and finish up a plateful and yelp for more.

Not me, folks. I understand, go for milk. Actually, I didn't develop any such violent craving exactly, because I had made up my mind in advance that I had plenty to eat, and liked about anything I tried. I think the only major exception was a beef steak that had been larded with anchovies. It was a well known cook's idea of a treat. It was the only steak I ever tackled that tasted like fish.

I'll eat fish with good grace, but I don't relish it as one of the game flavor. It was a terrible steak when I bit into the thing, and I engaged the waiter in a long and involved language lesson to find out how to avoid an anchovie steak in the future. I learned enough to get me by a second. If any non-classical person wants a good reason why the up-coming child should learn German, I would say it is the best way I know of to keep from getting a steak that tastes like fish.

• • •

Other than that, I had no gastronomic difficulties, and I didn't develop any gravy appetites for bears, succoubit, pie, or any of the things you might expect to bring out. But I did get a little vexed at the German custom of attaching little flags which say, "Nicht Trinkwasser" to any place where moisture might collect. I think it is another cartel—between the men who make little signs and the men who bottle fizz-water.

I didn't find out how this applies to prominent bathing, but I think there was a connection between the little signs and the quite some manoeuvre, particularly in those hotels where they take the handles off the faucets and deposit them in the hotel safe when called on. Faucet handles are rented out at two marks the week, and they are more interested in the fee than they are in the cleanliness of their guests.

I expected to find a bidet in my fizz-water, but it was not. It was only to be a convenience, ablution, smelling just like any bath in New York. They call me the Lily of the Valley of chlorinated the water when we occupied Germany.

I never liked the smell of chlorine in water, and I certainly see any reason why I should like it in Germany. But I felt obliged to drink the water in moderation, and all things considered the experiment was successful. I was lucky I am at home to have a never-failing supply of good water in the kitchen and stacked off a long drought. I've heard all manner of stories about deprivation away from home who developed great love for the simple, homely comforts, and went into tirades of surfeit when they came again to the source of supply. Mine was one young lady on the boat deck going down the Rhine who said she would sit there with a peacock feather fan and a tall glass of deep and finish up a plateful and yelp for more.

Not me, folks. I understand, go for milk. Actually, I didn't develop any such violent craving exactly, because I had made up my mind in advance that I had plenty to eat, and liked about anything I tried. I think the only major exception was a beef steak that had been larded with anchovies

Convocation at Albert College Held in Brilliant Sunshine; Diplomas, Awards Presented

Thirty-six Convocations have turned out great at Albert College but the excitement, the thrill is still fresh and new; touching to witness. For over twenty years no rain has marred the brightness of the day, and again on Monday afternoon the green lawns and lwied walls were the background for the procession of sweet girl graduates and young men, the girls in their long white dresses and long gloves carrying nosegays of sweetpeas. Following the students came the members of the faculty, with gowns and hoods, honorary guests, Principal Emeritus and Principal of the school proceeding to the front of Memorial Chapel to the strains of "March of the Priests" with Egerton Boyce at the organ and Mrs. E. Boyce at the piano.

The Invocation was given by Rev. Duncan McCuish, and was followed by the hymn, "Lead on, O King Eternal". Principal A. E. MacKenzie presided at the service and extended a cordial welcome during he was delighted to see so many parents present. The school had completed another successful year and gave promise of an equally good one next year as inquiries were coming in from near and distant places, so the school could become increasingly selective. He praised the teachers for their fine work, and said that from the point of view of administration the students had done exceptionally well. He then called on the Chairman of the Board of Governors, E. B. Warriner, was read expressing his regret at being unable to attend as he is on the west coast, and wishing every success to the school.

VALEDICTORY GIVEN.

The Valedictory address was given by Sandra June Yapover, who described the assembly as one filled with admiration for Convocation. When they had started this occasion four years ago, they thought that they had been fruitful years where they had lived and learned together, and that it seemed that there is a reward for real effort. She praised the faculty for tolerance and persistent faith of the teachers. "They may never realize their full and beneficial influence." Sandra said, "and we shall never forget. We hope to profit by the principles and precepts we have acquired". She concluded her remarks by reading "Invictus".

On behalf of the class of '54 Bruce Vanluven presented of the graduating class presented a silver alarm clock to Principal for the chapel and as an aid in worship. In accepting it, Mr. MacKenzie said the years had been a stood as a symbol to cause men to look up.

GOWN DISPLAYED.

The choir gowns which had been presented at an earlier chapel service, the gift of Wilbur S. Gordon, Tweed, were presented, and Sylvia Pitzsimons donned one as the audience could see how pleasing the blue gown with gray yoke, and blue mortarboard was.

The college choir, directed by the Dean of Music, J. R. MacKay, and accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Boyce, rendered three numbers, "A Song at Nightfall", "Onward Christian Soldiers" and the Albert College Hymn. Rev. Barnett Taylor accompanied by his son, Raymond, contributed two violin numbers.

Introducing the guest speaker, Rev. A. E. MacKenzie pointed out that Rev. Norman Rawson, D.D., was widely known, he is president of the Hamilton Conference and a graduate of Albert College. Dr. Rawson has a rare gift of captivating an audience, which is delightful to listen to but difficult to picture on paper. His witty asides and parties delighted the students and brought hilarious applause as he recounted his experiences as a student at Albert.

"Forty-one years ago I came to old Albert College without one cent of money", he began. I cleaned the staking rink, helped with the laundry, pressed trousers, preached and had a thoroughly good time. They were wonderful days, and to those, who don't win prizes I want to say, 'don't worry', many great men don't.".

PRAISES PEOPLE AT ALBERT.

Reminiscing about sports, he said, "We used to play with pegasus from Belleville Collegiate, and they were good. We didn't win any games.

"There were great people here. Ella Gardiner was a great soul, God never created a better woman. There would be no new Albert College today if it had not been for Rev. H. E. Baker.

"Albert College was good to me. It was one of the most wonderful teachers of speech, the incomparable Jessie Tuite. I walked the streets of Belleville without one cent in my pocket and I never knew an unhappy day. I came to Albert with the feeling that I could never be a language student. But I had a teacher who got up at eight o'clock to give me extra lessons and I learned Greek.

"If I could come back to this school and start over, and if I could get rid of four things out of the trunk of life, these would be my choices. Second, an aim in life that will come between you and the people in the gutter.

Third, I would want success. You ought to want to get to the top even if you are the tiniest worm burrowing its way to the top. I have met failures, but ministers who say they don't care whether they have a full church or not. I would rather preach to wooden heads than to wooden people.

MUST HAVE FAITH IN GOD

"But all these are meaningless without the fourth, which is faith in God who is above this world. When all the Hitlers, Mussolinis, Stalins and McCarthys have strutted their little paths, standing in the shadows, keeping watch over us all is God. This world did not just happen. Back of it is a great Intelligence. I call Him Father, and because of that all men are my brothers. Fathers usually love most intensely the child, who needs him most. If I am to have faith in my fellowmen I must have faith in myself. With no volition on my part I am a child of God. It matters not what has been heaped upon you, if you have these four things nowmy life will be stronger and happier and more worthwhile. That's what counts is to be able to look up into the face of God and say "I thank You", and then go out into a most difficult world, and do likewise.

The academic procession retired to Ackerman Hall, where a reception was held for the visitors, parents, members of the board, members of the women's guild and students.

Mrs. Mable Victoria Gutzeit made a presentation of a painting "The Music Lesson" by George Henry Reiss, an historical portrait painter, whose works are represented in many museums here and abroad. The picture was unveiled by H. W. Ackerman.

With mixed feelings the students said their good-byes, carried luggage downstairs, collected their train tickets, or joined their parents in cars. Many were busy with cameras recording the day on film to keep their memories of it fresh, and another Convocation day had passed. With the exception of the Upper School students school year was over.

The presentation of diplomas, certificates, prizes, scholarships and awards was carried through during the ceremony with the following results:

Oliver Urges Preparation For Early Election

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Ontario Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver, speaking at the annual meeting of the Oxford County Liberal Association Monday night, urged them to prepare for an election this fall.

"I don't know, but it's certainly between an election this fall and next June," he said. The present government has 2½ years to go, but they are finding the going tougher."

He said preparation for the election by then, even if it wasn't called in October, would mean the Liberals could strengthen for the election when it is called.

He told the meeting he was "too old a bird" at the political game to tip his hand as to what the party program would be at election time."

Mr. Oliver did say the party will promise at election time only what will be financially possible.

"We can sell Liberalism, if we label the package correctly," he said. "We've got to get Liberalism back into the right track, and as a party of extravagance."

Gordon Henry of Ingersoll was elected president of the Oxford group. Wilfred Bishop, Norwich, was elected first vice-president and Jack Coburn, Blenheim, second. R. A. McDougall and Cecil Robinson, both of Woodstock, were re-elected secretary and treasurer respectively.

French Communists Purge Their Leaders

PARIS (Reuters) — The French Communist party congress scheduled its central committee Monday in what is reported as a growing uneasiness over the loss of nearly half its party members during the last seven years.

Several prominent trade union members and parliamentarians were dropped from the central committee. They are believed to have been chosen as scapegoats for unsuccessful Communist strikes in the last two years and, possibly, for the fact that the French Communist party now numbers 805,335 members, compared with 907,785 in 1947.

PRESENTATIONS MADE

Mrs. Duncan McTavish was presented with a lovely bag as a token of esteem, by the Auxiliary members. Mrs. Houston Crowder read the regret and good wishes of the ladies to Mrs. McTavish, to which she graciously replied. Flowers also were presented to Mrs. Hibbard, Mrs. McTavish, Mrs. Lincoln Elliott, the previous presbyterial president, and to Mrs. Hyde.

The guest speaker, Mrs. L. Elliott, told of her husband's experiences, as a young theological student, and for that reason India has been much in her thoughts, referring to Dr. Ida Scudder, "who which brought to mind the facts, that we must study; we must share, and we must serve."

Of the W.M.S. convention at Trenton, Mrs. Coffman had stated "there were 200,000 women members who raised over a million dollars last year; that the bugs sum of $600 millions had been collected, and that while only 222 per capita is spent for milk, $47 spent per capita for liquor, that many frontiers are not yet crossed, and that we might find them close at hand."

WORKING IN UNISON

Mrs. Elliott stressed working in unison, as much could be done that way to promote Christian citizenship. Saskatchewan continued the speaker, "has become a dollar day; we have relaxed once more." A new book, entitled, "Gambling in Canada," by Kingsley, was commended to be read as it deals with the sweepstake system of gambling.

In speaking on India, Mrs. Elliott said, "We hear of its poverty, its disease, its 14 languages; and its religion, Hinduism, which is such a big thing. Christianity is the leaven that will leaven the whole lump. Fifty dollars is contributed annually for one year. They have the first United Church Mission in India. The next great spiritual revival may come from India."

The devotions thanked Mrs. Elliott for her talk, which was warmly received, and said, how effective prayer could be, and how we must put forth great effort to bring the great liquor traffic to a road on the youth with its baleful effects.

Several other ladies spoke briefly.

The president thanked the hostess, Mrs. Hibbard, for her hospitality.

Mrs. Hibbard and Mrs. McArthur were group leaders for the day.

Many expressed their pleasure for a decidedly pleasant, and profitable occasion.

Working Mother Is Here To Stay Says Psychologist

MONTREAL (CP) — A woman psychologist said today the working mother is here to stay—and society must get used to the idea.

Dr. Cecily de Monchaux, of London, England, said economic conditions have caused married women to take up outside jobs and the indications are "that this necessity will, if anything, increase rather than decrease."

"There will have to be adjustments to allow the mother to work and yet spend some time with her children," said Dr. de Monchaux, a lecturer in social psychology at London University.

Dr. de Monchaux, tall and soft-burn-haired, conducts a private practice, outside her university duties, with Anna Freud, daughter of the famed Dr. Sigmund Freud. She's attending International Psychology Congress sessions here.

CHILD AFRAID

Children between the ages of six months and two years were most severely affected by a continued absence of their mother, she said in an interview.

Although children, looked after by a succession of different persons, appear easy to handle, it had been shown "this is often because they are afraid to allow themselves to become too deeply attached to anyone." Dr. de Monchaux said.

Frequent family separations caused by modern conditions had tended to break up the family unit. These factors, combined with a general disappearance of "family tradition" caused psychological insecurity in children.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE'S 29, HE'S 31—COULD THEY BE HAPPY

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am an unmarried woman 29 years of age but I look about 30.

There is a young man in my office who is 24 years old and he has become very sensitive to me, believing I am younger than I am. We have been seeing quite a bit of each other and have been many places together.

The question now is that he is getting a little too serious and I just don't know how to break away from him. I don't want to hurt him, because he is very mature and understanding, but I still think I am too old for him. He seems much older than he is. Do you think 15 years difference is too much? Do you know of any marriages with such a great difference in age that have turned out successfully? — M.F.Y.

Dear M.F.Y.:

Yes, I do know of some marriages that have been very successful under such circumstances, but admittedly they are rare. Usually, when a young man becomes attached to an older woman, it is more of a mother-son relationship than a romantic attraction and so has in it the seeds of possible future trouble if it results in marriage. But in most cases, the young man gets over his infatuation and marries someone nearer his own age.

If you feel this chap is really getting to the point where he might ask you to marry him, it seems to me you'd be wise to find some way of letting him know your real age, and the sooner the better before either of you are in danger of getting actually involved. If he does want to marry you, and feels the difference in your ages need be no barrier he'll let you know it, and it would then be time to take up other angles of the situation. But first, I think, he should be tactfully made aware of the facts.

SHOULD SHE HAVE HER BOY FRIEND'S COMPANY WHEN BABY-SITTING?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I would like to know if there is anything wrong when a girl 15 years old takes care of children and has a boy in with her to watch television. I like the boy very much and I am sure he likes me, too. — R.D.

Dear R.D.:

I can see no reason why it shouldn't be all right for a girl who is baby-sitting (which I assume is what you mean by "taking care of children") to have a boy friend spend the evening with her, provided she makes very sure of three things.

These are: (1) that both her own parents and the parents of the children she is taking care of have approved such a social arrangement; (2) that she never for one minute allows visiting with the boy friend to take her mind off her duties to the children for whom she is responsible; (3) that her behavior throughout the entire evening is as it should be, and not in any way anything that would make either her parents or the children feel that they permitted her to have the boy's company.

Strawberry Favorites Requested

By Mary Moore

I knew it. I knew it. During the lifetime of this column (twenty-six years to be exact) I've printed and reprinted that recipe for glazed strawberry pie so often I'd think you would be tired of the sight of it. But no sooner had my copy been sent out last week on what I thought was my annual strawberry spell-umn, than letters arrived asking for "your" recipe for glazed strawberry pie" and "a repeat of the sugarless strawberry jam recipe."

I am your slave to command as always—and I must add in all sincerity that I particularly enjoy giving a helping hand to my diabetic friends in this audience.

EASY'S GLAZED STRAWBERRY PIE

Use the pastry you make best to line a deep pie plate. I like the following mixture because it makes a lovely tender crust and exactly fits my 10-inch: 1 1-4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons boiling water, 1 teaspoon milk, 3 tablespoons shortening. Build up the edge and flute it. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr, for 12 minutes or until tinged with gold. You will need more than 1 quart of strawberries for this. Pick out those that are not quite up to choice, cut them in halves and measure 1 cup, fairly well packed. Mix together 1 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons cornstarch (or powdered tapioca which you can buy at the drug store—it gives a ruby-clear glaze) and stir these into the 1 cup of berries and 7-8 cup boiling water. Cook this in double boiler, stirring, until thick, then cover and cook another 15 minutes or until no taste of raw starch is left, stirring 2 or 3 times. Strain through sieve and cool just a little. Slice remaining berries in halves—there should be about 3 cups, and sprinkle with 2 tablespoons sugar. Fill pastry with berries. Pour warm glaze over them, being sure it trickles between the berries. Cool, then chill the pie. You are on your own about garnishing it with border of whipped cream or serving it with ice cream—your budget and your conscience have to take over from there.
